7 SCHOOL BOARD MEN TO JAIL

ARISTOCRATS THREW ME OUT —LLOYD GEORGE

"I Am Champion of Rule by People."

LEEDS, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Charging his downfall as prime minister of Great Britain to the aristocrats, David Lloyd George opened his defense of his administration here today—a defense which he hopes will carry him back into power at a general election which probably will be held within a month.

"Education for the people, housing difficulties, disarmaments, peace with Ireland, more liberty in India," he said, "these are not things that sound well in Mayfair, and they have no special appeal in Belgravia (aristocratic sections of London). It is really cheerful to know that when you have been spending your strength as I have for years in trying to serve your country you aren't forgotten the first time a resolution is passed against you at a West End club.

"My whole bent of mind is democratic and progressive. They do not like it, and they have got to like it less and less. I stand where I have always stood, for the same sound progress. And they have smashed the combination that has pulled through our trade, our commerce, and our credit throughout the world; it is a crime against the nation.

Keeps Future Plans Secret.

While defending his administration, Mr. Lloyd George refrained from revealing his program. He spoke strongly of the past, but vaguely of the future. Apparently his plans are not yet formed or he feels that the time is not ripe for disclosing them.

He promised the people that whatever the future might bring, he would do nothing mean or paltry, declaring:

"I will play no part that is unworthy of the confidence placed in me by the people of this coutnry at the greatest moment in the empire's history."

Mr. Lloyd George did not say specifically that it was his purpose to lead the Liberal body; he did refrain, as at Manchester, from indorsing Austen Chamberlain's pronouncement that the Labor party was a menace to the country.

Gets Affectionate Reception.

The meeting was held in a moving picture house because it was the largest hall in Leeds. In this darkened auditorium the limelight was turned upon Mr. Lloyd George literally. The crowds were immense, and there was no mistaking the warmth and affectionate nature of their greeting.

Characteristic as the speech was as far as it went, it lacked personalities, which usually give a spice to Mr. Lloyd George's platform appearance. He had no hard words for his enemies, Mr. Bonar Law had been a friend, and was still his friend. He declared that no one who might possibly join in the Georgian caravan could be offended by anything he said today.

A much greater assembly was outside the hall than the 3,000 fortunate ones who managed to get tickets.

His arrival at the hall, accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd George and their daughter, Meghan, was a signal for an outburst of real campaign enthusiasm, which was repeated by those gathered within.

Lord Airedale, who presided, presented Mr. Lloyd George, as "a great statesman, who through the severest trials in history had been a pillar of the people's hope and the center of the world's desire."

"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The proceedings began with the customary British ritual for such occasions, the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." In acknowledging the vote of thanks from the meeting, Mr. Lloyd George said:

"I have been very much encouraged by the kindness which I have received in many quarters. I have never in the whole of my life experience witnessed such a spectacle as the crowds at the stations which met me on my way to Leeds. I do not believe that the people of this country will take their marching orders. I do not believe the people of this country will order their army at such bidding [referring to the resolution of the Unionists], and whatever happens in the next few weeks I cheerfully stake my appeal on the people of this country."

Opens Fire on Foes.

With almost the first words of his last speech he opened fire on the conservatives, who by their defection from his cabinet last Thursday forced his resignation.

"The banner of party strife has been hoisted at the Carlton club," he said. "The great combination of men of all

KING OF ITALY RESCUES FISHING PARTY FROM SEA

ROME, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Advices from San Rossore today state that while King Victor Emanuel was out on a fishing expedition with the royal princesses at the mouth of the Arno, in Tuscany, he saw a sailboat being carried into danger by a strong current. The royal party hurried to the rescue and the king, with the aid of the princesses, threw a rope to the men on board the sailing craft and saved the boat with its occupants.

Tullio Romeo, the owner of the fishing boat, did not know who his rescuers were, but he wanted to reward them, so after complimenting the young girls on their courage he insisted on presenting them with a basket of fish.

RICH JAPANESE GIRL FLEES PLOT

Police Guard Dormitory After Threats.

Mysterious threats made against her by two dapper Americanized Japanese are reported to be responsible for the sudden disappearance from Evanston of Miss Asa Matsuoka, 19 year old daughter of a wealthy importer of Tokio, and the stationing of two special policemen in front of the Northwestern co-ed dormitory conducted by Mrs. Lucile Richardson at 2010 Sherman avenue in the north shore city.

Great secrecy has been thrown about the girl's absence, both by the university authorities and the police. The facts leading up to the girl's disappearance are these:

Takes Course in Sociology.

Miss Matsuoka first came to America last winter, during the disarmament conference at Washington. She accompanied Mme. Kaji Yajima, 90 year old president of the Japanese W. C. T. U. for the last thirty years, who brought to Washington a petition signed by 10,000 Japanese women asking that all wars be abolished. A relative of Miss Matsuoka had previously served as first secretary to the Japanese embassy at Washington.

When Mme. Yajima returned to Japan Miss Matsuoka remained in Washington, and recently came here to take a special course in sociology, English, and kindred subjects at Northwestern university. Her ambition, she told friends at the institution, was to return to Japan and lead the movement of the younger party there for votes for women and other western customs.

Her expensive fur coats are said to have been the envy of other girl students in the dormitory. Her father always sent her a liberal allowance. Only recently, it was said, he sent her funds to purchase an expensive car.

Visits Dean Holgate.

A week ago last Tuesday she appeared before the Evanston Woman's club and gave a musical program on a koto, a Japanese harp. The following day the two Japanese, both young men, perhaps college students, called on her. Following their departure she appeared to be greatly agitated. She confided to girl friends her life had been threatened.

The next day she visited Prof. Thomas F. Holgate, dean emeritus of the college of liberal arts. He rushed to the Evanston police station for a half hour's conference with Capt. McEnery. Neither he nor the captain would discuss the nature of their conference, but that night the two special policemen took up their post in front of Mrs. Richardson's dormitory.

Miss Matsuoka left there and went to stay at Dean Holgate's home at 617 Library place, Evanston, for several days, and then she disappeared. Mrs. Richardson denied she knew anything about the visit of the two mysterious young men or the appearance of the police. She said Miss Matsuoka was "expected home next week."

WOMAN, 2 MEN TO BE SEIZED IN JERSEY KILLING

Eyewitness' Story to Bring True Bills.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Two indictments charging murder will be asked of the grand jury here Monday. They will name a woman and a man as the actual slayers of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, shot to death some time during the night of Sept. 14.

A third indictment naming a man as an accomplice in the murder will be requested of the Somerset county jurors when Prosecutor Beekman appears before them with a prominent New Brunswick woman who saw the dual killings take place.

The mystery which has baffled New Jersey authorities since the discovery of the two bodies on an old farm near here on Sept. 16 has been solved, it was announced here tonight in authentic quarters. Only the return of the indictments and the arrest of the woman and two men are needed to round out the case, it was stated.

Suspects Under Surveillance.

"There is no hurry to arrest any one before the grand jury acts," an official said late this evening. "Any move to escape at this time is tantamount to confession. And, besides, state troopers are guarding the three people we think guilty of the crime."

Arrests will have to be made immediately following the return of indictments. Under New Jersey law the authorities must act at once if they can lay their hands on the persons named in the true bills.

According to well founded information tonight, the prosecutor will rely chiefly on the testimony before the grand jury of the new eyewitness, a prominent woman here, whose existence has recently been disclosed.

Additional information obtained today about the star witness helps to explain her reason for being on the Phillips farm, an isolated country spot some distance from the city, on the night of the murder. She is said to be a woman of excellent repute who lives near the Phillips farm and was taking a hurried cross cut toward her home when she blundered upon the murder scene.

Member of Rector's Church.

The woman is said to be a member of the congregation of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, the same church with which the rector and his choir singer were connected.

She is reported in official circles to be able to give a satisfactory explanation of her failure to come forward with her story during the first month of the investigation.

Reports came from Somerville, the county seat of Somerset county, today, that the authorities have two eyewitnesses of the murder, a man and a woman. According to these reports, both eye witnesses are members of the church, and concealed their knowledge as long as possible because they did not wish their presence together at the Phillips farm at night to become generally known, because of the reputation of the neighborhood as a rendezvous for lovers.

The best information available from an official source tonight was that the eyewitness whose affidavit the prosecutor had, was not a member of the couple referred to, and that she is the only eyewitness whose statement has been taken by the authorities.

What the Woman Saw.

According to the best version of her story obtainable, this woman first saw four or five persons standing under the tree. There were two men and two women, or three men and two women. There is some doubt whether a third man was in the party, or whether the witness recognized him if he was.

It was while this woman was approaching the group, according to the best version of the story, that she saw and heard the shots fired and saw Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills lying on the ground.

The witness is understood to have kept out of sight of the murderers and to have got away before seeing the finish of the expedition, with the cutting of the woman's throat and the placing of her love letters between the bodies.

It was reported tonight that if it developed that the woman witness saw two men and a woman in the murder party, only two of them will be charged with murder. A woman and the first man are said to have been accused by the eyewitness of the actual commission of the crime. The second man probably will be accused as an accomplice.

Among those questioned today was Barbara Tough, seamstress in the Hall

Cabaret Lid at 1 Upheld by High Court

Chicago is now a 1 o'clock town as far as cabarets are concerned, but dancing, dining, and drinking (nonalcoholic beverages) may go on forever.

That is the import of two actions taken by the Supreme court at Springfield last night. In the first place the court upheld the validity of the ordinance closing amusement places at 1 o'clock as applied to restaurants. This means that all midnight revues, cabaret performances, and any other programs by professional entertainers must cease at that hour.

City Without Power.

Secondly, the court denied the petition of the city for a rehearing on a former decision of the court upholding the Appellate court which found the city had been given no authority to license restaurants. This case was the outgrowth of the action of Mayor Thompson in revoking the license of Ike Bloom's Midnight Follies and Colosimo's restaurant during the heat of the campaign in the fall of 1920.

Injunctions were granted by Judge Denis E. Sullivan in the Colosimo case and by Judge Morrill in the case of the Midnight Follies, restraining Mayor Thompson and the chief of police from interfering with their businesses. The city appealed to the Appellate court to dissolve the injunctions in both cases, but Judges Morrill, Gridley and Barnes held that the state gave the city no power to license restaurants. They were upheld by the Supreme court, which last night denied a rehearing.

Suit Against Green Mill.

The test of the amusement ordinance was carried to the Supreme court by the Green Mill Gardens. The city brought suit against the Green Mill Gardens, contending that the management violated the amusement ordinance by keeping open until 2:30 o'clock. The case was first tried Sept. 22, 1921, the Municipal court holding that the ordinance did not apply to restaurants such as conducted by the defendants.

The opinion of the Supreme court, written by Justice Duncan, upholds the ordinance as a valid and a reasonable one, and that the defendant conducts an amusement place within the meaning of the ordinance. The former decision is reversed and the case is remand to the lower court.

Statement by Breen.

"These two decisions, coupled with that in the case of the Blackstone hotel several years ago, mean that cabaret shows must stop at 1 o'clock, but that not even the police can interfere with dancing or dining at that hour," said First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen. "The Blackstone decision held that the municipal authorities have no right to interfere with dancing in an eating place. As the city cannot now license restaurants, it has no power at all, except where professional entertainments are given."

H. G. Wells, Author, Loses Fight for Parliament Seat

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—The present political turmoil in Great Britain was reflected in the proceedings at the rectorial election for parliament at Glasgow university this afternoon when Lord Birkenhead, Unionist, was elected with 1,164 votes over Sir John Simon, Liberal, who received 530 votes, and H. G. Wells, the novelist, as the Labor candidate, who received 353 votes. Several free fights occurred among the students in which flour, soot, rotten eggs and decayed fish were freely used.

SUPREME COURT VOIDS PARDONS BY GOV. SMALL

3 Women Ordered to Pay Their Fines.

Gov. Small's attempt to override the judiciary by pardoning the nine members of the Chicago school board and its attorney, who were sentenced in 1919—some of them to imprisonment and all to pay fines for contempt of court—was knocked in the head yesterday by the state Supreme court and the school board members must take their punishment. The contempt charges arose in connection with the conspiracy to keep Charles E. Chadsey from serving as superintendent of schools.

Five present members of the school board are hit by the opinion, which was given in the mandamus case filed by Attorney General Brundage and Angus Roy Shannon, former attorney for the board, to compel Sheriff Charles W. Peters to execute the judgments.

It is directed by the Supreme court that the fines be collected and the imprisonment imposed. There is no further appeal. The decision does not affect the status of Mr. Chadsey, who resigned in order to become dean of the school of education of the University of Illinois.

Ten Hit by Decision.

Those who must accept the contempt punishment ordered by Judge Kickham Scanlan on June 22, 1920, are:

WILLIAM A. BITHER, former attorney for the board, now under indictment for graft in school funds; five days in jail and $500 fine.

ALBERT H. SEVERINGHAUS, present member of the board, under indictment for grafting; three days in jail and $300 fine.

GEORGE B. ARNOLD, former member; two days in jail and $300 fine.

HART HANSON, present member; three days in jail and $300 fine.

MRS. FRANCES E. THORNTON, former member; $750 fine.

DR. SADIE BAY ADAIR, present member; $750 fine.

MRS. LULU SNODGRASS, former member; $500 fine.

DR. BOLESLAUS KLARKOWSKI, present member; one day in jail and $300 fine.

JAMES RENZY, former member; one day in jail and $300 fine.

FRANCIS E. CROARKIN, present member; one day in jail and $300 fine.

Ruling on Pardon Power.

The contempt committed by these board members was their refusal to reinstate Dr. Chadsey after his election as superintendent had been upheld by the court. The Supreme court opinion states:

"It is perfectly plain that the action of the board of education was clearly in defiance of the judgment and was taken with the purpose of defeating it. The board had the legal right, if it thought the judgment was erroneous, to have it reviewed by the higher courts, but it did not have the right to refuse to obey it, and when adjudged guilty of contempt to apply to the governor to set aside the action of the court by issuing a pardon.

Power to Punish in Court.

"The power to punish for contempt of court is in the judicial department of the government, and no power is conferred upon the executive department to review, set aside, or annul in any manner the judgment of the court.

"If the contempt herein involved were as we hold, civil contempt, then it is conceded that the constitutional grant of power to the governor to grant pardons after conviction 'for all offenses' does not apply. The governor cannot exercise any of the powers of the judiciary unless the authority is clearly granted by the constitution."

Commenting on the ruling of the court, Attorney Shannon said:

"The decision of Judge Scanlan was sustained by the Appellate court. Instead of going to the Supreme court the defendants got a pardon from Gov. Small. Mr. Brundage and I went into court for the people of Illinois on mandamus proceedings. The question was whether the executive could override the judiciary. This is now settled."

Origin of the Trouble.

Dr. Chadsey was chosen to come to Chicago from Detroit in 1919 by the school board, of which Jacob M. Loeb was president. The appointment was opposed by the Thompson administration, and after the mayor's reëlection and the ousting of the Loeb board Dr. Chadsey was deposed. He took his case to court.

Judge Scanlan ruled that the Loeb board had the power to appoint Dr. Chadsey. He took office, but instead of permitting him to function as superintendent the nine members of the board named above, supposedly guided by Bither, took all his powers and duties from him, leaving him resignation as the only dignified course to follow. Then followed contempt proceedings.

Judge Scanlan's Decision.

Judge Scanlan, in presenting his decision, said:

"Law and order never will prevail in this community while persons of standing and authority, like these respondents, in concert of action treat with open contempt and disobedience the mandate of a court. (Mayor Thompson was present in court at the time. He had 'congratulated the school children' when the nine members referred to were confirmed in office.)

"The guilty conspirators in this case have succeeded in their shameless and lawless design to prevent Dr. Chadesky from holding the office to which he was entitled under the law, and all that the court can do now is to see that the guilty ones shall not go unwhipped of justice."

Twenty-four hours after the Appellate court had denied the defendants a rehearing in the case Gov. Small granted absolute pardons to all who were found guilty of contempt. Judge Scanlan said that Gov. Small had no power of pardon in such cases.

Judge David Agrees.

Judge Joseph E. David of the Superior court commented at that time as follows:

"Never before in the history of this state had the power of a court in a contempt case been challenged. It had been believed courts could enforce their orders and that those who flouted the court's authority could be punished. Gov. Small may be within his rights. If such is the law the chief executive should be stripped of such power under the next constitution."

But it appears that such was not the law.

Members of the school board reached last night were astonished at the decision.

"I don't know what to say," said Mrs. Snodgrass. "I suppose I will have to pay and abide by the law."

Dr. Adair refused to comment. Superintendent of Schools Mortenson, who succeeded to the job vacated by Dr. Chadsey, said that the decision would not affect the position which he holds and he refused to talk.

Croarkin Surprised.

Trustee Croarkin, who had planned to go to Tennessee tomorrow on business, when informed of the decision said:

"That's certainly a surprise. I believed under the constitution the governor had the pardon power in this case. Some court decisions led me to believe the same. I suppose we will have some time granted for a rehearing plea. I have high regard for our Supreme court."

OTHER HIGH COURT RULINGS

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The state Supreme court has awarded a writ of mandamus in the case of the Roberts & Schaefer company of Chicago against Secretary of State L. L. Emmerson, sustaining the company's contention relative to the taxation of capital stock. The decision of the court reverses the holding of the secretary. It holds that stock of no par value cannot be assessed at $100 a share, as is other stock, but must be computed at its actual value.

The decision affects a number of cases and will materially reduce the amount collected in franchise taxes from corporations having stock of no par value. Several corporations have secured injunctions restraining the payment of money collected into the state treasury.

The case against Edward Eccarius and Forest Bowers, convicted of attacking Grace E. Moore July 9, 1921, goes back to the Criminal court of Cook county. The judgment of guilty was reversed because of faulty instructions.

The court reversed and remanded the case against James Sweeney and Harry Bartlett, convicted in Cook county and sentenced to indeterminate sentences in the penitentiary for dynamiting in the Chicago laundry strike. The reversal is on the ground that faulty instructions were given the jury.

Boys Play with Revolver; One Shot Probably Fatally

Harold Cimpinare, 11 years old, 5151 Grace street, was wounded probably fatally when a revolver in the hands of a playmate, Frank Henry, 12, 5133 Berenice avenue, was discharged accidentally.

The two boys were in the Henry home and were examining a revolver belonging to Mr. Henry when it exploded, the bullet penetrating Cimpinare's chest. He was taken to a hospital, where it is said that he probably will die. Henry was released after questioning by the police.

But, "Mr. Lundin has checked out," was the only word for interviewers who wished to ask him why he is evading service to appear as a witness before the special school board grand jury.

Find Ben Newmark.

One of his political henchmen, however, was served both by deputies and a police sergeant. Sergt. William Haas of the state's attorney's staff reported he had found Ben Newmark, who was one of the "hideouts." Later deputies announced they had also served him with a subpœna.

It is believed that Lundin left Milwaukee for his Fox Lake home, but no one there would admit that Lundin was home. As Fox Lake is in Lake county, a subpœna by the Cook county grand jury would not be binding on him and if he chooses to continue as a "hideout" he may not venture within the boundaries of Cook county to avoid service.

Many Officers on Watch.

Special Prosecutor I. T. Greenacre has ordered that every available deputy sheriff be placed on watch for Lundin. Virtus Rohm, Lundin's nephew, who is still under orders to return each day to the grand jury room, is responsible for the quest for Lundin.

His testimony placed Lundin for the first time in the large list of those who have profited greatly by their transactions with the school board. Lundin received a "cut" of 25 per cent on the insurance business which other witnesses affirmed was more than sufficient for protective purposes.

German Potash Yield for 1922 May Pass That of 1913

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—For the first time since the start of the world war Germany's potash production this year promises to exceed the 1913 output. The German potash syndicate was told today by its director general, Herr Forthmann, that the total sales at home and abroad during 1922 may reach 12,500,000 double hundred weights.

BILLIONS SAVED BY G. O. P. REGIME, SAYS CURTIS OF KANSAS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—A compilation of governmental expenditures during the past year was made public tonight by Senator Curtis of Kansas, assistant Republican leader of the senate, as an evidence, he said, that his party had made good its promises to save money for the taxpayers.

Appropriations for the fiscal year 1923, the Kansas senator computed, totaled $3,747,035,382 compared to $6,454,596,649 for 1920. His figures showed that taxes this year had been reduced by $860,000,000, that 122,000 persons had been dropped from the government payroll, and that the standing army had been reduced from 268,000 in 1920 to 125,000 in 1922.

Economy under the republican administration, Mr. Curtis said, has made it possible to reduce aggregate expenses despite payments to disabled service men now averaging $1,250,000 daily.

WOMAN SLAYER FAINTS IN COURT AS TRIAL BEGINS

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Catherine Rosier, on trial for the murder of Miss Mildred Geraldine Reckitt, her husband's tsenographer, and under indictment for killing Oscar Rosier, her husband, at the same time, fainted today as she stood to listen to the reading of the indictment. The jury had just been completed.

As Assistant District Attorney Morris J. Speiser, veteran of more than 100 murder trials, who is handling the case for the commonwealth, branded her a woman who had committed "wilful, deliberate, and premeditated murder without any cause." The defendant collapsed into the arms of a tipstaff.

In contrast to the preceding days, given over since the case opened on Wednesday to the selection of a jury, the trial moved with rapidity today—so much so that three witnesses had been examined before court adjourned until Monday.

THIEF SHOT BY TAILOR.

Awakened about 5 o'clock yesterday morning by burglars attempting to force the front door of his tailor shop at 806 West Adams street, over which he lives, W. F. Dammes fired at the thieves. One man staggered and fell, but escaped with the assistance of his companion.

READY TO PROVE SHE IS DAUGHTER OF MISS NILSSON

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Sadie Nilsson Murray has affidavits to prove she is the daughter of Christine Nilsson and the famous singer's legal heir, she declared today. Mrs. Murray and her husband believe they will be able to support their claim in any court.

Dr. Lucius Knowles Thayer of Salem has made affidavit that Christine Nilsson gave birth to a child at the home of his sister, Mrs. Louis J. Kendall, in Worcester on Dec. 13, 1881. The wife of Mme. Nilsson's cousin also has made affidavit that the Swedish nightingale gave birth to a child on that date in Worcester.

Mrs. John Hanson of Lawrence, Mass., another of the singer's relatives, admits Mrs. Murray resembles the singer. Still another affidavit is made by a man in Boston who made out the release signed by Mme. Nilsson when she placed the baby in the home for destitute children the year after it was born.

Mrs. Murray complains that she is being shadowed by agents of the Swedish claimants to Mme. Nilsson's fortune, who have kept the case in international courts for several years.

BRITAIN TO GET APOLOGY BY U.S. FOR SHIP RAID

Rum Seizure Unwarranted, Treasury Ruling.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Formal apology will be made by the state department to the British government for the action of overzealous prohibition enforcement officers in seizing the Canadian schooner Emerald with a liquor cargo beyond the three mile limit off the New Jersey coast, it was learned today upon high authority.

A thorough investigation conducted by the treasury department, it was stated, has established that the seizure of the Emerald calls for an official expression of regret by the American government.

Trophy of Our Dry Navy.

A report of the treasury department to Secretary Hughes will admit that the Emerald did not establish contact with the Jersey coast and that members of the crew did not land, facts which prove that the seizure was unwarranted.

The Emerald was "captured" by the "dry navy" chaser Hahn about eight miles off the Jersey coast. The Hahn trained its guns on the Emerald and brought it into New York. Prohibition enforcement bureau officials contended that the Emerald was planning to land liquor, but admitted that there was no evidence of smuggling.

At the same time, it is expected that steps will be taken to make restitution to the Canadian owners of the Emerald. Federal officials in New York will be directed to restore to the owners the 1,000 cases of whisky which formed the cargo and to make provision for compensating them for other losses sustained.

Have a Law; No Enforcement.

Legal tangles are in prospect over the fact that Attorney General Daugherty's dry ship ruling which went into effect at midnight has no regulations ready to enforce it.

Originally it was planned to put the ruling into effect at once, but the time was extended by order of the President until Oct. 14. Another week was allowed to give Federal Judge Hand in New York time to pass on the application for an injunction filed by foreign and American owners.

Regulations were drafted at a conference of officials today. It is expected that they will be ready for the signature of Secretary Mellon on Monday.

Absence of enforcement methods, however, will have no effect, it was said, on the validity of the law. Foreign vessels carrying liquor after today will be liable to the penalties fixed by the Volstead act if they enter American coastal waters.

LEAVING PULPIT

The Rev. Dr. James S. Stone.

DR. STONE WILL GIVE FAREWELL SERMON TODAY

The Rev. Dr. James S. Stone, for twenty-seven years rector of St. James' Episcopal church, this morning will preach his sermon of farewell. His retirement is due to his advanced age, 70 years.

"Severing my connection with St. James' is breaking my heart," said Dr. Stone yesterday. "But I feel a younger man is necessary for all the diversified duties of a parish priest, the administrative work, the dinners, the luncheons, the meetings of the different organizations, and the thousand and one other calls that are a tax on physical endurance.

"When one has been close to his people in their hours of greatest joy and sorrow, it is hard to leave them."

Dr. Stone, who has been in the ministry forty-eight years, voiced a belief that return of beer and light wine would benefit the country. "But I do not want that interpreted as favoring anything like the saloon," he added.

The prohibition amendment, he said, is so unpopular that the people will not permit large appropriations for its enforcement. Eventually, it will become generally understood that it is not to be enforced, Dr. Stone believes.

"I believe the prohibition amendment is unjust to the great mass of people," he said. "It is putting those persons who used light wines and beer—and they constitute a large part of the population—on the same plane as drunkards.

"Men now evade the prohibition law and boast about it who never before willfully disregarded any law."

DRY SHIP RULING UP TO SUPREME COURT BY JAN. 1

Daugherty to Speed It in Every Way.

The ruling by Attorney General Daugherty that American ships must become "dry" and that foreign ships entering American ports must also operate under the prohibition law will be taken to the United States Supreme court for decision by Jan. 1. The attorney general will expedite the matter in every way.

Mr. Daugherty and A. D. Lasker, chairman of the shipping board, who criticized the ruling Friday night, declaring it meant the ruin of the passenger service of the merchant marine, both left Chicago yesterday. Mr. Daugherty went to Canton, O., to deliver an address which is expected to influence the critical political situation in the state. Mr. Lasker returned to Washington.

Predicts Great Financial Loss.

Under conditions created by this ruling Mr. Lasker sees no way of overcoming great financial loss to American shipping. He accepts the Daugherty ruling, he made it plain yesterday, and will make no effort to evade it. He would not have foreign ships ostensibly "dry" in American ports, for that would create a condition in which American and foreign ships would supposedly be on an equal basis.

In reality, he knows, the foreign ships will always have plenty of liquor. He would rather they had it openly and that this competition would be understood by the people as being responsible for the failure of the enterprise which he heads.

Egect of Evasion.

If the foreign ships are required to take roundabout methods of getting liquor and are legally "dry" but practically "wet," the result will be that every one will wonder what is the matter with American ships, Mr. Lasker argues. He thinks it would be better if every one understood that it was this handicap of not being able to serve liquor that is behind the increasing deficits that he sees on the shipping board horizon.

There is some relief in sight, even if all is "dry," under the merchant marine bill. One clause in this bill makes it obligatory for 50 per cent of the immigrants to America to travel on American ships. This would overcome in part the fact that this class of passengers will not travel without beer and wine if they can help it.

Czarists Claim Bolsheviks Send New Agents to U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The Bolsheviki are sending dozens of secret agents to the United States every month from their new headquarters in Hamburg, according to Russian Czarists in Berlin. They claim that two of the latest additions to the army of Bolshevik propagandists hoping to conquer the United States are David Cohan and L. Levis, who sailed with false passports under the names of Dose and Kraeuger as Danzig citizens.

LIGHT WINE AN BEER URGED B ILLINOIS LAB

Soldiers' Bonus Favor by Union Delegates.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Organized workingmen and women of Illinois favor a modification of the Volstead act permitting the sale of light wines and beers. The convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor, which adjourned tonight, unanimously passed a resolution favoring the change in the liquor act.

The resolution was presented by Delegate Ben F. Parker of Chicago and the Machinists' union of Streator.

Crime Laid to Dry Act.

"The eighteenth amendment and the sham Volstead enforcement act," said the resolution, "are principally responsible for the prevailing number of unemployed, high taxes, increased crime, increased number of drug addicts, and the endless trail of its demoralizing effects is daily manifested.

"We concur in the action of the American Federation of Labor and its prepared program of legislation toward modifying or repealing the Volstead act, and go on record for same."

The convention adopted a resolution introduced by Delegates Leo E. Ge and William Stelzer of the Chicago Postoffice Clerks' union, asking for the enactment of a law providing for time and a half pay for overtime in excess of eight hours service in postal work.

Congress was asked to make it optional for postal employés to retire after thirty years' service, in another resolution presented by the same delegates.

For Soldiers' Bonus.

Other adopted resolutions advocate a bonus for soldiers and sailors, the creation of a state insurance fund for workers injured on duty and an increase of the amount of money allotted to workers under the state compensation law.

Communications were read between Richard O'Halloran, a miner of Tayville, Ill., and Victor A. Olander, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, in which the former said he wanted his name withdrawn as a candidate for the presidency of the federation.

Later O'Halloran stated that his name was withdrawn without his consent.

U. S. FISHERMEN WIN; CALLED NO RACE, THEY QUIT

Yank Boat Beats Bluenose Over 40 Mile Course.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.] — The fishing schooner Henry Ford, challenging in behalf of the American fishing fleets with Secretary of the Navy Denby aboard, beat the Bluenose of Canada international champion, by two miles today in a forty mile race. Because both the fishermen, out for sport, refused to return after a premature start, the international sailing committee declared it no contest.

As a result Capt. Clayton Morrissey of the Henry Ford and his crew tonight declared their intention of putting dories aboard and going back to the banks to fish, quitting the races. Capt Angus Walters of the Bluenose was outspoken in private and to crowds in his assertion that it was a "fair race and for the Henry Ford a fair victory."

Call It "No Official Race."

"No official race on account of both of the contestants having made false starts."

This statement subscribed to by five members of the international committee will stand as the formal record of the contest in the 1922 series for the Halifax Herald cup.

To the Henry Ford the victory was one against greatest odds. Sailing against the champion, with green crew up most of the night working on sails that had been recut at the last moment by official direction so that a gap nearly a yard wide showed in the leach of the main and foretop sails, it won by a margin that was increased on every leg of the race.

Unofficially the time for the race was:

Henry Ford, 4:34:30; Bluenose, 4:47:57.

The margin of difference was the equivalent of about two miles.

Real Race, Says Denby.

Through all the forty miles the captains fought it out as a race. Secretary Denby, crawling ashore over a swinging rope ladder from the Henry Ford, said he felt moer than half the men would not race again if their apparent victory was not confirmed. It was at all times a race, he said.

In effect, the contest became a private one when, the sailing committee having ordered the boats to return, Capt. Walters sent back word that the start was satisfactory to him and he was going to race it out. The Henry Ford, willing to heed the admonitory signals, whistles and motor messengers of the committee, Capt. Morrissey said, saw no use in starting over again while the Bluenose was in hot pursuit. So the Henry Ford kept on sailing.

How the Mixup Occurred.

The incident developed in this manner: The wind was light. The Henry Ford had been held back until the last minute, bending on her recut sail when the committee at 9:30 posted a signal calling for half an hour's postponement. At 10 o'clock, the time originally set for the start, a whistle was blown and the postponement signal was hauled down.

The sailing committee having ordered the boats to return, word came back from the Bluenose sailors that the start was satisfactory to they and they were going to race it out.

A few seconds later the schooners, Henry Ford to windward, the Bluenose berthed in snugly in her lee, came down the line. It was thought they were maneuvering for the start half an hour later, and no time was taken. The committee thought its purpose to postpone had been made clear. The fishermen knew only that it was 10 o'clock starting time, that the start was a fairly even one, and that they were pointing for the first mark. So away they went.

It was not until they came up to the finish and found no stake boat to take their time that they realized the committee had ruled it no contest.

Secretary of Navy "Delighted."

Secretary Derby declared he was delighted with his experience.

"I had the very great pleasure," he said, "of being a passenger on board the American challenging craft, Henry Ford, today and it certainly was a treat to be almost one of the crew of this splendid American vessel, and to get to know personally men who in the past and who will in the future, have their share in assisting in making the United States navy an institution to be proud of."

Kiwanis Clubs Move to Wipe Out "Blue Mondays"

There will be no more "Blue Mondays" in Chicago under the plan advanced by the All-Chicago Council of Kiwanis Clubs, representing more than 1,000 business men in all parts of the city. All other organizations are asked to join in the campaign, the object of which is stated in a resolution providing that the phrase "Blue Monday" be stricken from the vocabulary of Kiwanians and "Cheer Monday" be substituted.

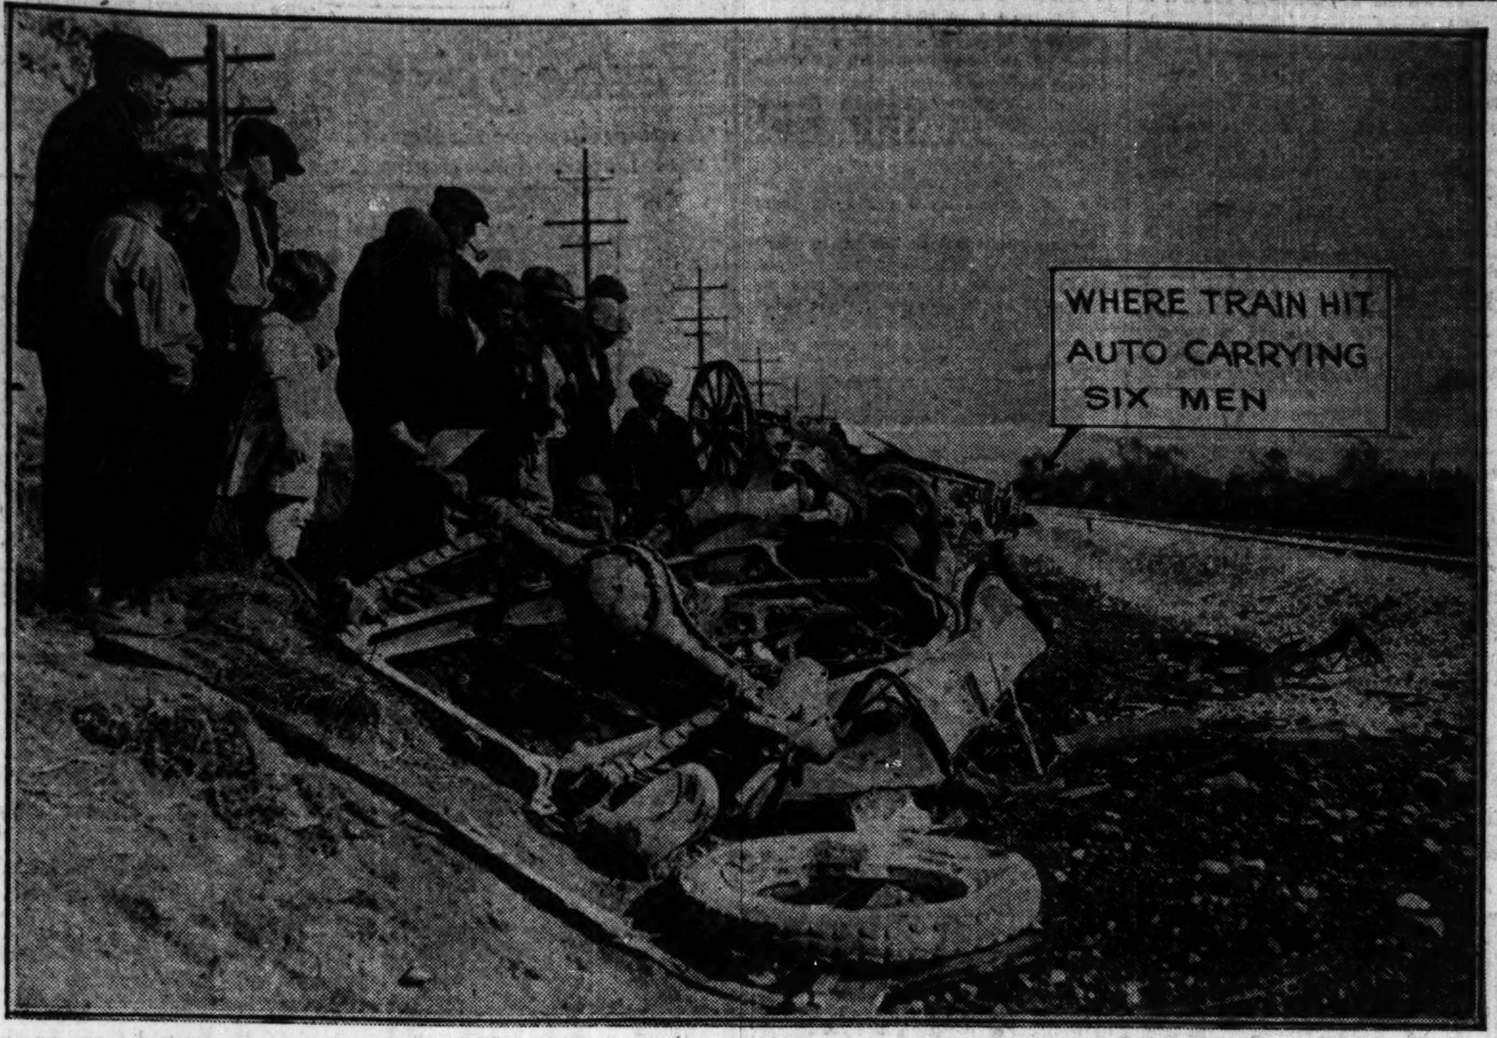
SCENE OF CRASH FATAL TO FOUR



Wreckage of repair truck of Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad which was struck by flyer of that line at Westmore, nineteen miles from Chicago, yesterday. Four occupants of the truck were killed and the two others injured. The impact cut off the air, rendering the brakes useless, and the truck was swept along 900 feet before the train could be stopped.

4 KILLED WHEN ELECTRIC TRAIN HITS REPAIR AUTO

Truck Is Carried 900 Feet by Elgin Flyer.

Four men were killed and two injured severely when a west bound train of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin line struck a repair truck manned by employés of the road, at Westmore, nineteen miles from Chicago, early yesterday morning.

The dead are:

JOHN J. PETERS, Aurora.
PETER MARKS, West Chicago.
VICTOR CHRONE, West Chicago.
CARL TIMM, West Chicago.

The injured are Robert Gustafson of St. Charles and August Surcamer of Aurora.

Truck Carried 900 Feet.

It is thought that the six repair men were so busily at work that they failed to hear or see the limited, rushing on them at sixty miles an hour.

The truck was carried a distance of 900 feet before Fred Meyers, the engineer, could stop the train. He said the impact had cut off the air, rendering the brakes useless. One of the bodies was in the wreckage when the train was halted, the others having been hurled on either side of the tracks.

A special train conveyed the two injured men to an Aurora hospital, while the bodies of the four dead were taken to Kamp's morgue in Wheaton. Coroner William Hopf will conduct an inquest in Wheaton this morning.

Girl Hit by Woman Driver.

Miss Mary Vnier, 1237 North Shore avenue, who was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. M. K. Forsythe, 1420 Washington street, Evanston, yesterday morning, is believed to be dying in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston, of a skull fracture and internal injuries. Mrs. Forsythe was booked by Rogers Park station police on a charge of assault with an automobile.

Six persons were injured when two automobiles collided at Clarendon and Wilson avenues shortly after noon. They were taken to Lake View hospital. Mrs. William Gresmer of Glencoe, the most seriously injured, suffered concussion of the brain and a possible skull fracture.

Police are searching for Walter Davis, 564 Oakwood boulevard, whose roadster crashed through a low stone wall and into a basement apartment at 3936 Grand boulevard early yesterday. Walter E. Quilink, 4902 Wright street, the other occupant of the car, painfully injured, was taken to Lakeside hospital. He said Davis lost control of the wheel.

Deputy Coroner S. L. Fischer continued the inquest into the deaths of Miss Josie Bruno, 3028 South Wells street, and an unidentified man, burned to death when their taxicab was struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train near Glenview Wednesday, for a week. The man is believed to be Vincenzo Battiato, who is said often to have declared he would marry Miss Bruno, whether she would or no.

Boy Struck by Truck.

Oscar Losendo, 9 year old boy, 1011 South Winchester avenue, suffered a probable skull fracture and internal injuries when he was struck by a truck at Harrison and Lincoln streets. Roy Tunney, the driver, was released.

Isaac John, 633 Rush street, was taken to the county hospital after having been struck by a truck at Erie and Sedgwick streets. He suffered lacerations and internal injuries.

LOSES $200,000 SUIT IN WALSH-BANK FAILURES

A court fight which has dragged along for 17 years, ever since the failure of two of John R. Walsh's banks in 1905, was ended yesterday when the Supreme court at Springfield denied a rehearing to Abraham G. Becker, who brought suit against Cornelius K. G. Billings, a former director of the Home Savings bank, to recover approximately $200,000.

The Home Savings bank and the Chicago National bank both failed at the same time, entailing a loss to the stockholders of $3,500,000. Becker charged that Billings was liable for the losses because of his lack of vigilance as a director.

At one time Billings offered to settle for $150,000, but was prevented by the late Judge Richard S. Tuthill. On the first hearing Billings was held liable, but the case was dismissed at a second hearing because the statute of limitations had run. Becker then appealed for a rehearing, which was denied yesterdaq.

ARREST FATHER AND GIRL OF 16, HUNTED A YEAR

Officers were dispatched to Beardstown, Ill., last night to bring back to Chicago Edward J. Daley, 28 years old, formerly a machinist at the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company, 1066 West Adams street, and Miss Emma Smith, 16, formerly a stenographer with the same concern. Daley is charged with abduction and the girl with larceny.

According to the police, the couple disappeared from Chicago a year ago, Daley, a married man, taking the $1,200 savings of his wife and himself. The girl is alleged to have taken $200 of her own money and $100 which was the property of her mother.

Ernie Young Freed of U.S. Ticket Scalping Charge

United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason yesterday dismissed Ernie Young, a ticket broker, on charges of failing to indorse his name and address on tickets he was said to have been selling to the Chicago-Purdue football game. Young explained that his bro-

MICHIGAN "LION" ELUDES HUNTERS; LEAVES TRACKS

Woman Moves Family from Haunts.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 21.—Nothing more has been heard or seen of the Lakeside lions, and Lakeside itself, after two interrupted days and nights, is resuming its usual calm and discussing the affair almost with detachment. The posse has not been out today. They covered a good deal of country yesterday, and in the absence of further news the hunters look on further search as useless. As Deputy Sheriff H. W. Gowdy pointed out, "The undergrowth round here is so thick that you could pass within ten yards of the lion and never see it or suspect it was there."

A visit to the tracks left by the animals today resulted in sharply divided opinion as to the nature of the invader. Where the ground is softest and still damp from Wednesday's rains the imprints are nearly four inches across and an inch deep. There is no doubt they were made by an extremely heavy animal.

Member of Cat Tribe.

In drier places they are about two and a half inches across and in some places only the claw marks show. The size and depth of these claws certainly point to a member of the cat tribe, a theory supported by the fact that the tracks are directly in line with one another. Sheriff George Bridgman, however, after thorough examination, still believes that the marauder is probably a large dog.

"There are a number of mixed Airedales around here," he said, "and it is more likely to be a dog than a lion. A little while ago we had a number of sheep killed and mangled. Then we shot a couple of dogs and no more sheep were killed. That is probably what it is in this case."

Woman Is Convinced.

Mrs. Wilbur Glossinger, who first saw the animal, is still convinced it was a lion. She is so sure of this that she and her family have moved to Union Pier, where she intends to remain until the lion is found and killed.

"The animal was just the size of a lion and had the yellow tawny color," she said.

Marion Edwards Park Made President of Bryn Mawr

Bryn Mawr, Pa., Oct. 21.—The inaugural of Marion Edwards Park as president of Bryn Mawr college took place today with Gov. Sproul and more than 140 delegates representing ninety-four universities and colleges and twenty-eight societies attending.

BOMB DAMAGES FLAT RENTED TO COLORED FAMILY

Angered at the rising tide of color as portrayed in the invasion of a hitherto white section by the colored family of Henry Peoples, who had rented the front half of the first floor of the house at 1058 West 14th street, a resident's remonstrance last night took the form of a bomb.

Placed on the rear porch of the building, the bomb shattered the windows, tore up a section of the porch, and knocked down the kitchen door. Isadore Mishelski, owner of the house, could assign no reason for the action, but neighbors attributed it to resentment against the owner for renting to colored people.

CHICAGOAN NEW PRESIDENT OF DODGE COMPANY

Mishawaka, Ind., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—A number of the highest officials of the Dodge Manufacturing corporation severed their connections with that organization today. President Melville W. Mix was the first to go, selling his itnerest for $1,500,000. His son, publicity manager, also resigned. Vice President W. B. Hosford and Foundry Superintendent Harry Bell were pensioned for life. The big surprise was the letting out of Treasurer Charles Endlich and Assistant Treasurer W. L. Chandler, who is president of the Mishawaka chamber of commerce.

Charles F. Morse of Chicago, a well known corporation attorney, has been named president of the Dodge corporation, and Mayor William W. Dodge of Mishawaka, who holds the controlling interest, is the new vice president.

WITH DRAGON FLY WINGS MAN SOARS 3 HOURS 21 MIN.

Engineless Plane Sets a New World Record.

BY EDMUND ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LEWES, England, Oct. 21.—Two world's records were broken at Southdowns today. The single seater record, winning the Daily Mail £1,000 [about $4,500] prize, goes to the French pilot, Maneyrolle, who flew in a Peyret glider. The world's two seater glider record was broken by G. R. Olley, flying in a Fokker biplane.

Maneyrolles took to the air at 2:40 this afternoon and remained up until it was too dark to see. The total time has was in the air was three hours twenty-one minutes and seven seconds, beating by eleven minutes the former world's record made at Wasserkuppe.

When he first shot into the air Maneyrolles rose easily to about 200 feet. It was quite evident that the flight was going to be a long one. He turned quickly to the right to avoid flying out of the favorable currents and soared along the ridge for a quarter of a mile and then turned back.

Machine Under Perfect Control.

The machine was under perfect control. The flight was so excellent as to be uneventful. The only question was whether the failing light would make flying impossible before the record was broken.

A flying officer in a Gray monoplane joined Maneyrolles in the air about 5 o'clock and from then on the two machines played about together over the same terrain. As both were out for time records they refrained from exploration outside of the bounds known to have rising air currents. The two pilots continued to fly about one hour after dusk, although it meant a certain crash in landing. However, flares were lighted and with the aid of auto headlights turned on the landind spot the landings were effected safely.

Copy of Langley's Machine.

The winning machine was a dark horse. It arrived late at the Clermont-Ferrand meet and it was late here also. In design it is a tandem monoplane, looking much like a dragon fly in its flight and a direct copy of Langley's machine, which thirty-four years ago fell into the Potomac river as a result of faulty launching.

The two seater world's record was established by Olley in a Fokker biplane, with 100 pounds of sand in the nose as ballast and a passenger weighing 1 8 pounds. Olley himself weighs 148 pounds. He remained in the air fifty-seven minutes, and he might have remained longer, but he is new at gliding and flew out of the safe region, thus losing the air currents.

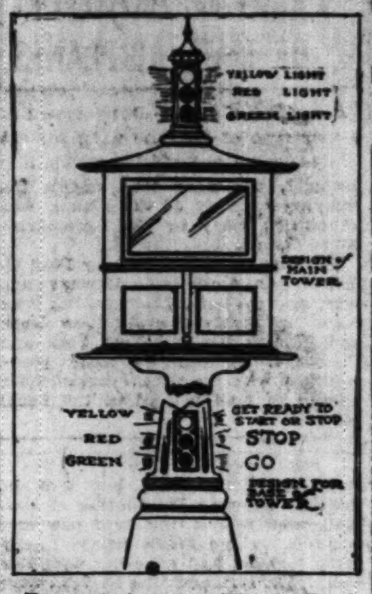
Capt. Collins Identifies Wounded Man as Bandit

John Theil, address unknown, arrested last night at Madison and Paulina streets, was positively identified by Capt. Morgan A. Collins, East Chicago avenue police station, as one of two men who attempted to hold him up at Ridge and Devon avenues, but were routed in a gun battle. Theil was taken into custody after he had called a taxicab and directed that he be taken to a doctor. Upon investigation police discovered a wound in his shoulder, which he was unable to explain.

WORKMAN FALLS FOUR STORIES.

Gottlieb Maw, 663 West 81st street, a structural iron worker, may die as a result of injuries received yesterday when he fell through an elevator shaft from the fourth floor to the basement while at work in the new Illinois Merchants' Bank building.

AUTO DISPATCHER



To control automobile traffic in Michigan boulevard, between Randolph and 22d streets, the south park commissioners have selected a system of light towers which will flash automatic signals.

The towers will be placed at Jackson boulevard, Roosevelt road, and 16th street. They will stand twenty-seven feet high and be surmounted by lights that can be seen for several blocks away. The motorist is to be guided by the color of light showing on the tower, the plan being to have three colors, yellow, red, and green.

The yellow light, according to Supt. J. F. Foster of the park system, will mean that the direction of traffic is to be changed. It will direct the motorist to get ready to start or to stop. The red light will mean stop, the green will mean go ahead.

Within six or eight weeks the towers will be installed. They are to be tried eighteen months on money advanced by the Yellow Taxicab company.

EX-KAISER KEEPS WEDDING PLANS A DARK SECRET

DOORN, Holland, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—The veil of secrecy that has hidden the life of the ex-kaiser since he took up his residence in Holland becomes more impenetrable than ever before as curiosity increases abroad, due to his forthcoming marriage with the Princess of Reuss.

The tradesmen who cater to William's chateau and the workmen who occasionally are given jobs on the estate are extremely reticent about the wedding plans. Even more silent are those in the ex-kaiser's entourage. The few Dutch aristocrats who are received by the former emperor also refuse to speak.

All that the correspondents have found out is that both the civil and religious wedding ceremonies are to take place Nov. 5 within the precincts of the chateau and that they will be attended by a Dutch government secretary from The Hague, the governor of the province of Utrecht, the burgomaster of Doorn, a few of the Dutch nobility residing on neighboring estates, and about fifty invited guests from Germany, mainly dignitaries under the old régime and army generals.

William Bross Lloyd Gets Stay of Prison Term

William Bross Lloyd and nineteen other defendants recently found guilty of advocating overthrow of the government by force, were yesterday granted a fifteen day stay of the Supreme court mandate which would have sent them to prison on Nov. 1. The stay was granted to allow the defendants time to complete their record for an appeal to the United States Supreme court, a motion for a rehearing having been recently denied.

A. M. ANDREWS, BROKER, HELD ON BLUE SKY CHARGE

Accused of Selling Motor Stock Illegally.

A. M. Andrews, head of A. M. Andrews & Co., investment brokers in the Andrews building, and other officials of the company, were arrested yesterday on warrants issued at the behest of the Illinois "blue sky" commission on charges of having sold securities which have not qualified under the state securities act.

Edward Junior Hand, defendant recently in a series of divorce suits filed by his actress wife, Junie Griffin Hand, and hero of an equal number of reconciliations; Merrill W. Tilden, a son of the former president of the Fort Dearborn National bank, and Edward M. Barnard were named in the warrants which were secured by Assistant State's Attorney Edward H. Taylor and Arthur G. Davis, an attache of the secretary of state's office.

Motor Stock Involved.

The men are accused of having sold 425 shares of stock issued by the Falls Motor company, a Virginia corporation, to Lewis L. Putnam. The sale, according to Mr. Taylor, was completed in July, 1922.

"No attack on the good faith of the Falls Motor company is meant by the issuance of these warrants," said Mr. Taylor. "The company is actually incorporated in Virginia and I have nothing to say against it. But the fact remains that it has not complied with the Illinois law regarding the marketing of securities and it is a violation of the law to sell such stock until it has been qualified."

In 1917, Andrews and his company figured in the collapse of the Sun Motor company of Elkhart, Ind., which carried with it over $100,000, the savings of sixty-one stockholders. Andrews & Co., it was charged in the United States District court, had agreed to finance the company and were to be allowed to retain as a fee $247,000 of the $250,000 preferred stock and a like amount of the common stock.

Again, in 1919, Andrews was included in a suit filed in the United States District court by stockholders to force the return of money invested in the $14,000,000 Smith Motor Truck corporation, which failed after $7,000,000 of its securities had been sold. The truck corporation was the outgrowth of the Smith Form-a-Truck corporation.

GRAND JURY TO ACT MONDAY ON JERSEY MURDER

Events Move Fast in Hunt for Guilty Couple.

home. She was ill, but accompanied the detectives without protest. After two hours and fifteen minutes' questioning she was permitted to return home.

According to T. H. Pfeiffer, Mrs. Hall's attorney, the detectives asked Miss Tough if Mrs. Hall did not bring her a pair of the rector's white silk socks on that Saturday morning before the bodies were found and say something like this:

"Take these socks and wash them out. Mr. Hall is dead, and I want him to be buried in them."

Miss Tough, according to Pfeiffer, denied that Mrs. Hall had made such a statement to her. What actually happened, Miss Tough said, was that Mrs. Hall brought her a pair of socks on the morning in question and asked her to wash them out. This was nothing unusual, she said to the prosecutors.

Henry Didn't Like Pastor.

It was reported that the maid told them Henry Stevens had exhibited considerable animosity toward Dr. Hall for many years, and that he had been opposed to the marriage of the rector to Frances Noel Stevens, his sister.

Miss Tough also is reported to have said that Henry Stevens was scheduled to give the bride away at her wedding to Dr. Hall, but that he failed to appear. The mother of Mrs. Hall, who was sitting in a pew and was not of the bridal party, finally came forward and gave her daughter away. Dr. Hall and Miss Stevens were married on July 10, 1911.

Miss Tough also is understood to have told the prosecutors that Henry Stevens never visited the Hall home here and had persistently refused to break bread with his sister and Dr. Hall. His first visit to the Hall home since the wedding was after the murder.

NEW WINGS DOUBLE CARRYING CAPACITY OF MAIL AIRPLANES

New York, Oct. 21.—Development of a new type of airplane wing for the United States mail service, which, it is declared, will more than double the carrying capacity of the planes, was announced today by the Aeromarine Airways, Inc.

The new wing designed by Paul G. Zimmerman, Aeromarine Airways engineer, said the announcement, has been tested in flights between New York and Washington and New York and Cleveland. A standard mail plane equipped with the wings, carried 1,032 pounds of mail instead of the usual 400 pounds.

Justice Day Resigns Soon; Successor a Democrat?

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Associate Justice William R. Day of the United States Supreme court is expected to resign early next week in order to devote all his time to his duties as umpire in the claims negotiations between the United States and Germany.

Much speculation prevails as to his successor. It is reported that President Harding will appoint a Democrat, and Senator Pomerene [O.] Senator Sheilds [Tenn.], and Senator Walsh [Mont.] are most prominently mentioned.

SUE TO BREAK WILL IN FAVOR OF HOUSEKEEPER

Suit to set aside the will of John C. Fitzpatrick, which designated his former housekeeper, Miss Mary Ann Fitzpatrick, 5324 Wabash avenue, as sole beneficiary to his $14,200 estate, was filed yesterday by Mrs. Catherine O'Donnell, 6710 Sheridan road, cousin of Fitzpatrick and mother of Simon O'Donnell, former president of the Chicago Building Trades council.

In her petition, filed by Attorney Timothy J. Fell, Mrs. O'Donnell asserts that Fitzpatrick, a bachelor, was 74 years old when he died on Sept. 27, 1920, and for many years prior to his death had been mentally incapable of properly administering his affairs.

Miss Fitzpatrick, it is alleged, by falsehoods and misrepresentations induced the aged man to disinherit his relatives. The suit is brought to revoke the will and permit the division of the property between Mrs. O'Donnell and another cousin, Mrs. Sophia Howley of Wagner, S. D.

2 WHO ELUDED POLICE IN AUTO CHASE CAPTURED

Believed to be members of a gang of bandits who recently have operated extensively on the west side, James Coyne and Frank Zelinsky were arrested yesterday evening in 18th street, near Blue Island avenue, after their trail had ben lost in an automobile chase earlier in the day.

About 1 o'clock two men accosted Thomas York, 5336 University avenue, as he was about to enter his automobile in West 15th street. One is alleged to have seized York's watch and chain, while the other started the machine, with which they escaped.

An hour later G. C. Gohoshka, 1434 South Hamlin avenue, reported that four men in a car similar to York's had attempted to hold him up at 29th street and Kenneth avenue.

Coyne is said to be under bond on a larceny charge and Zelinsky also is reported to have a police record. York's car has not been recovered

HUSBAND RICH; POOR PROVIDER, WIFE'S BILL SAYS

Heir to an estate valued at nearly $400,000 and with an estimated income of $5,000 annually, Robert E. Grace, son of the late William Grace, has contributed but $700 yearly to his family, according to a bill for divorce filed yesterday by Mrs. Wilhelmina Grace, 2506 Orchard street.

Rather than work, Grace, the bill charges, pawned his wife's jewelry, including her diamond engagement and wedding rings and most of her family heirlooms. Once he took an $85 Christmas gift belonging to Mrs. Grace and remained away all night while she waited for him to return to unlock the door of their apartment, she says.

An injunction to restrain him from purchasing articles on her accounts at loop stores is asked in the bill. They were married on Nov. 11, 1917, and separated on Sept. 28, 1922.

Autoist Who Killed Child Offers Parents His Own

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Charles Buckley, electrician, who while intoxicated, police charge, ran down and killed Marion Newton, 4 years old, in his automobile on Wednesday night, today offered to give his own child, Isabel, 5 years old, to the parents of the dead child. The offer was refused by Marion's mother. Mrs. Buckley said she was agreeable to Buckley's offer, "if it would sufficiently compensate that other mother for what she has lost."

AMERICA'S HENS SWAMP MARKET AND PRICES DROP

A drop of 4 cents a dozen in the price of storage eggs, which now retail for 26 cents, as compared with 30 cents at this time last year, has resulted from the enormous oversupply, it being reported that there are 19,000,000 dozen more eggs now in storage than last year, with 300,000 dozen more arriving weekly. Speculators are said to be losing as much as 3 cents on each dozen.

Even a greater drop has taken place in the fresh egg market, the present quotation being 37 cents a dozen, as against 55 cents last year. The same condition is said to exist in other large produce centers, that in New York being particularly bad.

MOTHER INVOKES CONFESSION OF PAY ROLL GRAFT

Puts Padding Squarely Up to Dr. Gammage.

Mrs. Mary J. Webb, a gentle, soft-spoken soul of nearly 70 years, and the kind of a woman to whom one naturally refers as "mother," brought the pay roll padding probe of Assistant Health Commissioner Koehler to a close yesterday with a jerk.

Mrs. Webb accompanied her son, Arthur E. Webb, formerly steward at the municipal contagious disease hospital, to Health Commissioner Bundesen's office. With the simple announcement, "My son is here to tell the truth," she signaled a confession from Webb which for the first time in the course of the inquiry, involves Dr. Arthur E. Gammage, bosom friend of former Health Commissioner Robertson, in the investigation, according to Dr. Koehler. Gammage was suspended by Dr. Bundesen Thursday.

Sought to Shift Blame.

"I met Dr. Gammage by appointment last night," declared Webb, whose record under five superintendents at the hospital was perfect until he began taking orders from Dr. Gammage, the most recent superintendent.

"He made me a proposition. He requested me to perjure myself. He asked me to come here and carry the load—shoulder my own guilt and his, too. I called up my mother. She told me to make a clean breast of the whole thing."

In Webb's six page typewritten statement, which he signed and swore to before leaving the health department last night, he admits that he was Gammage's "collector."

Details Petty Graft.

Among Webb's assertions are the following:

That when he complained to Dr. Gammage because his salary of $170 a month had not been raised, Dr. Gammage ordered him to put a "dummy" on the pay roll under the name of Elsie Smith, represented in the office by an L. C. Smith typewriter.

That Gammage signed a vaccination certificate stating that he had vaccinated the fictitious Elsie Smith, and that her $42.50 pay checks were split three ways, $30 to Webb, $5 to Mrs. Gammage, and $7.50 to Dr. Gammage.

That Dr. B. J. Kuly, assistant medical superintendent, also received some of Elsie Smith's salary for a time, but that Dr. Kuly did not know where the extra money came from.

Swells "Contingent Fund."

That Dr. Gammage charged the wife of one of the physicians, a Dr. Leslie B. Smith, $50 a month board, and that money went into a "contingent fund" held by Dr .Gammage.

That, with Dr. Gammage's knowledge, $10 a week was collected for board from the son of Mary Powers, the cook, and that this money was turned over to Minnie K. Rose, a senior stenographer, for the Gammage "contingent fund." It was credited in the records of the fund as a donation from Mr. Eatsum, Webb said.

That money from the sale of city owned barrels, etc., was turned into the Gammage "contingent fund." It was credited as "a donation from Mr. Stave," according to another affidavit.

Delicacies in Masquerade.

That duck, turkey, melons and other delicacies used on Dr. Gammage's table were charged to the city as potaotoes, flour, etc.

Dr. Gammage and his wife moved their effects from the hospital yesterday.

MISS MARTIN BECOMES BRIDE OF C. F. SWEET

Society Fills 4th Presbyterian Church.

Society filled the Fourth Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon for the marriage of one of the most popular girls on the north side, Miss Elizabeth Dixon Martin, to Channing Fullerton Sweet, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Sweet of Denver. The service was read at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor, and the Rev. Josiah Sibley of the Second Presbyterian church.

Immediately after the ceremony there was a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs Wilton B. Martin of 191 East Walton place. Chrysanthemums and autumn leaves were used to decorate the church and American beauty roses decorated the apartment.

The Bride's Gown.

The bride's gown of white chiffon velvet was made very simply with a draped skirt and a court train. Rose point lace, which had been her mother's, ornamented the gown. The tulle veil was held in place with a coronet of lace and clusters of orange blossoms. She carried white orchids and valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet will be at home after Dec. 1 at Pine Shadows, Baileys, Colo.

Miss Lorimer Weds.

Miss Lorine Catherine Lorimer, daughter of former Senator William Lorimer, was married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to Robert Leroy McCormick of Chicago at St. Mary's of the Lake church, Father Dennison reading the service. Following the ceremony there was a family dinner at the residence of the bride's father, 721 Gordon terrace. The bride's gown of white velvet was beaded with pearls, and her tulle veil was edged with rose point lace. She carried lilies of the valley, sweet peas, and sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Ralph Graham, sister of the bride and matron of honor, wore silver lace over cloth of silver and a silver cloth hat. She carried orchids and sweet peas. The bridesmaids, the Misses Loretta and Helen Lorimer, wore gold colored taffeta frocks. Miss Loretta wore a gold lace hat and Miss Helen a silver cloth hat. They carried butterfly roses and orchids.

James Lucke Jr. was ring bearer. Ralph Graham acted as best man and ushering were Leonard Lorimer, John Graham, Marshall Becker, Charles J. Parker, Alfred Kelly, and Eugene Corcoran.

Noel-Long Wedding.

A wedding linking two well known families in Oak Park last night was the marriage of Miss Virginia Noel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Noel of 406 Linden avenue, to Elmer E. Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Long, at the First Congregational church of Oak Park, Dr. William E. Barton reading the service. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride's wedding gown was of white chiffon velvet with a veil of tulle and rose point headdress. The bridal shower was of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Lyman Burgess, a sister of the bride, acted as matron of honor and wore a gown of rose and silver with a shower bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

F. C. Jewett III. Weds.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The marriage of Miss Beatrice Sniffen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewis Sniffen of 42 Montgomery place, Brooklyn, and Freeborn Garrettson Jewett III. of Philadelphia, son of Mrs. Freeborn G. Jewett Jr. of Chicago, took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Church of the Messiah, in Brooklyn. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Brooklyn Woman's club.

Miss Helen Schuyler Leeming was maid of honor and Miss Kathryn Hagerty was bridesmaid. Shreve Cowles Badger of Chicago was best man, and the ushers were Andrew Taylor, Ralph Farwell, Dan Mather Jr., James Ingham, and McClure Fhanestock, all graduates of Yale, from which university the bridegroom was graduated in 1916. Mr. and Mrs. Jewett will live in Radnor, Pa.

SHOT BY MAN ON TRAIN.

Frank Wright of 2908 South State street was shot in the groin yesterday by a colored man who attempted to rob him while both were riding on a freight train to Terre Haute, Ind. His cries attracted help when the train reached South Chicago.

500 NEW COPS TO MAKE FORCE CITY'S BIGGEST

Approximately 500 more patrolmen will be added to the police force beginning next Wednesday. When the new men have been assigned to beats the force will be the largest in the city's history and will number approximately 6,100 men.

CHIEF FITZMORRIS.

In supplying the first half of the 1,000 additional patrolmen authorized by the city council last summer the old eligible list for patrolmen was wiped out and a new one with upwards of 600 names on it was also gobbled up. A new list with approximately 700 names will be posted next Tuesday or Wednesday. Character investigations will probably cut the list down to about the number required to fill existing vacancies and to bring the force up to the numerical strength necessary to meet the winter crime conditions, in the opinion of Chief Fitzmorris.

Wipe Out Robbery.

"With the new men and other changes I expect to make, I hope to be able practically to wipe out robbery," the chief said. "Too often one of two motorcycle men chasing a bandit automobile have become disabled through accidents to their cycles. I intend to have motorcycle policemen travel in squads of three instead of two hereafter."

The chief gave out the following comparisons of criminal complaints for the week just closed and the corresponding week of last year:

	1921.	1922.
Burglary	83	80
Robbery	43	29
Larceny	82	30
Others	17	3
Total	225	142

Opposes Day Off Demand.

Chief Fitzmorris reiterated his assertion yesterday that the demands of officials of the Patrolmen's Social, Athletic, and Efficiency club for one day off a week instead of two days off a month is not backed by the rank and file of the department.

"The club has not more than 300 members," the chief declared. "We have more than 4,000 patrolmen in the department. The voice of the club officials does not represent the department."

ARISTOCRATS THREW ME OUT —LLOYD GEORGE

Calls Himself Champion of the People.

parties and creeds for national purposes, the combination which led us to victory in the war, and which was taking us gradually but surely out of our troubles in peace, has been brought to an end, not because it has ceased to serve the nation, but because a party was not getting enough out of it, and it is for the people of this country to decide whether party comes first or the nation.

"The combination was subjected to criticism from more diverse and conflicting quarters and viewpoints than almost any government. It had one or two disadvantages. It had no steady partisan press which could be depended upon, whatever happened, to defend its action. A second weakness, from the viewpoint of dealing with and disposing of criticism, arose out of the fact that no ministers in any administration that ever existed in this country have been so continually hard worked.

Puts Record Up to People.

"I am now going to begin to tell the story from day to day, from week to week at any rate, until the election is over, and having done so, I am willing to put my record in the hands of the people. I have served them well, honestly, and sincerely, and with one dominant purpose—namely: to serve my native land to the best of my ability.

"Governments can win wars and lose wars. What do I mean by that? Governments can make it possible for our gallant soldiers and sailors to win victory. Governments can make it impossible for the most gallant soldiers and sailors ever to win. The only claim I put forward on behalf of the late government is that it did everything a government could do to enable our soldiers and sailors to win the war.

"Governments can organize material resources and resources in men. They can organize the nation at home and face and sustain their responsibilities. If there is failure at home it means failure on the battlefield. Losses of morale at home are always reflected on the battlefield. They were closely related in the war, and stories at home affected the soldiers in the field.

Why Germany Broke Down.

"That is one reason why Germany broke down. Their soldiers were brave. Let us recognize an enemy's courage. But they heard stories of starvation, privation and misery at home. That undermined their spirits and courage.

"It was vital for the ministers here to sustain a spirit which would clear the road to victory. I claim this government did everything a government could do for that purpose. We did our best to promote unity at home and among the forces so as to enable the full strength of the allies to be concentrated at the right point and at the right moment, and as a matter of fact the leading part in promoting that unity was taken by us."

Praises League of Nations.

Mr. Lloyd George declared the resolution forming the basis on which the league of nations was built was moved by the British delegation at the peace conference, of which he was the head. Declaring the treaty of Versailles had become the charter of liberty to tens of milions of people today, and pointing out that its first clauses had established the league of nations, Mr. Lloyd George said of that treaty:

"It restored Alsace and Lorraine to France. It restored the Italian provinces north of Italy to Italy. These questions, which were a kind of tumor in the constitution of Europe and a source of irritation and inflammation, were removed.

"We liberated a number of races which for centuries had been under the rule of the oppressor. In central and southern Europe populations which numbered in the aggregate 20,000,000 were freed by one great act prepared in Paris and signed at Versailles which has given a charter of freedom to millions of people.

"Destroyed Great Armaments."

"We destroyed the great armaments in central Europe which made the war. Conscription in central Europe is gone. The greatest source of worry and menace in this country has disappeared—the huge army which stood intimidating us, which darkened the horizon in Europe like a dense thunder cloud hanging in the air. Everybody was watching to see when the flash would rend it and destroy Europe, as it did. The army has gone.

"This is the first act in the great drama of peace, and I predict that the democracies of other lands will not continue to bear the burden of huge armaments when they see central Europe free from that oppression. Conscription disappeared here a few months after the war. It will disappear before many years in other lands as well."

Mr. Lloyd George referred to Lord Balfour's part in effecting the naval disarmament at Washington. He declared if this had not been achieved Great Britain would have had competition in armament with the United States, "which would have led not, perhaps, to insolvency, but to increased taxation."

Restored British Credit.

Mr. Lloyd George then took up the subject of the reëstablishment of the national credit, pointing out that the British were the only people in Europe who had completely balanced their budget.

"There were two courses open to us. One was to follow the method adopted by every country on the continent of Europe—to borrow and go on borrowing. It has the appearance of prosperity. You can keep taxation down. You go on borrowing, but your credit gets lower and lower. It was the popular course to go on borrowing. There would have been less unemployment for the time being.

"What is the next course—a thoroughly unpopular course. Make your patriot pay. One way is by ruthlessly reducing expenditure. Everybody said, cut down expenditure, and when we started on this some one would say we didn't mean to cut that down. There were always those making cheap speeches about economy, but whenever we faced the problem of cutting down some item and got into difficulties with the people interested the 'anti-waste' party was never there.

Dollar was the Surest Test.

"The one great test was the dollar. America had practically received all the gold reserve of Europe, and America was in a very prosperous condition. Before the war, if you went to America, you would receive $4.86 for your sovereign. After the war you would receive $3.20. Everything you bought in America cost you much more because the purchasing power of the sovereign had gone down.

"We went on reducing expenditure and balancing our budget. Having no deficiencies, what happened? The credit of this country rose and rose. Our sovereign, instead of being $3.20 is now $4.47. We are just beginning to look the dollar in the face on equal terms. We need not bow the head. We are very nearly where we were before the war. That is because our two chancellors of the exchequer, Austin Chamberlain and Sir Robert Horne, were men not only of capacity, but of real courage. They did unpopular things, because they knew it was right. They got the soundest advice, and although they had been abused like pick-pockets during the whole of these years they kept on steadily. The result is that our credit has risen and risen and at the present moment we are recapturing the money market of the world."

Happy Over Peace in Ireland.

"I am delighted," Mr. Lloyd George went on, "that one of the things we have been able to achieve was something which I think has far more to do with the breaking up of the coalition than anything else, and yet it is one of the things of which I am proudest. We have made peace with the Irish race. The feud which had lasted for centuries with one of the most difficult races of the world—how difficult they are only those who have been fighting them can tell—a feud that was costly and embarrassing to the British empire, a feud that brought no credit, no honor, no strength, has been closed by an act honorable to both.

"I know the effect of the peace. Great Unionist statesmen took part in it. They will not be forgiven by the 'die hards,' but let them be of good cheer, for their names will be honored forever.

"I am also glad that Great Britain's firmness in the east brought renewed prestige and renewed confidence to the British empire. We have secured the freedom of the straits, for which so many died. We have prevented the war from spreading into Europe, with a repetition of spectacles of atrocities which would have made the world shudder. That I claim we have done by the determination with which we confronted our difficulties, despite all criticism."

Decide in Irish Election.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 21.—It is now practically settled that there will be an immediate general election. Andrew Bonar Law, who was received in audience by King George tonight, is expected to see the ruler again on Monday, after having been elected leader of the Conservative party at Hotel Cecil. He will accept the premiership, submit a list of his ministers, and advise the king to dissolve parliament. The new election will probably be held on Nov. 18.

This course was decided on after a long, anxious conference. Mr. Bonar Law personally is said to desire to postpone the election until the new year, in order to take no risk with the Irish treaty bill and allow the ministers to get in saddle, but it was decided a miniature general election, in which some of the newly appointed ministers might fail to be reëlected, would be just as bad, and it was decided to have it over with.

Another factor is protests from business men against keeping the country in suspense about the future policy.

SECOND KEMAL VICTORY

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 20.—The resignation of Mr. Lloyd George continues to be regarded throughout Turkey as a second victory for Mustapha Kemal Pasha and the news is being discussed with enthusiasm almost equaling the Greek debacle.

Following the signing of the armistice protocol at Mudania the Turks hoped the British government was sincere, but they realized their mistake, following Mr. Lloyd George's recent defense of his near east policy, where he pictured England standing alone protecting the Christian minorities from Moslem fanaticism.

Mr. Lloyd George for years has been regarded by the Moslems as their greatest enemy and his personal policies are held responsible for the distrust prevalent throughout the Moslem world of the British policy. Even during the war and immediately after the armistice Turkey was openly pro-British. Numerous stories are told here how the Turks during the war personally showed considerations for British subjects which they refused to extend to Germans.

May Use Turks as Buffer.

It is generally believed the settlement of the near east imbroglio has been facilitated by the resignation of Mr Lloyd George, although Mr. Bonar Law also is not regarded as specially friendly to the Turks. Many believe the British will revert to the Disraeli policy and use the Turks as a buffer against Russia, which, with the obvious distaste of the Turks for the Bolsheviki as allies, is considerably more possible than it appears at a superficial glance.

At the present time there is reason to believe the Russian troop concentration in the Caucasus is a whip against Kemal to force him to take up Russia's interests in the coming peace conference. The nationalists secretly admit they are frightened by Russia despite their alliance and it is reported that M. Franklin Bouillon obtained the assurance of Kemal that he would desert Moscow whenever he was assured of support from the allies.

RUSSIA PLEASED

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—No world event, short of universal recognition, could have been more pleasing to the Russian government than the collapse of Mr. Lloyd George and his cabinet. The opinion of the foreign office is that no government in Great Britain could have been more unfriendly than Mr. Lloyd George's.

But Russia's joy is not unalloyed. Russia fears that those elements in England which support either recognition of Russia or its participation in the near east peace parleys are not strong enough to affect the new cabinet. Russia fears what M. Tchitcherin calls British imperialism in the near east has not been crushed in Mr. Lloyd George's resignation.

Russia fears also that the British desire to retain some of the territory which British troops in the near east are occupying and that is why M. Tchitcherin insists on the return of all Turkish lands.

'MA' STREETER PLANS UTOPIA IN 'CAP'N'S' FAMOUS 'DEESTRICT'

MRS. GEORGE W. STREETER.

Details of a modern Utopia to be erected on the site of the present Oak street beach and adjacent territory under the guidance of John A. Jones, president of the Dill Pickle club, and Attorney Parke Longworth are contained in trust agreements filed yesterday by Mrs. Elma A. Streeter, widow of "Cap'n" George Wellington Streeter, late claimant to the "Deestrict of Lake Michigan."

"Ma" Streeter, as she is familiarly known, gives Attorney Longworth a one-fifth interest in the "Deestrict," comprising 186 acres north of the Chicago river to the Drake hotel and east of the "original shore line of Lake Michigan." Longworth in return agrees to build palatial apartment and office buildings on the tract.

From the rental received from the proposed buildings and those already built on "her land" Mrs. Streeter plans to give Jones $5,000,000 to be used in the construction of a community center. Bathing houses, free natatoriums, a clubhouse for ex-soldiers, homes for artists and art students, sanitariums, and free dispensary for poor mothers and their children are to be features.

WAR FRAUD, RAIL STEPS DEFENDED BY DAUGHERTY

Attorney General Upholds His Own Activities.

Canton, O., Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Making his only campaign speech to the voters of his home state, Attorney General Daugherty tonight rendered an accounting of his stewardship at Washington, defended his course in the Chicago injunction proceedings, and in the prosecution of war frauds, and declared that despite "accusation and calumny," the department of justice would proceed to perform its duties as it sees them under the constitution.

In the strike emergency, the attorney general said, the federal government used the injunction as the least drastic means at hand for rescuing the country from "the grip of civil war." He ascribed some of the blame to "the radicalism and character" of prominent labor leaders, and some of it to "hard boiled" railroad executives, and asserted that any attorney general who would not have acted under the circumstances "should be impeached."

Real Purpose of Attacks.

Declaring the real purpose of attacks on the department's record in war frauds investigation was to force the hand of the government and prematurely disclose important evidence, Mr. Daugherty said such assaults had been inspired, not by the department's inactivity, but because tender spots had been touched by the suits already under way.

Summing up the record of his department, he said more than 400 cases are undergoing liquidation, that 150 dealings with war time frauds were in the hands of United States attorneys throughout the country, and that thirteen fraud indictments already had been returned. In the last year, he said, the department had begun 9,646 civil and 60,000 criminal prosecutions, while adjudications and penalties collected since he came into office totaled nearly $8,000,000.

Friend of Organized Labor.

Mr. Daugherty prefaced his discussion of the rail strike with an assurance that he was no enemy of honestly organized labor.

"I am your sincere friend and will not deceive you," he said, addressing the laborer directly, "but you make a mistake when you set up rules in conflict with the rules, alws, and constitution of our common country.

"Your principal trouble and greatest danger are in the radicalism and character of some of your most prominent leaders.

"With one bold challenge to constitutional government, the strike leaders, to all apparent purposes, renounced the protection of governmental authority when they mutinied against a decision which they declared was construed to be unfavorable.

"The nation was in the grip of civil war. We had reached a point where loyal, intelligent Americans wondered if organized government actually existed.

"Then, when all conciliatory efforts on the part of trusted government emissaries had failed, when men were willing and anxious to work if permitted to do so, when the heads of the strikers had called upon the men who had deserted their tools and shops at their dictation to do 'their damndest and then some'; the time had arrived when national security no longer made it possible for government to stay its hand.

"If the injunction were not resorted to, what was the next thing the government could do after all efforts at voluntary or peaceful persuasion had failed? Step aside and let violence continue; let the mob grow in fury and in numbers; let the leaders, with torch, and bomb, and dagger, continue destruction of life and property?"

Posing in her farm clothes, the successor of Lillian Conrad, pretty Boston art student, Doris Benson has moved into Garland's "hen coop" to share his philosophy and platonic affection, as she and Garland label their relations. There is another young woman living with them—Alice Edgerton—and she admits that the trio are nearing the solution of many of humanity's most profound problems.

Above is shown the eccentric Tolstoyan millionaire whose experiments in soul contentment lead him from maid to maid. His latest yearning has singled out Doris Benson, whom he calls his "mental mate." Below is the wife of North Carver idealist, who has wearied of Charlie's explorations for the perfect woman and departed for Europe, leaving him to continue his searches on the old farm near that village.

IRISH REBELS TO SEEK PEACE, DUBLIN HEARS

DUBLIN, Oct. 21.—Dublin newspapers carry the report that Sean Moylan, the Cork republican leader, and Father Dominick, chaplain of the republican guard, have left for Dublin in connection with a peace move. A republican official in Dublin denied any peace negotiations were in progress.

Irish Rebels Die in Attack.

BELFAST, Oct. 21. — Seven Free State troopers motoring near Castletown Roche, County Cork, were ambushed today, but they fought so well that the republicans who attacked them retreated, leaving three dead and nine wounded.

More than 100 republican raiders held up a freight train today at Miltoom, between Athlone and Roscommon, looting eight cars and getting away with their booty. This included, it is said, a large quantity of ammunition intended for the Free State troops.

Bernard Kemper, 52 years old, head of a chain of restaurants in New York, and patentee of a doughnut making machine, was found sitting in a chair, a bullet hole in his left temple, in his room at the Fort Dearborn hotel yesterday. The door of the room had been locked for two days.

Mrs. Kemper, who had spent the summer in California and had been living with friends at 3925 Pine Grove avenue, was notified. She said that in the last few months she had heard her husband talk of financial difficulties.

AMERICAN REPRESENTATION IN EUROPEAN NEGOTIATIONS.

Floyd Gibbons cables from Paris that a new financial commission will take up the problem of stabilizing the mark. It may have better luck than that of last spring, which Germany hoped would approve a large loan. The bankers who composed the commission made conditions which were not acceptable to the French government and nothing but a very general statement of views resulted from the commission's efforts.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan was a member of the former commission. Mr. Gibbons says he will act upon the new one. Inasmuch as American resources are certain to be drawn upon for any stabilization scheme, it is natural that an American should be invited to help formulate it. From the British and French viewpoint Mr. Morgan is the inevitable selection. He is considerably less acceptable from the American. He is head of a great international financial house which during the war period and after floated the huge British and French loans in this country, and in fact was the fiscal representative of the British government. This house also has English and French branches and is associated intimately with British and French finance. Mr. Morgan himself has strong ties with British and French society and belongs to that influential minority which thinks America owes the allies of the late war an apology for not entering in 1914. Mr. Morgan's partner, Mr. Lamont, is the leading advocate in this country of debt cancellation.

We do not doubt Mr. Morgan would consider himself as thinking and acting for American interests, but his interpretation would be subject to influences which do not make for the alert and vigorous defense of our interests. We need a very different representative from Mr. Morgan or any other banker already interested in international commitments and saturated in a partisanship partly sentimental and partly material.

We have no doubt it is necessary at a proper time to devise a basis upon which our large financial resources can be safely and profitably employed toward the financial and economic reconstruction of Europe. We have a large proportion of the gold of the world and a part of it might be loaned under proper conditions to rehabilitate deflated currencies and restore exchange. But in the negotiation of any such agreement we need a clear-headed and single-minded representation.

In fact, one of the prime factors which make it at present undesirable and unsafe for us to take part in any negotiation with European governments is that the men who are likely to represent us as financial or political ambassadors are not fit to protect us. Our diplomacy is full of foreign snobbism and second or third rate ability. Our financial emissaries are not disinterested.

Our situation calls for a renewal of the famous warning, "Put none but Americans on guard," and by Americans we do not mean Americans under the law, but men without foreign entanglements of any kind.

THE GREAT PARTY AND THE UNION.

The quarrel over Lloyd George in the British Conservative party offers some interesting possibilities. Is British politics tending toward the bloc system which prevails on the continent?

Up to this time both British and American politics have employed the great party system. It is true, parliament has had its Labor group and its Irish group, and the war forced a coalition ministry, but the power of government has been in the hands of the Liberal and Conservative parties, as in the United States it has been in the Democratic and Republican parties.

Both the two party and the bloc systems have their merits and demerits. A suggestive essay might be written upon their historical development, and a good deal of light would be thrown thereby upon the political character of the British and American people on the one hand and the continental on the other.

Roughly speaking, the two party system makes for compromise within party organization, while, theoretically at least, the bloc system forces compromise into the parliamentary arena. Under the former system there is undoubtedly a tendency to avoid clear definitions and theoretical critics are disposed to condemn party pronouncements for shirking or confusing issues. Perhaps it is true that the practice of forcing compromise by force of party discipline has a bad effect upon our politicians and tends to discourage clear thinking and formal definitions of principle or policy.

But on the other hand, the great party makes for effective action, and we are inclined to think is a stronger and more practical system. All Americans should read Prof. Turner's article on sectionalism published in the latest Yale Review, for it discusses with much intelligence the rôle our great parties have played in the unification of the nation. This is a phase of our history which has been largely overlooked and it is a most important phase. Our enormous territory, with its differences of economic interest, social tradition, and even race makeup, presented, and still presents, a difficult and hazardous problem of nation making. The problem is with us today and must persist to some extent because some of its factors must persist. We ought therefore to ponder what Prof. Turner brings forward as one of the chief functions of the great party, that of binding together sections and classes otherwise widely separated and diverse. The great party extends from sea to sea, overpassing all boundaries and offering a machinery for the practical binding together under the tie of party of many conflicting interests. It is a form of compromise in which practical action on the basis of concession, within certain broad outlines of policy, may be determined upon and furthered.

We are convinced that in such a country as ours, with its vast and diverse territory, its varied interests, its variety of social life, and its conglomerate of races, the bloc system, farmer or other, would be hardly short of a disaster.

The United States needs always to have a special care for the centrifugal and unifying forces. If we neglect them our unwieldy mass will give way to the inevitable strains of our diversity and the union will break up.

TRUTH ABOUT FALSEHOOD.

John Grady, general secretary-treasurer of the I. W. W., writes to "The Voice of the People," taking exception to an editorial concerning amnesty for "political prisoners," published in THE TRIBUNE of Oct. 10. He brands as false THE TRIBUNE'S characterization of the I. W. W. as an organization which purposes to destroy existing government and society by force. Because the I. W. W. with its comrades in the ranks of syndicalism and bolshevism promotes a deadly political and social philosophy, we take the trouble and space to answer and refute him. A communicable disease can best be fought by recognition and isolation.

"Comrade" Grady's assertions can best be answered and refuted out of the mouths of his associates and fellow propagandists. The purpose of the I. W. W. is shown briefly, but vividly, in the preamble of its constitution, which reads, in part, as follows: "The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. . . . Between the two classes a struggle must go on until the workers of the world organize as a class, take possession of the earth and the machinery of production, and abolish the wage system. . . . Instead of the conservative motto, 'A fair day's work for a fair day's wage,' we must inscribe on our banner the revolutionary watchword, 'Abolition of the wage system.' . . ."

If more evidence of the purpose of the I. W. W. to destroy existing government and society by force is needed, it can be found readily. Grover H. Perry, in an article published by the I. W. W. Publishing bureau, says: "We are going to do away with capitalism by taking possession of the land and of the machinery of production. We don't intend to buy them, either." In another article Perry writes: "The I. W. W. are laying the foundation of a new government."

In the files of The One Big Union Monthly, an official I. W. W. publication, may be found an article containing this statement: "The I. W. W. has given up all thought of using the machinery of the present state for its purposes. It proposes to create entirely new machinery of administration in which not even a particle of the old shell shall enter as a constituent part."

Abner E. Woodruff's "Advancing Proletaria" sheds more light on this matter. It says: "It (the proletaria) realizes that the modern government is but a shadow, and not a substance, that it is merely a committee acting for the economically powerful. . . . Representation in such a government has no value to the proletariat, since it does not care to trade or traffic with the other classes, for whom it possesses only hatred and contempt. . . . All the activities of the proletariat furthering its program for a new society must necessarily be revolutionary and beyond the 'law'."

"Comrade" Grady's assertion that THE TRIBUNE takes no cognizance of the court's ruling that no case was made upon the sabotage and violence counts charged in the case of the "political prisoners," is a superficial effort to cloud the true facts. Assuming, for the sake of the discussion, that these prisoners did not themselves actually engage in violence, the fact remains that they were active workers in an organization which upholds use of violence as perhaps its strongest weapon. Examples of sabotage are too plentiful to permit successful denial of that.

If authoritative testimony is desired, we may quote Dr. Harry Hibschman, for fourteen years a practicing attorney in the northwest, and retained by the American Legion to investigate the murder of four of its members by I. W. W.'s at Centralia, Wash., in 1919. He writes in "Current History" for August:

"During the war it was not an uncommon thing in the spruce districts of the northwest to have logs reach the saw with spikes driven into them so cleverly that they could not be discovered until the saw reached them. Then again vital parts were removed from machinery and thrown into the brush or streams so that the work was tied up. Putting emery dust into the bearings of expensive machinery was one of the favorite ways of practicing sabotage in the mining camps in war time; and in the harvest fields I. W. W. teachings meant the blowing up of machines and burning of crops."

In conclusion, we may quote Vincent St. John, one of the prisoners for whom this crusade is being conducted. He has said: "As a revolutionary organization the I. W. W. aims to use any and all tactics that will get the results sought with the least expenditure of time and energy. The tactics used are determined solely by the power to make good in their use. The question of right and wrong does not concern us."

In brief, not only force but murder, arson, treason, robbery, perjury, and common lying are approved weapons of I. W. W.ism. By the organization's confession of faith any "political prisoners" of such affiliations could honorably turn to such actions either to gain release or to work their ends after release. So much for "Comrade" Grady's letter.

Still it is not impossible, and perhaps not inexpedient to release them—with restrictions. If they repudiate violence and pledge themselves to refrain from the propaganda of violence, they might safely be paroled under guaranties that any violation of such pledges would return them promptly to prison. Without such guaranties they are a menace, which is better kept behind bars.

AN INVESTMENT IN AMERICANISM.

A project which all good citizens will heartily indorse, when it is known to them, is that of establishing a home and headquarters for the posts of the American Legion in Cook county.

There are 150 of these posts. At present there is no place for them to get together for the common good. Some posts are prosperous, some are not. Some are secure of their future, some are not. Some are able to do much for their members and for the public welfare. Some are fighting for self-preservation.

Obviously, therefore, there is need for a common center from which this whole patriotic movement can be unified and strengthened, where men of all posts can go to meet their comrades of other posts, where aid and encouragement can be organized and directed, where authoritative policies and programs can be discussed and crystallized.

We do not think the desirability of such a headquarters needs discussion. It is too plain. We can think of nothing more important in this community or any other American community than the solidification and efficient organization of the great agent of militant Americanism known as the American Legion. Upon its growth and effective functioning high hopes are built, hopes of a stronger national unity, of higher ideals of devoted citizenship, of a more watchful guard over the institutions of the republic.

An impromptu association of citizens, leaders in the Legion, in business, and in political affairs, has initiated this project for a Legion center, and an appeal is now made for public support. It is desired to raise at least $250,000 for a memorial home and relief fund. The people of Chicago should go over the top in short order, for no better cause has ever made its appeal for their aid. A contribution is an investment in patriotism, an investment in gratitude, and an investment in the unity, security, and progress of our common country.

The headquarters of the committee in charge are 21 North La Salle street, phone Dearborn 6615. Give and get others to give. It is every man's and woman's duty. Every one's privilege.

THE COMMUTERS' TICKET.

The killer has broken into the garden and there is the ruin of his black hand. The dahlia is dead on her tall, queenly throne. The asters are broken, with heads hanging down in the misty golden sunlight. In the cold of night the zinnias gave up the ghost. There are only scared little faces of nasturtiums where the foliage was heavy as a blanket, and they will be caught as the killer returns night after night as the owl hoots in the clear, still cold.

When there is wind the leaves whirl down the lane, dancing as children unexpectedly released from school. There is color by the barn door where the yellow pumpkins are piled, in the maple which is turning scarlet, in the oak which is bronze, in the wych-hazel which is uncurling its golden blossoms.

There is the song of the chickadee in the wild grape covert. There are hermit thrush in the barberry where the berries are red, and warblers are in the seed bearers. The days have run away as the leaves run before the wind; some are withered and brown as the leaves of the dogwood and others brilliant as the leaves the maple has painted before the wind scattered them; bright or gray, all are falling.

The white narcissus will bloom for the red winter sun, and at night when Sirius shines on snow the wind will blow the rose thorns across the windows, scratching as if small cold fingers sought to find an entrance.

TO AVOID STRANGLING PROSPERITY.

The railroad situation in the United States is becoming a more and more pressing and personal problem. It is brought home particularly to farmers at this time because of the difficulty of moving crops. It is brought home to nearly all consumers, especially in the northwest, because of difficulties attending the shipment of coal.

It is obvious that the railroads of the country are not adequately meeting their responsibilities. It may be due in part to the aftermath of the shopmen's strike and the coal strike. It may be due in part to their heritage from an unbalanced government control. It may be due in part to the interstate commerce commission's rate schedules. It certainly is due in part to methods of financing and management.

Railroads are now largely influenced, if not controlled, by banks and trust companies which hold their securities. Bankers are notably conservative. The most successful railroad men in history have been as notably imaginative. They had vision and realized their dreams. Bank control is a brake to such development. Perhaps some railroad executives nowadays have vision equal to their predecessors, but are restrained from exercising it by their financial controllers.

If that be true, we should look for a way out of the difficulty. Government control we have observed with the greatest misgiving. In Europe it has developed nothing worth while and has left continental railroads in an almost useless and hopeless condition. In this country it started our railroads on the skids during the war. An alternative is the Plumb plan. There is a proposition to put control of the roads entirely in the hands of the employés. The question of financing such a transfer is a difficult and complicated one, but even leaving out that point there is grave question of its advisability. Peasants' and workers councils have done nothing to restore any line of industry in Russia.

Outside of those ideas for reorganization and change of control we might suggest, very tentatively, the accumulation of influence in the hands of employés through special tax concessions on railroad stocks held by them, or through restriction of voting power on stocks held by financial institutions. We do not advocate such action. It is merely a suggestion shot into the air. If it would give efficient executives more power to develop their lines it might be good.

Certainly something should be considered to relieve the country of the recurring obstruction to commercial activity and prosperity due to seasonal blockades of crops, coal, and other commodities through car shortages, labor troubles, and lack of investment in maintenance and expansion.

The need is emphasized by recent development in the use of waterways and interest in further waterway expansion. Panama canal traffic has reached unprecedented heights of late. That is largely because of high cost and poor service in transcontinental railway transportation. And at the same time the tonnage on the great lakes and St. Lawrence has developed to ten times the amount passing through the canal. New York state barge canal traffic from Buffalo to the Hudson recently has broken all records. Ohio and Mississippi river transport is also steadily increasing.

It is clear we need more transportation and better transportation. Waterways afford this, at least for heavy freight. At the same time they emphasize the need of improved railroad transport. It is a huge question, but one which must be faced and solved if the continued expansion of business and development of resources within this country is not to be strangled.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

THE public has been talking about high blood pressure long enough for it to begin dividing the condition into some of the subgroups which compose it. A statement, a point of view and even a treatment applied to one kind of blood pressure might not apply to another. In fact, might be misleading and deceiving, if applied to another.

What we speak of as "high blood pressure" ordinarily is the height of the pressure at the highest point of the pulse stroke. A better name for blood pressure found to be high at that period is "high systolic blood pressure." It represents the usual pressure of blood in the vessel plus the force of the heart stroke, pulse stroke or systole.

Another term would be "high diastolic pressure," or the pressure of the blood stream between pulse beats.

A third is "high pulse pressure" and it indicates, roughly, the increase in pressure due to the force of the heart beat.

High blood pressure in connection with Bright's disease is a further variation that is of extreme importance from the standpoint of treatment, and from that of the probable outcome.

High blood pressure that has eventuated in apoplexy is yet another variety and high blood pressure, or arterio sclerosis with considerable mental disturbance, another.

Dr. Nellis Foster writes of the treatment of some of the varieties of high blood pressure in the American Medical Journal. He writes optimistically. He says that in a certain sense, certain varieties are curable, provided the condition is diagnosed early and provided the cause is removed, and provided the subject will give time enough to the cure. Every adult with a systolic pressure which persists in staying over 140 should strongly suspect high blood pressure. "If, after excitement, or heavy smoking, heavy drinking, heavy eating or muscular exertion, one reading of 140 is noted, no such conclusion is justified. But if several readings, properly made, show a pressure of 140 or over, let the individual make up his mind that he must change his habits or pay the penalty. The condition should always be diagnosed before the kidneys or the heart are involved, as shown by ordinary tests.

The second provision relates to removing the cause.

Among the causes are foci of infection. These should be cleaned up because they lay the foundation for high blood pressure as well as for other causes.

Even more important than removal of foci of infection, is changing the habits. Since most high blood pressure subjects are obese, the weight should be brought to normal. As a rule, persons with high blood pressure eat too much and exercise too little.

In the cases without kidney or heart involvement, Dr. Foster says that cure can be expected provided the patient will take orders, will adopt a new regimen and follow a new philosophy.

"He must eat a prescribed diet containing but little meat. He must exercise as he is told to do and must learn to rest his mind."

Rarely will an individual make all this change except under the training influences of a proper sanitarium.

He sums up the treatment with the slogan: "Keep fit, keep hard and keep it up."

"In cases with kidney involvement, the condition is more serious. Here the diet must be sparse and it must contain but little protein and salt. Rest is important in the care of this group of cases.

"ORANGE RHEUMATISM."

G. W. G. writes: "During the past half century and more of work in our profession, I have learned that no rule applies to everybody in the cause or cure of any disease.

"Sugar produces rheumatism in me. The daily use of oranges will stiffen my fingers in a week or ten days. Under a plain, simple diet, I am pretty free from the disease from one year's end to another.

"Aside from the theory of the advent of rheumatism by the tonsil, I cannot rid myself of the idea that it often arises from errors in diet, but I do not feel competent to be very dogmatic as to the particular substances that induce it.

"The problem is for the hospital and laboratories to solve. Do the medical schools pay sufficient attention to the matter of diet in their teachings? I doubt it.

"A word in relation to the temporary relief of itching from any cause. Having had a personal experience with eczema, herpes, winter itch, ivy poisoning and 'skeeters,' I have found more relief from the itching in dabbing on hot water, as hot as it can be borne, than anything else. Two or three minutes' application of this simple remedy at night on going to bed will give me a good night's rest from the winter itch. This has been my experience for years.

"I find that my diet affects this disease to some extent in cold weather, but does not produce it in the warm season. I realize that each person is a law unto himself and no one is justified in claiming that what will relieve him will relieve all persons. Human beings were not made on that plan."

RECTAL SLIGHTLY HIGHER.

Ignorant writes: "1. I would like to know the normal body temperature.

"2. Is there any difference between the mouth temperature and the one taken by rectum?"

REPLY.

1. 98½.
2. The rectal temperature is generally slightly higher than that shown by a thermometer placed in the mouth—say one-half degree.

ROUND SHOULDERS AND T. B.

H. B. J. writes: "Will you please tell me if a round shouldered person is subject to consumption?

"I am engaged to a man over 30 years old. He is round shouldered, and every one I meet tells me he is a consumptive."

REPLY.

Yes.

It has been proven that people with deep, narrow chests are unduly subject to consumption.

People with narrow, deep chests are very apt to develop round shoulders.

NO PAVING PLANNED.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—Early last spring I obtained a petition at the city hall and, with the assistance of others, secured the signatures of most of the property owners for the purpose of petitioning for the paving of the alley from 69th to 70th and Union and Emerald, and so far nothing has been done toward having this work completed before winter.

Inquiry has been made and the information given that the city engineering department is holding up the setting of the grade. E. F. C.

The records of this department do not show any proceeding for paving the alley referred to. If the property owners desire the above alley paved and will present a petition, we will start proceeding for paving same as soon as possible.

SELECTING HIS STATE.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I wish to ask about the provisions of the bonus in Illinois and Montana.

I enlisted in Montana in 1915, after a residence of one month in that state. Prior to that time I had resided in Chicago [for fifteen years]. At that time I believe I gave Chicago as my home, although no mention of it is made on my discharge. As both of these states have made provisions for a bonus and will soon vote on the issuance of bonds, I should like to know what course I should pursue to secure bonus in one of these states. C. E. L.

The bonus measures of both states are to be submitted to referendum vote at the coming general elections. You probably will be able to collect the Illinois bonus if the present bonus is effected. At that time you can make application to the state bonus board.

2. Is the divorce granted automatically or is it necessary to hire an attorney?

3. What are the fees? A. Z. B.

1. One year.
2. Hire an attorney.
3. We are not in a position to say.

NEW ASHES NEEDED.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—Is there any chance of getting Calumet avenue from 103rd north to about 100th street, filled with cinders or ashes before bad weather comes? This is an unimproved street and is impassable in bad weather. W. M. N.

Calumet-av., 100th to 103d, will be filled when we can get clean ashes suitable for such filling.
THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

PRICE OF ONE DIVORCE.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please let me know how much it costs to get a divorce from my husband; and

2. Where I can get help, as I have no money. I have a baby not quite 2 years old. A. S.

1. Depends on the attorney, etc. Perhaps $75.
2. Your husband would have to pay if you can reach him. There is no public agency that helps on divorces.

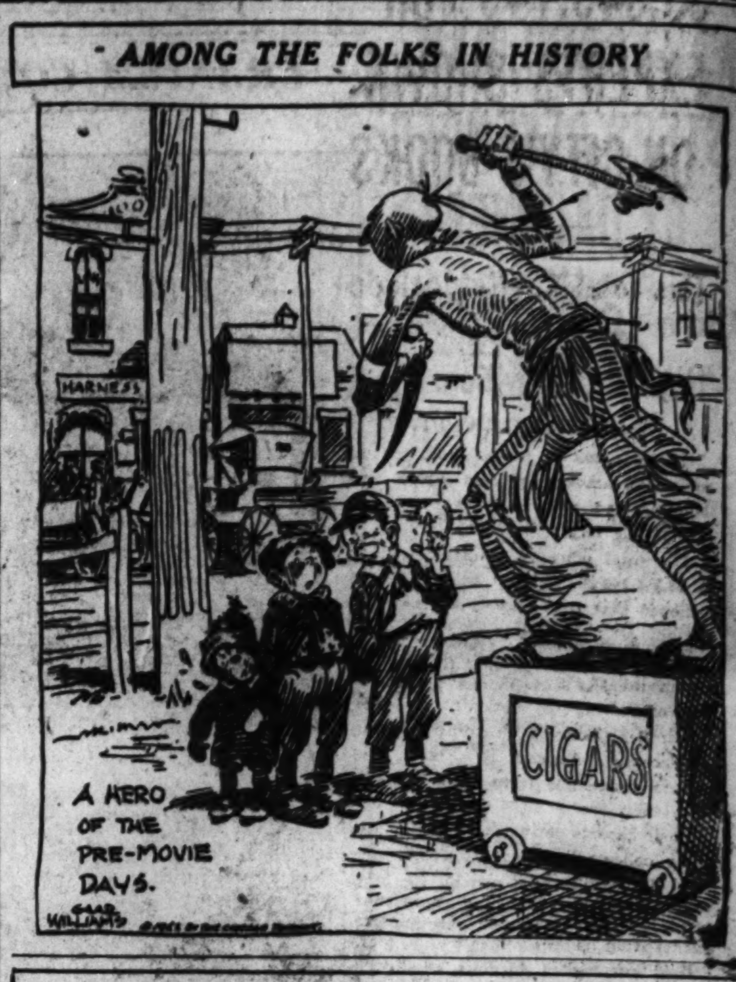
AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY



VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

I. W. W. PROPAGANDA.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—In an editorial dealing with the question of amnesty for political prisoners, published Oct. 10, THE TRIBUNE characterizes the I. W. W. as an organization which purposes to destroy the existing government and the existing order of society by force.

No evidence is offered by THE TRIBUNE to support this charge, which is contrary to the facts. THE TRIBUNE takes no cognizance of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled in passing upon the Chicago I. W. W. convictions that no case was made upon the sabotage and violence counts charged.

It is not true that the Industrial Workers of the World advocate or approve of violence as a means of accomplishing industrial or social change. Instead, this organization is completely opposed to violence, contending that the use of force is a fallacy and that it inevitably does more harm than good to those who employ it.

As long ago as May 4, 1918, our general executive board went on record to this effect, declaring that "this organization does not and never has believed in nor advocated destruction or violence as a means of accomplishing industrial reform."

THE TRIBUNE'S assertion that the I. W. W. wants to destroy the existing government by force is based on erroneous assumption. The I. W. W. has no desire to usurp any function of the nation's political government. It is concerned only with obtaining control of the industrial and productive machinery of the country, with the express motive of providing that every person who does his share of productive work shall receive his full share of what he produces so that he may have ample food, clothing, shelter, and leisure in which to enjoy life.
JOHN GRADY,
General Secretary-Treasurer Industrial Workers of the World.

"A DOWNTOWN BEACH."

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Your editorial today entitled "A Downtown Beach" invites an answer as to whether or not, from an engineering standpoint, a beach located at the Municipal pier is feasible.

About seven years ago Mr. George T. Donoghue, then chief engineer for the commissioners of Lincoln park, submitted to the park board a plan for the construction of a bathing beach at the intersection of the Lake Shore drive and the Municipal pier and supported his plan with engineering information and data.

Mr. Donoghue's plan was worked out with a full consideration of the wind and wave actions which would affect a beach at this point, and provided methods necessary for the forming and holding of a sand beach not unlike the Oak street beach.

The park board has control of submerged lands lying fifty feet east of the breakwater along the Lake Shore drive and the city controls the submerged lands of the Chicago harbor. A permit, however, would be necessary from the United States government on account of its paramount control over waters for the purposes of navigation. The war department, however, has always worked in harmony with the developments of the city and the park boards, and I believe that no difficulties would be encountered in getting the necessary permits.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and Ald. Dorsey Crowe should be complimented for their efforts in the erection of a beach at this point.

Now is the time to press the matter vigorously. If the necessary permits are obtained, the construction of a beach can be carried through to completion by the time that the bathing season opens next year.
FRANCIS O'SHAUGHNESSY.
Former Attorney for the Commissioners of Lincoln Park.

FOR A FIGHTING ARMY.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 12.—You are to be commended upon your stand in regard to having Capt. Woodfill regain his commission as captain in the army. You should go a bit further and condemn the system that handled through congress the bill providing the manner in which officers were to be selected upon the reorganization.

Capt. Woodfill was not the only officer who was good enough to handle his company in training in the United States long before the war and afterward through most of the fighting on the other side, only to find that the army wanted young men with "credits" from schools or colleges.

There are quite a number of the latter officers who were very greatly admired for their ability as officers in actual combat under all conditions, yet they were put up against an examination for so-called mental efficiency that they could not pass to save them.

If it is an efficient fighting army that we want let's have it. A. L. BROWN.

"THE POLITICAL PRISONERS."

Portage, Wis., Oct. 16.—Many people fail to appreciate the difference between prisoners who, in the stress of war, employ indiscreet expressions, without malignant intent, and other prisoners, ranking with the I. W. W., who claim the right to advocate and incite to measures of violence in their efforts to overthrow the government. You cannot press this distinction too insistently.

First, because of confusion in the public mind. Second, because in your anxiety to defend the freedom of speech and of the press you have at times failed to couple with it the freedom to work as well as to talk and print and strike. Freedom to labor unmolested to support one's family is, if anything, a more sacred right than that to express one's opinions. Self evident as this is it needs to be stated and restated to keep it fresh and prominent in the public thought. A third reason for the repetition over and over again of this fundamental distinction is the ugly and surprising fact that men posing as statesmen will stoop to confuse the public mind as to this distinction and go so far as to deny the government any constitutional right to protect itself against the machinations of American traitors and the infernal schemes of foreign spies.

If self preservation should not operate in behalf of so liberty loving a nation as the United States, where should it operate? To what pass is democratic government coming when a brilliant senator will ignore the distinction you make by arraying himself on the side of the disloyal because Idaho is full of I. W. W.'s? Did he help to convict Haywood for the money that was in it or also because his conscience approved? Did he lose all regard for the dictates of conscience when he became a politician and attained senatorial responsibility?
J. MILTON JOHNSTON,
Past Commander Rosseau Post, G. A. R.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

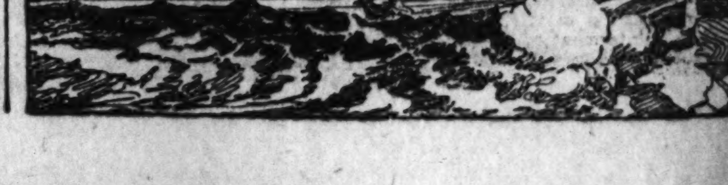
THE THREE FISHERS.

By Charles Kingsley.

Three fishers went sailing out into the West,
Out into the West as the sun went down;
Each thought on the woman who loved him best;
And the children stood watching them out of the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
And there's little to earn, and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three wives sat up in the lighthouse tower,
And they trimmed the lamps as the sun went down;
They looked at the squall and they looked at the shower,
And the rack it came rolling up ragged and brown!
But men must work and women must weep,
Though storms be sudden and waters deep,
And the harbor bar be moaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands
In the morning gleam as the tide went down,
And the women are weeping and wringing their hands
For those who will never come back to the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
And the sooner it's over, the sooner to sleep—
And good-by to the bar and its moaning.



$3,345,149 FOR EXPERTS SHOWN ON CITY'S BOOKS

This Total May Not Include All Fees Paid.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

There seems to be no limit to the enormous amount of coin which the building and real estate experts get out of the city treasury.

The total officially counted to date is $3,345,149.80. And it is confidently believed that this huge total does not include all the experts received from the Thompson-Lundin administration.

But the $3,345,149.80 is the total of the official figures compiled by City Controller George F. Harding and his predecessor, Eugene R. Pike. The period covered is from 1915 to 1921, both inclusive.

Their reports show that the five experts collected approximately 46 per cent of the total paid out by the city for all kinds of expert services in that period. In the year 1920 the experts garnered in 74 per cent of the total paid out for expert services. This was their banner year.

What City Books Show.

The income of each of these experts for 1920 and for the other years combined is shown by the following tabulation, taken from the city controller's reports:

Expert—	Income 1920.	Other years.	Total 7 years.
Waller	$619,016	$118,294	$737,311
Lyons	634,687	99,077	733,764
Lynch	559,166	139,962	699,129
Mesce	467,917	132,159	600,077
Merigold	554,829	20,037	574,866
Total	$2,835,618	$500,531	$2,345,149

It is not here represented that these figures are accurate, but it is contended that they are official. They were taken from official reports of city controllers to either the finance committee or the city council.

Also Got Other Fees.

The total amount credited to Arthur S. Merigold for the seven years is less than THE TRIBUNE has charged in a court petition he received in the single year of 1920.

In addition to these fees, some of the experts are known to have received additional sums of money from the board of education.

The great bulk of the $3,345,149 was received from the board of local improvements. Carl A. Mapes, solicitor of the internal revenue bureau, has convinced himself, the experts, and President Faherty of the board of local improvements—and possibly others—that these experts are city employés and, consequently, exempt from income taxes.

It is estimated that this opinion, if permitted to stand, will save these experts between $1,600,000 and $1,700,000 in income taxes. No one ever heard of the experts claiming that they were city employés until they desired to escape their income taxes. They filed their affidavits of facts, and the opinion was given without any verification of the statements in the affidavits.

GREEK AMAZONS HELP ROUT TURKS IN THRACE FIGHT

ADRIANOPLE, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Women carrying shotguns over their shoulders were conspicuous among the 10,000 Christian refugees who trudged through the main street here today on their way to the frontier across the Maritza river. These armed women had joined their men folk in repelling an attack upon them by Turkish irregulars in the bleak hills west of Adrianople. The fight lasted an hour and two refugees were killed.

At Malgara, 300 Greek families are stranded for lack of transportation. Among them is George Kamas, a Greek-American from Chicago, who exhibited an American passport and said that he had arrived a few months ago to get his fiancée and take her back to America.

Two hundred Armenian survivors of a midnight massacre at Bigha arrived today at Dedeagatch, it was learned by Col. Stephen Lowe of St. Louis, Mo., near east relief worker, who is assisting refugees in the Rodosto area. The survivors of the massacre, most of them shorn of their garments, were rescued by the British, who escorted them to Dedeagatch.

COUPLE FALL IN HOLE LEFT OPEN BY CONTRACTOR

Frank Winkel, organist in a Waukegan theater, and his wife, were literally swallowed up by the earth while walking home about 3 o'clock Friday morning, when a contractor left a sewer excavation uncovered. Both were injured, in addition to being soaked in mud and water.

To add insult to injury, they were arrested when they walked into Thomas McGreal's store to use the telephone in calling a taxicab. The telephone operator had sensed something peculiar about a call from the store at 3 o'clock in the morning and had notified the police. The store proprietor was summoned, however, and accepted their explanation.

He was a candidate for municipal court judge at the last election, but was defeated. He was appointed an assistant prosecutor by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. He was the author of a book on extradition.

KIDNAPED?

Catherine Wilson (seated) and her sister, Pauline.

A search was being conducted last night by the police for Catherine, 15, and Pauline Wilson, 13, sisters, of 1646 Park avenue, who are believed to have been kidnaped Friday night, while attending a meeting of the Camp Fire Girls in Union Park Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards.

According to Hariet Stowell, of 1854 Park avenue, a member of the Camp Fire troop, they vanished immediately after the meeting with a shabbily dressed man, who posed as a relative whom they had never seen. The stranger told the girls that he had just come from their home and that he would walk back with them, the three going up Park avenue. The girls have not been seen since and it is believed the man had an automobile parked in a side street nearby in which they were abducted.

CLEMENCEAU IN CHICAGO NOV. 25 ON LECTURE TRIP

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Plans for Georges Clemenceau's lecture tour in the United States include visits to New York, Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, New Orleans, Washington, and possibly Atlanta and Baltimore. It is expected that the ex-premier of France will speak once in the cities he visits and probably twice in New York.

There will be no formal luncheon or dinner engagements, as "The Tiger" does not like this form of entertainment, and probably most of the speeches will be in the afternoon, as he dislikes to speak in the evening.

M. Clemenceau will sail from France on the Paris on Nov. 11, arriving in New York a week later. He will arrive in Chicago on Saturday, Nov. 25. Arrangements for his stay in that city are being made by Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes. He will go to Kansas City and probably speak there on Nov. 28, leaving for New Orleans on Nov. 29.

While in New York, M. Clemenceau will live at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, which has been placed at his disposal, and in Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer will entertain him.

12,200,000 TONS OF COAL MINED IN LAST WEEK

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Complete returns on coal production in the third week of October will show an increase to about 10,200,000 tons of soft coal, according to the weekly report of the geological survey. Production of anthracite has been at about the same rate as during the preceding week and will be at least 2,000,000 tons. Present indications are, therefore, that the total of all coal produced during the past week is about 12,200,000 tons.

"The number of cars loaded on Monday, Oct. 16, as reported by the railroads was 41,201 cars, establishing a new record for this year," says the geological survey. "On Tuesday, loadings declined to 31,330 cars, and on Wednesday to 29,996. These were, however, the highest loadings reported on any second and third working days of a week since the close of the strike. On Thursday there was a further decline to 28,784 cars. Full returns on loadings for the week are expected to indicate production of 10,200,000 tons.

FRENCH WORKERS TOIL 28 DAYS TO PAY THEIR TAXES

PARIS, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—In comparing the burden of taxation in Germany and France Deputy Maurice Bokanowski, in a report on the pending budget he has drawn up for presentation to the chamber, says every able bodied man in France paid 1,903 francs (roughly $146), as compared with 638 francs ($49) for each able bodied German. German taxes, he pointed out, represent fourteen days' labor, while a Frenchman had to supply twenty-eight.

The report puts the sum still necessary for the restoration of the devastated region at 55,000,000,000 francs ($4,200,000,000) and the value of the pensions still to be paid at 36,000,000,000 francs ($2,760,000,000), making a total of 91,000,000,000 francs ($6,960,000,000) for the recoverable budget, whereas France's credit against Germany is valued at 78,000,000,000 francs ($6,000,000,000), leaving a deficit of about 13,000,000,000 francs ($1,000,000,000), which France must find.

The public debt increase, the report sets forth, amounts to 31,000,000,000 francs ($2,380,000,000), while in 1923 30,000,000,000 francs ($2,300,000,000) additional must be borrowed, so that if these borrowing conditions continue the report forecasts that by the end of 1925 the French taxpayers will be paying 30,000,000,000 francs ($2,300,000,000) yearly as interest, while the normal receipts of the 1923 budget will not excede 18,000,000,000 francs ($1,380,000,000).

SUPREME COURT FAILS TO DECIDE ETTELSON CASE

The October session of the state supreme court adjourned last night without handing down a decision in the mandamus proceeding of Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson against Michael Faherty, chairman of the board of local improvements.

Mr. Ettelson brought the action to compel Mr. Faherty to recognize him as attorney for the local improvements board. He claims that under the city charter he is in charge of all the city's legal work. Mr. Faherty contends that under the law his board has the right to select its own lawyer.

CZAR'S GEMS TOO ELABORATE EVEN FOR AMERICANS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—Who wants the Orloff diamond, the Shah diamond, and other diamonds and pearls and emeralds of some thousand carats each? Nobody.

When Col. Haskell, head of the American relief, asked Commissar Kameneff why he did not sell the czar's jewels for famine relief the latter replied that he couldn't, because no monarch today is rich like the czar was, and no American millionaires want thousand carat stones. M. Kameneff added that the church treasures proceeds, which were sold for relief, were disappointing. There was much silver, little gold, and many yellow, flawed stones.

About 8,000,000 persons will need assistance this winter. Russia, with its increased crops, is able to care for 4,000,000, while all relief organizations are only able to care for 1,000,000, and therefore Russia asks America to feed 3,000,000, M. Kameneff told Col. Haskell. The crops are 47,000,000 tons gross, about 40 per cent below normal, but one-third above last year.

Take Your FEET Off Your Mind Nature-Treads
and Your Mind Off Your FEET.

Banish These Troubles
Away with callouses, corns, pains at ball of foot, cramped toes, Morton's toe, sore heels, and tired, aching, hot, perspiring, swollen feet caused by weak arches, weak ankles or wrong weight distribution. NATURE-TREADS will work wonders for your feet in a new and highly successful way.

Why Nature-Treads Are Success
NATURE-TREADS came into existence nearly five years ago following the tremendous amount of research work done by the world's greatest Orthopedic Surgeons who devoted their services to Uncle Sam. In countless thousands of cases it was proven beyond argument that the common types of foot troubles can be traced to the fact that too much of the bottom surface of the foot is used to stand on. The above illustrations clearly show what parts of the foot are made to stand on and what parts are not. In fact, whenever the inner part of the foot that should be arched is used to carry weight, trouble follows. NATURE-TREADS restore the weight bearing to the parts of the foot built for the purpose of carrying weight, and restore the arch to normal without pressing against the arch.

How to Order by Mail
If you cannot visit either of our shops, place the feet on any sheet of blank paper while in a sitting position and draw your pencil entirely around the feet, holding the pencil straight up. The correctly fitted NATURE-TREADS, with complete instructions, will be forwarded the day your order arrives. Forward the money by P. O. or Express Money Order or Check, payable to the NATURE-TREAD SHOPS.

Not Arch Supports
NATURE-TREADS are not arch supports, braces or elastic bands that have proven so harmful and habit forming, but are absolutely new and so scientifically designed as to rapidly and permanently correct foot troubles and strengthen muscles by directing the body's weight to the proper weight-bearing parts of the foot as nature intended.

Money Back Guarantee
To try out NATURE-TREADS to your own satisfaction, you have nothing to lose and everything to gain. Our MONEY-BACK TRIAL OFFER makes it possible for you to get a pair of NATURE-TREADS, fitted perfectly to your foot measurements for ten days' trial, during which time you are under no obligation whatever to keep them. You can wear them, test them, judge them at our risk. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied that NATURE-TREADS have been a real blessing to you, bring them back and we will cheerfully refund your $2.75.

Light, Cool, Comfortable
NATURE-TREADS not only direct the body's weight where the weight should be carried, but in doing so remove the friction or rubbing that causes corns, bunions, callouses, etc. In addition, NATURE-TREADS are so very light (no metal or bulk), and oh, so cooling and comfortable to the feet. They can even be worn unnoticeably in women's most delicate and dainty slippers or pumps and are changeable from one pair of shoes to another.

Free Demonstration
NATURE-TREADS are made in forty-five sizes for adults, and are fitted to the outline measurements of your feet. You are invited to have a demonstration, without any obligation on your part to purchase. NATURE-TREADS have demonstrated themselves to be by far the most advanced and scientific means of obtaining freedom from foot suffering ever produced. Today thousands of former foot sufferers, including ball players, doctors, pugilists, dancers, and others from every occupation in life, will tell you that NATURE-TREADS cannot be judged by your experience with other articles.

Visit Nature-Tread Shop Today
No matter how great your foot suffering may be or how little, visit the exclusive NATURE-TREAD Shops. You are guaranteed comfort or your purchase money of $2.75 per pair will be refunded. Nothing is impossible, and NATURE-TREADS may be just exactly what you have been looking for! Why not find out?

TURKS PREPARE 14 DEMANDS FOR PEACE PARLEY

Want Kurd Lands Now Held by British.

BULLETIN.

BRUSA, Turkey, Oct. 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—At an extraordinary council of Turkish generals today plans were discussed for a further advance upon Constantinople in event the proposed peace conference failed.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 21.—Fourteen main points will be on the table when the peace conference between the Turks and the allies convene in November. These are:

1. The Dardanelles and the Bosporus.
2. Constantinople.
3. Capitulations.
4. Exchange of minority populations between Greece and Turkey.
5. Kurdish territories of Iraq, the British mandate kingdom.
6. The complete independence of Arab states.
7. The Bagdad railroad.

Free Port for Serbia.

8. Autonomy for Macedonia, with free port for Serbia and autonomy or annexation for Western Thrace with Dedeagatch, a Bulgarian free port.
9. The question of Demotika and Dedeagatch as part of eastern Thrace.
10. The islands off the coast of Anatolia, including the Dodecanese.
11. Control of the public debt.
12. Reparations.
13. Khalifate. The Nationalists, who call themselves champions of democracy in the east, will agree to respect the sultan as the head of the Mohammedan religion, but will decline to accept him as the ruler of Turkey.
14. Return of three Turkish dreadnoughts which were acquired by England before Turkey entered the war. Turkey, it is claimed, had paid 95 per cent of the cost of these ships before they were seized.

Means a More Powerful Turkey.

A solution for these questions in a manner favorable to Turkey will return her to a position stronger than she has enjoyed in many generations, but local nationalists deem this impossible.

I discussed with Hamid Bey, unofficial representative of the nationalists in Constantinople, the Turkish attitude on several of the vital questions. Hamid, who advised Ismet Pasha during the Mudania conference, probably will be a member of the nationalist peace delegation.

The Nationalists will insist upon the freedom of the waterways under Turkish sovereignty. Their policy regarding capitulations is for the abandonment of all of them, but there have been intimations in well informed quarters that judicial capitulations may be continued until court reforms in Turkey are completed. I pressed Hamid Bey for an answer on this point.

Discusses Exchange of Minorities.

"Capitulations," he replied, "were given through treaties. When war was declared these were abrogated. In this twentieth century, with civilization thus far advanced, will the powers seek to impose new capitulations?"

Which, in the language of diplomacy, means what you will.

Hamid Bey said Dr. Fridtjof Nansen of the league of nations is now investigating the proposition of interchanging minorities. He insisted that if this is done Constantinople must be included in the exchange and Greek property here given in return for the Turk farms in Macedonia.

Demand Kurdish Territories.

"How about Mesopotamia?" I asked.

"The status of the Arab states already has been defined in the national pact," he replied. "We will insist that they be independent. On the other hand we insist that Kurdish territories be included in Turkey. This clearly is the Turkish claim in the national pact."

The Bagdad railroad, he said, would be considered by the Turks the same as before the war.

"Does this mean the return of the railroad to the German corporation?"

"We are recognizing this as an Ottoman property and shares may be held by any one. We are urging the completion of a railroad between Nisibin and Sherghat, but this is Arab territory and we have no business to interfere. If England is unwilling to make the completion, we can divert the line to Persia via Diarbekr and Bitlis."

For Western Thrace Plebiscite.

Turkey will insist upon a plebiscite in western Thrace.

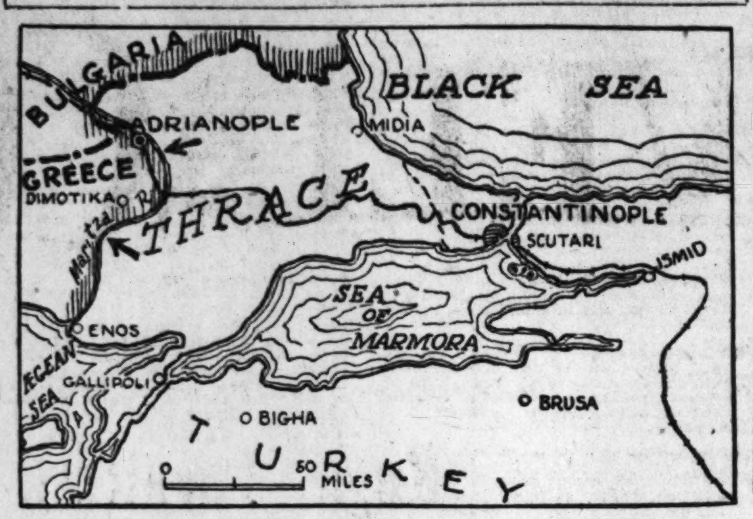
If the Turks obtain Dedeagach they promise to make it a free port for Bulgaria. They consider Dedeagach a part of eastern Thrace.

As to the Ottoman debt, that remains as before the war.

"We will keep our promises," Hamid maintained.

Reparations naturally will be demanded and the damages and devastation in Anatolia are now being calculated for presentation to the conference.

WHERE TURK RULES MELTING POT



THE map shows the Maritza river. On one side is eastern Thrace, on the other side Greece.

Adrianople, on the northern bank of the Maritza, is a city inhabited largely by Turks. The surrounding territory is inhabited by Greeks and Bulgars.

To understand properly the recent award of Thrace to Turkey, as far west as the Maritza river, one must realize that in these regions nationalities keep distinctly apart.

The Turks were formerly the masters in Thrace, but in no sense the people. To put them back is to restore conquering rulers over the polygot inhabitants of this ancient highway of the world.

EX-PREMIER NITTI FORMS ALLIANCE WITH FASCISTI

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Oct. 21.—Former Premier Nitti made a speech to his constituents at the Lauria Basilica here last night which the politicians interpret as indicating his intention of seekng to head a ministry again. It is stated by well informed persons that Sig. Nitti has reached an agreement with Sig. Mussolini, head of the Fascisti, whereby the former will be premier and minister without a portfolio and the latter minister of the interior in the next cabinet.

Sig. Mussolini and Sig. Nitti have been bitter political enemies for the last two years and the Fascisti has repeatedly attacked the former premier. Now, however, the two statesmen have decided to join hands.

Sig. Nitti in his speech for the first time came out as a support of the Fascisti aims. He declared that the Fascisti represents an immense national force which Italian statesmen must reckon with. He favored the new election advocated by the Fascisti.

8,000,000 in Russia Still Need Food, U.S. Is Informed

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—About 8,000,000 persons will need assistance this winter. Russia, with its increased crops, is able to care for 4,000,000, while all relief organizations are only able to care for 1,000,000, and therefore Russia asks America to feed 3,000,000, according to Col. Haskell, who conferred today with Commissar Kameneff. The crops are 47,000,000 tons gross, about 40 per cent below normal, but one-third above last year.

ATHENS, Oct. 21.—It is a simple matter to get full facts, statistics, and data as to which nation of southeastern Europe should govern the battle scarred, refugee ridden, contested corner of the map known as Oriental Thrace, which has just been taken from Greece by the allies and awarded to Turkey.

Any official of Greece, Turkey, or Bulgaria will gladly produce volumes of statistics and pamphlets in all languages, ethnological maps, and quotations from modern, medieval and ancient history, proving irrefutably that Greece, Turkey, and Bulgaria, respectively, hold incontestable moral, historic, racial, and geographical claims to administer the affairs of that prosperous and fertile terrain.

"Cradle of Grecian Race."

The Greeks emphasize the undeniable fact that Thrace was the "cradle of the Grecian race."

The Turks say they have numerical superiority and furthermore they quote history to prove that Adrianople was the ancient, traditional holy city of the Moslem faith.

The Bulgars display statistics modestly overestimating the number of their nationals living in the disputed area and also talk about international justice and an outlet to the sea.

As a matter of fact the kaleidoscopic changes due to years of war, the many conflicting national claims and population statistics are so befuddled that it is impossible to weigh the matter judicially.

There is only one definite conclusion that can be drawn and that is no one nation has a predominant ethnological claim.

Greeks and Turks Equal.

Competent American observers who have been in Thrace recently tell me that the Greek and Turk population is about equal, with the Bulgars running a close third. There are about 750,000 persons in eastern Thrace, according to American estimates, of which 500,000 are equally divided between the Greeks and Turks.

The Americans say the Moslems do not like to live under Christian rule, and the Greeks do not relish the prospect of living under the Moslems. Despite their religious differences this great agricultural country has been rich and prosperous regardless of the recent and frequent shifts of governments.

Here Are Greek Statistics.

The Greek official statistics—the latest of which were compiled in 1912 by the Greek Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople, which is the political as well as the ecclesiastical head of the Christians in the Ottoman empire—form a moderate presentment of the Greek case.

The Greek figures for eastern Thrace, including the vilayet of Constantinople, show: Turks, 836,900; Greeks, 726,100; Bulgars, 114,100, and others, 340,700. Omitting the dominantly Turkish population in Constantinople and Tchatalja, which are included in the Constantinople vilayet, the figures show: Turks, 512,100; Greeks, 490,900, and Bulgars, 110,000.

Here Are Turk Figures.

The latest Turkish figures available in Athens were compiled in 1910. They show: Turks, 974,000; Greeks, 676,000; Bulgars, 113,500, and others, 176,040. Omitting Constantinople and Tchatalja: Turks, 506,000; Greeks, 416,000, and Bulgars, 117,500.

The Greeks state that these figures have been altered by population shifts, emigrations, and immigrations consequent in the world war until now, according to the foreign office, "the numbers are about even, with possibly a dominance somewhat in favor of Greece." The Greek officials disagree with the American statement that the Bulgars run a close third, saying the Bulgars form an "insignificant minority."

The war's artificial colonizations and deportations have confused the issue. The shifts began when in the Balkan war of 1913 the Bulgars occupied Thrace, implanting Bulgarian colonists. The Balkan peace was signed in 1914, and when the Turks sent an ultimatum to the Bulgars and Greeks to withdraw, 150,000 left in a hasty exodus. The Turks in turn installed Turkish nationals and vacated the homesteaders. When the Greeks entered into possession of the land in 1920 many exiled Greeks returned.

DAPEST, Oct. 21.—Through THE AGO TRIBUNE Hungary sounds a n warning to the big and little d powers that it cannot and will pay any more reparations. is rumored that the commission set $1,320,000,000 as the amount eparations to be collected.

If they attempt to extort such a from Hungary another pauper Austria will be added to the ld's waifs who must be supported foreign—chiefly American—char- " said a foreign office official today iscussing the question.

Interviews Regent Horthy.

dmiral Regent Horthy received me y and granted me a long interview. was anxious to hear of the new sit- ion at Constantinople, in which he interested, especially since as an er of the Austro-Hungarian navy commanded a station ship at the lime porte.

I am always glad to see an Ameri- and particularly a CHICAGO TRIB- correspondent," said Admiral rthy.

He requested me not to quote him statements of political views at this e, explaining the seriousness of the arations problem necessitated the ngarian foreign office handling the tter, but when I asked him of the sibility of Hungary paying $1,- ,000,000 he snapped back, "We can- pay $13."

thnological frontiers mean nothing Admiral Horthy, who sees his own ntry, as well as his neighbors, ken in a morass of worthless cur- cy, stifled exports and shattered iness since the "self-determina- n" principle has been applied.

"Cannot Change Nature."

You cannot change nature and ke rivers run up hills and over ntains just by shifting frontiers," d Admiral Horthy, pointing to a p of Transylvania. "That territory ongs to Hungary economically, com- rcially and morally."

egarding political statements as to situation in Hungary, Admiral rthy referred me to Undersecretary Foreign Affairs Kanya, in the ab- e of his chief, who was ill.

Mr. Kanya reiterated the statement t it was impossible for Hungary to a cent of reparations, pointing out t great rich provinces had been ded over to its neighbors.

Details Hungary's Losses.

Count Khuen Hedervary, who is Mr. nya's economic expert, described ngary's loss of 60 per cent of its ulation, leaving only 7,000,000 peo- and of 65 per cent of its territory. ngary values at 16,000,000,000 gold wns ($3,200,000,000) the lost prov- s, and an investigating commission values at 11,000,000,000 gold crowns ($1,200,000,000) the value of property seized and destroyed when the Roumanians occupied the capital in 1919 against allied orders.

Thus Hungary's counter claims against the reparations commission total 27,000,000,000 gold crowns ($5,400,000,000).

"Why Pick on Hungary?"

"Every one is talking in favor of giving a moratorium to Germany," said the count. "Nobody expects anything from Austria and Bulgaria, and now Turkey is a victorious power, so it does not seem fair that Hungary alone should be picked on and ordered to pay a sum which would result in our exchange falling to the same worthlessness as that of Austria, aggravating the situation through creating another bankrupt state in Europe."

HAMMER MURDER SUSPECT PLANS TO ACCUSE ANOTHER

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Peggy Caffee, eyewitness to the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, who was killed with a hammer, was taken into technical custody today and removed from her home in Long Beach to a hotel in Los Angeles by two deputy sheriffs.

She is to be star witness in the trial of Mrs. Clara Phillips, who is charged with having slain Mrs. Meadows. The district attorney's office decided on this move after it was stated that Mrs. Phillips would testify that not she, but another woman, killed Mrs. Meadows.

Mrs. Madelynn Obenchain, who has twice been tried for the murder of her sweetheart, J. Belton Kennedy, and who is now awaiting a third trial next month, was declared today to be the "master hand" guiding Mrs. Phillips' defense.

U. S. AGENTS FOIL ATTEMPT IN N. Y. TO DEFRAUD BANK

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—A conspiracy to defraud a New York banking concern of a sum running into several million dollars is indicated, according to federal authorities here, in the arrest of Edward J. Sweeney accused of violating the Dyer law relating to the transportation of stolen automobiles.

The investigation shows, according to the authorities, that he attempted to persuade a New York banking company to finance the purchase of 4,000 high grade motor cars which he represented would be new ones but which would have to be sold as used machines to avoid complaint from dealers. He is said to have delivered a sample car to the banking concern which later found, it is alleged, that the machine had been stolen.

WEALTHY TEXAN DIES SUDDENLY AT DRAKE HOTEL

Neils Esparson, 65, wealthy manufacturer, oil man, and rice plantation owner of Houston, Tex., died of a cerebral hemorrhage at the Drake hotel shortly after midnight this morning.

With Mrs. Esparson and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Signor, 3939 Ellis avenue, the Texan had attended the theater last evening, but left after the first act, complaining that he felt ill.

Coming to the United States from Denmark when very young, Esparson "grew up" with Houston, having large holdings in the city, as well as acquiring land throughout the state. The body was taken to Boydston's undertaking rooms, 4227 Cottage Grove avenue, to be prepared for removal to Houston.

SAFETY FIRST
—for the principal.

The newspapers recently contained accounts of the probating of the will of a former Chicago girl who, some years ago, was left $175,000 by her father and grandfather. The $175,000 had dwindled to $1,200 at her death.

Some of the money had gone to sharpers and deliberately crooked promoters, but most of it was lost through incompetence rather than the dishonesty of her advisers.

The loss of this estate could have been prevented by leaving the property in trust for the young woman under the supervision of a responsible bank or trust company, of which there are many in Chicago and the surrounding country.

ADMIRAL TELLS WHY U. S. MUST HAVE BIG FLEET

Rogers Explains Object of Naval Day Scheme.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—"Navy day" is to be celebrated throughout the United States next Friday, Oct. 27.

The celebration was planned by the Navy League of the United States, with approval of the President and secretary of the navy.

"Navy day" was designed to reawaken public interest in the sea power of the American government for its national defense, and to keep the public informed regarding the necessities for maintentance of naval power, the needs of the navy demanded by world conditions, and the conditions surrounding the navy as it exists today.

Admiral Rogers Discusses Navy.

Coming in the wake of the recent Washington disarmament conference, through which naval armaments of the world powers were limited to a certain extent, "Navy day" suggested pertinent questions to the correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, which have been answered by Rear Admiral Ledyard Rogers, chairman of the executive committee of the general board of the navy and a member of the advisory council to the American delegation to the Washington conference last winter.

THE ARMS CONFERENCE

Admiral Rogers was first asked: "What did the Washington conference seek, what did it accomplish, and what has the United States gained and lost thereby?"

"The navy," said Admiral Rogers, "exists to support the national policy, whatever that may be. It is, therefore, necessary first to see what attitude our people habitually take, what they have wished, and wish to do in the future.

"As a nation we flatter ourselves that we are peaceful and disinclined to war, and that, therefore, nobody will care to attack us and that we may afford to remain unprepared. I do not think this popular opinion of ourselves is really a correct one. Nationally we wish to do right and to set others to do right, and when our sympathies are aroused on one side or another we wish to be heard in the settlement of disputes.

For Greater Navy

REAR ADMIRAL W. L. ROGERS
[Copyright: Harris & Ewing.]

Unpreparedness Raises Cost of War.

"As an example, Germany thought it safe to wage war in such a way as to irritate us, and made the dreadful blunder of thinking that we were really peacefully minded, because we were unprepared, and so she drove us into the war.

"At the close of the world war the administration resolved that we should be strong in the future in order that we might speak with authority in the affairs of nations when our national interests seemed to demand it. On account of the isolation of the United States geographically from other powers, it seemed to that administration that our first requirement to make our demands heeded was a strong navy.

"Our riches enabled us easily to have the first navy in the world if we wished it, but the people and congress, while not renouncing the desire to be heard in international councils, refused to outbid other powers in naval expenditures. On the contrary, the people cried out for financial economies and reduction of taxation.

Financial Economy Sought.

"In deference to this desire of the public, the new administration called the Washington conference for the limitation of armaments in the hope that by mutual agreement the wish of the peoples of the world for financial economy might be satisfied.

"Yet the navy of the United States, maintained in due proportion with that of the other principal powers, would insure a respectful hearing to the United States in world affairs. It was the belief of the administration that parity of naval armaments with that of the hitherto greatest naval power, together with the unsurpassed riches and proven ability of the United States in arms, would be sufficient to accomplish the two ends sought by the people—that is to say, reasonable expenditure with a strong international position.

"There is now no limit in any class of the smaller fighting ships, and the established ratio is only existing in capital ships, and airplane carriers have yet to be brought up to the ratio established by the treaty. Although the battleship is the backbone of the fleet, auxiliaries of the fleet, such as cruisers, destroyers, and airplanes, have very great weight in determining the actual naval strength. We have unlimited building freedom by the treaty in all these particulars.

"The United States desires to maintain its navy in the same proportion in these auxiliary classes as in the battleships. It is not our intention to attempt to outdo the established ratio for other powers if they will observe it themselves. If, however, they attempt to gain a preponderance beyond the ratios for battleships in these particulars, our financial resources are such that we can easily outbuild them and they will no doubt hesitate long before they attempt such a step.

Struggle for Supremacy Ended.

"We wish then to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio of the treaty in the other classes of ships to which the treaty does not apply. To sum up what we have gained and lost by the treaty—we have gained the acceptation of a ratio of naval strength in the two classes of very big ships, which we hope and expect will be observed in spirit in regard to other classes of ships and as to the personnel required to man them. Thus everybody has gained in economy through doing away with the struggle for supremacy.

"The United States in actual naval power has sacrificed more than the other powers, for the new ships which we scrapped were well advanced in construction, and we had already spent huge sums upon them, while the other powers' sacrifice was mostly in intention to build rather than in accomplishment.

"Japan also succeeded in obtaining a mutually self-denying agreement not to fortify island possessions in the far east. This agreement as to fortifications did not include in its terms the main great islands forming the Japanese empire. In this point we sacrificed a position of strength in the far east which was valuable to us commercially, diplomatically, and militarily, which was greater for us than for other powers, and reduced the potential strength of our fleet through deprivation of adequately fortified bases in our distant possessions."

WHY U. S. NEEDS BIG NAVY

"Why," Admiral Rogers was asked, "does the United States need a navy equal to that of Great Britain and to five-thirds that of Japan?"

"Our navy is a great element in the prosperity and growth of our people," he replied. "This is not generally recognized by the public. It is perhaps proper to say that the policy of our national government has been to maintain the standards of prosperity of the nation as a whole, and the great body of citizens as individuals.

"In order that our seaborne commerce may be directed to promote our own national ends we need to control our own means of forwarding and distributing our business. We must not be at the mercy of other powers. Thus our business position in the world depends on maintaining our international commerce through our own merchant fleet, foreign banking systems, foreign distributing agencies, foreign communications, all in our own hands. To protect all these things we need a navy.

Our Commerce Must Be Protected.

"Our foreign policy is as strong as our navy and no stronger. Our weight in international councils depends on our naval policy and the strength of our navy. We cannot secure those policies or protect our own commercial interests or be a power for the general good of the world unless we maintain an adequate navy as defined under the treaty, with which to protect our world commerce.

"Sea power, as a whole, includes both the merchant service and the naval service, and sea power is the firm support of peace loving statesmen.

"Sea power will enable the United States peacefully to carry on its legitimate business with the rest of the world to its own advantage, without recourse to the exercise of the actual force of arms to preserve its rights."

CUT IN CHICAGO'S ASSEMBLY VOTE IS PIVOTAL ISSUE

New Constitution's Fate May Depend on It.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

ARTICLE NO. 5.

Restricted representation for Cook county, a mouth filling phrase, is one of the pivotal issues in the campaign over the proposed new constitution which the voters will adopt or reject on Dec. 12. The limitation on Cook county's voice at Springfield doubtless strengthens chances of the new basic law downstate and weakens it in Chicago and the circumjacent country towns.

Many persons do not take kindly to the idea of unequal representation as between the metropolitan area and the 101 counties outside. They demur against infringement upon their right of suffrage and they see no reason why a voter in Chicago is not entitled to as full a voice at Springfield as the voter downstate. There is going to be much discussion of all this during the campaign, and the fate of the proposed new basic law may hinge on this issue more than on any other.

But It Already Exists.

One thing not to be lost sight of is that as a matter of sheer, actual fact, a limitation on Cook county now exists. This goes for the legislature, the supreme court, congress and the constitutional convention. In all these bodies a downstate voter now has far more voice than a Cook county voter. A voter in the Mattoon district, for instance, has three times as much representation in the general assembly as a voter in the seventh district of Cook county.

This is in direct violation of the present constitution. But it is there, and so far no way of remedying it has been found. The new instrument proposes to render constitutional a suffrage limitation now existing in direct conflict with the present basic law.

It is a question of control. Chicago and its environs have grown far more rapidly than the rest of the state. Half a century ago, when the present constitution was adopted, Cook county had a population of less than 350,000 out of more than two and a half million in the state; about 14 per cent. Restriction was an unknown issue to the framers of 1870. But Chicago's growth was so rapid that in 1890 Chicago held almost 29 per cent of the state's population; in 1900, 35 per cent; in 1910, almost 39 per cent; in 1920 over 41 per cent.

May Be More than Half in 1930.

Cook county now has a population of 3,053,000 out of 6,485,280 in the state. It is over 47 per cent. Doubtless when the census of 1930 is taken Cook county will contain more than one-half the population of Illinois.

Downstate Illinois naturally enough does not relish the idea that a majority of the state lawmakers should ever come from one densely populated and intensely developed section in the northeast corner of the state.

As affairs now stand the country predominates in the legislature. And the country legislators jolly well do not intend to let Cook county climb into the saddle. It's a deadlock and it has been growing tighter at Springfield for the last twenty years.

Proposal in New Document.

What the new instrument proposes is to fix the clock so that regardless of where the population rolls, neither Cook county nor downstate shall be the whole works in both houses at Springfield. During the convention some interests, notably the Anti-Saloon league, fought to have such a tight restriction clamped on that Cook county voters would be limited in their representation in both houses. The whole subject matter was packed with dynamite. The compromise which was worked out is as follows:

1. The Senate—The senatorial districts are to be increased from 51 to 57. Of these 19 shall be in Cook county and 38 in the rest of the state. Thus Cook county would be definitely limited to one-third the members of the senate. To clinch this limit, if a constitutional change were wanted later on after Cook county holds a majority of the state's inhabitants it would require for submission a two-thirds vote in each house. And downstate would have two-thirds of the senators—enough to block it. It's build in solidly.

153 House Districts.

2. The House—Illinois is to be divided into 153 representative districts in accordance with the number of electors. Each district is to elect one member of the house. Thus in the lower branch Cook county will have the same proportionate representation, based on votes for governor, instead of on full population, as other parts of the state. When Cook county got a majority of the electors it would get a majority of the house seats.

3. Redistricting—If the general assembly fails to make a new apportionment at the intervals specified in the constitution, the secretary of state, the attorney general and the auditor shall make the reapportionment within ninety days after the legislature adjourns.

Point to U. S. Constitution.

Opponents of limitation say the idea is in conflict with the fundamental principles of representative government. Advocates of the new basic law point out that in the congress of the United States there is restriction in the upper branch, each state, regardless of its area or population, being limited to two senators.

They also argue that to offset Chicago's measurable disfranchisement in the senate, Chicago is given full powers of "home rule."

How Restriction Now Exists.

Unconstitutional restriction as it now exists is due to the failure of the legislature to redistrict the state. The constitution provides that the state shall be carved into new senatorial districts every ten years on the basis of population, but there has been no redistricting since 1901—twenty-one years ago—every time the question is raised at Springfield the downstate members nail it with a cry for a limit on Cook county.

On the basis of the 1920 census Cook county has 47 per cent of the population of the state. It has only nineteen of the fifty-one senatorial districts, meaning it has only 37 per cent of the seats in the general assembly. On the basis of the census it is now entitled to twenty-four districts.

In Terms of Averages.

It is cheated out of five districts by the failure of the legislators to live up to the constitution, to support which they take an oath. And downstate at present under the constitution is entitled to only twenty-seven districts where it has thirty-two.

Under the census, the population ratio for each of the fifty-one senatorial districts should be 127,159. Only five of the thirty-two downstate districts equal or exceed that ratio.

The average population of the thirty-two downstate districts is 107,253; the average of the nineteen Cook county districts is 160,685. Thus, speaking in averages, two voters downstate have as much voice in the general assembly as three voters in Cook county.

Also the legislature refuses to reapportion the congressional districts. Cook county, on the basis of population, is entitled to twelve of the twenty-seven congressmen. All told, including one elected at large, it has eleven, and Lake county is thrown in to boot. Thus the Cook county citizen is penalized by a curtailment of his proper representation in the law making bodies, both at Springfield and Washington.

Other Cities Affected.

Efforts to get a square shake have been rebuffed so often that the Cook county outfit has tossed up the sponge. They say equitable representation can never be forced at Springfield. But here is a thought that has been lost in the shuffle—Chicago is not the only place affected by unconstitutional restriction.

Centers that have had industrial growth suffer from lack of reapportionment just as does Cook county—every district in which there has been a great increase in population finds itself limited. It is quite debatable as to how far the lack of balance would continue before such sections united with Cook in forcing equal representation.

[Other features of restriction will be discussed in the next article.]

The campaigns benig waged by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of Northwestern University to raise funds for the yearly budgets is to be continued throughout next week, according to the announcement made yesterday by George McWilliams and Miss Elsie Brown, respective campaign managers. Thus far the men's organization has raised $2,000 on the campus and the women $1,800. Altogether $5,000 is needed.

CON CON WISELY LIMITED CHICAGO, SHERMAN AVERS

Effingham, Ill., Oct. 21.—Unless the proposed new constitution is adopted it will be but a few years until Chicago will control the affairs of the entire state, former United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman today told the bar association of the second district.

"With 47 per cent of our 6,485,000 people now in Chicago," he said, "it is apparent that Chicago will, in a few years, have a majority of the people in the state, and can control the affairs of the state.

"Downstate people would be submerged and subject to that city's influences, more than the good of the remainder of the state would allow. For this reason Cook county is wisely limited in theh new constitution to one-third of the membership of the state senate."

Evanston Girl's Marriage to Indianan Is Annulled

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 21.—[Specail.]—The marriage of Jack Norman Woodington, former Culver student and son of J. C. Woodington, and Mrs. Ruth Woodington, nee Winbur, of Evanston, Ill., which took place July 20, 1920, was annulled today. The couple eloped, it is said.

Lay Corner Stone for Oak Park Clubhouse

In the presence of approximately 600 spectators the cornerstone of the new Oak Park club was laid at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Calvin H. Hill, vice president of the club. John L. Davidson, president of the organization, was in charge of the ceremonies.

Those who made addresses were Judge Charles S. Cutting, Dr. William E. Barton, and Morris G. Holmes, the architect who designed the building. It is hoped to complete the structure, which will cost $500,000, early next spring. The club is composed of about 500 prominent Chicago business and professional men who reside in Oak Park.

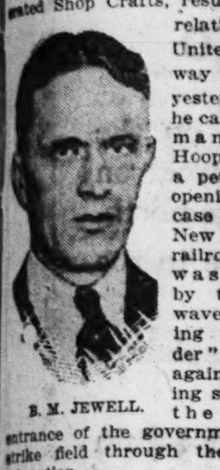
JEWELL DROPS HIS GRIEVANCE WITH RAIL BOARD

Appears Before Hooper to Reopen Old Case.



B. M. JEWELL.

B. M. Jewell, president of the Federated Shop Crafts, resumed friendly relations with the United States railway labor board yesterday, when he called on Chairman Ben W. Hooper to present a petition for reopening of a union case against the New York Central railroad, which was sidetracked by the strike wave, the resulting "outlaw order" of the board against the striking shopmen, and the subsequent entrance of the government into the strike field through the Daugherty injunction.

Mr. Jewell asked the board to reopen the case involving establishment of the piece work system in shops at Elkhart, Ind. It is announced unofficially that the board will grant his petition.

Refused Board Summons.

This action brings the railroad shop situation nearer to normal than it has been at any time since the calling of the strike. At that time, July 1 last, Mr. Jewell refused to come to the board rooms during the final efforts to avoid the strike action. He has not been near the board since.

The meeting yesterday was marked by cordiality. There was no evidence of any change in the relations that existed between the two men before the strike.

The New York Central is one of the fifty-two railroads that signed the Baltimore agreement. This provided for a commission of six representatives of the union to adjust disputes growing out of the strike. This commission, however, has no power to sit in the piece work dispute.

Before Strike Was Called.

This controversy came to the board before the strike was called. The unions claimed that the railroad had violated the transportation act, while the railroads contended that the piece work system had been accepted by the local represntatives of the union. The case was under consideration by the board when the strike was called.

Mr. Jewell's visit is regarded as an indication that the union will again take its place before the board in disputes with railroad managements, and that the board will also be called upon to hear of the controversies with roads not parties to the Baltimore agreement.

ALLIED-GERMAN PACT ON PRIVATE DEBTS IS SIGNED

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Negotiations for the payment of liquidation sums covering private claims of allied nationals between French and British representatives and German officials in Berlin have led to a final agreement which was signed tonight. The German government expects a great improvement in the mark situation from the publication of the clauses of the agreement.

It provides that the payment of £1,000,000 (about $4,500,000) by Germany will be extended until July 1, 1923. Every month the German government will issue treasury bonds equivalent to the monthly installment. Germany promises to endeavor to pay cash by July 1. Should this be impossible the allies have the right to sell the bonds on foreign markets as well as on the German bourse.

Can Pay Taxes with Bonds.

German citizens have the right to purchase these bonds and give them to the German government in payment of their personal taxes.

While the new agreement brings a ray of hope to Germany, the reichstag announces that "whatever legislation can do to kill speculation will be done."

"The solons have prepared a series of laws against speculation but they cannot kill it," said the director of the Bank of Berlin. "Like Russia, nobody believes in the future of his own currency. A recent presidential decree prohibited the purchase of foreign money. The public started buying foreign bonds at the exchange. The reichstag wants to forbid the sale of foreign bonds. The public will invest their marks in cigarettes or liquor or anything they can find on the market. This is bound to lead to an artificial flutter of trade, followed by long stagnation."

Prices Higher than U. S.

American business men in Germany, according to Charles Knoepfel of Chicago, find it almost impossible to buy goods, which, with tariff added, are higher than American prices, despite the low rate of exchange.

HILT ELECTED PRESIDENT OF S. SHORE CLUB

Joseph E. Hitt, leading the official ballot drawn by the nominating committee, was elected president of the South Shore Country club for the ensuing term yesterday.

James B. Pauley, vice president of the J. K. Dering Coal company, became vice-president; Robert J. Graf, vice president and secretary of H. M. Byllesby and company, treasurer, and W. Homer Hartz, secretary.

Six governors, elected for three year terms, are A. R. Fay, Dr. John F. Golden, Grant Felton, Frank B. Stone, Lawrence H. Whiting, and Frank H. Winans.

SEEK TO ATTACH MEXICAN FUNDS IN A N. Y. BANK

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—A writ of attachment, designed to tie up the funds of the Mexican government in New York banks, has been served upon J. P. Morgan & Co. in an action brought against the Mexican government and the Mexican National railways by the Oliver Trading company. Thomas W. Lamont, one of the Morgan partners, denied tonight that J. P. Morgan & Co. was the repository for any funds of the Mexican government.

The Oliver Trading company caused the writ to be issued in a suit to recover about $1,250,000 from Mexico on claims arising from the private operations of the Mexican National railway lines during Carranza's administration and subsequently. A summons was served on Carlos Felix, financial agent of the Mexican government.

HELD ON GIRLS' CHARGES.

A Tip to Speculators

by Frank K. Reilly

WHEN the first of the five present New York City Subways was being built, years ago—the original "Interborough," running from Battery Place and the financial district, at the foot of the city, up Lexington Avenue past Grand Central Station at 42nd Street, over to Times Square at 42nd and Broadway and up Broadway into the One Hundreds—Manhattan learned a new and strange lesson which Chicago is yet to experience.

For three years or more, while the tunnelling of rock was going on, hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers daily tramped over the wooden scaffolding that carried the dense traffic of Upper Broadway—incessantly reminded by the roar of machinery, the shrieking of steam whistles and the detonations of periodic blasting, of the great improvement which was being doggedly prosecuted, inch by inch, beneath their feet.

Nobody gave much thought to Broadway realty values.

Then one day New York awoke to read the announcement in the morning papers that the subway was partially completed and that trains would be run on regular schedule, beginning the day following, from Wall Street to 72nd.

Over night realty values on Upper Broadway doubled, trebled, quadrupled. Within less than a week there was not a single piece of property within a half-mile of the important new subway that did not increase in value from 2 to 20 times. Fortunes were made in the twinkling of an eye. Many parcels changed hands three and four times within a week. With each new transfer prices soared.

And why? Simply because New Yorkers had been asleep to what was going on about them. During those three or more years everybody knew the actual route the subway was taking; everybody knew just where the stations were to be located; everybody knew that some day the finished thing would become a reality. And yet New York waited! It required the reality, the actual achievement of the miracle of rapid underground transit, to awaken her.

* * * * * * * *

THE lesson should not be lost on Chicago. But it will be lost on the majority of Chicagoans. A few shrewd men and women of vision will heed it—the one man and woman out of a thousand. It is to this man and woman that this message is directed.

The world calls this certain kind of person a "speculator." (As if we are not speculators all!) But, let it go at that. By any other name his wisdom would be as great—his profits as sweet. Yours are the vision and courage that builds cities; yours the brains which create the world's wealth. Like the farmer who sees a thousand-kerneled ear of corn in every seed of corn he sows, you live in a world of practical visualization which sees beyond today's horizon. The results of your FORESIGHT the world calls "Luck." And the world has dubbed you a Speculator. So I address you simply and plainly as such.

* * * * * * * *

Transportation is the key to realty values. That is a truism of the greatest importance to the investor in City real estate. He can disregard, throw away, forget all other real estate theory and cling with perfect safety to this one infallable yard-stick.

That statement cannot be made too emphatic. However, I shall not waste any time in proving it; the seasoned real estate investor knows it as well or better than I know it, and even the novice among investors can prove it with 5 minutes' concentrated thought, based upon his own observations in his native Chicago or in any other city with which he is familiar.

* * * * * * * *

NOW, I want to draw a parallel between New York and Chicago as regards the transportation problem. New York is the only city with which Chicago is comparable in this respect. We are gaining 100,000 population a year. Every few years we form a new Cincinnati, a new Milwaukee, a new Kansas City within our borders.

Our transportation problem is a big and growing one. But a simple analysis of the situation points the way unerringly to the realty investor.

Subway transportation in Chicago is many years away. New York thought and talked of subways for many years, just as Chicago has long been doing. When New York got down to actual excavation, it took five years to thoroughly complete her first subway. Within the five years of its construction the city's amazing growth rendered it inadequate. Within the less than 20 intervening years, New York City has built and completed 4 other subway systems, and still her transportation problem is as critical as ever.

Chicago, likewise, will undoubtedly continue to "talk" subways for several years to come; and he is indeed an optimist who imagines any kind of completed subway system (much less a thoroughly adequate one) within less than ten years' time in Chicago.

Meanwhile the city, with LESS THAN HALF the population of New York City, laborously carries her population back and forth, twice a day, over an extended area DOUBLE that of New York City, with but one single possible avenue of immediate relief in sight.

Think of it!—our transportation system already overtaxed and with 100,000 additional daily riders being taken on each new year. And only one tangible means of relieving the strain on our overtaxed street car and elevated and steam lines within the next six to a dozen years.

That relief will come with Illinois Central Suburban Electrification—the biggest thing that has happened to Chicago within a generation; and not a dream of the future, either, but an actual reality which is already well under way and which President Markham recently publicly stated would be completed for passenger traffic before the end of the year 1925.

And mark this!—

Conditions upon the completion of the I. C.'s 60 million dollar electrification project will exactly parallel the history of Real Estate along the route of New York's first subway on Upper Broadway. Property values over the entire territory served by the electrified I. C. will double, treble, quadruple.

None of us can hardly realize what the electrification of the I. C. means to Chicago—its incalculable value to south side real estate. Lesser things have changed the destinies of great cities. But no single thing has happened in this town since World's Fair days which has or can or will do more to definitely influence the trend of future development. A few men already recognize this fact fully. But these sagacious persons are merely a handful. Others will quickly come to realize the truth—but still just a small fraction of Chicago's 3 million population. 2,900,000 Chicagoans will awake eventually—but, alas, too late! Their awakening will come about only and not until the big chance has passed and the sweets have been extracted—the lion's share of the profits taken.

No doubt about it!—the greatest local real estate speculation since 1902-03—the greatest for many years to come—exists today in connection with I. C. electrification. Already by far the best suburban transportation afforded Chicago—think what it will be when electrification makes possible a schedule of four or five hundred trains daily, with a running time of fifteen or twenty minutes from Randolph street to South Shore Country Club.

Turn your eyes in this direction, you investors. Especially concentrate your attention on SHORE DRIVE PARK, the one and only large undeveloped tract along the I. C. right-of-way. The most sensational increases in property values are destined to transpire here. This is no idle boast. It would be folly to misstate the case or to exaggerate it, for I am addressing seasoned real estate investors who know Chicago realty values and conditions as well as I.

But many an investor of limited experience will also read this message. Some explanation of my statement is due such men and women.

* * * * * * * *

SHORE DRIVE PARK lies alongside the most beautiful and exclusive section of the South Shore. It is just 1,200 feet from the lake, four blocks from South Shore Country Club, one block from the Illinois Central Railroad and a convenient walk from Jackson Park.

Here—between 75th Street and 79th Street—this magnificent 80-acre parcel nestles in quiet dignity, untouched by the hand of man through 50 years. In front of it and rubbing elbows with it are many of the south side's finest homes—homes of her most exclusive families. Here is the ideal environment, the perfect location, the most attractive of all south side districts. Here are 80 unspoiled acres—a beautiful golf course—pliantly awaiting re-creation at the hands of man. A splendid city within a city—a home garden in the making.

SHORE DRIVE PARK at present has a service of 112 trains daily on the I. C., with a current running time of 30 minutes to Randolph St.

SHORE DRIVE PARK is served by, not one, but THREE convenient I. C. stations. One is a block away; the other two are four and five blocks distant respectively. No lot in the entire Residence Park is farther than 6 average city blocks from one of these 3 stations.

This excellent transportation service, together with the rare location of the property, makes it especially desirable for apartment sites. The average citizen who can locate in a fine modern apartment, in an exclusive neighborhood, within sight of the lake and directly on I. C. transportation is enjoying just about the best of everything that Chicago has to offer. NOW, THERE IS ONLY ONE AND ONE-HALF MILES OF SOUTH SHORE PROPERTY WHERE THIS TRINITY—THIS COMBINATION OF EXCLUSIVE NEIGHBORHOOD AND LAKE AND ILLINOIS CENTRAL—IS TO BE FOUND, AND THIS MILE AND A HALF STRETCH EXTENDS FROM 71ST STREET TO 79TH STREET, AND SHORE DRIVE PARK OCCUPIES ONE-THIRD OF THIS AREA, AND THE OTHER TWO-THIRDS IS ALREADY ALMOST SOLIDLY BUILT UP. Apartments in this area bring as high as $25 and $30 per room per month, right now. Think what rents in this section will be when the electrification of the I. C. Suburban lines is completed!

* * * * * * * * *

THE Chicago of the future must build skyward, like New York. The 8, 10 and 15 story modern apartment buildings which are so common in New York are even now becoming prevalent here. The electrified I. C. will have a potential carrying capacity of between a half million and a million riders daily. Houses and apartments located on I. C. transportation will be more greatly than ever in demand. Apartment sites so favorably situated as those of SHORE DRIVE PARK will attain fabulous values. What you have seen happen in the Wilson Avenue district, the Rogers Park district, the Hyde Park district, will be duplicated and even exceeded in the vicinity of SHORE DRIVE PARK. For SHORE DRIVE PARK and its immediate neighborhood boast all the natural advantages of the three districts in question, and, in addition, has Illinois Central transportation, with its assurance of speedy future electrification which will put it ten years ahead in the matter of rapid transit.

Therefore, I say there has not been such an exceptional opportunity for realty speculation in Chicago for the past 20 years as there exists today in SHORE DRIVE PARK—especially at the rock-bottom prices at which we are soon to offer it.

* * * * * * * *

ONE other word to the inexperienced investor in real estate. In choosing a site, whether with the intention of yourself improving it with a business or an apartment building, or with the mere intention of holding it, unimproved, for future great appreciation in value—follow the practice of all the large and successful professional builders and investors. That rule is to choose the higher priced site. Not because it is higher priced, but in spite of it. Not because its higher price makes it any better, but because its superior value makes its price what it is.

Remember, it costs no more to erect a $50,000 building on a $10,000 site than it costs to erect it on a $1,000 site. But the difference in rental revenues will be great—so great, in fact, that the $50,000 building on the $10,000 site will yield double the net profit of the $50,000 building on the $1,000 site.

Right now you have your pick of the entire 500 parcels in SHORE DRIVE PARK. We are, at present, holding a "Month of Courtesy" during which those interested in a possible investment in this magnificent new Residence Park have an opportunity to thoroughly investigate and to make tentative selection of parcels IN ADVANCE of the official opening, which is soon to be announced. (We cannot take possession of the property for several weeks, because the Windsor Golf Club has an unexpired lease on the entire 80 acres, and the club members are still using the course for their daily games.)

It costs you nothing to thus register your name. It places you under no obligation. But it does place our full facilities at your command.

Whether you visit the property today or not, be sure to mail us the accompanying coupon, thus properly registering your name.

About Prices!

Every day persons who apply to us for prices on Shore Drive Park express surprise that they are so low.

Thus far we have had little to say about prices, and people naturally infer that prices must necessarily be high on such exceptional property.

The prices, however, are exceedingly low—and this for one very simple reason—we are contenting ourselves with half the customary gross profits of the subdivider. Quick selling at bargain prices cut "overhead," and "overhead," as every business man knows, is the big item of wastage in modern industry. Volume and time are the essence of business success today.

You will find our prices from 25% to 33% less than the present market value of the property.

Motor By!

Drive by today and inspect this charming property from the privacy of your car. Go straight out South Shore Drive to South Shore Country Club. Continue south 4 blocks. You know the property and the location—the Windsor Golf Course. The golfers will be playing their games as usual (their lease on the course still has a few weeks to run), and for this reason we cannot take you over the property, but you can sit in your car and see and size up the property. You can drive around it, and can secure any and all desired information from our attendant on the grounds.

Location!

The charm of Shore Drive Park, due to its wonderful location and its natural beauty and its perfect surroundings, is most convincingly attested by the searching inspection of the eye.

Here, within a stone's throw of the Illinois Central, with its unsurpassed service of 112 fast trains daily to and from Shore Drive Park and Grant Park—

Here, midst the beauty and dignity and quiet of great parks and playgrounds and boulevards and handsome homes—

Here, with Lake Michigan but 1,200 feet away, with splendid bathing beaches, and the exclusive South Shore Country Club at your very elbow—are wonderful apartment sites, fine homesites and choice business sites—all thoroughly restricted for 20 years.

Right now you can secure the pick of these locations.

Immediate action will mean an actual saving in cash to you!

Register!

Clip the below coupon and preserve it. If not convenient to hand it to our attendant at Shore Drive Park, mail it today to any of our three offices.

This simple declaration of your interest in the property, while it does not obligate you in the slightest, entitles you to the very exceptional concessions that will be made by us to the first 500 persons who register their names.

G. O. P. BRIMFUL OF OPTIMISM ON NOVEMBER VOTE

Has No Fear of Congress Results in Midwest.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Republican managers, responsible for the senatorial and congressional campaigns in the central and trans-Mississippi states, on the basis of personal observation and reports from state and district leaders, approach with optimism the election of two weeks from Tuesday.

Republican optimism is substantiated in large measure by what the G. O. P. leaders say is a lack of Democratic hopefulness and the entire absence of a concrete Democratic constructive policy upon which the party might go to the country.

The Republicans are arguing upon the plea that the Harding administration and a Republican congress ought not to be halted at a critical moment in rehabilitating economic policies of government and should be permitted to proceed unhampered in finishing the job that was turned over to them by the landslide that swept the Wilson administration out of power. Democratic nominees in nearly every instance are depending upon local conditions and the personal equation.

RESUME OF SITUATION

The G. O. P. summary of the preelection situation in the western country, with two weeks remaining of the campaign, is as follows:

ILLINOIS.

Conditions are distinctly favorable for the normal Republican downstate majority, carrying with it the election of two congressmen-at-large and the state ticket that includes only state treasurer, superintendent of public instruction and university trustees. The downstate Republican sweep, it is believed, will eliminate any possible Democratic margin in Chicago. Democrats stand to win but one or possibly two of the fifteen downstate congressional districts, now Republican.

Henry T. Rainey in the Twentieth district, as against Congressman Guy L. Shaw, is in the most advantageous Democratic position. Congressman Brooks, Republican, is now believed to have the better chance in the Democratic Twenty-third district.

All other downstate districts are considered by the G. O. P. to be safely Republican, including the Peoria district, where William J. Bryan and William G. McAdoo are campaigning for Jesse Black, Democrat, against William E. Hull, Republican, and where the wet and dry issue has been raised by the drys in behalf of Black.

The three present Democratic congressmen from Cook county—Sabath, Kunz and John W. Rainey—are assured of reëlection, and a Democratic county victory would elect James R. Buckley to congress from the West side, as against Congressman John J. Gorman. Frank M. Padden is figured as a possible victor over Congressman Michaelson.

MICHIGAN.

Reëlection of Senator Townsend is held to be practically certain and the return of a solid Republican delegation to the house in confidently expected by the party chiefs.

WISCONSIN.

Senator LaFollette has no substantial opposition for reëlection, following his 225,000 primary majority, and the election of Republican candidates for the house, is apparently assured.

INDIANA.

Republican managers figure the probable majority for Albert J. Beveridge for the senate at upwards of 40,000. Democratic hope for the election of former Gov. Ralston, as against Beveridge, is based upon alleged Republican disaffection caused by the defeat of Senator New by Beveridge in the primaries. The Republican congressional contests are said, by the Republican state committee, to be in satisfactory shape.

IOWA.

Notwithstanding the open bolt of conspicuous Republicans who oppose Col. Smith W. Brookhart for the senatorship, everything points to the election of Brookhart, for the short term occasioned by the resignation of eral judge. Brookhart is running as a progressive Republican and a potential spokesman for the agricultural interests of Iowa. Republican opposition to him is a result of Col. Brookhart's alleged radicalism.

The Democratic nominee, Clyde Herring, is not parading his democracy but figures to win because of the Republican disaffection from Brookhart. The claim of the immediate Brookhart men is for a 150,000 majority for him. Four congressional districts, the Third, Seventh, Eighth, Eleventh, are fighting ground, and the others are safely Republican. Gov. Kendall and the Republican state ticket will be elected without difficulty, the politicians assert.

MINNESOTA.

Senator Frank B. Kellogg, who was reported to be in danger two weeks ago, is now understood to be in much better position. His troubles do not arise from the candidacy of Mrs. Olesen, the Democratic nominee, but from the activities of the Non-Partisan league, which has a candidate of its own. The Republicans claim a solid congressional delegation.

MISSOURI.

Republicans profess increasing confidence that R. R. Brewster, the party nominee in Missouri is to defeat Senator James A. Reed, in the face of unruffled belief in the Reed camp that he is to be reëlected. Reed has the open wet support and expects to carry St. Louis, Kansas City, and St. Joseph by sufficient majority to offset a probable heavy Brewster majority out in the state.

Brewster is expected to profit materially by the dyed-in-the-wool stay-at-home Democratic vote out in the state that will not vote for a Republican and will not vote for Reed. The Wilson-McAdoo Democrats who kept Reed out of the San Francisco convention are not for Reed, nor are the women, who were barred from the recent Democratic state convention. Eight of the sixteen congressional districts, by conservative estimates, will elect Republican congressmen.

NEBRASKA.

Republicans expect to gain a senatorial victory in Nebraska through the defeat of Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, chairman of the foreign relations committee during the Wilson administration. R. B. Howell of Omaha is indicated as the probable winner, unless Hitchcock can hold together his old wet support in Omaha and Douglas county in sufficient quantity to overbalance a dry and progressive majority for Howell that is indicated in the balance of the state.

William J. Bryan, reutrning to the old Platte river home from Florida, campaigns jointly for Hitchcock and for "Brother Charles," who is the Democratic primary nominee for governor of Nebraska.

RALLY TOMORROW NIGHT

An old fashioned Republican rally—torchlight parade, red fire, and two or three brass bands—is expected to wake up the loop and some of the outlying districts tomorrow night.

Having determined to delay their campaign and to concentrate all their energies on a rapid fire battle during the last two weeks before the election, the Republican organization is all set to make the meeting a record breaker for both enthusiasm and size.

It will be held at the Auditorium theater and United States Senator Medill McCormick will be the principal speaker. A number of local candidates also will talk. And there will be a musical program, including a concert by the Chicago band, from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, and singing by the Swedish Choral society of sixty voices. The advance demand for tickets at the headquarters, Room 315 Hotel Sherman, has been heavy and a rush is expected tomorrow.

EVART BOLINGER SOUGHT.

Evart Bolinger, who left South Bend, Ind., two years ago is being sought in Chicago by police at the request of his sister, Mrs. Victor Mink.

Righeimer Fires Some Hot Questions at His Opponent

Center stage prominence for the Righeimer-Jarecki contest for county judge continued yesterday when both the candidates discussed the other's alliances in stinging terms.

County Judge Frank S. Righeimer issued a statement replying to the charges made the night before by Edmund K. Jarecki, the Democratic nominee, because election board printing has been handled by the "Severinghaus combine," some members of which have been indicted in connection with the school board scandal.

And Jarecki went another step by alleging in a new speech that the Rohm-Lundin insurance company has profited from election board policies and that "Ike" Volz, Lundin's political secretary, has received large sums as an appraiser for the County court under Judge Righeimer's administration.

Righeimer Hits Back.

"I deem it of the greatest importance," read the Righeimer statement, "that the voters of Cook county analyze the significance of the utterances of my opponent and his co-workers when they, by slip of the tongue, declared that they wish to rescue the election machinery from Judge Righeimer.

"For whom do they wish to rescue the election machinery? I will ask my Democratic opponent if it isn't a fact that he and his Democratic friends find it necessary to obtain control of the election machinery in order to stop the prosecution and conviction of the election thieves and ballot crooks that I have been sentencing.

"Mr. Jarecki, my Democratic opponent, is of Polish birth or descent. I now demand that Mr. Jarecki not only tell the people of Cook county but also stand up in the Polish meetings which he attends and tell his Polish countrymen, in their language, why he failed to protest against the theft, in the Fifth precinct of the old Sixteenth ward, of 84 votes from John P. Maciejewski, 82 votes from Frank J. Szymanski, 81 votes from Stanley J. Mankowski, and 55 votes from Paul V. Pallasch, who were all candidates on the Democratic ticket for county commissioners in the last primary.

Asks Some Questions.

"Would it not have been your duty, as a candidate for county judge, when you found that your own people had been robbed of the most sacred heritage that a free man can possess—namely: the right to vote—to come into the County court and demand prosecution of these election thieves? Why were you so conspicuous by your absence?

"I also ask you, Mr. Jarecki, who were your sponsors in the 'Democratic machine' caucuses? Who put you on the 'Democratic machine' ticket? Since when did your godfather and political master, Stanley Kunz, become an angel of civic virtue and reform? Mr. Jarecki, I ask you to speak out and tell the people what promises you made to Stanley Kunz in order to induce him to give you a place on the Democratic slate."

Jarecki Keeps up Attack.

Jarecki spoke at a meeting at West 19th street and Oakley avenue.

"Virtus Rohm has testified before the grand jury," he said, "that Fred Lundin shared in the profits he made on the insurance business of the board of education—that Lundin was a partner in O. W. Huncke & Co., the firm that had a monopoly of that business.

"The records show that the insurance business in connection with the election board's equipment—ballot boxes, polling booths, and similar articles—are handled under Judge Righeimer by the same company.

"Leslie P. Volz, commonly known as 'Ike,' is an inseparable part of the Lundin machine. He is Lundin's confidential secretary in political matters and his messenger in important affairs. And he is one of the ties that still bind the election machinery to the city hall.

"The county judge personally appoints his appraisers in inheritance tax cases. Under Judge Righeimer 'Ike' Volz has had repeated appointments in this capacity."

ARTHUR AVENUE ADDITION —TO—
ROGERS PARK

Located in the most active real estate district in Chicago

PROPERTY is bounded by Western Avenue on the west, Devon Avenue on the south, Robey Street on the east—and the Edgewater Golf Club on the north.

ELECTRIC or steam transportation is available to the loop—and all parts of the city.

THE proposed 108-foot boulevard to the Desplaines River will run right past this property.

THERE is a fine marketing and shopping district within walking distance.

GRADE schools and a high school offer handy educational facilities for children.

THE property is selling subject to improvements—most of them in and paid for.

RIGID building restrictions insure the maintenance of a distinctly high class community.

LOTS are available on very generous terms to responsible parties only.

My personal belief that this property is one of the best investment purchases in Chicago is substantiated by the following specific deals that have been made recently:

1. "A" purchased a lot from me last spring on a time payment basis and has paid in to date—about $700. He sold his contract recently for $1,400—that's 100% profit.
2. "B" purchased a lot from me last spring and sold it in a few weeks at 25% profit; the present owner has received an offer that equals 100% profit on my original price.
3. "C" purchased a Western Avenue corner from me, and after paying in less than $2,500, sold his contract for $5,000—100% profit.

These examples indicate the remarkable activity in this property—and the same opportunity exists for present purchasers, as the remaining lots are still selling at the original prices.

G. O. P.'S RACERS PROMISE REFORM IN COUNTY BOARD

Efficiency and Economy Their Battle Cry.

This is the eighth article of a series discussing the local election campaign, men and issues, upon a nonpartisan basis.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Admittedly the purpose represented by the Democratic ticket for the county board is to gain control of that powerful body. Its hundreds of jobs in the county institutions and the additional hundreds in the forest preserve, together with the power to control appropriations, constitute an immense political asset.

Back of the Republican ticket there is no such purpose. With few exceptions the individual candidates here are independent of organization control and not even the most optimistic Republican organization builder sees any possibility in this list of developing a combination that could be "used" for merely partisan purposes.

Republicans Promise Economy.

A Democratic board this winter almost certainly would function smoothly and without scandal, but the sort of control they promise never has made for either economy or strict efficiency. If the Republicans go in the personnel of the board would promise both these things.

This situation results largely from the manner in which the two tickets were picked. The Democratic proceeded by rule. The Republican ticket was the result of an unusual set of circumstances.

The six sitting Democrats and the other four of the ten running for election within the city were approved as a part of the program of making up—with due consideration for ethnological and ward lines—a slate behind which the party would consolidate. At the last moment a woman was added. As for the five candidates in the country towns, there is normally no chance whatever of their election, but the same rules were followed, with added consideration for the women.

Rivalry for G. O. P. Places.

The Republican ticket is largely a result of rivalry between the Brundage and Deneen groups. In the primary they were to have agreed on a harmony state, but the plan fell through, and yet they are about equally represented on the ticket, with some of the candidates equally representative of both leaders.

In the country towns the Brundage-Deneen slate was beaten and the slate of the "country town kings"—the Weber-Busse-Hoffman group — was nominated. Thus there are three separate interests represented, and no one believes any two of them could be ordered around by any one faction for merely partisan purposes, with no good end in sight.

Democrats Will "Go Along."

There is not a man on the Democratic side that cannot be counted upon to "go along" with headquarters so long as the present situation at the Sherman house continues. They are all "good Democrats" or they wouldn't be on the ticket.

Some of them have been in politics for years and some of them in the past have done things for which they were criticized—such as combining with city hall representatives to control the board—but most of their offenses have been within the territory known in politics as "legitimate." It consists of getting jobs—the Democrats have the forest preserve crowded with employés now—of getting hearings for friends and of getting appropriations for the "right" officials.

On the Other Hand.

On the Republican city ticket there aren't more than three or four who even consider themselves as "politicians." Nearly all are newcomers in the game. The head of this group is a business man brought into the race by leaders who wanted to strengthen their ticket before the best element of the community by putting up a man of his type. The others were selected by influences that sought the best material available.

In fact, this group of ten taken as a whole would carry almost too much of a "reform" odor to be a good tickset from the standpoint of practical politics were it not for the reputations the individuals bear for hard practicality. Most of them are the sort that actually would try to reduce taxes, but they wouldn't do it at the cost of efficiency in county offices or at the cost of humanity in county institutions, and they wouldn't boost humanity to the point of extravagance.

Here Are the Tickets.

The Republican ticket is as follows:

CITY.

Charles S. Peterson
Tom Murray
Borger O. Borgerson
Thomas A. Boyer
Joseph Esposito
C. N. Goodnow

Emily W. Dean

County Superintendent Race.

Similar in some respects to the work of the county board is the administration of the country town schools under the supervision of the county superintendent of schools. The present superintendent, E. J. Tobin, has been in office for twelve years. As an independent he broke the regular organization slate in the primary in 1910 by defeating Samuel Allison, but since that time he has had the indorsement of the regulars. His office has no "political value."

The Republican nominee, Orville T. Bright Jr., owes much of his prominence in the primary to the support of women's organizations. His father, now deceased, was active in the county and city schools for many years. The candidate announces that he will make changes in the administration of the district schools, among them being a regular course of study, which he says is not provided now.

POLITICAL NEWS

"The organization is nonpartisan and finds its inspiration in Mr. Carr's splendid career as a public official," said George Porter Hull, president of the P. J. Carr Business Men's association, which has opened headquarters in the Hotel Sherman. Among the vice presidents are many men prominent in Chicago business.

The Woman's Republican club will be hostess to the Republican candidates at a dinner at the Hamilton club on Oct. 30. Attorney Florence King will make one of the principal addresses.

In a second statement indorsing the board of review candidacy of Ald. U. S. Schwartz, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, a Republican, said: "Every one knows the Thompson organization sent out 50,000 marked ballots for Edward R. Litsinger at the primaries."

James M. Dailey headquarters yesterday announced that their candidate for sheriff had received an unsolicited indorsement from the Twentieth Century Woman's club of Maywood.

A nonpartisan "Padden for Congress Booster club" has been formed by women of the Seventh congressional district, where M. A. Michaelson, a city hall supporter, is seeking reëlection. Miss Margaret Carolan is president and Mrs. Catherine Mathiesen secretary.

William G. McAdoo, who passed through Chicago yesterday, was met at the train by a group of Democrats, including Robert M. Sweitzer and Dixon Williams.

RESTORES PART OF LOOT.

When Jesse B. Steger, 4648 South Michigan avenue, restored $120 of a sum of $150 he admitted stealing from a cigar store, Judge John F. Haas in South Clark street court, upon Steger's promise to restore the remainder stolen, indicated he would parole him for a year.

HIGHBROW CASTE WAR BREAKS OUT IN SPIRIT LAND

All spirits now must have a college education and a union card.

The National Spiritualist association in convention yesterday at the Auditorium hotel so decreed in an amendment to the bylaws. Members of the national organization will not be allowed to associate with "independents." Only persons of demonstrated education will be admitted to membership.

Thus, it was announced, clients will be spared the shock of receiving "messages" from departed college graduates, learned fellows entitled to all the degrees from A. B. C. to X. Y. Z., framed in enough solecisms to make them roll over in their graves.

"Half the so-called spiritualist mediums in Chicago are not and cannot become members of the national organization," said Thomas Grimshaw, pastor of a church in Detroit, and an advocate of the new bylaws. "Maybe ignorant men can talk to educated spirits, but I wouldn't think of going to a medium who was illiterate and without credentials."

WOMAN DRAWS $5 FINE.

A penchant for throwing things cost Mrs. Nora Rausch, 1545 West 71st street, a $5 fine in Judge Emanuel Eller's court in Englewood yesterday. Mrs. May Bostleman, same address, had procured a warrant following an alleged assault by Mrs. Rausch upon Mrs. Bostleman's husband.

BUNDESEN PUTS LID ON SHRILL AUTO SIRENS

Ear splitting automobile sirens are a menace to health, Commissioner of Health Bundesen declared yesterday in issuing a public warning that hereafter their users will be summoned to court.

The commissioner's warning followed a number of complaints of physicians who declared the lives of their patients were being endangered by whistles, horns, and other noisemakers on automobiles. Use of sirens working off the motor exhausts are prohibited by city ordinance, which of late years has been unenforced.

"Owners of cars with sirens banned by the ordinance would do well to get rid of them at once," Dr. Bundesen said. "It is not unlikely that some of the deaths on the streets from heart disease were caused by the sudden and extreme fright and shock caused by these devices."

Bar Karl Marx's Grandson from U. S., Society Urges

New York, Oct. 21.—The American Defense society announced tonight it had lodged a protest with the state department against the admission to this country of Jean Longuet, grandson of Karl Marx, on the ground that he is an active supporter of revolutionary Russia, which, according to the society, is now attempting to overthrow the United States government.

NAVY NONCOMS LOSE HALF INCH OF GOLD BRAID

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—An order was issued today by Rear Admiral Washington, chief of navigation, prescribing minor changes in the navy's uniform regulations.

Among other things, the order deprives chief warrant officers of the full half inch sleeve braid bestowed by Secretary Daniels and orders a return to the broken gold stripe of previous years.

Green and olive drab uniforms for naval aviators are barred, the flying branch being required to dress in the regulation blue.

American Relief Worker in Russia Disappears

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—The most baffling mystery in the history of the American relief in Russia is the disappearance of Philip Shield, 27 years of age, of Richmond, Va., from Simbirsk last Sunday. Mr. Shield left the relief workers' personnel house at 6 o'clock Sunday night and was never again seen. His roommate, James Sommerville, of Varder, Miss., reports that Mr. Shield's work for Monday had been prepared and therefore he scouts the suicide theory. It is feared that he is a victim of robbers, who threw his body into the Volga river.

5 Times—International Experts have Pronounced it the Finest Cleaner

HAVING won five grand prizes in America and the leading capitals of Europe, the Eureka holds more highest awards of international merit than all other cleaners combined. Rapid and thorough cleaning, ease of operation, general convenience based on efficient attachments, excellence of design and quality of construction, were the basis on which the awards were made. In every instance Eureka won.

One demonstration of the new, improved Eureka will convince you of its international supremacy. On carpets, rugs, mattresses, pillows, portieres and all other places where dust and dirt are present, the effect of its unsurpassed suction is instantly apparent. Especially important is the ease with which it can be used beneath low beds, in corners, and close against baseboards. Eureka attachments are the simplest ever designed. Connected in ten seconds, they make every pound of the powerful cleansing suction available everywhere.

Priced with unusual moderation, operating properly without constant care, unequalled in efficiency, simplicity, beauty, and fine construction, the new Eureka is one cleaner you should see before you buy. The dealers listed below are prepared to make free home demonstrations all this week. Telephone the one nearest you. Watch the operation of the cleaner international experts have pronounced the finest.

North American Restaurant —the most talked about dining place in Chicago

The one Chicago dining-place where children are really welcome.

The fact that an average of several thousand Children are brought here every week proves this is a good place to dine. And because our portions are big, the food the youngsters eat adds little, if anything, to the cost of their parents' meal.

If you are one of the many people who still believe that you must pay big prices to get good food, then you haven't tried the North American Restaurant. Two years ago the idea of serving one's self in a high class restaurant was unheard of. No exceptional dining place had ever dared to try it. Then, the North American (one of Chicago's leading Restaurants since it was established in 1891) eliminated "service" in order to reduce prices. Today the North American is without question the most talked of restaurant in Chicago—and enjoys the greatest volume of business ever achieved by any Chicago dining place.

No wonder. For instance, one of our many specialties is a Breast of Milk-fed Chicken, with Bacon and Cream Gravy or Giblet Sauce—as fine a piece of fried chicken as you can get anywhere. Yet our price is only 65 cents. Elsewhere (where the price includes serving it at your table) you'll pay around $1 25 for the same portion. And here fried chicken is actually ready for you any minute (from 11 A. M. until midnight)—you don't wait a half-hour or so while it is being cooked. That's another North American Restaurant feature.

Still another distinguishing mark is the fact that the North American is the only dining place which specializes in sea-food at prices within the reach of all. Lovers of good things to eat have learned that in Chicago the freshest and finest of sea-food is to be had at the North American and at prices surprisingly low. (The North American is under the same ownership and management which operated the famous Rector's of earlier days.)

VOTERS TO HAVE NO VOICE FOR 72 LEGISLATORS

That Many Sure of Seats Under Present System.

In twelve of the nineteen Chicago legislative districts, voters will have no choice as to candidates for the house of representatives at Springfield. Operation of the minority system of representation, required by the constitution, in conjunction with the provisions of the Illinois direct primary law, which permits senatorial district committees to stipulate the number of candidates to be nominated, is responsible for this condition.

It just "happens" that there is precisely a fifty-fifty split between the two major parties on the sure-thing nominees for the house. Eighteen Republicans and eighteen Democrats, of an aggregate of fifty-seven from Cook county, are assured of election as representatives the moment that the polls open on Nov. 7, barring only the outside chance of election of a Socialist or a Farmer-Labor candidate.

Same Condition Downstate.

Twelve downstate districts out of 32 are in precisely the same situation. The dozen districts outside of Cook county will elect 21 Republicans and 15 Democrats without a struggle. The possible exception is the La Salle county district, where it is to be determined whether the independent petition of Ole Benson is sufficient in law to permit his name to be printed on the official ballot. If the Benson petition stands up, there is trouble for the perennial bipartisan combination that has maintained Lee O'Neil Browne in the house for many years.

Contests in Cook County.

The fighting ground in Cook county includes the Evanston district, where three Republicans and one Democrat are on the ballot; the Seventh, where it is a fight between Representative John W. McCarthy and former Representative Jerry O'Rourke for the Democratic place in the country towns; the Englewood district, where there is a straightaway contest between two Republicans and two Democrats; the Twenty-first district, where two Republicans and two Democrats contest; the Twenty-seventh, on the northwest side, where three Democrats and one Republican will split up four seats; the Twenty-ninth or Gold Coast district, where there are two Republicans and two Democrats, and the Thirty-first or Twenty-fifth ward district, where three Republicans and two Democrats are in the going.

Independent Candidacies.

One independent candidate for the state senate and six independent candidates for the house have filed petitions with Secretary of State Emmerson and their names have been certified to their respective districts, while legal proceedings are yet to be determined in the La Salle county district.

Senator John A. Wheeler in the Springfield district, was defeated for renomination in the April primaries by Representative Earl B. Searcy. Senator Wheeler, running frankly as the candidate of Gov. Small and the state administration and commanding the bulk of the state patronage that is now voting at Springfield, is an independent candidate. The Democratic nominee is L. E. Stone.

The direct primaries left the drys without an avowed dry house candidate in the Aurora district. The drys are behind Representative Fred B. Shearer, who was defeated in the primaries. In the Champaign district. the system planted all three House nominations in Champaign county. Paul D. Cooper, "Independent Farmer," from Platt county, is a distinct factor in the race.

Thomas Hughes, "Independent Democrat," is brought out by the drys in the Rock Island county district to defeat Representative W. C. Maucker, classed as a wet. In the Dixon district, where the Small administration hopes to defeat John P. Devine, Democratic floor leader of the last house and bitter antagonist of the Small-Thompson combine, the state house crowd has filed for Arthur G. Harris.

John R. Abbott of Quincy is an Independent Democrat, backed by the organized dry forces, and in the Springfield district, Isidore Levin, who was secretary of the state civil service commission, "fired" by Gov. Small, is an independent house candidate. In the April primaries he was a candidate for the nomination for state senate.

Socialist Candidates.

The Socialist party has a candidate for congress in every district in the state except the Twentieth and Twenty-fourth. There is a Socialist candidate for state senator in all districts except the Fifteenth and Forty-first. The Socialists have a single candidate for the house in each of forty out of the fifty-one districts.

The Farmer-Labor party has nominated candidates for congress in thirteen of the twenty-five districts and for the state senate in nine of the twenty-six districts that elect senators in November. There are Farmer-Labor house candidates in seventeen of the fifty-one districts.

SAYS DAUGHERTY "HOUNDS" HIM TO TRICK CONGRESS

Rosenbluth Declares He's "Goat" of Department.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Charging that Attorney General Daugherty and members of his department have hounded and persecuted him, Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, awaiting extradition here to Tacoma, Wash., where he is charged with the murder of Maj. Alexander Cronkhite at Camp Lewis Sept. 25, 1918, declared today that this was being done in order that Mr. Daugherty can use it as "a proof of his activity and competence when he faces impeachment charges in congress.

"The murder of Maj. Cronkhite has been investigated again and again," Capt. Rosenbluth said. "The investigation of authorities of tht state of Washington was complete and thorough and was so convincing to Prosecutor James W. Selden of Pierce county, Wash., that he issued a complete exoneration of me and a scorching denunciation of the department of justice. He even wrote a leter to the congressman of his district asking that congress investigate the department's action in the case.

"In spite of these investigations and this exoneration, three weeks after Mr. Daugherty took office he began his personal action in the affair which led to my indictment.

Took Action Early.

"At least a dozen grand juries have sat since I first was arrested by department of justice agents, so it cannot be mere coincidence that the case is being revived at this time, when it is certain to be in the courts when congress begins its impeachment proceedings against Mr. Daugherty in December.

"When the department first acted one high official said, "We started it merely as a matter of routine.' In other words, if one has a name like mine and some one suggests throwing him in jail, regardless of facts or rights, in he goes.

Quotes Daugherty Letter.

"How desperate Daugherty must be to order this indictment is best shown by the fact that over his own signature he wrote:

"'Washington, D. C., Aug. 29, 1921.

"'I can assure you that the fact is that the department decided it lacked jurisdiction in this case—that it was not desired in any way the impression should go out that Rosenbluth was guilty, leaving entirely the matter of investigating it further to the state of Washington authorities.

"'H. N. DAUGHERTY,
"'Attorney General.'

"The letter proves beyond a shadow of doubt that Attorney General Daugherty personally knows that the federal government is without jurisdiction and in resorting to this latest action he must, indeed, be compelled by a great necessity, which is fear of impeachment."

CONGRESS MEETS NOV. 20 TO TAKE UP SHIP SUBSIDY

Date for Extra Session Is Announced.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Following a conference with President Harding, Representative Campbell [Kas.], chairman of the house rules committee, announced at the White House today that congress would be convened in extra session Nov. 20.

As chairman of the rules committee, Mr. Campbell has much to do with establishing the order of legislative business in the house, and he said the first matter to be taken up would be ship subsidy legislation.

To Give Nation Holiday.

President Harding recently told Speaker Gillett that he wants to avoid calling the next congress in extra session after March 4. Mr. Harding believes the country would welcome a legislative holiday of nine months next year.

By calling congress in extra session two weeks this fall, President Harding believes the ship subsidy legislation can be well under way if it has not been finally passed in the house by the time the regular session begins Dec. 4.

To Insist on Subsidy.

When President Harding yielded to the desire of his party leaders and did not insist upon consideration of ship subsidy legislation in the last session of congress he let it be known that he would insist on its consideration at an early date.

The feeling is still strong that it will be impossible to get through any subsidy bill because of the pronounced opposition manifested in various sections of the country. Nevertheless the chief executive wants congress to go on record on legislation which he feels must be enacted if America is to maintain a merchant marine.

NO CAR LINE FOR NEW OGDEN AVENUE PROJECT

Michael J. Faherty's expenditure of all the money provided by the taxpayers for the Ogden avenue extension to complete about one-half of the job resulted yesterday in the announcement of the Chicago Surface Lines that, for the present at least, the street will not be equipped with street car lines.

Faherty, who has spent $7,000,000 on the job and recently announced that $7,000,000 more must be forthcoming before the middle section of the improvement across Goose Island is completed, was one of many who argued that the extension would furnish a convenient thoroughfare on which street cars could carry west siders to Lincoln park.

But without the central section of the improvement completed, there would be little reason to put cars on the north and west sections, which will soon be completed, Surface Lines officials say.

Profit by this Architect's Guidance

When Louis D. Bouchard, designer of many prominent buildings in Chicago, built his home in Kenilworth he gave a great deal of thought to the problem of hot water service. He came to the conclusion that if the storage system, such as used in the larger buildings, could be had in the home at a reasonable cost it would be the best thing to use. He investigated the Royal Automatic and found it just the thing he was looking for. As a result Mr. Bouchard had a Royal installed in his home and at no time has he been wanting for hot water.

Mr. Bouchard's letter regarding this instant hot water service will be gladly given to any interested party.

Surely hot water service, which will satisfy an architect of Mr. Bouchard's experience as well as many more architects and others who have had an opportunity to make a close study of water heating methods, ought to fully satisfy you. This same service is available to you in various sized heaters.

In addition to the above statements consider these most important facts: the Royal costs less to buy, less to install and less to operate.

TRIBUNE.

DIAMOND JUBILEE OF THIRD CHURCH WILL END TODAY

Services Bring Together Old Members.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

The diamond jubilee of the Third Presbyterian church, Ogden and Ashland avenues, which began last Sunday, will close today with a communion service led by the pastor, the Rev. S. S. Stevens.

A homecoming banquet Friday evening brought together 500, many of them "old timers." More persons, it was said in the announcement, were seated than at any other dinner given in the history of the church.

Form Friendship Organization.

While Thomas Kane, Thomas E. D. Bradley, the toastmaster, Dr. D. W. Graham, and one of the former pastors, the Rev. Martin D. Hardin, swapped jokes, recited history, and indulged in sentiment concerning the days of auld lang syne, cards were passed and signed, members and friends thus forming an organization "to promote the welfare of the Third Presbyterian church physically and to insure its perpetuation."

"Third church," said Dr. Stevens, "is fitted to be the cathedral of our denominations, the meeting place of the general assembly, and the very center of our general church activities.

"Our auditorium has been pronounced one of the finest in America, our windows are like those in the cathedral of Rheims, but they need care or they will fall into decay."

"We don't propose to depend on Evanston or Oak Park," said C. A. Stone, an elder. "The church is needed here and can be supported here."

The appearance of Mr. Kane, 85, brought the audience to their feet. When he had finished speaking all joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie."

Makes Historical Address.

"When the Third church was organized it was a part of the Ottawa presbytery," said Dr. Graham in his historical address. "At one time it was split on account of slavery, and three elders and forty-two of the sixty-five members withdrew and organized the First Congregational church, now located at Washington and Ashland boulevards.

"One of the pastors, Dr. Arthur Swazey, resigned and became the first editor of the Interior, which later became the Continent."

Mrs. A. G. Beebe gave her experiences of forty four-years ago when the ladies' society had the first all day meeting with lunch. She said the woman's foreign missionary society gave $541 in 1872. The women also in one year gave away 1,495 pieces of work.

Old Members Counted.

One of the features was a violin solo by Frank Winter, who led the orchestra in former days. Members of Sunday school classes running back fifty years stood and were counted. Couples now married who had been enrolled as babies in the first cradle roll were there. The first cradle roll in any church in America was said to have been the one started in Third church.

There have been ten pastors in the seventy-five years and the congregation has worshipped in three church buildings. The first was in Union street near Washington street.

Albert May Ask Special Attorney in Fire Inquiry

Reports that First Assistant State's Attorney Edgar A. Jonas has found no basis for a grand jury investigation of the fire department on complaints of conditions made by Ald. Arthur F. Albert caused the alderman to declare yesterday that in the event the state's attorney's office does not act he will petition Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley to appoint a special state's attorney to make the investigation.

Sergts. Noonan and Trant Top Police Efficiency List

Sergeants John Noonan and Michael Trant are the efficiency champions of the detective bureau for the month of September according to the efficiency list posted yesterday. They headed the list of two-men teams with 268 points. Sergt. Phillip Carroll and his squad, composed of Sergts. Alcock, Dunne, Burke and Conway, led the list of larger squads with 410 points.

CORNHUSKERS, HUNDREDS OF THEM WANTED

Every man in Chicago who is out of work and knows how to pick corn can get a job husking almost any place in the middle west. Fifteen hundred men and wagons with extra bump boards are waiting for an equal number of men in the corn growing sections of Illinois alone.

Approximately a thousand new applications have been sent in by farm bureaus to the Illinois Agricultural association within the last few days, besides 500 already on file at the end of last week. The state farm bureau and the Illinois free employment bureau at 116 North Dearborn street, coöperating with THE TRIBUNE, have been striving for more than a week to relieve the rural labor shortage.

3 CITIES GATHER IN SEVEN ALLEGED CHICAGO THIEVES

With the reported arrest of seven alleged automobile thieves in three different cities yesterday, police hope to recover about fifty stolen machines.

Roger Smith, Albert Anderson, Delmar Sandberg and Ewing Proctor were arrested at Clinton, Ia. C. E. Gibson and V. L. Bohn were captured at Pittsburg, Tenn., and William Zid was arrested at Edwardsville, Ill. The arrests were made on information sent out by Chicago police and the prisoners will be returned to this city.

According to police, these men are members of a gang of automobile thieves who were recently very active in Chicago and are believed to have taken the stolen machine to other cities for disposal.

The Surface Directly above the Fire is the most Efficient

A Weil-McLain Boiler will insure your family's comfort this winter

Home comfort means home health and happiness. The cozy warmth of steady, even heat in every room of the house makes home the pleasant place it should be.

Enjoy complete comfort all this winter—and for many winters to come. Install a Weil-McLain Boiler. It not only assures complete home comfort even on coldest days, but cuts fuel costs, too. The fuel saving features of the Weil-McLain are of particular importance this year when fuel seems so high in price and is sometimes hard to get.

Many years of study by Weil-McLain have resulted in perfecting the two major functions of a boiler. These are: complete burning of fuel; full utilization of heat units.

In Weil-McLain Boilers every pound of fuel is completely burned—made to yield a maximum number of heat units. Waste is practically eliminated.

Due to the perfection of three remarkable features full utilization of heat units is accomplished. These include: the Weil-McLain fuel-saving corrugated "double-surface" crown sheet which gives double heating surface directly above the fire. The simple candle test shows that this is the most valuable surface in any boiler.

All other heating surfaces are also corrugated. This further promotes economy of fuel and heating efficiency.

A long "back and forth" fire travel holds the hot gases in continuous contact with all the fuel-saving surfaces. This final safeguard prevents waste of valuable heat units.

Other notable features which add to the efficiency of Weil-McLain Boilers are: large fire door; handy front clean-out doors for each section; smooth, non-clogging surface of lower one-third of fire pot; triangular grates which cut and shake all ordinary clinkers.

For full value in dollars, service and economy, your logical choice should be a Weil-McLain Boiler. Write us for further details and we will send you, if desired, the name of a competent heating contractor who will serve you.

Coal or Oil?

When you buy a boiler and intend to use coal, coke or similar fuel, complete combustion is dependent on the boiler.

When you burn oil, your oil burning device alone controls the combustion—produces the heat.

In both cases you are dependent on the design of the boiler to utilize the heat produced by the fuel you use.

In Weil-McLain Boilers, whether using coal or oil for fuel, full utilization of the heat produced is accomplished by the double surface crown sheet directly above the fire, other corrugated heating surfaces and the long "back and forth" fire travel.

CHUCK PALMER.

Chuck Palmer, who learned to play football at Englewood High school and has been one of Northwestern's leading athletic assets for the last three years, turned the entire complexion of yesterday's struggle between the Purple and Minnesota by scooping up a fumble behind his own goal and running 101 yards for a touchdown. Henry Penfield kicked the goal and this point enabled the Purple to trot off the field with the score tied at 7 points each.

It was a hard break for the Gophers, who had forced the issue up to this point. It was one of those fumbles which often happen in football games and make heroes over night. It was a striking example of what can be accomplished by the player who follows the ball. This is something which Palmer has always done even in his high school days.

Palmer Closely Pursued.

The run was spectacular. Palmer was closely pursued by Martineau, the fast Minnesota back. As Chuck and the Gopher crossed each five yard line the Minnesota back gained little by little. At about the 20 yard, Martineau lunged for his man, but the smart Palmer had sense enough to ward him off with a stiff arm and then continued the remaining distance for the score.

The run with his consequent score brought up the old point of the flying tackle. If Martineau had left his feet for his man his team would have been penalized only five yards. Such an infringement of the rules would have prevented the touchdown and enabled Minnesota to hold its seven point lead.

Northwestern's showing was all the more remarkable because the team was deprived of the services of Arman Rembe yesterday morning.

Rembe Called Home.

The quarter back received word that his mother is dangerously ill. He left at once for home. Coach Thistlethwaite had been grooming this player for the generalship position all week and his loss practically broke up the offense, which did not work smoothly at any point of the game. It was slow and cumbersome, as was that of Minnesota at times.

Owing to the absence of Rembe, Northwestern's offense was not consistent. Gains were made intermittently, but there were no consistent marches, such as spectators like to see. At time poor judgment was used in the selection of plays, but the kicker was always called upon to boot the oval out of danger when the ball rested close to the Purple goal line.

Gophers Score on Pass.

Up to the time Palmer made his long run in the third period Minnesota played good football. The Gophers were apparently content to work on their margin of seven points scored in the opening period. At the time of the costly fumble by McCreery the Gophers were well inside the Purple 5 yard line, and even McCreery might have crossed the line if he had not lost the ball. He had passed the scrimmage line and there was still one down left to score. The Gophers used the forward pass sparingly, although their score was the direct result of a beautiful play in which the forward pass resulted in the score. The Gophers worked the ball to the Purple 23 yard line. The Northwestern defense stiffened, and then Minnesota started its scoring play.

Ecklund Crosses Line.

The ball was snapped to McCreery, who started to swing off the Purple right tackle. In the meantime Martineau stepped back a few paces and McCreery passed the ball backward to his teammate. After passing the oval McCreery blocked and Martineau shot the ball high and about twenty yards to Ecklund, the left end, who ran the remaining distance for the touchdown. Ecklund added the extra point by a drop kick.

AMERICAN DERBY IS COMING BACK HERE IN SPRING

BY FRENCH LANE.

The American Derby is coming back to Chicago on June 16 next year, according to western racing date awards announced last night. The renewal of the famous turf classic will be for a purse of nearly $100,000, and will be one of the richest stakes decided in America.

Judge Joseph A. Murphy, who has been made steward of the new Washington Park Breeders' association, closed for the June derby date with officials of the Kentucky Jockey club, who award racing dates in this section of the country. It is the plan, according to announcement by Judge Murphy, to run the Derby at new Washington park at Riverdale, the building of which will be started within the next few weeks, the promoters say.

Charter Already Issued.

The Washington Park Breeders' association has been incorporated under the laws of Illinois, and the charter has been issued. The association was granted twenty-one days of racing for next season, starting at the proposed new track here on June 16 and closing July 10.

Plans for the building of new Washington Park were announced at the close of the test meeting conducted at Hawthorne this fall. It was generally believed, however, that the proposition might hang fire until after the Illinois state legislature had a chance to act on a proposed bill legalizing racing [illegible] on a pari-mutuel basis.

To Continue Hawthorne Policy.

The award of dates and plans for an immediate start on the construction of the new racing plant indicate the Washington Park association will not wait for the passing of a race bill, but will conduct the sport on a policy similar to that at Hawthorne this fall.

Short spring and fall meetings will also be held at Hawthorne, it is understood, but no date awards have been made. Many of the Illinois Jockey club members and officials are interested in the new Washington park venture, it is said.

WARNER ILL; GETS NEWS OF PITT'S WIN IN HOSPITAL

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21.—Glen Warner, who has coached University of Pittsburgh football team since 1915, lay in a hospital room here today, receiving returns from Pitt's victorious game at Syracuse. Pitt won, 21—19.

Warner suffered a severe attack of rheumatism several weeks ago. This was complicated by a bad cold and an attack of nerves. He admitted over the telephone that he was in "pretty bad shape." It is the first Pitt game he has missed in seven years.

Penn Beats Swarthmore in Closing Minutes, 14-6

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—Penn's hardest football game this season resulted in a victory over Swarthmore in the last minutes of play, 14 to 6. The sturdy Swarthmore eleven, though outweighed, outplayed and outgeneraled the big U. of P. team for three periods, and led, 6 to 0.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

BASEBALL'S "CZAR."

NOW that the world and city series are over, we wonder whether Judge Landis, high commissioner of baseball, popularly referred to as its "czar," does not sometimes yearn for the dignity and respect of the federal bench—despite the difference in salary between $50,000 and $7,500.

Judge Landis, feared by malefactors large and small in his judicial capacity, welcomed to the ranks of baseball as the very man needed to restore confidence of the public following the White Sox scandal of 1919, believed in by good citizens and fans, was booed and jeered by an irresponsible mob in New York following an umpire's decision.

This incident merely illustrates the difficulties of "czaring," with its consequent criticism, mostly unmerited. It causes us to give thought to Ban Johnson, to whom the title was applied before Judge Landis became commissioner.

Ban Johnson's influence ruled baseball during its twenty years of greatest development. He was fearless in his insistence on what he believed for the best interests of the game. He brooked no opposition. At times his sway was despotic. Baseball needed a despot. Prosperity and popularity of the game are the best answer whether his actions were justified.

We have never known a public or quasi-public official, business executive, or social club officer, fearless in his adherence to rules and principles, who did not make powerful enemies. We respected Johnson for many of the enemies he made.

Now that Judge Landis is enduring criticism and hearing a few snarls, we can wish him no greater achievements than those accomplished by his predecessor, Ban Johnson, who, in our opinion, was the greatest constructive factor in baseball's history.

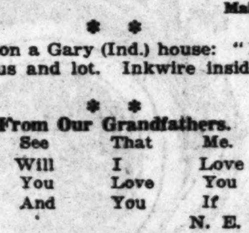
A Sport's Nightmare.

Last night as I conned the sport news,
Aboard the homebound train,
I dozed, and the following flashes
Surged through my troubled brain.

It was in the seventh inning,
The score was eight to eight,



When the full back grabbed his driver
And strolled calmly to the plate.

The ball sailed through the basket,
He was one down at the turn,
Though they left him at the quarter
He romped home with time to burn.

With the stage thus set for action,
Home Run Casey took his cue
And dropped him in the corner
With a perfect follow-through.

Here the crowd became more rabid,
Clamored loudly for a goal,
And he let the third one pass him
And lost at the sixteenth hole.

We are indebted to Helper J. H. for this one:

Friend Wife—"John, who is Mabel?"

John (perplexed and a trifle disturbed)—"Mabel who?"

F. W.—"Well, you talked in your sleep last night and several times mentioned Mabel."

John—"H-mn, that's strange! Mabel? Mabel? Oh, yes, I remember, that's a race horse on which I won a big bet the other day."

If Friend Wife had any suspicions she did not voice them, but a few nights later when Hubby came home she greeted him with:

"John, your race horse phoned you today."

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Ripping and tearing its way through the Centre college line for three touchdowns in the first quarter, Harvard's battling football team today defeated the Praying Colonels of Danville, Ky., 24 to 10, in a great battle in the big bowl.

Centre was unable to stop the rush of Coach Bib Fischer's Crimson in the opening period and from then on were battling only to hold the score down. For hard play and stiff battling the contest was a dandy, both elevens putting up their best efforts from start to finish.

Harvard Reserves Win.

It was Harvard's strong reserves that gave the Crimson the bid edge in the contest. With many runs in the early part of the game, Harvard was able to replace their tired backfield regulars with men of nearly equal caliber and thus could keep up the running attack.

Charley Buell, George Owen and Chapin were the outstanding stars of the Crimson attack. Owen, Gherke and Chapin scored touchdowns for the Crimson while Pfaffman, sub for Buell, kicked a field goal and Buell scored three goals after touchdowns. For Centre, Covington scored all the points putting over the touchdown, kicking the goal after the touchdown and the field goal.

Two hundred and thirty pound Red Roberts, the Centre captain, was a terror to the Crimson until the last minute. He grasped the ball time after time, lowered his head, and hit the line like a tiger. On defense Roberts was a line bulwark at center. That man is a football player, suh, a football player, suh.

50,000 Watch Battle.

More than 50,000 were attracted to the annual gridiron battle. It was to be the last game between these two institutions and was the rubber clash in an intersectional series which began three seasons ago when the Kentucky warriors were overwhelmingly defeated.

Last year Centre evened the count by defeating Bob Fisher's men by the score of 6 to 0, largely through the efforts of Bo McMillan and Red Roberts, who played fullback again today.

Harvard was 1 to 4 favorite when the game started, under a balmy sun which looked as if it had been sneaked here from last July.

HARRY KIPKE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Ohio dedicated its new stadium today, opening with music and flowers before about 75,000 madly enthusiastic fans. The ceremonies closed in the gloaming with a wreath of rue and the ashes of past championships, the Buckeyes losing, 19 to 0, while Michigan avenged the years of defeat.

Ohio had all the enthusiasm excepting that copped in one section of the huge horseshoe, which erupted, spouted, and geysered noise, while Yost's terrifically powerful attack swept away the defenses of the stubborn, hard fighting, but hopelessly outclassed Ohioans.

the victory was achieved at the heavies cost of any conference game played in years. Tonight Roby and Vandervoort lie in hospital, one with a broken leg, the other with a broken arm. Goebel, Michigan leader, is so badly battered and wrenched that he will not be of much importance in the conference this year.

Victors Badly Mauled.

While Michigan outplayed, outgeneraled, and outfought the Ohioans, they were as badly mauled physically as Ohio was in the score. The count of injured is about 14 to 5 in favor of Ohio.

Never before has such a crowd assembled to see a western game. All Ohio poured into Columbus and fought to watch its heroes in action against Yost's machine. There was a premonition of defeat—but Ohio relied upon the luck that has carried it through the last half decade and the inspiration of the tremendous crowd packed in the shorseshoe-shaped stadium.

From the start of the struggle Ohio was practically helpless, unable to gain through Yost's powerful and agile line, and when they resorted to their great forward passing attack Michigan smothered it, and twice the fleet, agile Kipke, intercepted passes and tore through Ohio's scattered field for long gains.

Kipke Hero of Michigan.

If there was a hero it was Kipke, the 155-pound lad, who seemed to sense the direction of every pass, to be there and who, in addition to scoring both touchdowns, kicked one of the prettiest field goals ever seen, dropping the ball over the bar from 34 yards in the final quarter just to make the revenge of Michigan the sweeter.

Michigan played clean, clever football. Yost had framed a perfect defense against the famed Ohio passes and only once during the entire battle did the Buckeyes have any real chance to score. Then, on a decision which was questionable, Ohio got the ball inside Michigan's 20 yard line and for a few minutes the wild crowd had a chance to shout the battle cries of the Buckeyes.

Just Falls Short.

Ohio tore, ripped, and fought its way forward—it seemed a certain score, but a play failed—and on the fourth down Ohio, ten yards from the goal, tried a despairing forward pass. Workman twisted, writhed, and fought his way forward after being tackled, but Michigan stopped him seven inches short of a first down.

Along the side lines the old football heroes of Ohio since 1890 gathered—but, outkicked by a wide margin, stopped in their assaults on the line, balked at every turn in their aerial attack, Ohio could do nothing in attack.

Michigan started the scoring in the first period, Goebel kicking goal from placement on the thirty yard line. The Wolverines counted again in the second period when a double pass drew the entire Ohio team out of position and Kipke broke clear around left end for a touchdown. Goebel kicked the goal. Kipke intercepted a pass in the third period and dashed through the Ohio line 42 yards for another touchdown. Goebel missed the try for goal. Kipke made the final counter when with a minute to play he dropped back to the 30 yard line and kicked a perfect field goal.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions which are accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send in your name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." No questions will be returned. William A. Morten, 1025 West Bridge street, Grand Rapids, Mich., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you believe that having a commissioner for the Western conference will put college athletics on a higher plane?

Where Asked.

At the Central Y. M. C. A.

The Answers.

M E Reitzal, 216 East Ontario street, art student—That ought to raise the standard of college athletics, and it will. Maj. John L. Griffith is well thought of in athletic circles, and I believe everybody will get a square deal and no partiality shown.

S. C. Frederick, 1 West Walton street, mechanic—Naturally I would answer in the affirmative. A man of Maj. Griffith's standing will give a tone to everything he undertakes. Followers of clean athletics have confidence in men of his type.

William Vorpahl, Blue Island, Ill., inspector, Edison company—"I believe it was a frame-up"—that's the common expression. That's because the public hasn't confidence in professional athletics Professional athletics hasn't confidence in itself. An acting commissioner should restore confidence within the amateur profession.

S. R. Leay, 6 North Clark street, bond salesman—Yes, but I wish it were Kenesaw Mountain Landis. At present there is a gentleman's agreement between the colleges, and if one college takes advantage of another ringing in professional athletes or offering inducements to professional athletes, then when a college or another school protests there is ill-feeling between the two schools. With a commissioner in charge, the offense would be avoided, also the ill-feeling.

Tom E. Wintersteen, 5437 Maryland avenue, student—I believe the appointment of Maj. Griffith as commissioner was a good move. He should be able to materially help the colleges to abolish the present evils associated with athletics.

BRISTOL, Va.-Tenn., Oct. 21.—A high mark for football scoring was registered here today when King college defeated Lenoir, 206 to 0. The score might have been higher, but the King college backs became exhausted from sprinting.

RUNE CLARK.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The fighting Illini came back today, true to Illini tradition. Bob Zuppke's youngsters rose from the defeat a week ago and played the haughty Hawkeyes, fresh from shutting out old Yale, to a standstill.

True, Howard Jones' veteran left Illinois field and its frenzied 23,000 rooters victors, 8 to 7. But there was no mourning in the camp of the Illini, and cannon boomed out just as if the colors of orange and blue had flashed to victory.

It is trite to use the word "miracle man" these days, but if ever a coach deserved that title, it is little Bob.

Illinois Line Holds.

Within a week after the defeat by little Butler, the dynamic coach placed a team in the field that was able to cope on even terms with the confident Hawkeyes, to mould a line that with few exceptions held the onslaughts of Capt. Locke and the fleet Parkin.

The scales tilted this way, then that, before victory finally elected to perch upon the banners of the invaders. The big break in the battle as it was finally determined occurred in the fourth period. Iowa had finally roused itself in the third period, and by two brilliant passes and a run by Locke behind great interference, crossed the Orange and Blue goal. But Shuttleworth missed the try for goal and the Illini partisians exulted and saw visions of victory by a solitary point in case of a touchdown.

Then, early in the final period, Bill Augur, who had played sterling football at tackle, dropped back to punt, replacing Rune Clark, as the young Illinois pilot had been withdrawn after a most commendable performance marked by few lapses.

Punt is Blocked.

Illinois had the ball into play on its 20 yard line after Minnick had punted over the Illini goal. Engeldinger broke through and blocked the punt, and the huge Hawkeye tackle and Augur raced goalward for the ball which rolled over the line. Augur won the race, and retrieved the pigskin, but the officials ruled a safety for the champions.

George Dawson took over the helm at quarter back from Coutchie, who had relieved Clark, and opened up a passing game. Capt. Wilson nabbed two passes, and some more open work stuff succeeded. Finally McIlwain nabbed a throw and was stopped only on the Hawkeye 10 yard line, which he scored on two plays. Dawson place kicked the additional point.

Illinois then lacked a point to match the Iowa team and any kind of a score would win. McIlwain sprinted with the ball from the kickoff, but here came a bad break. The Illini were guilty of holding, and a 15 yard penalty resulted. The Hawkeyes stemmed a forward passing attack. Capt. Locke staged a pretty end run and then Referee Magidsohn blew his whistle to end the game.

Rune Clark Stars.

Rune Clark, brother of the great Potsy, demonstrated that he is worthy of the family escutcheon. He outshone, if anything, Iowa's new quarter back star, Parkin, on returning punts. In the first period he returned a punt so well he soon was able to try a drop kick. In the second period Clark was trying another drop when he fumbled the ball and gave Iowa an advantage, which they were unable to develop.

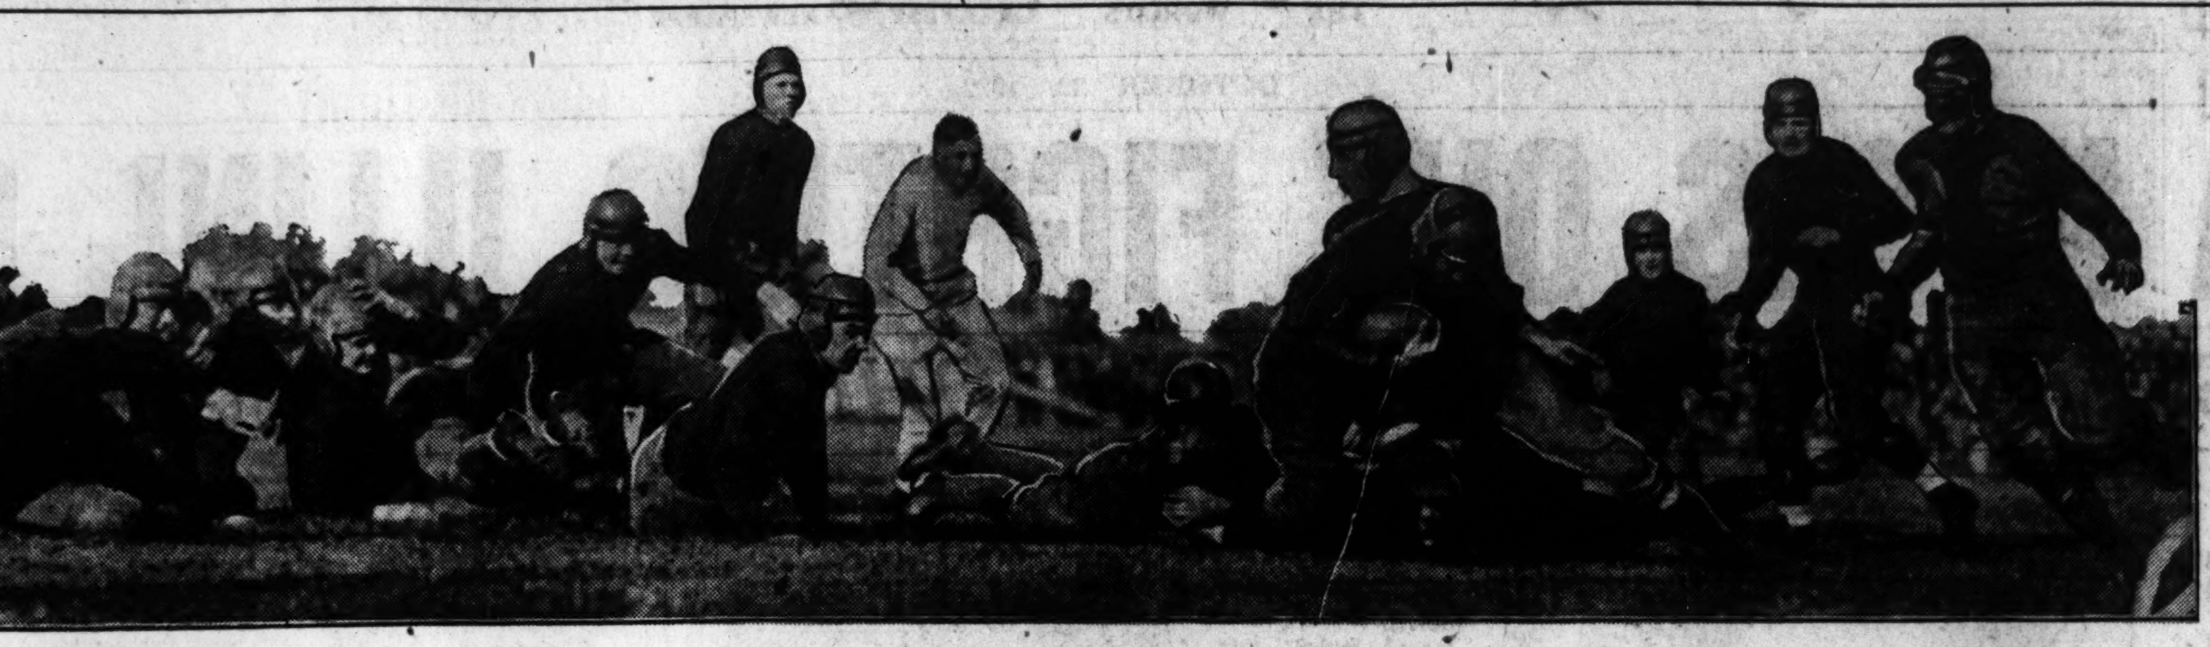
In the third period the power of the Hawkeyes began to tell, although Zuppke plays were more varied and fooling than Howard Jones' strategems. A double pass proved a fooler when Happenny ran to the Hawkeye 25 yard line, only to fumble again and lose a golden opportunity. Iowa rapidly availed itself of the chance. A pass to Kadesky put the ball deep into Illinois territory. Another pass to Miller put the oval on the Orange and Blue 18 yard zone.

Locke Scores on End Run.

The Hawkeyes gave the ball to Capt. Locke, who ran all the way across the width of the field on a sweeping end run behind beautiful interference, and scored a touchdown in the corner of the gridiron.

The game was the climax of the annual homecoming.

HOW GOPHERS CONSISTENTLY GAINED AGAINST PURPLE



In yesterday's football game between Minnesota and Northwestern, which resulted in a 7 to 7 tie, a number of the Gophers' formations were executed from behind unbalanced lines, with the ball carrier sent back on the weak side. In the above picture Full Back Mitchell is seen carrying the oval for a substantial gain after driving back on the weak side from an unbalanced line formation. Minnesota made consistent gains on the play.

FERDINAND WELLMAN.

The Maroons plunged, booted, crawled, and tossed their way to another Big Ten conference victory yesterday, scoring 12 points over Purdue at Stagg field, the visitors only once endangering the Chicago goal.

The aggressive and defensive work of both teams was fitful and inconsistent, though the Maroons demonstrated a much superior offensive, while their forward wall held firm against the rather inexperienced back field of Purdue.

Coach Stagg startled followers of Midway grid activities by running in a more or less new line to open the struggle. Law, at full back, was a complete newcomer in the ken of most of the fans, but before the end of the first quarter he was well known to them, indeed.

Star of the Game.

His plunging in offensive plays and his skill as a defensive back made him a luminary in the game. It was he who used most effectively in the line plays which preceded the first major counter of the game, and it was he who planted the ball behind the goal posts not long after the opening of the initial period.

Rohrke and Pondelik opened at guards, playing stellar football at times. Burgess started at quarter back, his place subsequently being taken by McMasters, Heile, and Stagg Jr., Schultz being the only possibility on the Old Man's string who was not used. Dawson, substitute center, played in the opening sessions while King occupied the bench.

Back Field Men Shine.

Chicago back field men were the most notable performers, though Wellman, Eversman, and Praut of the Old Gold squad made notable achievements in the way of end runs and especially in their tossing attack, which netted big gains for the visitors several times. H. Thomas played a great game at half.

Leggette, Caruso, and Pyott, too, showed up well at half, Heile being a fast and aggressive quarter during those plays which he directed. Bill Zorn, who succeeded Atwood at full during the second half, duplicated his plunging skill of the previous two games, using the powerful bucks that have made of him one of the leading Maroon luminaries. But in spite of the performance of the Chicago backs Purdue defended its goal posts so well that the final score was held considerably below that anticipated.

All Scores in Early Period.

In spite of the fact that the Maroon regulars were not put into the contest until the latter stages of the first half and at the first of the second, all the Chicago tallies were scored in the first two periods.

Chicago won the kickoff, booting the ball to Purdue's 25 yard line. Purdue made good use of end run plays, Tykle making first down on the first play, the succeeding three downs resulting in another first down, while a pass from Wellman to Eversman netted 9 yards. Wellman's plunge made it another first down.

H. Thomas intercepted a pass from Wellman on Chicago's 30 yard line then, ending the brilliant spasm which for the nonce shook the assurance of the Maroon rooters. From midfield Strohmeier was called upon to boot a punt, his teammates having failed to make first down after receiving Purdue's punt.

Law Scores Touchdown.

McMasters recovered the punt, planting the oval on Purdue's 15 yard line. Law made first down, then plunged for four yards more, on the third down shoving the pigskin through for a major counter. Caruso kicked goal. The quarter ended after an exchange of punts, the score 7 to 0 in Chicago's favor.

There was another exchange of punts which ended after Lampe recovered Strohmeier's punt and Byler had carried the ball eight yards to Pudue's 20 yard line. Caruso dropped back five yards, booting the ball between the posts for three additional points. Score: Chicago, 10; Purdue, 0.

Rollie Atwood replaced Law. King kicked off for Chicago and the ball was returned to Purdue's 20 yard line, but when the Boilermakers failed to make first down, Maddox punted. Strohmeier returned the kick, the ball going out of bounds on Purdue's 10 yard line.

Maddox Downed for Safety.

Maddox missed a bad pass from center after he had dropped back over his own goal line for a punt and fell on the ball there for a safety, scoring two more points for the Maroons. Score: Chicago, 12; Purdue, 0.

That was the end of the scoring, but not of the trying. At the end of the half, when Strohmeier punted after Chicago had failed to make first down, Rohrke broke through the Old Gold offensive, recovering the ball. This was the third such performance during the game, McMasters and Lampe having been responsible for the other two.

Purdue's only threatening sally came in the third period, when, after Wellman had brilliantly intercepted Zorn's pass, Wellman and Praut completed a pass which put the ball on Chicago's 15 yard line. Wellman plunged for two yards, then Holwerda dropped back to the 20 yard line, from where he vainly tried to boot a drop kick from the field.

Passes Gain for Purdue.

The Boilermakers' passing game made its biggest gain in the same quarter, when Preshaw caught a pass from Wellman, making a clean 40 yards. Eversman lost six yards on an attempted end run and Purdue was forced to punt.

Shortly after the opening of the final period Chicago, using Pyott and H. Thomas, rushed the ball up to Purdue's fifteen yard line, from where Heile tried to drop kick goal. He failed. The remainder of the period provides no thrills for the crowd of 15,000.

Play Is Inconsistent.

The game was not especially well played by either the Maroons or the Boilermakers. There were costly fumbles, made not only by less experienced men but by stellar players as well, which looked bad. Yet there were several spectacular successes, notably Heile's run for thirty yards after receiving a punt, Wellman's pass to Preshaw, and the end run tactics of the visitors.

West secured ten tricks only.

The bid of one heart was wholly bad. When holding no tricks in the outside suits a player is never justified in bidding a suit which is not headed either by ace, king, or ace, queen, jack.

Any bid, except a pass, indicates help for a possible no trump bid by the partner, and this would not be true of a suit in which the ace is missing, if there were no outside tricks. East did not bid the diamond suit as strongly as he might have done, on account of having superb support for his partner's heart bid.

From the standpoint of east, there seemed no possibility of the opponents making but two tricks in the black suits. It also looked very much the same way to north after he had won the first trick with the king of spades. If the declarer could make the long diamond suit, eleven tricks would be easy. North saw one possibility—by forcing one trump from dummy and finding no diamonds whatever in the west hand.

There was considerable reason for this assumption by north, as west had continued to bid hearts without any great strength in that suit and after east had shown very great strength in the diamond suit. It was necessary first to make the ace of clubs, as otherwise west might be able to make his contract by cross ruffing.

West was helpless after the third trick and did all that he possibly could by securing ten tricks in the deal.

TITLE MATCHES OPEN GREAT CUE SEASON

All indications point to the opening this week of the most interesting season in billiards. The season opens with the match for the national championship at pocket billiards, to be followed by matches between the three cushion experts under the new governing system. After the three cushion events will come the International balkline tournament in New York early in November.

The match for the national championship at pocket billiards will be between Ralf Greenleaf, of Monmouth, Ill., present champion and Benny Allen of Kansas City in Philadelphia Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The New Hudson Recreation company in Philadelphia, which has just opened its doors, will stage this match, has guaranteed the winner a prize of $2,500. Sixty per cent of the gate receipts also will go to the successful player, who will in addition be given the Brunswick championship diamond medal. These prizes make the competition the richest recorded.

Greenleaf and Allen will play 450 points, 150 points a night. Wise men of the billiard game are predicting victory for Greenleaf, who won the national pocket billiard championship from Frank Taberski in 1919 and has held it ever since.

CROWDS SMASH TURNSTILES TO SEE OHIO GAME

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—Though Ohio State university's new stadium was constructed to seat 63,000 persons, 72,500 were inside the immense horseshoe today, R. M. Royer, treasurer of the university athletic association, announced tonight. The exact number will never be known, as at some of the entrance gates the crowds became impatient, rushed the ticket takers, tore out the turnstiles, and made for their seats. Several hundred also gained admission by breaking through the police lines at the open end of the horseshow.

New Class A Indiana and Ohio League Being Formed

What was supposed to be a deep secret came to the surface during the world's series. It concerns the organization of a Class A league in Ohio and Indiana. Cities suggested are Fort Wayne, South Bend, Dayton, Akron, Springfield, Canton. Youngstown and so on. Arrangements have been made, it is said, for strong financial backing and experienced management in each city. Jack Egan, veteran umpire and minor league manager, is one of the moving spirits.

John McGraw's 20 Years in New York Successful

Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants, during his 20 years as leader of the New York Nationals brought three world's championships to Gotham. He had led the Giants to 8 pennants. Only 4 times in twenty seasons has his team finished below second place. In 1915 it finished last.

Major League Stars Play 21 Games Touring Orient

The major league baseball stars will play twenty-one games in fourteen weeks in their tour of Tokio, Osaka, and Kobe, Japan; Corea, Manchuria, China, Philippines, and Hawaii. They will said from Vancouver in time to reach Yokohama Oct. 31, and will return in February.

HOLDERS OF "SCALPED" TICKETS ARE BARRED FROM MAROON GAME

MORE than sixty holders of ticketc bearing the stamp of a tickets bearing the stamp of a tickmission to the Maroon-Purdue battle yesterday. The tickets were taken up by the gateman, being checked up in the University of Chicago football ticket office, where the names of the original purchasers were filed. These purchasers, some of whom are season ticket holders, will be refused admission to future games at the Midway, according to Adolf Pierrot, chairman of the ticket committee.

The Chicago and Princeton authorities have organized flying squadrons who will be engaged this week in picking up scalpers who are disposing of tickets to Saturday's Princeton game.

Federal authorities yesterday arrested several scalpers. It is asserted that anyone who sells tickets, whether for more or less than the original purchase price, is subject to arrest. Tickets which are not needed by purchasers after they have been procured, may be turned in at the ticket office, 945 East Fifty-eighth street, and the money will be refunded. Such returns must be made by Saturday at noon.

Indiana Falters at Close of Game; Badgers Win, 20-0

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—After being held at bay for the first half, Wisconsin reared up with a crushing line attack and aerial offense that trampled Indiana under foot, 20 to 0, here today, in the first game between the schools in twelve years. Twice in the first period the Badgers were within 10 feet of the Indiana goal, only to have the defenders stiffen and check the onslaught.

With the start of the second half Wisconsin unleashed some beautiful passes, with Barr throwing and Irish generally at the receiving end. Thus the ball was worked well into opposing territory, and Williams went over on a trick play for the first score of the contest.

Hoosier Line Weakens.

With the ice broken, a Badger broke through the line in the first play of the final quarter, blocking Hanny's attempted punt. Tobell scooped the ball up and found clear ground for the Badger's second touchdown. With the Hoosier line battered from the constant hammering, Wisconsin punched and smashed holes through it on a straight march down the field, and Taft ripped through center from the 10 yard line for the final score late in the fourth period. Tebell booted two points between the bar in his three tries after touchdowns.

The locals showed a pretty overhead game with Barr and Irish as the leading performers, and the success attending it did much to dishearten Indiana.

Backfield Is Strong.

Williams, Gibson and Taft in the backfield showed up well, the latter battering the Indiana line for consistent advances. The Badger line, though weak in spots, tightened in the pinches.

Tebell, Murry and Hohfeld's defensive work was outstanding, the trio smearing plays in their inception and breaking through to nail runners behind the line. Capt. Hanny was the particular star for the Hoosiers, making most of their gains, doing practically all their punting and proving a tower of defense.

CHICAGO POLO TEAMS DEPART FOR PLAY IN SOUTHERN TOURNEY

Three Chicago polo teams, the Grasmere Farm, Midwest champions, Onwentsia, and the Indians from Lake Forest, departed last night for Grenada, Miss., where the Mississippi championship polo tournament will start tomorrow and last through the week. The Chicago teams will meet the strong Glenwild team, present champion of Mississippi and probably the strongest team now in the south. This team is headed by John Borden and has been playing in the north all summer. It carries the highest handicap in the tournament.

The tournament marks the introduction of the game into the central south. Commander Borden's big Glenwild plantation, which will be the polo headquarters of the central south during the winter months, is one of the most famous stock farms in the country.

The horses of the Chicago teams were shipped to this plantation a week ago, about eighty horses being in the train. Among the players on the three teams are:

Earle H. Reynolds, Andrew King, Eugene Byfield, Frank Bering, Frank Hayes, James Breese, Prentiss Coonley, Charles Campbell, William Mitchell Blair, Capt. Rodes, and G. H Seaverns Jr.

PRINCETON ROMPS OVER MARYLAND WITH EASE, 26-0

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The Princeton romped over University of Maryland this afternoon, 26 to 0. The Tigers completely outplayed the visitors in every department of the game, gaining consistently through the line and around ends, outrushing them 14 first downs to 1 and keeping the ball in the visitors' territory for the greater part of the game.

The performance brought joy to the hearts of the followers of old Nassau, who now feel more hopeful of the important game with Alonzo Stagg's Maroon warriors in Chicago next Saturday.

Dinsmore Makes Good.

The team was piloted better than previously by Bob Dinsmore, who played his first varsity game. He and Gorman alternated at this position and handed out a nice assortment of plays. Another find seems to be Bob Beattie, a half back, who substituted and tore off consistent gains.

NAVY WINS FROM GEORGIA TECH ON PASSES, 13 TO 0

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21.—The Annapolis Midshipmen caught Georgia Tech completely by surprise today, defeating them, 13 to 0, with a fast offensive replete with a series of bewildering forward passes. The Middies scored a touchdown in each of the first two periods, but the final half developed into a battle royal. The mighty Red Barron, Tech's leader, only twice managed to get away for substantial gains.

Navy got the ball into position for the first score when McWhorter, Tech, punted outside on his own 25 yard mark. From that point line plunges and the successful pass to Taylor brought the ball within 3 yards of the coveted mark. Barchet shot across for the touchdown, and also kicked goal.

In the second period another touchdown resulted from a beautiful forward pass of 20 yards between McKee and Taylor. Barchet failed to kick goal from placement. Tech at one time threatened to invade the Navy goal line, but Navy held. Tech's "jump shift" time and again was smeared for losses.

The splendid kicking of Brewster, substituted for McWhorter, was a big factor in protecting Tech's territory.

In the fourth period Barron, for Tech, tried a forward pass which was intercepted by McKee, who ran 35 yards to Tech's 15 yard line. The ball went over to Tech on their 20 yard line, but the Georgians were unable to make any headway.

BELOIT AND LAWRENCE BATTLE TO 0 TO 0 TIE

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Beloit and Lawrence colleges battle to a scoreless tie here in the most brilliant game of Beloit history. The heavy, slashing Lawrence line placed Beloit on the defensive most of the way, but inside the danger lines Beloit showed fight that had the upstaters looking sad.

Two breaks in the last four minutes of play robbed each team of a chance to win. Beloit got the ball in the center of the field with four minutes to play and two beautiful passes carried the ball to Lawrence's seven yard line. With the first chance of the game to score, Beloit fumbled on the first down and Lawrence recovered, kicking out of danger.

Beloit tried another passing attack, but a short pass over center was intercepted by Barry of Lawrence, who raced to Beloit's 21 yard line. Two plays lost Lawrence 13 yards and Doring dropped back for a drop kick on the 43 yard line. His boot bounced off the goal post just as the final whistle blew. Lineup:

Driscoll booted the ball over for Vermont in the second period and Gooch repeated in the last. Neidlinger scored for the Green from the 38 yard line with a well placed kick. Dartmouth was in position to rush the ball over in the last minutes, but the Vermonters were adamant.

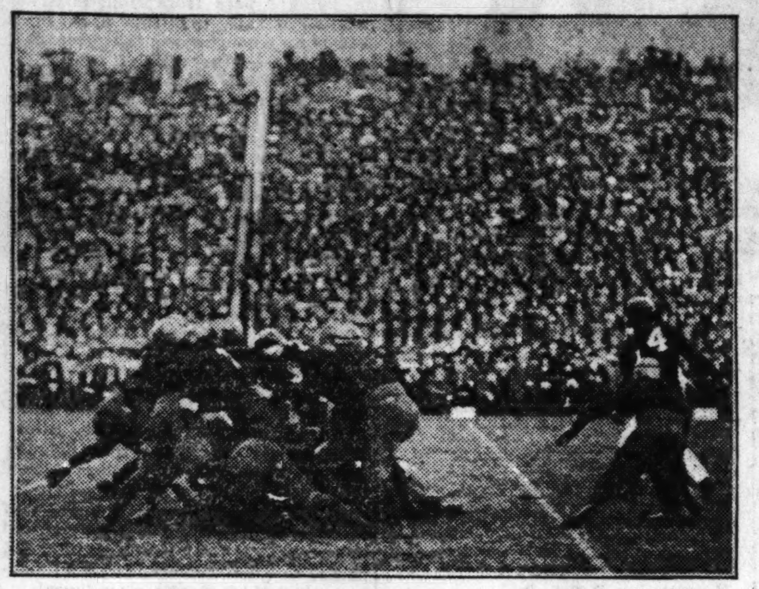
MONMOUTH PREPS WIN, 7-6.

Monmouth, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Failure to kick goal lost Quincy preps a tie with Monmouth High school today, the locals winning, 7 to 6.



Here is once that the Old Gold and Black line held against the attack of the Maroons in yesterday's game at Stagg field. Harry Thomas has the ball and has just attempted to plow his way through left guard. Strohmeier (No. 4) is just coming up from a rear position, where he faked a punt.

Football Anecdotes as told by Walter Eckersall

ARTICLE 10.

AMOS ALONZO STAGG, fresh from his triumphs at Yale, where he gained fame as a baseball pitcher and end on the football team, took up his duties at the University of Chicago as director of athletics and football coach in 1892. In those days coaches were permitted to play on the college teams and naturally Stagg was a member of the first Maroon eleven.

George Huff, present director of athletics at the University of Illinois, is another coach who played in his early days. Huff was a linesman, while Stagg continued to play his old position at end, although he shifted to the back field occasionally, to carry the oval.

Opponents Were Scarce.

Opponents were not so plentiful as they are now. At least two games were played with each team nearly every year. On several occasions one eleven would win the first struggle and the loser would be victorious in the second.

Few of the present day fans are familiar with the rules which governed the play then. One of the rules taken advantage of continually was the one pertaining to first down. It was necessary to make five yards in three downs by almost any method. The flying wedge, turtle back, mass on tackle, hurdling and other bone crushing plays could be used to make the yardage.

In the event a team did not care to surrender the ball, and was not sure of making first down on the third play, it had the privilege of losing twenty yards and the next down to be counted first down. In other words, a team could tell the referee they would take a loss of twenty yards for first down. This was a common occurrence and especially true when one eleven was playing for time.

Lake Forest Beats Maroons.

In 1892 Lake Forest was represented by a great team. Herbert P. Moore, the present president of the institution, was a member of the eleven, while David H. Jackson and Andy Jackson were the half backs. Fred Hayner, Chicago sports writer, was quarter back, while the remainder of the team was composed of players who knew the game.

Two games were played with Chicago, which was captained by A. A. Stagg. Strange as it may seem, Lake Forest won one of the combats while the other was interfered with by darkness to such an extent a winner could not be determined.

President Moore of Lake Forest recalls these games vividly, and they are among his many cherished athletic triumphs. He asserted Stagg was a mighty warrior and a marked man in every game he played.

THREE EASTERN SEEK GAME WITH CENTRE COLLEGE

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21.—Centre college will not be invited to meet Harvard next year, but the Colonels, who have gained an enormous following here, have been invited by three New England colleges to play on a Boston gridiron next fall. Boston college, Dartmouth and Brown have asked to meet the Kentuckians. Harvard authorities have informed Coach Charley Moran they will be glad to welcome the blue grass stars back to Harvard in two or three years, but that the policy adopted by university officials of not booking the same team more than two or three successive years will have to be carried out.

Lake Forest Academy Takes Close Game from Marquette

Lake Forest academy won a bare 6-0 victory over Marquette academy on the winner's field. Three times after Powers had made long gains, Lake Forest lacked the drive to score. Then, with but five minutes to play, Coach Jones sent in Fullback Lipe, who has been out with injuries and Lipe hauled the ball over on fourth down. Black failed to kick goal. Marquette's offense was superior, and made several long drives down the field. Lineup:

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Washington and Lee pulled a surprise on West Virginia here this afternoon, when they played the mountaineers to a tense 12-12 tie. An aerial attack in the last two quarters against which West Virginia seemed powerless, resulted in two touchdowns for the generals.

NEBRASKA TRIMS MISSOURI, 48-0, IN VALLEY GAME

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 21.—Before a record breaking crowd this afternoon Nebraska won its first game of the Missouri Valley conference, humbling Missouri 48 to 0. The game was featured by brilliant forward passes, Hartley to Dewitz and Hartley to Schoeppel, in the first quarter, a run of 39 yards for touchdown by Lewellwyn in the second quarter, and line plunges for good gains, generally by Capt. Hartley of the Cornhuskers.

Five of Nebraska's touchdowns were made in the first half. In the second half, the Missouri line stiffened so effectively that Nebraska was unable to score in the early portion, but came back strong in the last period with line plunges and passes that brought two more touchdowns.

DIXON, 6; STERLING, 6.

Dixon, Ill., Oct 21.—The Dixon High school football team tied its old rival, Sterling High, here today, 6 to 6, in a hard fought fray.

BEARS AND OLD BUFFALO RIVALS HOOK UP TODAY

Two leaders in the National Football league race, Buffalo's All Americans and the Chicago Bears, meet at 2:15 today at Cub park, and unless they play to a standstill, one will drop back in the standing. These two rivals fought it out last year for the title, splitting even in their two meetings.

TOMMY HUGHITT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

With both possessing powerful lines, the game is almost certain to resolve itself into an open event. Buffalo has a superb forward passer in Capt. Tommy Hughitt, formerly quarter at Michigan. Walquist, former Illinois star, excels in this department for the Bears.

Both Strong on Ends.

Luke Urban of Boston college, and Bull Lowe of Fordham, the all-Americans' ends, are reliable receivers of passes, and the Bears have a great pair in Pete Stinchcomb of Ohio State and George Halas of Illinois.

Both Bolan of the Bears, and Laird of the All-Americans, are the smashing type of full back and are noted for their defensive work. Laird captained Colgate in 1919 while Bolan was a Purdue star.

From tackle to tackle the squads are well bulwarked. Youngstrom of Dartmouth, Blacklock of Michigan Aggies, and Scott of Wisconsin, all of whom will play, are All-American selections.

Play Rain or Shine.

The whole playing field at Cub park is now sodded, and sure footing on grass is assured, even if it should rain. Manager Halas of the Bears says the game will be staged rain or shine. The teams will line up as follows:

CHICAGO BEARS.	ALL AMERICANS.
R. E. Halas	Lowe L. E.
R. T. Blacklock	Thomas L. T.

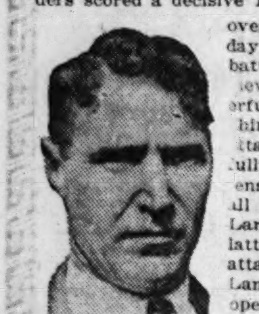
CRANE HUMBLES LANE HIGH WITH VARIED PLAY, 18-0



O. T. REILLEY.

Coach Oliver Reilley's Crane gridders scored a decisive 18 to 0 victory over Lane yesterday in the annual battle of the Tech elevens. The powerful Crane machine used varied attacks successfully, while its defense withstood all attempts of Lane backs in the latter's straight attack, and the Lane tries at the open game were also smothered.

On only one occasion did Lane have a chance to score. That was in the third quarter, when they approached to the Crane 10 yard line, only to fumble and lose the ball. Cox of Crane furnished the day's most spectacular play, a 70 yard run for a touchdown on a fake punt formation.

Stars for Crane were Cox, Heimendinger, and Robertson. Wudie and Woodward featured for Lane. Lineup:

JACK DUNN WAS AFTER JAY KIRKE

Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles is said to have desired the services of Jay Kirke of Louisville to succeed Jack Bentley, and he was disappointed when he learned Kirke had been traded by Louisville to Indianapolis. It is all settled that Bentley will be sold to the New York Giants, though the opinion still is expressed that the New York club buys him for transfer to Cincinnati.

MARSHALL GRID TEAM DOWNS PARKER, 13-6

In a game which probably will decide with which team the title of class B will rest, Marshall gridders downed Parker at Justine park, 13 to 6, yesterday. Mainly due to the stellar defensive play of Simon, center, and the offensive work of Greenwald and Merriman, the winners outplayed the losing eleven more than the score indicates.

It took two quarters before the rooters of the respective schools were given anything to holler about. At the start of the second half Marshall plowed through for two touchdowns, Merriman adding the extra points after touchdowns. In the last quarter Parker employed open plays and scored, led by the sterling play of Conlin.

The Most Talked Of Barber Shop In Chicago

Invites Attention to The Back of Your Head

MOST people go to theatre occasionally, or to a cafe or restaurant. You have gone often. Have you ever noticed some one sitting in front of you whose appearance, even from the back, spoke of correct grooming?—of dressiness?

It takes an expert barber to give you that sort of a hair-cut—the kind that's just as well done in the back as in the front—the dressy, slick, well-groomed graduation that particular men demand.

It's a very uncomfortable feeling to sit in a brilliantly lighted place like a theatre and know that your hair isn't cut properly in the back—to feel hundreds of critical eyes on your collar-line.

But what a difference when a CRYSTAL expert trims or cuts your hair! Even if you have obstinate hair to cut, or an unsymmetrically shaped head—you'll find a CRYSTAL expert who specializes in every sort of difficult or obstinate case. You men who are hard to suit—try us!

The theatre season is opening. You will go to theatres, movies, cafes, dances, etc. Before you go, drop into the CRYSTAL SHOP and let one of our experts make you socially presentable. Whether it be a shave, a massage, a hair-cut, a singe, a trim, etc., that you want, you'll find that CRYSTAL service is superior and it costs no more than the ordinary kind—and, furthermore, we can prove this statement to your satisfaction! Try us.

The Only Shop of Its Kind in Chicago—Because—
A boiling geyser of water sterilizes every razor before it touches your face.
You get an individual lather brush, comb, hair brush, etc.
Individual towels—of course.
Shaving soap in tubes—no unsanitary mugs. All other soap piped from sanitary, hidden reservoirs—it can't be used twice!
No soiled towels, paper, etc., in sight—it disappears into a trap-door after use.
This is the most unique shop—even in specially constructed, electrical, sanitary units—in America. The owner, Mr. Cominos, invites your inspection.

PROVISO'S RUSH FROM REAR BEATS DEERFIELD, 14-12

BY LARRY DAILEY.

Plucky Proviso High, outweighed but fighting with great spirit after being apparently demoralized, and led by a lad who played as if inspired, scored a 14 to 12 victory over Deerfield at Maywood yesterday in one of the most spectacular and bitterly fought high school games ever staged in Cook county.

Charles Kassell was the scintillating star. To his individual efforts Proviso owes the greatest credit for its victory. Time and again Kassell went down the field on punts and downed Deerfield runners without return, and Deerfield early in the game found that to gain through his side of the line was impossible. Twice Kassell recovered Deerfield fumbles on punts.

Kassell Scores Touchdown.

It was Kassell's leap and catch of a forward pass from Holland in the second quarter and his dash of 2 yards for a touchdown, that eventually proved to be the winning score.

Awed by the prestige of the champions, Proviso was impotent before the charges of Deerfield, led by Harvey, and six minutes after the kickoff in the first quarter Harvey smashed off tackle ten yards and then cut back eight yards and was over for a touchdown. Instead of kicking for the point, Deerfield elected to forward pass and failed.

Again after the Proviso kickoff Harvey started for the Proviso goal, circling end for 15 yards. Then the champions fumbled and lost fifteen yards. They kicked and Proviso fumbled, Kassell recovering.

This was the turning point of the game. Proviso took the offensive. Youngsteadt ripped line for 20 yards and Follett ran 35 yards over Stipes. Follett a few plays later went over for a touchdown and K. Bullard kicked goal.

In the second period Capt. Fritz of Proviso recovered a Deerfield fumbled punt, and on the next play Holland passed to Kassell for the latter's touchdown and K. Bullard's second goal.

Comes Back Strong.

Fighting desperately, Deerfield came back strong, with Harvey and Ted Watt leading the attack, advanced to the 10 yard line. They again went to the Proviso 10 yard limit and Watt bucked over for the final score of the game. Lineup:

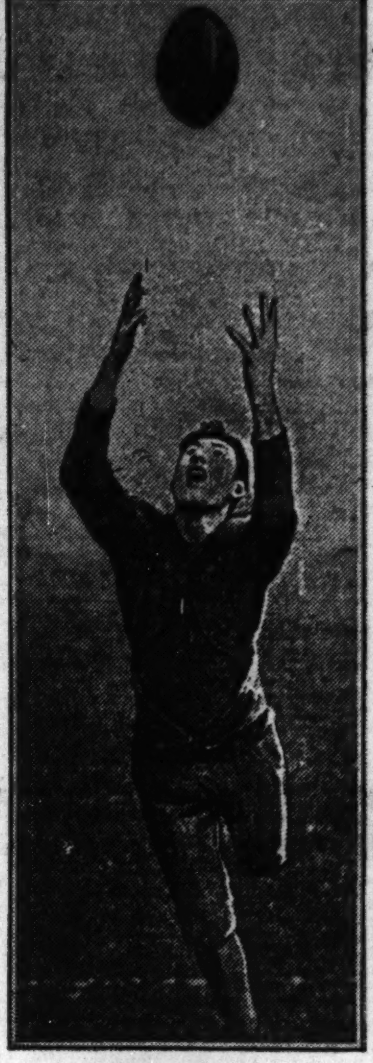
SPEARS PASS



CHARLES KASSELL.

Proviso High school right end, catching the forward pass on which he scored the touchdown which gave his team a 14 to 12 victory over Deerfield at Maywood yesterday, in one of the hardest fought Suburban league games ever played. Kassell's brilliant work was the feature of the game, and stamped him as a leading wingman in Cook county prep circles.

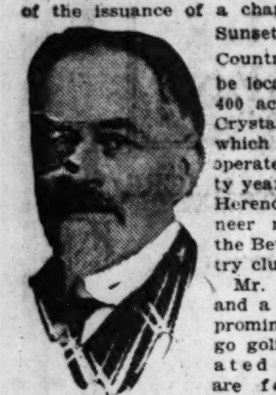
400 ACRE FARM FOR GOLFERS OF SUNSET VALLEY

BY JOE DAVIS.

Announcement was made yesterday of the issuance of a charter to the Sunset Valley Country club, to be located on the 400 acre farm at Crystal Lake, Ill., which has been operated for twenty years by Chas. Herendeen, a pioneer member of the Beverly Country club.



CHAS. HERENDEEN.

Mr. Herendeen and a number of prominent Chicago golfers associated with him are farsighted enough to know that the advanse in value in real estate, coupled with increased taxation, will force golfers farther from the city, and are confident that the establishment of the Sunset Valley Country club will help solve some of the golfing problems of the present and future.

A Whole Family Club.

With the main end in view of providing recreation for the whole family, the plans made are more comprehensive than any privately owned club in the country.

They include a $500,000 clubhouse with 150 rooms for families, a bachelor hall, two eighteen hole courses of championship caliber and a nine hole course for women, to be electrically lighted for night play by both men and women.

An electrically lighted course has long been a hobby of Mr. Herendeen, who at one time offered to stand half the expense of lighting nine holes on one of the local courses He argued that if it is possible to play golf by moonlight, an artificially lighted course is a comparatively easy proposition.

Many Other Features.

Among the other features will be fishing, boating, and canoeing on a forty acre lake on the property, while also in the aquatic line will be an outdoor swimming tank. A number of tennis courts will be installed.

The roads around the club are finely adapted for horse riding and there are many fine Indian trails in the Fox river country. Saddle horses and ponies for children will be part of the equipment of the club.

Winter sports will be optional with the members, but there is excellent duck shooting, and the hills on the property will afford facilities for tobogganing. The Fox river, with its excellent bathing facilities, is only one and one-half miles from the club.

Crystal lake is forty-three miles from Chicago and can be reached in fifty-five minutes by fast trains of the Chicago and Northwestern road.

Ridgemoor Club Picks Anderson for President

C. K. Anderson, incoming president of the Ridgemoor Country club, was a well known figure in the palmy days of the bicycle, being one of the best riders in Chicago. He was a clever performer in other branches of athletics, but of late years has become an ardent golfer. He has been on the Ridgemoor directorate for four years. Largely through his efforts the course and greens have been improved greatly. Mr. Anderson is a director of the Blue Grass Country club of Cave City, Ky., and of the new Budlong Woods club of Chicago. The other officers of the regular ticket, to which there was no opposition, are:

Vice president, D. E. Upton; directors for two years, F. B. Woltz, R. U. Simpson; for one year, Judge R. E. Gentzel; holdover directors, E. A. Herrick, F. X. Busch.

Alfred Goullet Will Ride Here in Six Day Bike Race

Alfred Goullet, looked upon as the greatest all-around bicycle racer in the world, will compete in the six day race beginning at the Coliseum Sunday night.

This will be his first appearance in a six day race here, although he has been here when other races were run in previous years. He is the only rider who has ever won six of the long grinds in Madison Square Garden, taking the first in 1913 with Joe Fogler as his partner. He won again in 1914 with Alfred Grenda. In 1917 with Jake Magin, in 1919 with Eddie Madden, in 1920 with Magin and last year with Brocco, the Italian.

Goulett landed here from Gippsland, Australia, about ten years ago and in his first year in the United States he broke seven world's sprint records on the Salt Lake City track under the management of the late Floyd Macfarland.

Goullett U. S. Citizen.

Goullet took out his first citizenship papers as soon as he could and is now an American citizen and served in the United States naval forces during the last war.

"Goullie," because of his sensational riding, has become one of the most popular races, not only in the United States but in Australia and Europe as well. His gameness and wonderful endurance was shown in a six day race in Newark, N. J., in 1914. He was paired with Freddie Hill and in the first five minutes of the last hour of the race Hill was knocked unconscious. Goullet went out and rode the continuous sprints for the last fifty-five minutes and won the race, while Hill lay almost dead beside the track.

Partner Not Selected.

Manager Paddy Harmon states that the fans here are going to see the greatest bike rider in the world when "Goullie" gets into action. His teammate has not as yet been selected, but it is certain that the rider will be one of the best in the bike racing game.

With such riders as Goullet, Madden, Coburn, Lands, Stockholm, Mobeck, Kopsky, Bello, Bobby Walthour Jr., Sammy Gastman, Willie Grimm, Fred Spencer, and others already announced it is certain that the fans are going to see the best field that has ever started in a six day race here.

The winner's share of the purse was $24,080.

Lucky Hour set the early pace, leading Chatterton by two lengths to the first half, with Bunting third. At the clubhouse turn, Lucky Hour was leading by three lengths and Chatterton was a length in front of Rockminster.

Lucky Hour Holds Lead.

At the mile and a quarter, Lucky Hour continued to lead, with Bunting second, three lengths in front of Rockminster. Lucky Hour was one length ahead of Rockminster at the mile and a half post, with Bunting three lengths back.

Coming into the stretch, Rockminster forged to the front and won by half a length from Lucky Hour. Surf Rider came fast down to the wire to capture third money.

Rockminster is owned by Monfort Jones, and was coupled in the betting with Surf Rider. Harry Lunsford was astride of the winner. The betting on the Jones' entry was $14.50, $5.20, and $4.50.

ONE QUESTIONED HIT KEEPS COBB OUTSIDE THE EXCLUSIVE .400

ONE questioned hit separates Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tygers, from the charmed circle of .400 hitters for 1922, it was discovered today, in compilation of the official batting records of Irwin M. Howe, official statistician of the American league. Without that hit Cobb's total is .398, but with it he enters the .400 ranks for the third time.

On May 15, in a game at New York between Detroit and the Yankees, Cobb was credited in unofficial newspaper box scores with two hits and by the official scorer with only one. Investigation of the discrepancy has been started and the result will be laid before President Ban Johnson of the American league. If the hit is won for Cobb, it will make him the only slugger in baseball history to pass the .400 mark three times. George Sisler of St. Louis has two .400 marks, this year and last.

—and Mr. W. sells his car

MR. W., having decided that he had no further use for his 5 Passenger Cadillac, inserted the following Want Ad in The Tribune:

CADILLAC 8—5 PASS. TOUR. THOROUGHly overhauled; new paint; [illegible] guarantee; no dealers. [illegible] S. Wabash-av.

A Tribune Adtaker called Mr. W. the day after the ad was inserted and asked him what response he had received from the ad. Mr. W. said that he had received but two calls. The Adtaker suggested that a more detailed Want Ad which would give the advertiser's telephone number would pull the results desired. So he ran the following:

CADILLAC 8—5 PASS. TOUR.; 5 GOOD tires; spotlight; other new [illegible] thoroughly overhauled; new paint; [illegible] no dealers. Walsh, 0000 S. Wabash-av.

When the Adtaker called him again, Mr. W. reported that the car was sold and that he could have sold 4 cars from the number of inquiries he received. "The more you tell, the quicker you sell."

THE Tribune has prepared a booklet, "Wording a Want Ad to Make it Pay," which it will send free to anyone requesting it.

Two Cents Brings You The Story of "MAIN STREET" ~Where Millions Are Being Made for Real Estate Buyers

It is a remarkable fact, but a true one, that thousands of people every year sink millions of dollars in investment propositions of which they know practically nothing—yielding to the old paradox that "distant pastures seem greener than those located right at home." The fallacy of this belief is demonstrated right here in Chicago, where certain industrial factors, involving more than two million people, are at work "building a great city within a city." At one side of it 200,000 people are working. They and their families are contributing to the development of this great area in which values are increasing to startling figures. On another side of this district lies a contributing element to greatness offered by the heart of the third largest city in the world—and in another direction the demand for homes and local business places is being steadily created by a working population of 200,000 more. Hundreds of homes and apartment houses are being built where prairies lay but a few years ago. Through the center of this "MAGIC CITY" runs—"MAIN STREET"—and it is on "MAIN STREET"—with all of these contributing areas adding to its greatness—that our enormous buying power has enabled us to purchase for resale to our customers on easy terms and at prices that represent but a fraction of existing values along "MAIN STREET," where development is complete—this seed of potential real estate wealth—a seed that extensive civic improvements and a growing population are on the eve of forcing into full bloom.

THE City's greatest fortunes had their beginning in land—Chicago land—and the opportunities that are available today in THIS CERTAIN SECTION OF CHICAGO are even greater than those of a half-century or a decade ago. The announcement that is embodied in this advertisement has been in the making since Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lamp in 1871—but has been withheld from the market until CONDITIONS WERE RIPE FOR ITS EXPLOITATION. The time has come—The "Magic City of Golden Opportunity" is now a certainty—the civic improvements that were necessary to make it so are already under way—its future is assured.

Statistics indicate that 54 out of every 100 men are destitute and dependent upon friends, relatives and public charities at 65—due to their failure to SAVE and ACCUMULATE WEALTH during their earning years. Certainly, no investment can be safer than Chicago Real Estate—no method of wealth accumulation more positive than systematic monthly savings devoted to the purchase of land that is becoming more valuable every day. You can INSURE YOUR FUTURE against want and privation by investing right now in this virgin territory that is destined to yield millions in real estate profits to those with the wisdom to get in at today's prices. MOTORDOM

Illinois Solons Prepare to Adopt Better Auto Laws

Hanson Measure Provides Heavy Penalties for Speeders.

BY E. E. PIERSON.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special Correspondence.]—With the addition of each mile to the Illinois hard road system there is a proportionate increase in the number of accidents due to excessive speed. It is conceded that a small fine for infraction of the code will have a little effect on speeders, and something more drastic is sought by the state law makers. It is expected that the legislature at the coming session will be called upon to consider a number of measures, submitted for the purpose of promoting the safety of the public and protecting the new roads from abuse.

Senator Frank Hanson of the Twenty-eighth senatorial district, has prepared a bill which will be submitted to the motor clubs of the state and other interests concerned, which is designed to remedy the situation and reduce the number of accidents; provide a penalty for abuse of the new highways and secure the collection of a toll from those who commercialize them by operation of motor busses for passengers, and motor trucks for express and freight.

FRANK O. HANSON.

One section of the bill stipulates that no person shall operate a motor vehicle upon a public highway at a speed greater than twenty-five miles an hour while passing another vehicle moving in an opposite direction. No person operating a motor vehicle upon a public highway shall pass a vehicle standing upon such highway at a speed greater than ten miles an hour.

The penalty provided for a violation in this section ranges from a $10 to a $200 fine, except where there is personal or property injury, when it provides a fine of $1,000, imprisonment from one to five years, and prohibition from operating a car upon the state highways of Illinois for a period of two years from the date of the accident.

It is believed by Senator Hanson th[illegible] will have a greater effect in the reduction of speed when passing another car than the fine or imprisonment penalties.

As rapidly as the hard roads are thrown into commission, they are being utilized by commercial companies for handling passengers and freight. The wear and tear of such vehicles upon the new highways, probably will not be great if proper tires are insisted upon, engineers say. The bill will stipulate that all commercial vehicles that operate upon the new highways must be able to stand inspection in relation to tires and tonnage, that owners of such vehicles will be required to pay all damage caused to highways through improper tires or excess tonnage or other causes; and also a fee proportionate to the number of passengers and distance handled. It also taxes the tonnage of freight and express, proportionate to the amount and mileage.

All revenue derived from such a fee system will be placed in the fund of the state highway department to be utilized for the upkeep of the roads, paying the salaries of patrolmen and collectors, these attaches to serve as officers of the law with police power to arrest violators of the traffic or other laws and to coöperate with the city and county authorities in apprehending criminals.

The patrol system, as adopted by the state of Wisconsin, may be adapted to the Illinois highways and will probably be the subject of considerable discussion among the legislators at the coming session. The state constabularly system, strongly supported in many circles, has equally strong opponents. It is the aim of the Hanson bill to omit some of the features of the constabulary system which may prove undesirable and embody others in the patrol system which will not only produce results in the way of bringing about the arrest of those who may be wanted for some crime, but will also produce the desired supervision and maintenance of the new highways.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions which are accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send in your name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." No questions will be returned. For today's question Mrs. Clara Calvert, 4727 West Harrison street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Are our automobile roads wide enough?

Where Asked.

At the women's driving contest held in Grant park.

The Answers.

Max M. Levine, 910 South Wabash avenue, movie film projectionist — It goes without saying that they are not wide enough. But what to do, and who will do it? Some day they will all be widened. In the meantime we will be paying for our short sightedness and the like with accidents and lives lost. Maybe we ought to be very thankful that we have a few narrow concrete roads.

O. G. Temme, 2801 South Michigan avenue, director Illinois Automobile club — No, they are not wide enough. That's the reason we are widening them. The Milwaukee road is being widened three feet on each side; Michigan avenue, in the city, from Roosevelt road to 32d street, will soon be widened seven feet on each side—that's fourteen feet. Our narrow roads are causing a great many accidents, and Cook county officials are trying to get appropriations now to widen those roads. We will have to use a little patience, for a few years ago no one even dreamed that autos would be used as extensively as they are today.

Mrs. O. C. Koester, 1453 Highland avenue—No one will say the roads are wide enough. The newer roads are fair, but with the large number of machines using them they are not wide enough. If there were a little more leeway it wouldn't be so bothersome to give the speeder the full benefit of the center of the road. And if we have to do any repairing we could pull up close to the right and not interfere with any of the traffic.

Howard I. Wells, 4120 North Ashland avenue, representative Chicago Automobile Trade association —Our roads generally should be from four to six feet wider—especially when I am driving. The heavily traveled highways, like Higgins road, and an increasing number of others, are too narrow to handle the present traffic with safety. As it is now you can't stop in the road to change a tire without blocking traffic. The roadway ditches occasionally compel one to do so, however.

Mrs. Albert V. McLeod, 367 East 53d street—I think it is terrible for a wonderful state like Illinois to rest content with the roads it has. Illinois is a richer state than California, but the roads out there are wonderful. My brother has recently arrived from California and he can't get over talking about the narrow roads we have here. California has wider roads and better roads.

Test Road Saves State Millions in Highway Work

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 21.—A change in all specifications for concrete pavement in Illinois which it is declared will save the state about $1,500 a mile was announced today by the state division of highways.

Henceforth specifications will call for pavement to be nine inches thick at the edge, graduating to six inches at the center. This change was made as a result of experiments on the experimental road near Bates which disclosed that practically all breaks occurred near the edge of the pavement. None occurred near the center.

A previous change in specifications resulting from lessons learned at the Bates road, by which the thickness of pavements was reduced from eight to seven inches, has saved the state $1,500,000, Frank T. Sheets, superintendent of highways, stated. The new specifications during the coming year will save the state approximately $2,000,000, it was stated. In view of these savings, state officials declare, the Bates road already has saved $3,500,000 for the state.

Price Battle Opens.

Plans of W. C. Durant to enter the Ford field with a car at the same price —$348—materialized last week with the announcement that quantity production had been started on the new Star in several of the large Durant plants throughout the country, and one in Ontario.

Forty-eight hours after the announcement by Durant that his cars would sell at the same prices as the Fords, a price cut of $50 on all models of the Ford cars was made, to become effective immediately.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

AMONG the most attractive features of Closed Car week, the observance of which for the last six days has turned Auto Row into a colorful exposition, is that arranged by the Studebaker Sales company, Michigan and 21st street. H. R. Levy combined his salesroom salon with a fall and winter fur style show, using pretty models to demonstrate the harmony between the latest modes in dress and closed car types.

J. J. Lake, sales manager of the Edwards & Crist company, evolved a striking exhibit by building a replica of the county forest preserves in the Auburn salesrooms.

C. F. Kettering, president of General Motors, closed his desk in Dayton, O., a half hour early Friday afternoon and climbed into the passenger plane which he uses for regular inspection trips. Two hours later he landed in Chicago and told the Society of Automotive Engineers the results of recent scientific investigations made in the Dayton engineering laboratories.

A roadster of new and improved type, which includes many novel items of equipment, has been introduced by Nash Motors, following closely its announcement of a new sport model car.

History repeated itself for the automobile industry last week when a single cylinder Cadillac, purchased by the company in celebration of its twentieth birthday, made the trip from Detroit to New York under its own power. The vintage car created a sensation all along the paved roads.

Receivers Named to Protect Pan Motors Property

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Oct. 21.—Following institution of a suit for $30,000 against the Pan Motor company and threats of other suits, creditors of the company have been granted an order by Judge J. A. Roeser of the district court appointing Edward E. Clark and R. E. Gale of St. Cloud receivers.

Appointment of a receiver, it was alleged in court, was necessary to the interests of the creditors and stockholders to conserve the property of the company. The bare assets of the company, apart from deferred assets, capital stock and intangible good will, were given as $2,633,385 with liabilities of $506,061.

This company came into prominence several years ago when C. Pandolfo, promoter, was tried by former Federal Judge Landis on a conspiracy charge.

Brilliant Salon.

Preliminary announcement of exhibits for the forthcoming automobile salon to be held at the Commodore hotel, New York, from Dec. 3 to 9, and at the Drake, Chicago, Jan. 27 to Feb. 3, discloses entries of cars from seven different nations, the largest number since the beginning of the world war. England, France, Belgium, Italy, Germany, Austria, and the United States will be represented by internationally famous cars.

The salon, which is the eighteenth annual, also promises to set new standards in chassis designs and serve to introduce new body styles and types.

HIS CONSOLATION.

One Reason for Mounting Sales

Hupmobile reliability, dashing performance, long life, low costs, these are all important reasons for the unprecedented sales records which the Hupmobile is making.

There is another reason, even more important.

Owners of cars whose first cost is less, are finding that they can obtain much more motor car economy and enjoyment in the Hupmobile for a slightly higher original price.

Owners of higher priced cars are discovering that the Hupmobile gives them all the practical advantages that costlier cars can give.

Hupmobile value makes powerful appeal to both classes of buyers.

Auto Makers Pull Through Annual "Slump" in High

Closed Car Demand Sets Industry Faster Pace.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—[Special Correspondence.] — Two hundred and six thousand passenger automobiles and trucks was the approximate output figures for the month of September, which, according to official reports, was the best September in the history of the automobile industry.

This was a gain of 31 per cent over one year ago, and means that the total production for the present year will be not less than 2,000,000 cars and trucks.

During September the Ford plant was closed for a week, which makes the showing all the more remarkable. Had the plant been running continually during that month, the number of cars produced would have been about 30,000 greater.

The expected happened and there was a falling off in production from the August total, due not so much to a seasonal decline, in sales, as to the halt in the Ford production, and the fact that September, in addition to being a short month, was marked by a holiday. All these factors brought the total production down from the 272,000 level established in August.

Sales of trucks are continuing in encouraging numbers. This branch of the industry is feeling the effect, to a certain extent, of the uncertainty existing in the minds of some people because of the tense industrial situation this summer. Coal and rail strikes have had a tendency to throw out of focus things in general, so that the truck sales field, which a few months ago was opened up by the improved general condition, was agitated considerably. It is pointed out that it is necessary to overcome this situation and restore confidence fully before the maximum business can be obtained.

The year 1923 is being looked to as a record breaker in the production of closed types of cars as the result of the unforeseen demand and interest in those models. A chart of the growth of the closed car demand would make extremely interesting reading. While the automobile industry itself is but about twenty years old, the efficient closed car of today is only five years old.

It has been only within the last four years that manufacturers have really given over a considerable portion of their production schedules to the manufacture of the closed cars.

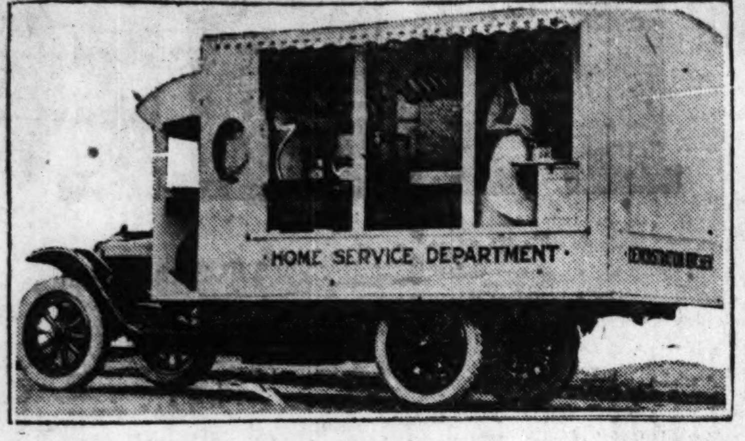
Inspecting W. S. Industry.

Engineer Guido Fornaca, president and administrative director of the huge Fiat plant at Turin, Italy, and his works manager, Engineer Gobbato, arrived last week in New York.

The purpose of their visit is to inspect and study the leading industrial institutions of America, with a view principally to applying to the Fiat enterprise the newest advances in America mass production.

Sig. Fornaca is an industrial scientist and his work at Turin has attracted important visitors from nearly all the countries of the world.

THE MOUNTAIN TO MOHAMMED



Some Chicago housewives have failed to take advantage of lessons in the culinary art offered them, but food experts believe that the subject merits unusual attention and have inaugurated a novel new school. Mrs. Christine Frederick is in charge of the new project, which uses this spick and span mobile kitchen to spread lessons in better food preparation.

Light Cars Win

GASOLINE consumption for automobiles is such a serious question in France, with gas costing from 55 to 60 cents a gallon, that recent French tests to develop better carburetion are being continued.

Cars smaller and lighter than those generally used in the United States recently have averaged about sixty miles to the gallon of gasoline in official public contests. The winner in the principal competition of this sort made sixty-one miles to the gallon.

Large cars, weighing more than 4,000 pounds, averaged close to sixteen miles to the gallon in the recent Strasburg race of 440 miles over the Grand Prix course and under the same regulations. This was the first race of this kind organized by the Grand Prix officials, and it proved such a success that a similar contest is announced for next year.

SOFT HAMMER.

A section of bronze bushing stock makes an admirable bronze hammer which is useful for work about the sheet metal parts of the body and fenders. By threading a steel bar, running on a nut and then placing another nut on the outside the head of the hammer is firmly retained.

English Expert Lauds American Motor Utility

SIR WILLIAM LETTS, who has been actively identified with the British automobile industry since 1899, has been making a tour of inspection of motor conditions in this country, in addition to attending as a delegate from the British Sulgrave institution the various dinners and other functions given by the American and English members of the Sulgrave institution in New York. His voyage home late this month will complete his twenty-second round trip to America, and practically all of those visits were undertaken to study automotive conditions here and note the constant changes of progress in the American industry.

"Every time I come over here," said Sir William, "I am impressed at the number of cars, not only in the cities, but in the country sections as well. Americans have gone far ahead of us in recognizing the utility value of the motor vehicle. I have been surprised on this visit, as never before, at the number of cars in use. In all of the large cities in which I have been, the abscnee of horses on the streets is a most striking feature. It is not so in London, where, notwithstanding the steady increase in motor vehicles, horses are still numerous."

The motor situation in Great Britain is picking up, he stated, although the industry there has not recovered from the problems left from the war as readily as many had imagined. The recent engineering strike upset the industry severely this season, but, although that is now over, the Turkish situation has added another element of uncertainty which, for the time being, is having a detrimental effect upon car manufacturers.

"I am sanguine enough to believe," added Sir William, "that the long period of business depression is about over. As soon as the clouds lift there will be a big upward tendency in the production and sale of motor cars in Great Britain. Evidences of this are already beginning to be seen, notably in the wide reduction of prices by many of the leading English makers. Interest in the coming London Olympia show in November has never been greater, and with more than 150 makes of cars already entered for the exhibition, including, of course, many American models, a new high record of individual exhibits has been reached."

American cars in England, Sir William explained, in view of the import duty of 33 1-3 per cent, high freight charges, and other expenses, sell for double, or a trifle more than the prices in this country.

Motorized Zone

THE comparatively large number of motor vehicles in use in the republic of Panama and the canal zone is traceable chiefly to the activities connected with the Panama canal and to the extensive use of motor vehicles for hire in Panama City and Colon and the adjacent sections of the canal zone.

The official registration in the republic of Panama is given as 731 passenger cars, 59 trucks and 23 motorcycles, while in the canal zone there are 1,323 passenger cars and motor trucks combined [the number of each being about equal] and 369 motorcycles. Official cars make up 658 of the canal zone registration and are owned by the Panama canal, the Panama railroad and the United States army and navy. Hardly more than ten of the total registration are other than American make.

About 580 of the motor vehicles in the cities of Panama and Colon and in the canal zone are commercial cars used for carrying passengers for hire; they constitute a service which operates in a very effective manner and at fixed rates, which are comparatively reasonable. As these vehicles are in daily use, they offer a good demand for tires, accessories and repair parts, which are purchased from local dealers in Panama City and Colon; all equipment for the official cars is purchased in the United States.

Closed Car Comfort for Business and Pleasure

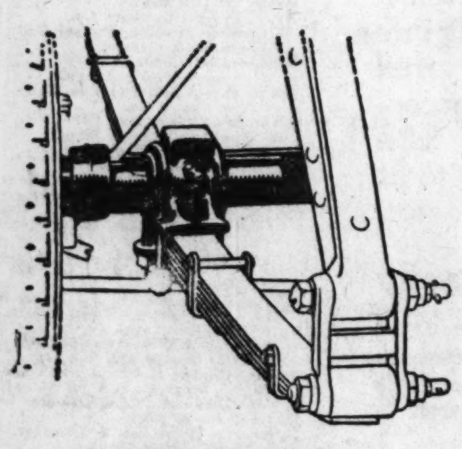
The 1923 Buick Four Coupe—$1175

Combining the beauty and appointments of the costliest closed cars with modest proportions and every day utility, the Buick four-cylinder, three passenger coupe meets the requirements of business and professional use, as well as those of the family.

Its smartness has been increased by the changes that have been made in body, radiator and cowl to lower and lengthen its appearance and at the same time add roominess inside the body. Heavy crown fenders, drum type head and cowl lamps are touches that enhance its outside attractiveness.

Wide doors swing open to reveal an interior trimmed and upholstered in fine plush and set off by distinctive fittings. A heater, cowl ventilator and disappearing door windows provide perfect all-weather driving comfort.

Improvements have been made too in the famous Buick Valve-in-Head engine, springs, frame and every important unit of the chassis to develop further the dependability and ruggedness that always is so marked in Buick cars.



Perfect Brake Action

A finer method of fastening the rear semi-elliptic springs on all 1923 four-cylinder models insures perfect braking whether the car is carrying its full quota of passengers or just the driver. A lubricated bearing, permits the springs to lengthen under load without changing the axle's position.

A hundred thousand mile marathon—

The twenty miles that take hours for a fleet runner to cover are but a few minutes in the hundred thousand mile marathon that is the life of your Paige. Yes, the Paige Six-66 is a hundred thousand mile car and more, because it has the things that make for long life.

Materials, proofed against wear and shock, as fine as men know how to make them. Workmanship so accurate that a half-thousandth of an inch is an error. Design that harmonizes power with smoothness, tough roads with shockless travel.

The smooth 70 horse-power of the Paige flows from an amazingly balanced motor, superbly lubricated. Every minute three gallons of oil are forced, at 20 to 40 lbs. pressure, into all main and connecting rod bearings, and sprayed on the entire internal mechanism. Metal never runs to metal—friction is eliminated and consequent wear.

The shockless travel that assures long life to the sturdy Paige chassis. comes from the long wheelbase—131 inches—unusually long springs, Paige-Timken axles, snubbers, accurately poised weight, low-hung body, and absence of sidesway. And there's buoyant riding comfort in the deep leather upholstery.

The Paige Brougham is distinguished by a quiet beauty of proportion. Yet it is amply roomy for five passengers. Winter or summer—a delightful car for every member of the family.

Men are beginning to learn that the long-life features of the Paige Six-66 mean low upkeep expense. Performance and economy have made it the second largest selling car between $2,000 and $11,000. Would you like to drive this smooth-running, easily-handled car of assured long life? Ask for a demonstration.

raffic Problem Meets Master in Kimball Project

roposed Boulevard Links Entire Chicago System.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

A straight, through traffic route m Wilmette on the north to Chicago ghts on the south, utilizing the t beautiful drives of Chicago's great t parks system.

Certain relief for the dangerous ffic congestion over the entire gth of Sheridan road, Michigan nue, and loop lateral streets by di- ting 50 per cent of north shore ve- les into new and logical traffic lanes.

Immediate revival of the deferred cCormick boulevard improvement ject, creating the long needed park- y along the north shore channel.

Development of new transportation ilities and of property values roughout the northwest section of city.

These are a few of the advantages nted out by technicians of the Chi- go plan commision in the campaign make Kimball avenue a part of the st park system, connecting with the posed channel drive at Devon ave- e.

THE new Kimball avenue-McCormick boulevard improvement plan has presented Chicago with the ideal solution of its north ore traffic congestion problem, in the pinion of both civic and traffic au- orities. A new traffic artery, run- ing straight south through the exact enter of the city from Wilmette to hicago Heights, is waiting for the de- elopment which, at a negligible cost, ill form the final connecting link for e entire boulevard system, they de- are.

Briefly, the proposal outlined by the ard of technicians to the Chicago Plan commission, urges the immediate paving of Kimball avenue from Palmer street, at Logan Square, north to its intersection with Devon avenue, where it will connect with the proposed north shore channel parkway. This parkway in turn is projected north along the west bank of the channel to a point near Church street, Evanston, where it crosses to the east bank of the channel and follows it north and east to intersect Sheridan road in Wilmette.

If the project is carried out, it will be possible for the motorist driving from north shore and northwest towns to bear to the right from Sheridan road when entering Evanston; follow the channel parkway to Devon avenue; Kimball boulevard to Logan Square, and continue straight through Humboldt and Douglas parks to Western avenue and the Dixie highway without touching the congested districts of either uptown or downtown Chicago.

Kimball avenue, engineers say, is made to order for easy and cheap culmination of the biggest improvement plan submitted to the commission in recent years. A report, made by B. B. Felix, manufacturer and improvement booster, after a year of study, shows that the street, already 40 feet wide, runs in a straight, unbroken line from Palmer street north to Peterson road, with the exception of two blocks where Milwaukee avenue crosses it and old frame buildings interrupt the right of way. From Peterson road north and east to the channel the projected thoroughfare traverses vacant land whose owners are said to be enthusiastic supporters of the improvement.

Thus the city end of the improvement needs only the transfer of Kimball avenue to park board jurisdiction, new pavement, and the cutting through of two blocks of frame buildings at the Milwaukee avenue angle.

Sanitary district authorities have already approved the construction of McCormick boulevard along the north shore channel. Bids were taken on this improvement in 1919, but the costs at that time were found to be prohibitive, due to inflated labor and material charges. The improvement was deferred and, it is understood, requires only the revival of popular demand to reopen the bids. Construction costs are now thought to be stabilized and barriers are cleared from the program.

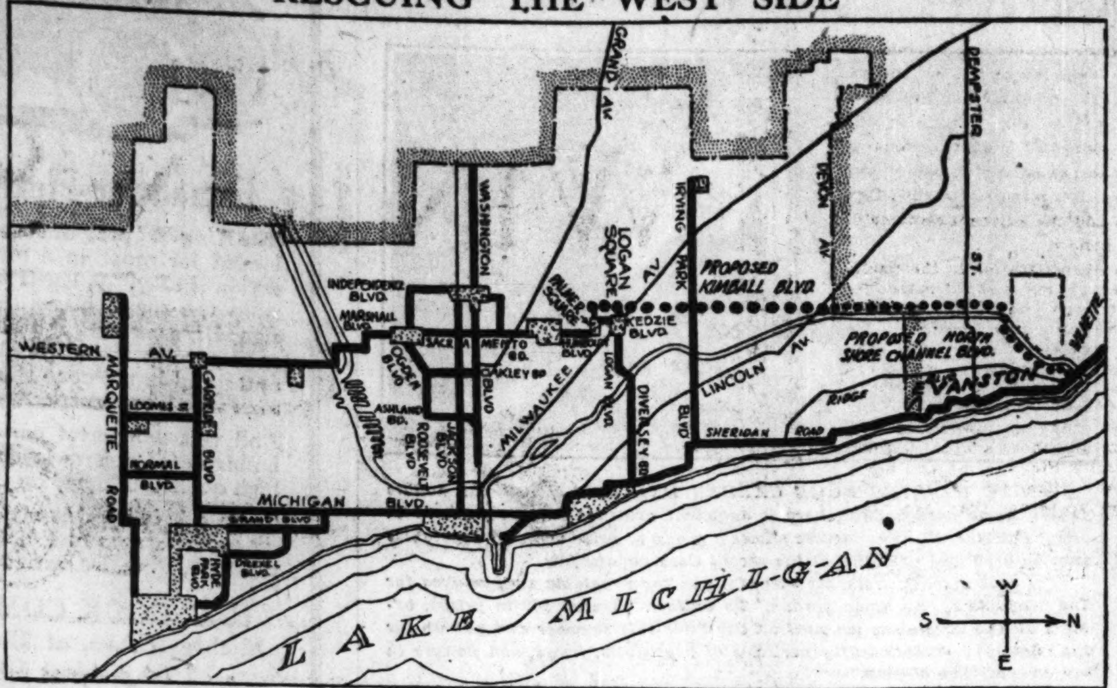
"I believe this project should be pushed from every angle and put through as early as possible," said Hugh E. Young, technician of the plan commission. "It seems to me to be the simplest solution not only for boulevard traffic congestion in Chicago, but also to the question of rapid development of property on the northwest side.

"Kimball avenue needs only to be paved now with a forty foot pavement. The owners of property along its line already know the great value of the proposed improvement and there will be no difficulty in gaining their consent to making the street a boulevard. North of Devon avenue there are no frontage questions. Later it will be possible to widen Kimball boulevard a matter of twenty feet and develop its landscape possibilities.

"No project could better serve traffic requirements. The new link will serve traffic entering Chicago from every direction. Peterson road west of Kimball is being widened, and, when completed, will carry a heavy traffic burden from the west. Lincoln avenue already serves a large percentage of the traffic coming in on the Waukegan, Milwaukee avenue, Higgins, Rand and other county arteries. These vehicles could cut off many miles and avoid all congestion by using the new boulevard to the middle of the city and turning east on any of the main traffic streets to the loop. There is agitation for the widening and improvement of Devon avenue, too, and the new boulevard is directly in line with this plan."

"The project has met with the approval of technical experts," said Charles H. Wacker of the plan commission. "It will be passed upon by the executive committee soon, and, if approved, will be submitted to the city in detail. Every one knows the importance of traffic congestion relief on the north side, and the need of a new route to the north and northwest."

RESCUING THE WEST SIDE



Advantages of the Kimball boulevard proposal and its logical connection with the north shore channel improvement are shown clearly on this map of the Chicago boulevard system. Engineers point out that completion of the two improvements will offer a new through traffic route straight south from Wilmette to Chicago Heights, via west park drives, Western avenue, and the Dixie highway. Dotted lines indicate the proposed improvements.

Old Time Civic Rivalry Revived by Road Awards

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 21.—Rivalry between Illinois towns for state hard roads has become as keen as the competition for county seats in early days, according to officials of the state highway division. A recent meeting at Havana indicated that the whole of Mason county is divided over the question of locating a hard road to connect Havana with the road from Springfield to Peoria.

The northern part of the county wants the road run northwest from Havana to the Peoria road. The southern part of the county is determined to have it run from Havana southeast through Easton to Mason City.

The rival factions presented their claims before the highway division at a meeting in Havana. Brass bands, parades, and old-fashioned oratory marked the meeting. Col. C. R. Miller, director; Frank T. Sheets, superintendent of highways, and Clifford Older, chief highway engineer, were present to hear the contending claims.

Attorney John P. Snigg of Springfield, represented Mason City and Easton. Lyman Lacey represented Havana. Representatives from Bloomington, Peoria, and other cities were present. The meeting was held in the Havana opera house and the town indulged in a holiday.

As the main trunk lines system nears completion and the state takes up the problem of locating tributary roads, this rivalry grows keener and the meetings become more frequent, the officials state.

Truck users buy Stewart after Stewart. Some operate fleets of 20, 30 or 50. In most cases they started with one. They say more for Stewart worth than all else. For instance the Eastern Massachusetts Ry. Co. now operate 53 Stewarts.

Stewarts cost $200 to $800 less. Many, built 10 years ago, are still rendering good, economical service. These are some reasons for Stewart's great popularity.

Wills Sainte Claire Enclosed Models

I can truthfully say that I have never experienced the "honest to goodness" pleasure, or I might fittingly say the "thrill" that I have had with my Wills Sainte Claire. For ease in handling, roadability and responsiveness, I don't believe there is another car on four wheels that can equal the Wills and can put special emphasis on the responsiveness, for that is where I get my thrill.

National Candy Co., Inc.
HOWARD C. COE
Kansas City, Mo.

Perhaps you have an idea that there is no such thing as a real thrill to motoring.

That is because you have never sat behind the wheel of a Wills Sainte Claire.

Wills Sainte Claire owners speak of it as a new experience in motoring—a new sense of responsiveness, of roadability and of smooth, easy, effortless travel.

And all these things are but the practical expression of the ideal that was in the mind of C. Harold Wills when he designed this wonderful car. The reason for them is to be found in the engineering genius and the mechanical and metallurgical skill that have gone into its production. Mo-lyb-de-num steel has been used to give it lightness and strength. The remarkable eight-cylinder engine, with its 60-degree angle and its overhead valves and cams gives it power and responsiveness unparalleled. The scientific weight distribution and the specially designed springs give it roadability and ease of riding hitherto unapproached—while its graceful lines, its richness of finish and the luxury of its equipment give it a rare degree of beauty and comfort.

But after all a ride tells the story better than any technical description—one cannot describe a thrill—it must be experienced.

Hence we want you to see the Wills Sainte Claire—to ride in it—to drive it—to sense for yourself the wonder of its performance.

The New Enclosed Models are now on display—
You are cordially invited to see and test them

FARM AND GARDEN

States Indorsing Change of Arbor Day to Tree Week

ANOTHER link will be welded on the chain this week to aid reforestation and encourage the planting of trees, shrubs, and flowers around homes in cities and on the farm. Governors, foresters, nurserymen, farm advisers, and civic organizations in different parts of the country are indorsing the plan to change Arbor day to tree planting week this fall.

Twelve states have issued proclamations appointing a week to be devoted to tree planting, instead of limiting activities to a single day filled with programs which include but little planting. Arbor day will be devoted chiefly to ceremonies and the six days following to planting.

Besides Illinois, the following states report programs in process: West Virginia, Texas, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, New York, Missouri, Maryland, Georgia, Arkansas, and Arizona.

Governor Aids Plan.

Gov. Small has named Oct. 27 Arbor day for Illinois and heartily approves the idea of the tree planting week, beginning next Friday and continuing until Nov. 3. According to the governor's secretary, George D. Sutton, no further proclamation will be made because the exercises on Oct. 27 in all sections of the state will no doubt stimulate interest in the planting of fruit bearing and ornamental trees. The governor urges the coöperation of all citizens.

Tree planting week was originated and is being fostered by the Plan to Plant Another Tree association, led by J. A. Young, Aurora, Ill. With twelve states already heard from, Mr. Young believes the idea will rapidly grow into a permanent national one.

Must be Handled Carefully.

About Nov. 1 is considered a good time to plant trees, shrubs and flowers in the middle west. The roots become established and are ready to start growth early in the spring. Such trees as soft maple, birch, and poplar do best when planted in the spring. The elm, ash, hard maple, Norway maple, hackberry, spruce, hemlock, white fir, pine, and junipers should be planted in the fall.

Whether the trees come from woods or nurseries, they should be about an inch and a half to three inches in diameter. At this age and size they are tender, and must be handled carefully. It is probably best to buy them from local nurseries rather than to have them shipped long distances perhaps poorly packed. They are often injured and die unless thoroughly packed.

Need Winter Protection.

Buy evergreens that come with a big ball of earth around the roots and are burlaped to prevent roots from drying. Heal in the trees as soon as they arrive, whether they come from woods or nursery. Take them out of the trenches one at a time when they are being set out. Make big roomy holes so the roots will not be crowded and fill in with rich dirt. Mound up earth around trees when set and level it down in the spring.

Heavy strings or light ropes may be used to hold them erect during the winter because the roots are not yet well established, and unless the trees are guyed they are often blown over and uprooted. Cover the body of the tree with burlap sacks. In the spring start mulching the ground around the trees, keep the soil stirred, and in dry weather during summer soak the ground around each tree every two weeks.

DOWN ON THE FARM

"RACER" ENTERED IN DAIRYMEN'S MARATHON RACE TO SUPREMACY.—This is one of F. E. Fox's famous Guernsey bulls heading the herd on his farm near Waukesha, Wis. Between milkings the attendants at the Waukesha stock farm find time to train their pets to do circus stunts. This bull, hitched to his cart, has been exhibited several times at Wisconsin fairs.

Increasing Farm Loans.

Organized agriculture is going to make a drive to increase the federal farm loan limit. The agricultural bloc has already decided that the bill raising the maximum amount loaned to an individual from $10,000 to $25,000 by the federal farm loan banks will be included in its program. The farm bureau is beginning a drive to amend the federal land bank act so that the maximum of $10,000 for federal farm loans may be abolished.

POULTRY TIPS

Poultry experts predict a good price for fresh eggs this fall and winter. There are more eggs stored in five leading markets this fall than there were last year. There are 4,689,025 cases of eggs in storage in Chicago, New York, Boston, San Francisco, and Philadelphia—and last year around the first of September there were only 3,519,522 cases in storage in these five big egg markets, according to government reports.

After the garden has been cleaned up thoroughly, open the gate and allow the chickens to scratch around in the soil. It's good for the garden as well as the chickens, who will scratch up and eat thousands of hibernating pests that are asleep waiting for green crops to shoot up next spring.

At the recent convention of the American Poultry association, Rhode Island whites and Jersey Black Giants were admitted to the standard. Silver Wyandottes were changed to read Silver Laced, and the Golden to Golden Laced.

In California the auction system of selling cockerels from record performance strains of pure blooded poultry is a growing method of salesmanship. This system might be effectively used in the middle west as a means of carrying out the idea that poultry experts have of getting high classed cockerels at the head of every farmer's flock in order to improve the stock in central states poultry.

What Ho! They Now Make Sauerkraut in Silos

Corned beef and cabbage probably will be a common dish in Illinois this winter. If some one will furnish the beef Mercer county will supply the sauerkraut. Ziegler Bros., near Aledo, Ill., have adopted a new method of storing it. Huge heads cut from their forty acres are being chopped up and packed and tramped in a cement silo 60 feet high and 16 feet in diameter.

Putting up kraut in barrels and kegs is too slow for these far-seeing farmers, so they are using a small army of men to fill the giant sauer-kraut "barrel." The heads are sliced, thrown into the silo, and several men wearing hip boots tramp the shredded cabbage down firmly so it will ferment, as it does when it is packed in the ordinary vinegar or whisky barrel.

Before the big cement drum is filled the walls are heavily coated with paraffin to prevent the liquid from escaping and air from entering. Every safeguard for cleanliness and sanitation is being observed, and a government food inspector is on hand to see that the work is done properly.

The kraut will be taken out and put in barrels and kegs as it is needed during the winter.

A. F. B. F. Convention.

The American Farm Bureau federation's fourth annual convention will be held in Chicago, at the Hotel Sherman, Dec. 11 to 14. Two hundred rooms have been set aside for delegates, and the bureau has made arrangements with all railroads for special rates of a fare and one-half on round trip tickets. Certificates granting delegates the privilege of return tickets at half fare will be granted from Dec. 5 to 11, thus enabling purchasers to attend both the farm bureau convention and the International Live Stock exposition. The rates will apply for return until Dec. 18.

P. C. C. A. for East Buffalo.

The Producers' Coöperative Commission association will open its offices at the live stock yards at East Buffalo, N. Y., tomorrow. The farmers' terminal live stock commission house, with offices in the Crandall house, 965 Williams street, East Buffalo, N. Y., has the support of the state farm bureaus in Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan. It is being established on the same coöperative basis as producers' commission houses at other central live stock markets, including Chicago, East St. Louis, Peoria, and Indianapolis.

New Grain Agency.

The U. S. Grain Growers, Inc., has notified member elevators in Minnesota and North Dakota that the Minneapolis sales agency is open and ready to handle the grain of its members in both those states.

HOME GARDENS PAY!

"I took sixteen firsts, six seconds, and the vegetable sweepstakes for the products of my home garden," he writes.. "I won $68 in prizes, besides all the vegetables we used on our table this summer and put up for the winter. I exhibited fifty varieties of vegetables, fruits, and flowers in my sweepstakes display."

Here is his formula for growing good vegetables:. Plant good seed, use the hoe all the time, spray for bugs, and blight, and fertilize well. "There is no greater satisfaction than growing a good garden," he added.

Besides running a garden, Mr. Hart says he is village clerk and president of the high school board of education.

FARM AND GARDEN

Disease Free Cows Bring Waukesha Fame and Money

By Frank Ridgway.

It is hard to find a single breeder of Guernsey cattle in Waukesha county, Wis., who does not believe in testing cattle to get rid of tuberculosis. For twenty years pure bred breeders in that county have done so, and it has paid them big dividends. Positive proof of the effectiveness of eradication work is found in the fact that of 850 Guernseys sold in the county last year only three reacted when tested.

Perhaps some of these farmers were not firm believers in the test at first, but before long the whole problem was put on a dollar and cent basis, and cattle had to be tested before they could be sold at a good price. When buyers drive through the county today, they find tuberculosis free Guernsey herds on both sides of the road.

Test Is Matter of Course.

Tuberculosis is no longer a big problem with dairymen who are members of the Waukesha County Guernsey Breeders' association, because for many years they have been taking extreme precautions to keep it out of their herds. Years ago they began to test their cattle and get rid of reactors. Extreme sanitary measures are exercised to keep the disease out, and once or twice each year every animal is retested, which serves as insurance.

"We seldom find a man in this county who does not believe in the test," says Frank E. Fox, secretary of the Waukesha County Guernsey Breeders' association. "There are a few, but I haven't had a chance to talk with that kind in many years. Members of our organization now consider the test a matter of course. Instead of asking the veterinarian how many reactors he has found, we merely ask him how soon he will be through with the work."

See Economic Side.

Mr. Fox says Guernsey breeders in his county no longer try to overlook the fact that tuberculosis is dangerous. From the standpoint of sales, the association cannot afford to have members with infected herds. Every man knows the importance of keeping his herd clean if he expects to sell to buyers coming from other states, but he has also learned it is extremely dangerous to allow his family to use raw milk from cows that are not known to be disease free.

"There's another economic side to this question," the secretary said. "If we do not keep our Guernseys healthy and free from tuberculosis infection, we are unable to utilize our feed efficiently, and, of course, our production of milk falls lower."

Began with Twelve Members.

By freeing herds of tuberculosis and building up interest and sales in pure bred cattle Waukesha breeders have increased the pure bred Guernsey population from a single herd in 1908 to more than 3,000 cattle this year. Besides, hundreds of Guernsey cattle have been sold and hauled or driven out of that county year after year for almost a quarter of a century.

The association began with twelve charter members sixteen years ago—all of them breeders of pure bred cattle. There are now approximately 180 members. Every man breeds pure breds, for he has to use a pure bred sire whether he owns one or not in order to be a member of the organization.

As a result of mastering tuberculosis along with developments in breeding high grade Guernsey, 106 of these dairymen sold more than $150,000 worth of cattle last year through the association. During the first five and a half months of this year $80,000 worth of Guernseys had been sold through the association—and the big selling season is during the fall and winter.

Association Aids Sales.

For eleven years Mr. Fox has been secretary of the association, which acts as a selling agency, bringing buyer and seller together. He says that while business was dull last year, they shipped cattle to eighteen different states. Two sales are held every year, and about seventy-five animals are sold at each auction; the rest are sold privately through the aid of the association.

Disease free herds not only mean much to breeders who have cattle for sale but add many extra dollars to milk checks each month. Most milk coming from these Guernsey tuberculosis free cattle is sold as A grade milk at a premium price. It is sold in Milwaukee on a 4 per cent butterfat basis, and during September Guernsey men got from $3 to $3.25 a hundred, a premium of from 80 cents to $1 a hundred. A premium is paid on Guernsey milk testing more than 4 per cent butterfat. An additional premium of 25 cents is paid for milk that has a low bacterial count—the count in winter is not to exceed 25,000 per cubic centimeter or in summer 50,000 per cubic centimeter.

For these reasons the problem of producing enough good cattle to supply demands of buyers from other states is becoming more serious every day, according to Mr. Fox. Since Guernsey dairymen can get a good price for milk they are reluctant to sell their cows unless they can get good prices.

They are being rewarded, however, by good prices for both cows and milk—for their efforts in cleaning up their herds and breeding high grade animals. Of almost 10,000 Guernseys one-third are pure breds. There are more of these cattle in Waukesha county than any other county in the United States—it is the home of many high producing Guernseys, many of them qualifying as class leaders.

FRANK E. FOX.—By injecting tried business methods and approved salesmanship principles into the game of selling dairy cattle Mr. Fox, secretary of the Waukesha County Guernsey Breeders association for eleven years, has aided in making breeders in that section famous all over the country as producers of high grade foundation stock.

New Book Tells Farmer All About His Odd Jobs

In every farmer's harness room and machinery and tool shed there are dozens of odd repair jobs to be done during the winter, and he would give a great deal for a few tips on how an adjustment could be made in the easiest and least expensive way. "Farm Mechanics," a new book that has just been written by Crawshaw and Lehmann and published by The Manual Arts Press, Peoria, Ill., has the fundamental principles that will solve most of the ordinary mechanical problems that farmers run into during the year.

The book is written in simple, clear language, so it is useful both as a reference and text book, and should be of value in every farmer's library. The authors are thoroughly familiar with the practical farmer's problems, as well as the technical side of farm mechanics. E. W. Lehmann is professor of farm mechanics at the University of Illinois and is recognized as one of the foremost farm mechanical engineers in the country. The other author, Fred D. Crawshaw, was formerly professor of manual arts at the University of Wisconsin.

The book fills a great need among farmers because it covers practically all of the mechanical processes involved on the farm. It tells how to make singletrees and ax handles; how to build silos and concrete walks. Blacksmithing principles are dealt with so the farmer will know how to put threads on a bolt, sharpen tools, shoe a horse, and do dozens of similar jobs. On down the line work is explained, from splicing ropes and tugs to lighting farm buildings and installing farm sanitation equipment.

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

C. V. Gregory, chairman of the dairymen's committee of nine and editor of the Prairie Farmer, says in the last issue of the Milk Market Reporter that the state of Wisconsin has declared war on the Chicago Milk Producers' Coöperative Marketing company, which, if successful, will deal a heavy blow to coöperative milk marketing in southern Wisconsin and put dealers and middlemen in complete control of the situation.

The line marking the legume crop is continuing to push farther north and is becoming heavier in the dairying regions every year. Minnesota's slogan is "More legumes for 1923." Minnesota farmers are going into dairying stronger than ever before and the growing of clovers, alfalfa, and soybeans is being pushed to keep pace with the development of the dairy industry in that state.

It is just as important to get young dairy heifers inside when cold weather sets in, as it is the cow that is giving milk. Young animals that are to produce next spring need shelter and good feed this fall and winter if they are to be in good condition for their work next season. Iowa college dairymen say it is better to put young cows into barns when the first freeze comes and feed them a grain ration, than to try to get all the feed out of the pasture or corn field.

Dairymen are becoming more and more interested in soybeans as a feed. When soybeans are extracted a crushed pulp containing 4 or 5 per cent of oil is left and is valuable as feed. A ton of beans will produce thirty-five to thirty-eight gallons of oil.

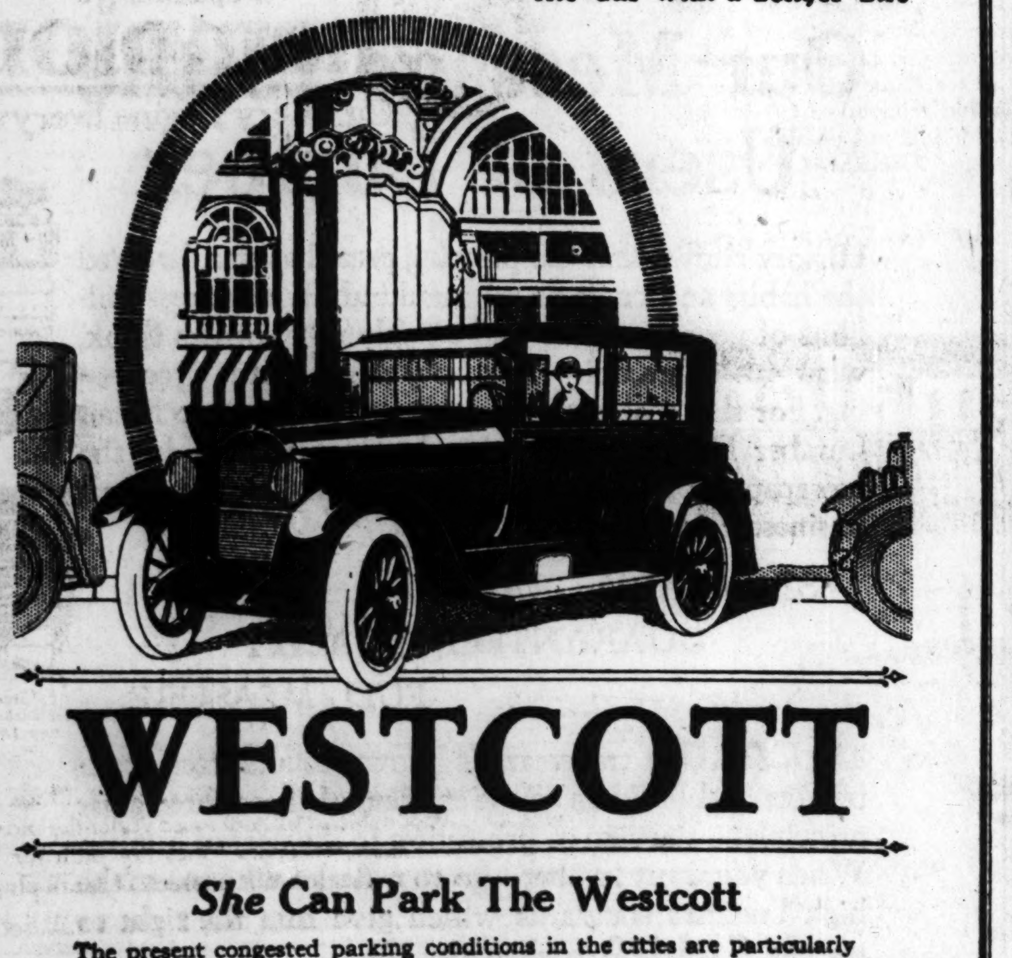
The Car with a Longer Life



WESTCOTT

She Can Park The Westcott

The present congested parking conditions in the cities are particularly annoying to women.

The Westcott can be parked with one backing in a space three feet shorter than other cars of equal wheelbase. It turns in a diameter of only 35 feet as compared with 42 feet for other cars of equal size.

But, undoubtedly, the keenest delight that a woman experiences in Westcott ownership is the distinctive beauty of lines and finish which set the Westcott out apart from the "crowd." It gives her that never-failing pleasure of driving a car which is "different."

The New Four-Passenger Brougham

This is the very latest production of the Westcott shops—a decidedly handsome four-passenger enclosed car, brought out late in the season and, as a result, considerably in advance of the present day closed models in design, finish, and equipment.

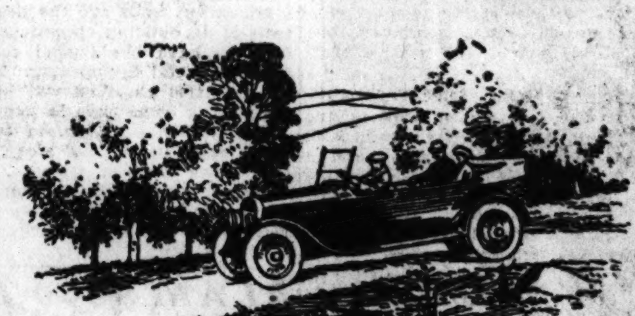
Useful hints for keeping your car fit for fall motoring



Have brakes relined if they are at all doubtful

IT is a wise man who checks up on his brakes at regular intervals. When they need relining, don't postpone it.

Rusco Brake Lining holds just as well in wet as in dry weather because there is no rubber in it. It is safe. It is economical because it wears longer, and it wears longer because it contains no stitching, or "gutting" threads that quickly break. To an unraveled thread, touch a lighted match; the thread will not burn, which proves it is made of good asbestos, as it should be.

We guarantee Rusco Brake Lining to be of uniform, unfailing quality and to give satisfactory service. To this end, we spin our own asbestos yarn and make our own asbestos and brass wire threads. We even made our own special looms. Reline your brakes with Rusco and be sure!

You can have dependable emergency brakes on your Ford

PATENTED Rusco Brace Plates make Rusco Emergency Brakes for Fords immensely powerful. The cams which expand the brake bands, jam every ounce of braking power against the brake drums. Without the patented Brace Plates, the braking power would not be half as great, because then one end of each brake band would buckle under the cam and not touch the brake drums at all.

Rusco Emergency Brakes at $2.50 with the patented Brace Plates, and with Rusco Brake Lining, are easy to install; dependable; give longer service; save the foot brake; are easy to reline; and safe in emergencies.

Your dealer can supply these products

RUSCO products are on sale at most every garage and at most automobile accessory shops and departments. Probably your own garageman or accessory dealer carries them. They can show you the different Rusco products and explain the quality of each to you in detail, from the burning match test on brake lining to an explanation in detail of how the hinge in the Non-Chatter Band works. Ask for Rusco first, and be sure of quality and satisfaction. They are both guaranteed.

HOOD LACING

WITH Rusco Hood Lacing you can silence many an annoying squeak. Solid woven lacing. Cheaper and stronger than leather. Will not crack. Guaranteed to stay soft, flexible and quiet.

"If winter comes"

Some thoughts to be posted on the garage wall.

By George W. Sutton, Jr.

WHOSE automotive articles in Vanity Fair, Collier's Town & Country, Popular Mechanics, and other prominent publications, are well known to the motoring public.

BRAKES

The motorist who undertakes a season of fall and winter driving over wet and snowy roads without having his brakes thoroughly overhauled and fitted with the best brake lining obtainable is in a class with the aviator who jumps from plane to plane a mile in the air—except that the aviator gets paid for it.

A dragging brake helps you to waste money; a slipping brake helps you to collect on your accident insurance.

CLUTCHES

Friction is poison to many parts of the car, but the clutch lives on it. But, strangely enough, it dies with too little or too much. Only the proper clutch facing and proper care can keep the clutch on the job efficiently.

The motorist who drives with his foot on the clutch pedal will never win any "economy runs." The practice of "riding the clutch" means a short life and a merry one for that worthy device.

LUBRICATION

Never forget that two-thirds of all motor breakdowns are caused by improper or insufficient lubrication. When the manufacturer of your car specifies a change in the grade of oil for winter driving, he knows what he is talking about.

THE FAN BELT

To most drivers, the fan belt is only a greasy piece of leather or webbing. But to the wise motorist, it represents a combination of lungs, windpipe, smelling salts and life preserver to his engine. So, he sees that it is made of the best materials obtainable and treats it accordingly.

COLD WINDS

By all means, give your car some winter clothes, meaning a radiator and hood cover. But these things will not prevent the engine from freezing if you park the car with the wind blowing from the rear, in which case the drip pan becomes a regular wind scoop to guide the icy breezes to your water jackets. In other words, in winter always park your car facing the wind.

A discharged, or partially discharged, battery seems to have no difficulty freezing up in winter, but a fully charged one does.

Some lovely wreaths have been woven for motorists who speeded around blind curves in winter.

Denonco Non-Chatter Bands will keep your Ford from chattering

RUSCO (Denonco) Non-Chatter Bands are so made with a hinge, that the transmission lining may be renewed without removing the crank case or disconnecting the self-starter.

Instead of taking a high-priced mechanic a day to renew your transmission lining, the job can now be done quickly and at a cost which represents a big saving over former costs.

Rusco (Denonco) Non-Chatter Bands for low speed, reverse and foot brake, give smooth action. They reduce chattering to a minimum because the hinge allows them to contract in a perfect circle, gripping the transmission drums smoothly all the way round. Have them installed on your Ford.

Better carry a Tow line with you for emergencies

YOU never know when you'll need a tow. A Rusco Tow Line is easy to carry because it takes so little space. It is a real friend if you slide into a ditch or back off the road into loose sand. These are things which are likely to happen, even if you never completely break down and never have to be towed all the way home. Being towed just a few feet may be worth a dozen times the cost of the Tow Line. Hitch to any passing car and be pulled back quickly to the crown of the road!

Rusco Tow Line is legal towing length; strong as steel cable; compact as an inner tube. Only $4.00. Carry one in your car.

Clutch Facings in cold weather

A SLIPPING clutch takes the joy out of fall motoring, and makes it impossible to glide up long hills on a glorious October day. Rusco Clutch Facings never slip. They engage very smoothly and though they hold absolutely fast, they never "freeze."

Rusco Clutch Facings are 100% asbestos and brass wire. They are woven greatly oversize and compressed in hydraulic presses. This simply puts more material in the same space and insures longer, more economical wear.

Buy quality accessories

MOTOR accessories should be made as carefully as the finest cars on the road. Rusco goes on that principle. The fact that Rusco makes its own looms and asbestos yarn for Brake Lining is an indication of the unfailing quality back of all Rusco products. Satisfaction guaranteed.

WEST SIDE AT LAST TO HAVE BIG HOSTELRY

$2,000,000 Graemere to Face Garfield Park.

BY AL CHASE.

Of course the way to start this story is to remark that "at last Chicago's great west side is going to have a large, modern, high class residential hotel, something that's been needed for many years." The only trouble with using this introduction is that someone with a long memory will at once rise up and holler "old stuff; we've heard that for years."

That's true. Every six months or so a new hotel for the west side appears on the horizon and then fades away without materializing. But apparently, the contemplated $2,000,000 Graemere, planned for the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Homan avenue, looking west out over Garfield park, is really going to be built.

Plan Old Fashioned Porch.

Plans have been completed by Walter Ahlschlager, Inc., and contracts awarded to the Shank company for an unusually attractive hostelry, one that would attract attention even in the hotel districts of Hyde Park, Edgewater or Diversey parkway.

The shape is unusual in that it will zigzag across the site, leaving a large open space in front. Then the old fashioned hotel porch, so popular but so overlooked in most of our modern hotels, is ging to be a feature. Only it'll be a sort of glorified porch. It'll all be screened in summer and glazed in chill weather and part of it'll be a sort of Parisian café, for the main dining room will have French doors opening on to it and tables will be set out in the open.

Hotel Babies Catered To.

There will be a large ballroom at the east end of the ground floor, 45x90, which can be used as a lodge hall or rented to women's clubs, etc. There'll be several conference rooms for business bodies. A tile and marble swimming tank is contemplated. Of course there'll be a children's playroom and plenty of space for baby carriages is planned—for the stork isn't taboo on the west side.

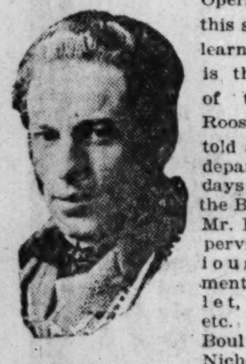
Mr. Ahlschlager's plans call for 400 rooms, divided as follows: Seventy apartments of two rooms each; thirty-five of three rooms; seven four room apartments, and 127 single rooms, all with bath. Part of the hotel will be six stories and part eight stories.

Fronts Park for a Block.

The site fronts 200 feet on Washington, 216 feet on Homan, and 120 feet on Park avenue. It was acquired through Mark Levy & Brother. Title was taken by Frank H. Foster and Harriet Mazurkiewicz.

The principal stockholders and officers of the hotel company are: Frank J. Mazurkiewicz, president, and James C. Loyth, secretary and treasurer. These same two men are now building the Sheridan Beach hotel, at Sheridan road and Chase avenue.

CHICAGOAN TO BE IN CHARGE OF NEW 'GOLDEN ROOSTER'



ADOLPH BOLM.
[Goldberg, N. Y., Photo.]

Adolph Bolm, who will have charge of the ballet for the Chicago Grand Opera company this season, it was learned yesterday is the originator of the Golden Rooster cafe idea, told about in this department a few days ago, to be in the Blum building. Mr. Bolm will supervise the various entertainments of the ballet, pantomime etc. in the new Boul Mich cafe. Nicholas K. Roerich will be the designer and decorator with Alfred S. Alschuler supervising architecture.

Mr. H. H. Blum's enlarged Blum building is rapidly nearing completion. The front walls of the old section are now being scrubbed to harmonize with the newer upper stories. H. E. Bach, building manager, announces the new cafe will open in late November. Work starts tomorrow.

Central Life Buys Site at Lake Shore Drive and Elm

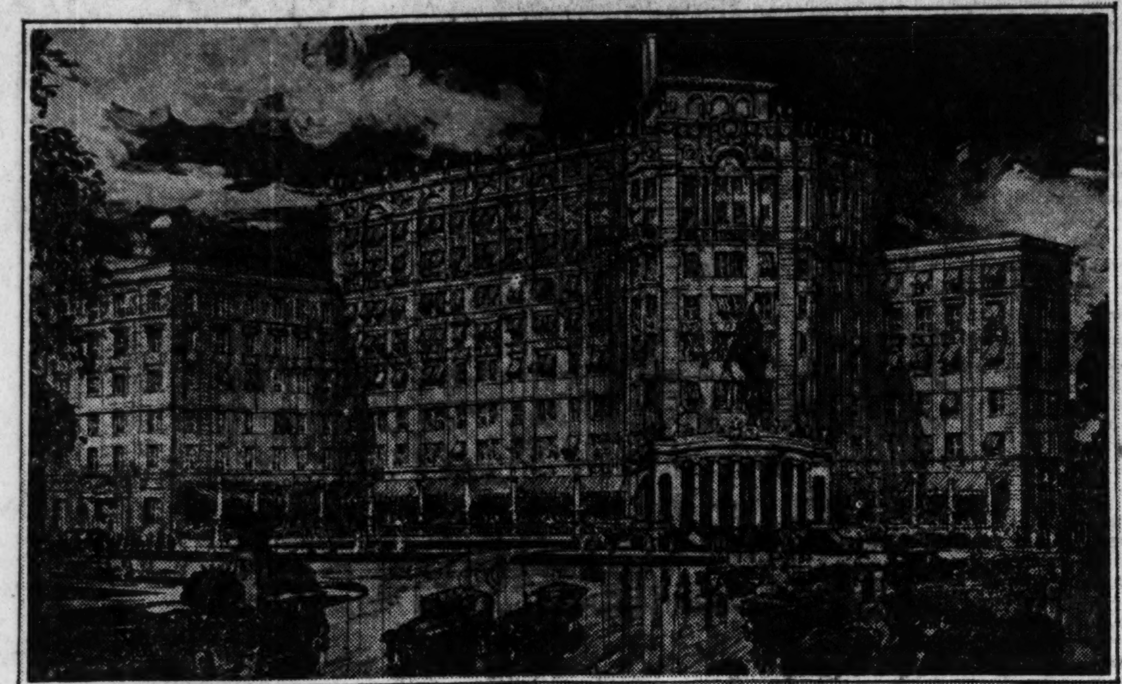
In a wired story from Rockford, printed in Thursday's TRIBUNE it was announced that the Central Life Insurance company, for many years at Ottawa, Ill., had bought ground adjoining the Drake hotel as a site for a twelve story office building. It was learned yesterday that the southwest corner of Lake Shore drive and Elm street, is the correct location. It is understood the company has bought 19,000 square feet for which approximately $19 a square foot was paid. The 38x142 on the corner was purchased from Martin Roche and William Holabird, of Holabird & Roche, architects. No plans have yet been drawn, but it is understood that when completed the new structure will be occupied by the Central Life for its headquarters.

Plans 36 Flat Building on Everett Near Fifty-fifth

John A. Hedman, decorator, has had plans prepared by Architect Paul Olsen for a $140,000 thirty-six apartment building, with four and five rooms, to be erected on the vacant 125x142 on the east side of Everett avenue, 155 feet north of 55th street. Work is to start at once.

John W. Snyder, contractor, bought from Mr. Hedman the fifteen apartments at the southwest corner of Everett and 55th, 76x150, at $95,000, subject to $37,500. He gave as part payment the vacant on which Hedman intends building. T. D. O'Hern & Co. were brokers and will manage both buildings.

$2,000,000 HOTEL GRAEMERE FOR WEST SIDE



Above is "The Graemere," the west side's long talked of and much wished for modern, high class residential hotel, which is to be built at the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Homan, extending north to Park avenue, at a cost of $2,000,000. Walter Ahlschlager, Inc., is the architect, and contracts have been awarded to the Shank company. Two of the Graemere's inside shops, opening off the hotel lounge, already have been rented to a druggist and a florist. More is told in an adjacent column.

Harry W. Hopp, who was with the Chicago Title & Trust company for the last twenty-five years, nineteen of which was spent with the escrow department, has gone into business for himself under the firm name of Harry Hopp & Co. His sons Richard D. Hopp and Harvey M. Hopp are associated with him. The new firm will do a general real estate business in offices opened at 106 North La Salle street. Its phone is Franklin 4164. Mr. Hopp retired from the Chicago Title & Trust company last August.

Alex K. Wyatt, formerly with Hodge, Chandler & Nicolson, and for many years actively connected with the industrial real estate business, announces the opening of an office under his own name, specializing in industrial real estate, at 10 South La Salle, in the Otis building. His phone is Franklin 1571.

EDWARD M. BASSETT.

Edward M. Bassett, zoning authority of New York City, and Robert Whitten, active in the zoning of Cleveland, Providence, Columbus, and Indianapolis, will be speakers at a meeting to be held at the Chicago real estate board shortly for the discussion of the proper heights of buildings for big cities. Charles M. Nichols will announce the date within a few days.

Joseph K. Brittain & Co. have moved to much larger quarters on the same floor of the building at 35 North Dearborn street.

Some Leases

The Brandt Linen company has leased from Mary Howe Straus and Caroline Howe Packard the store at 314 Upper Michigan avenue, 22x132, for ten years from Jan. 1, 1923, at a term rental reported by Hefter & Wells, who represented all parties, as $120,000. The building is being remodeled at a cost of about $100,000.

The Perlman Mercantile company has rented from Ike Bezark the three story building, 20x10, at 430-432 South State, for five years from Jan. 31, 1923, at a term rental of $50,000. The Perlman company will spend $20,000 in alterations, according to Lee Heller, executive secretary of the South State Street Improvement association.

Work Now Under Way on New Home of Chicago Tech

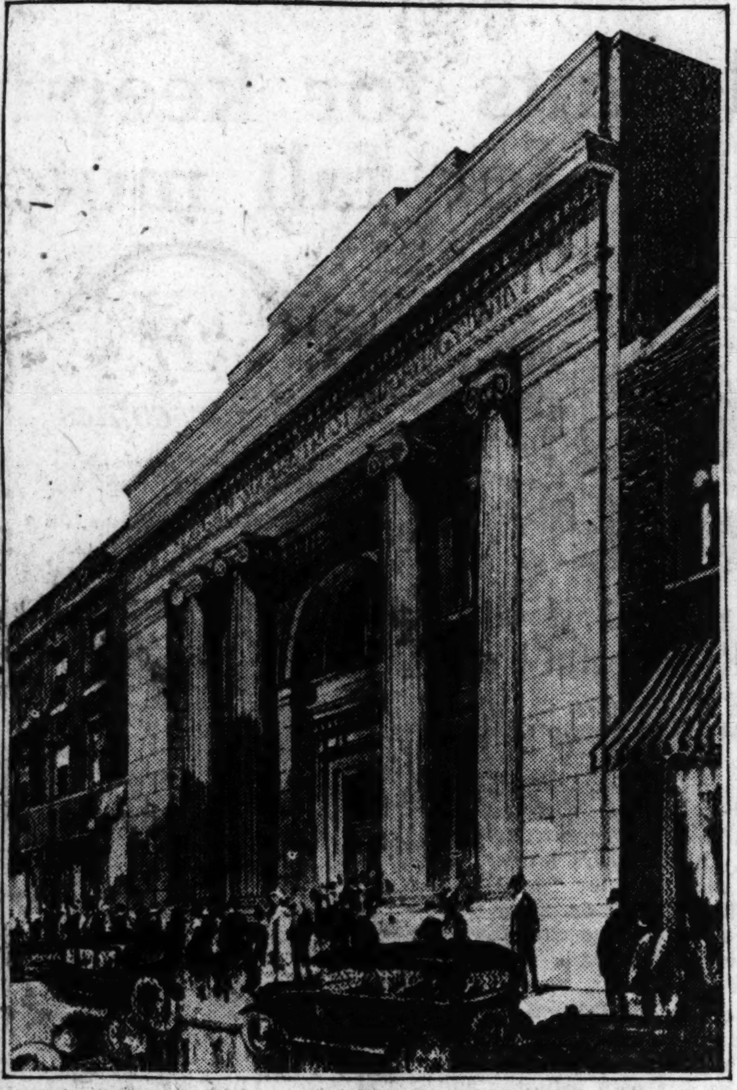
Work has started on the new home of the Chicago Technical college, a two story structure at the northwest corner of Indiana and 26th, designed by Architects Henry L. Newhouse and F. M. Bernham. The building is 81x161. The college will occupy all of the second and one-third of the first floor.

It was founded nearly twenty years ago by Charles W. Morey, at that time senior member of Morey, Newgard & Co., structural engineers. Mr. Morey is now in California, but H. R. Bigelow, director, states he'll be back in time for the opening of the new building about Dec. 1. The college is now at 2719 South Michigan.

Composer Makes $20,000 Profit on Apartment Sale

The sale by Walter E. Blaufuss, orchestra leader and composer of popular songs, of the thirty-six apartments at 7118 Merrill avenue, already reported a couple of times, seems to be a sort of "Heir at Large"—here it is again with a new angle to it. It is just learned that Mr. Blaufuss bought the property recently from Adolph Lindstrom at a reported $165,000. Which means, according to J. V. Fergus of Matteson & Conran, who represented Mr. Blaufuss, that the composer is finding his real estate ventures about as profitable as song writing, his last deal netting him a profit of approximately $20,000.

New Logan Square Trust and Savings



Work is already under way on the new $250,000 home of the Logan Square Trust and Savings bank, a few doors south of its present quarters at Milwaukee avenue and Logan boulevard. Weary & Alford have designed a building which will front on both Milwaukee and Logan and which will be completed about April 1, 1923. Fred W. Popp is president.

ILLINOIS REALTORS INDORSE PROPOSED NEW CONSTITUTION

Illinois realtors emphatically endorsed the proposed new constitution in resolutions adopted at the final session of the state convention of the Illinois Realtors' association at Decatur, Ill., yesterday. The resolutions call attention to the fact that the revenue article in the new constitution permits the diversifying of taxes, "thus lifting the great burden from real estate and the more obvious personal estates."

The resolution continues: "therefore be it resolved by the Illinois Realtors' association in convention assembled that we endorse and recommend the new constitution to the citizens of Illinois and urge them to work and vote for its adoption at the special election on Dec. 12."

Several other important resolutions were adopted. The realtors urged the ratification by the several states of an amendment to the constitution of the United States which will permit the taxation in the future of income from future issues of all public securities either by the federal government or any state which may see fit to adopt an income tax as a part of its fiscal system.

Multiple listing was recommended to all member boards for adoption. Emergency legislation to reimburse the Department of Registration and Education for the funds spent in the establishing and enforcing the state license law, was urged of the Illinois general assembly.

Easterners Plan Electric Shoe Shining Loop Shop

Shining shoes by electricity will be a feature of the new shop to be opened in the Putnam building at 14 North Clark by Klein's Rapid Shoe Repair company of New York, which has leased the 20x80 shop for ten years at a term rental of $180,000 through the Real Estate Management corporation, managers of the building. It is stated that offices are rapidly being rented and filled in the upper floors.

ADD 360 ACRES TO NORTH SHORE GARDEN OF EDEN

Golf Paradise Now to Have Four Courses.

North Shore's "Garden of Eden" is going to be built on a much larger and more elaborate scale than originally announced in this department last August. This was learned yesterday when the Garden of Eden trust estate purchased 360 additional acres to be used for a clubhouse and four golf courses—three eighteen holes and one nine. The property was bought from David Riordan of La Salle, Ill., and is on the Waukegan road about half a mile north of the twenty acre site of the Eden casino, lake, etc.

The new section will be called the Eden Valley Golf courses and privileges to play will be sold; the initial payment being $250 and the annual charges being $100.

All But Food Free to Golfers.

A $100,000 clubhouse, outdoor swimming pool, tennis courts, and other features will be built. The golf course will be laid out under the supervision of George O'Neil, chairman of the greens committee, by Joe Roseman of Westmoreland and Jack Croke of Northmore. Owners of golf privileges will be entitled to free use of everything—except food. Even the costly casino revues will be open to them without admission fee.

The miniature eighteen hole approach and putter golf course, originally announced, will be built near the casino. There'll also be a children's playground. Hollister & Root, landscape architects, are doing all the outdoor work on the entire project.

Minchin & Spitz Now Architects.

Minchin & Spitz are the new architects of all building operations. They hope to have the Casino completed for a Memorial day opening. The golf courses it is expected will be ready for playing some time in June.

The Garden of Eden, in case you didn't read the original story, is just four miles west of Glencoe, at the southeast corner of the Dundee and Waukegan roads. The Garden of Eden trust estate has opened offices in the Lytton building.

PLAN $600,000 BLOCK AT LINCOLN AND WINNEMAC

Architect Henry Sierks has drawn plans for a three story building he plans erecting at the southwest corner of Lincoln and Winnemac avenues, to contain nine stores, thirty-six apartments of six rooms each, a five story warehouse, and an eighty car garage. It will cost $600,000 and will front 250 feet on both Lincoln and Winnemac, with a depth of 340 feet. Work will start next spring. Ernest Planer is associated with Mr. Sierks in the project.

L. Buurma to Build Twelve River Forest Residences

O. C. Braese, Oak Park and River Forest realtor, has sold to L. Buurma about 1,800 feet of River Forest vacant north of the "electric house," told about in this department recently, and on this property Mr. Buurma will at once erect twelve residences. Wolf, Sexton, Harper & Trueax have drawn plans for twelve different houses in eight different styles of architecture. The sites are on Williams, north of Chicago avenue. Mr. Braese reports an active market in high class residences, especially in the Fair Oaks section of Oak Park and in River Forest.

Loop Architect to Move Into Rebuilt Residence

Architect Hermann J. Gaul, now in the Conway building and a specialist in churches, schools, hospitals, and convents, has bought the building at 228 East Superior street, east of Michigan avenue from Clarence J. Carey, through the Bowes Realty company, and will remodel after Jan. 1 for his own use.

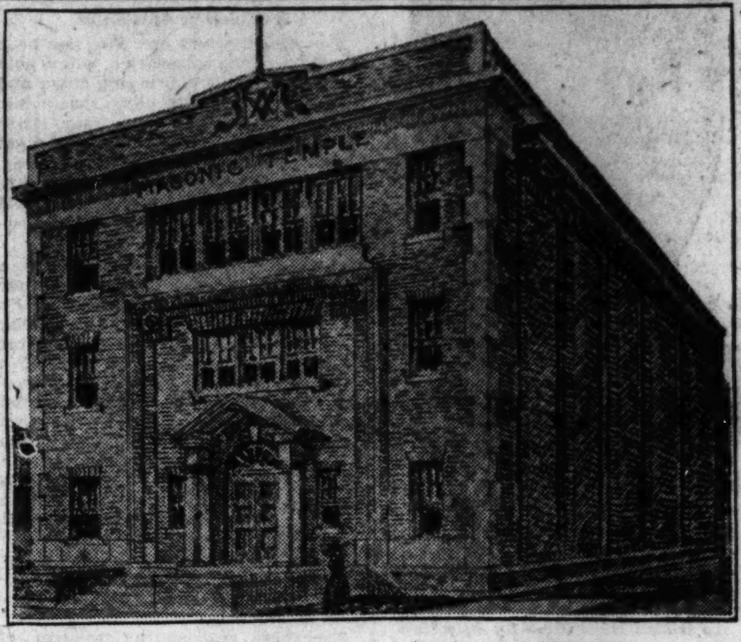
Glenn Ellyn's New Masonic Temple



It isn't because the real estate editor lives in Glen Ellyn that we print so much about the town—it's because Glen Ellyn does things, things that mean news. As a matter of fact, this department has given more space to Winnetka and Wilmette recently than other suburbs.

Anyway, Glen Ellyn Masons are going to build a new temple, and Andrew Fox, master of the lodge, has had plans drawn by Architect Robert M. Hyde for a $45,000 structure to be built at the northeast corner of Main and Anthony. Being in a residential section, face brick and cut stone trim will be used on all four sides.

There'll be parlors and a 500 seat auditorium, with complete stage, on the first floor. The main lodge hall will be on the second floor. In the basement will be a clubroom for billiards and cards, a kitchen, and a banquet hall to seat 350. It will take about five months to build.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

George M. Forman & Co. report that the $700,000 loan they have underwritten on the new Broadway hotel, told about last week in this department and also pictured in the Sunday real estate section, was not on the first unit alone, as was reported to the real estate editor by the owner and brokers, but includes as security the present three story brick building now at Broadway and Sheridan.

On Oct. 8 this department reported a sale of six apartments at Buena and Clarendon by A. Pinade to Edward Nugent for $65,000, according to the county records. Hoffman & Co. a few days before had reported that Mr. Pinade bought the flat building from R. Blome for $75,000. It looked as though Mr. Pinade had lost $10,000 and we wrote the item accordingly. Hoffman & Co. now report that their original statement of the sale was incorrect and that owing to a typographical error on their part the sale price was wrong. They state Mr. Pinade paid $62,500.

A $250,000 movie theater may be built in the rear of the fourteen one story stores Abe Rosensen and Samuel Jacobson have just bought from Henry F. Brookfield at 4335-63 Armitage avenue, 271x125, for a reported $135,000. No architect has been engaged.

CALLS HATING COMPETITOR A COSTLY HABIT

Get Acquainted with Him, Says Mark Levy.

MARK LEVY.

Mark Levy, head of the realty firm of Mark Levy & Bro., former president of the Cook County Real Estate board, and now one of the active and influential factors in the Chicago Real Estate board, lectured on Tuesday before the real estate class of the Central Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce on "Selling and Leasing Business Property."

Mr. Levy gave some advice to the embryo realtors which both they and grownup realtors might use in the selling and leasing of any old kind of realty as well as business property, and here's some of it:

"It is a mistake to suppose that you've got to fight your competitor. Nothing was ever permanently gained by fighting, for fighting of any kind is pure destruction. Your competitor doesn't have to be your enemy. He can be your friend.

You Can't Get It All.

"Competition doesn't kill trade. It builds trade, stimulates trade, and makes new trade. This is based on the natural law that no one person can suit everybody. No man can get all possible business in any community. His personality attracts some and repels others. Wherever there's a lot of business for one man there's business for somebody else.

"Don't hate your competitor. Hate is always expensive. Get acquainted with him. You may learn something. What applies to the merchant equally applies to the realtor. We've found that the more business our competitors do the more business we can do and the easier we can close our deals. How can you expect to do business on a 'one man' market?

Play the Game.

"Don't knock your competitor. It sounds bad and it is bad. Be a good sport. Play the game. Keep good natured.

"Some one once said: 'For when the Great Scorer comes to write against your name; he writes not what you won or lost but how you played the game.'"

Edgar M. Greenebaum of Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company will speak on "Mortgage Loans" next Tuesday evening.

Our Message to the Users of Lumber

History shows that the printing press has standardized the habits and customs of mankind. By the press millions of people may be told quickly what others think, what others are doing and how the world is progressing. For that reason the members of the Chicago Retail Lumber Dealers Association have published in the newspapers of Chicago and its suburbs their three great business principles:

STANDARD GRADES
GUARANTEED QUALITY
FULL MEASURE

The CRLDA trademark is known to architects, contractors and builders as the emblem of these three great principles—the sign of protection to the user of lumber. When you want lumber—go to a dealer who meets the high business standards which give him the right to use the CRLDA trademark.

Closing hog market was strong, due to liberal shipping orders. For the week outsiders purchased nearly 13,000 more than previous week, shipments being largest in three months. Receipts decreased nearly 8,000 compared with previous week, leaving net supply for packers 21,000 smaller. Saturday's top at $9.50 and average at $8.95 stood 15c above a week ago.

Estimated average weight of hogs at Chicago last week, 239 lbs, equaled the lightest week since last March, standing four lbs above a year ago and eleven lbs heavier than the ten year average. Week's average price at $8.95 stood 10c lower than the previous week and $1.25 higher than a year ago.

Including 20,600 westerns, the largest week's receipts of rangers thus far this year, cattle receipts last week totaled 10,000 larger than the previous week at 73,700. Notwithstanding the liberal supplies, prices advanced 10@50c, with best kinds showing most gain. Top steers reached $13.50, and average price of good beef steers $10.80, the highest since December, 1920.

Lamb Values Higher.

During the week lamb prices gained 75c@$1.00, with fancy fat native lamps quotable at $14.75, as against $13.75 previous Saturday. Range stock shared in part of the advance, ruling 50@75c higher, although best Idaho 80 lb fat lambs failed to pass $14.60. There was a better inquiry for feeding lambs, forcing strictly desirable knids up 50c@14.50. Sheep and yearlings advanced unevenly 50c@$1.00, choice fat yearlings reaching $12.75, aged wethers, $8.00, and light ewes, $7.50.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 29,000 cattle, 38,000 hogs, and 28,000 sheep, against 26,746 cattle, 32,545 hogs, and 24,523 sheep a week ago and 25,744 cattle, 42,786 hogs, and 27,451 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 77,000 cattle, 140,000 hogs, and 103,000 sheep, against 62,901 cattle, 167,879 hogs, and 103,012 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 34,000 to 50,000. J. M. Waters marked 34,000, George Chandler 35,000, E. S. Waterbury, E. R. Centry, and Edward Morris 37,000, W. H. Overman 39,000, F. W. Waddell 40,000, F. R. Burrows 42,000, H. Pattison 44,000, and A. G. Welhener 50,000.

Do not contemplate intensive methods but the building up a clientele of small repeat buyers, principally among the very large number of prosperous wage earners in this district. The placing of some tax free issues and working up a clientele of larger buyers would be the natural development in this market.

INVESTORS GUIDE

Answers are based upon information which THE TRIBUNE believes correct, but beyond care in securing it THE TRIBUNE assumes no responsibility.

Real Estate Mortgage Bonds.

The purchaser of real estate mortgage bonds should bear in mind that there are three types of such bonds in common use. They are the real estate mortgage bond, the debenture bond and the leasehold mortgage bond.

The real estate mortgage bond is secured by a mortgage or trust conveyance of real estate. It may be either a first or junior lien on real property held in fee. In case of a first lien the value of the property mortgaged should be sufficiently in excess of the bond issue to assure safety. In the case of a junior lien the amount of all prior liens should be definitely known and the margin of security over and above the prior mortgages should be ample to afford safety for holders of the junior mortgage bonds after all prior liens shall have been taken care of. The same is true in respect ot the margin of safety in earnings.

Debenture mortgage bonds usually are a general lien upon the assets of the company. These assets include both property and mortgages owned and it is of great importance to the investor to know the exact character of the assets themselves. Bond circulars frequently are misleading and give the impression that these bonds are a first lien on stipulated assets, whereas, if all facts were known, they are a lien upon all assets, but not the only lien. It may be that a heavy mortgage already exists on the property which may render the bond security almost valueless. If prior mortgages do exist on the property there should be a sufficient margin to safeguard the bondholder, for such mortgages are, of course, prior to the claims of the bondholders. If the amounts of mortgages and bonds both are large, a very large income is necessary to assure safety of interest payments on both. Such bonds should be scrutinized very carefully and the entire situation thoroughly understood and analyzed before investing in them.

Leasehold mortgage bonds in general do not enjoy a very good reputation. It has been said that the mortgage on a leasehold is in the nature of a second mortgage, the annual charge of ground rent under a leasehold corresponding to the interest paid on the first mortgage. In general, if the lease is a recent one the full value is absorbed in the ground rent, so that the building alone is the actual security. There are certain exceptions in which leasehold mortgage bonds have valuable security, such as in centrally located business property in Chicago under old leases where the land value has had more than the normal rise in value since the lease was made and where the lease is not subject to revaluation. These bonds are, however, the exception and not the rule. Leasehold mortgage loans are prohibited by law in most European countries and their record in this country is not such as to make them an attractive or popular form of investment.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

A spotty market, without definite price trend, featured the local unlisted securities. Packard Motor common, after selling at 18¾, sold down to a close of 17¾ to 18. The preferred was easier at 91½ to 92½. Paige Detroit common was active and strong, sales ranging between 25 and 26¼. At the close stock was offered at 25¾, with bids of 25. A good demand continued for Fairbanks Morse common, which gained a point at 53½ to 54½. Bucyrus common at 29 to 30, and the preferred at 99 to 102, showed little change. Ford of Canada was wanted at 400, with sales at 405, up 5 points. Bids of 44 for Hurley Machine common failed to bring out stock under 45. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply at 60 to 61 showed a loss of 1½ points.

Northwetesern Yeast again sold at 345. Sales of Creamery Package common ranged between 32½ and 34. Brunswick-Balke-Collender was wanted at 99, with odd lot offerings at 102. Transactions in Albert Pick preferred were made at 96½ and 97½. Avery common was offered for sale at 22, with no bids showing. Motor Wheel gained a minor fraction at 12¼ to 12¾. McCord common was inactive at 4¾ to 5, while the preferred was offered for sale at 33, without a bid. Little interest was shown in the Goodyear issues, the common being quoted 9¾ to 10½ and the preferred 28 to 29; prior preference preferred 61 to 64.

Little interest was shown in the sugar issues and closing prices show few changes in value; bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 6@6½; Godchaux preferred at 81 to 85; Holland-St. Louis, 5¼@5¾; Michigan, 6@6¼; Utah, 3¼@3¾.

On a light volume of trade the Public Utility market generally advanced to slightly higher levels. Sales in American Light and Traction common ranged between 147 and 149, up 2 points. American Gas and Electric common improved to sales at 177. American Power and Light common at 136 to 139 showed little change. The preferred was quoted 89 to 91. Cities Service issues were neglected and unchanged, the common ranging between 200 and 204; preferred between 70 and 70½; bankers shares between 20¼ and 21. The Appalachian Power issues were in demand, the common closing at 28 to 29, up 1 point, while the preferred was wanted at 130 and no stock offered for sale. Adirondack Electric Power common was quoted 25 to 27 and the preferred 96 to 98. Sales of Western Power common ranged between 47 and 49.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Several lines of cotton goods were withdrawn from the market today pending an upward price revision. Yarns are being marked higher. Burlaps were barely steady for the day, the demand being light. Wool markets were firmer and wool goods tended higher. Knit goods for immediate use were more active.

Rare Business Opportunity

A nationally known manufacturer is considering the disposal of one of his only stamped metal products, this product being somewhat foreign to principal line. It is being manufactured and marketed successfully, and is a complete unit. It is a recognized necessity in banks, retail stores, theatres, department stores, and many other lines, and numbers as its users the most prominent business institutions in the country.

All patents, dies, tools, selling records, in fact, the complete manufacturing and distributing unit, will be sold outright in its entirety.

Competition in this field is less than in any other mechanical specialty line. This proposition affords a rare opportunity for a manufacturer to add to his products a nationally known, trade-marked article which enjoys an enviable reputation, and a veritable monopoly in its field.

A Message to Business Men

CASH WILL LESSEN WORRY AND MAKE MORE MONEY THAN ANY OTHER ASSETS

One reason why business men worry is because of uncertainties—every guess is a gamble and every time you gamble you worry and lose efficiency. Hit-or-miss methods are costly and they are writing the word "Bankruptcy" across the books of concerns which might otherwise succeed.

How much better to gather the facts—to reason out to a greater degree of certainty many problems that we guess at, and which could be much more accurately determined with thought and study. We forget that there is always a newer, better way to do things.

If you knew that all of your customers would pay you, say, that $100,000 of accounts which they owe you on a given date, you could make certain plans for the use of that money—you could arrange your purchases so that your bills could be discounted at that time, or buy more merchandise at cash discount prices and make more sales and profits.

This uncertainty can be reduced to positive knowledge by the use of our service, because you can sell us those Accounts Receivable on any day and every day and get the cash therefor and let us wait for the indefinite date of their payment.

Maybe we can help you to make your profits more certain—and bigger, and that you can be easier of mind, relieved of financial worry and find a better way of living your business life.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The sharp break in Great Northern ore yesterday created much discussion in trading circles as to the probable reason for such sustained selling. On a turnover of 11,600 shares the stock went from a high mark of 37⅞ to 33½, closing at 34, a net decline of 3⅝ points. A trustee of the Great Northern ore properties said he knew no reason for the sharp break. The meeting of trustees to consider the semi annual dividend is not expected to be held until next month, but the dividend meetings are held at no specified time and the dividend is not payable until December. Nothing could be learned concerning the report that the present dividend rate of 4 per cent was to be changed.

Mexican Petroleum's rise to 234¼, a new high for the year and the best price since 1919, was accompanied by a reiteration of the now familiar report of an extra dividend and a new offer to the minority holders of Mexican Petroleum to exchange their stock for Pan-American B shares on the basis of one share of Mexican Petroleum for two and a half shares of Pan-American.

The earnings statement of the Studebaker corporation for the third quarter, to be made public Oct. 31, will be excellent, according to a leading official. The company will produce and sell 20,000 cars in the last quarter which also is characterized as good. For three months ended Sept. 30, net profits are estimated to have exceeded $5,250,000, or $8.50 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends. Including the first half's net profits of $11,156,400, or $18.01 a share on the common, shipments for nine months aggregated 88,000 cars and net profits exceeded $16,400,000, or $26.50 a share on the common. It is estimated that at least $3.50 a share should be added to the nine months' total, bringing the aggregate for the year close to $30 a share.

An official statement, issued by the Sinclair company, regarding the striking of water in the Teapot Dome territory of Wyoming, states that the water which has been struck is without importance, since the drilling will be continued in the second sand, which in previous instances has shown a good flow of oil. The statement says the results of drilling in Teapot Dome have been even more satisfactory than anticipated.

When the Norfolk and Western directors meet on Oct. 24, either an extra in cash or an increase in the regular rate is expected. The Pennsylvania dividend meeting is scheduled for the following day. Pennsylvania is a large holder of Norfolk. An increase in the Norfolk rate would permit Pennsylvania to put its dividend back to the old rate of 6 per cent.

Interests which have been following the development of Missouri Pacific were disappointed last week when the matter of a resumption of the dividend on the preferred stock was not discussed at the recent directors' meeting. President Bush stated that the lines have been kept comparatively free from congestion and that recent reports from traffic representatives indicated that there was a continued improvement in general business conditions. With the restoration of trains annulled during the height of the coal strike it is expected passenger traffic also will be stimulated.

According to a prominent railroad banker, the hearing on Oct. 26 before the interstate commerce commission for the purpose of considering the question of competitive bidding for the issuance of railroad securities authorized by the commission, will only be a perfunctory matter. It was explained that all three interested parties, the commission, the railways, and the banks, are in reality opposed to the proposition, and that the hearing was merely called to dispose of the matter formally.

Wall street has embraced the Coué epigram with a slight variation. The slogan now is, "Day by day, in every way, business is getting better and better." Now and then it gets a little physical evidence that the hopes are coming true. One of these rolled in yesterday in the announcement by the Singer Manufacturing company that its plant has been put on a 49½ hour per week basis, the greatest operating ratio since the war.

A new loan of $5,000,000, five year, 6½ per cent gold bonds to the Colombia is under discussion in New York and probably will be announced during the early part of the week. Minister of Finance Olaya, of that country, who has been in Washington in consultation with officials of the state department, arrived in New York yesterday for the purpose of carrying on the negotiations with the bankers. It was understood that two banking groups are seeking the bonds and that extremely sharp competition for them has developed within the last day or so.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit acount reported for the week ending October 18, by 250 banks in 33 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,144,513,000, an increase of 14.3 per cent compared with a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account amounted to $1,119,834,000, an increase of 3.4 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

Negotiations are under way calling for the sale of the unissued treasury stock of the Invincible Oil corporation, totaling about 300,000 shares. The purpose of the sale of this stock is to provide funds with which to retire the company's $2,799,000 of 8 per cent sinking fund bonds, which are redeemable upon 30 days' notice at 110 and which are now quoted in the open market at close to the redeemable figure; also to provide the company with a substantial amount of fresh working capital with which to carry on further development operations.

An advance in tire prices is imminent, according to leading rubber company executives. Prices now are said to be the lowest in the history of the industry, more than 40 per cent below the 1920 peak levels, and about 28 per cent below the 1921 peak price. The rubber market has shown decided strength the last few weeks.

A jury in United States District court at Richmond, Va., yesterday returned a verdict of $113,675 against the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., defendant in a breach of contract suit in which the Franklin Sugar Refining company, a Pennsylvania corporation, was the plaintiff.

There were 442 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 390 in the preceding week and 407 during the corresponding week last year.

A syndicate consisting of Tucker, Anthoy & Company, Otis & Company and Central Trust Company of Illinois, are offering at par an issue of $5,000,000 Jacob Dold Packing Company First [closed] mortgage 20-year 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, due Nov. 1, 1942.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Grain traders were more disposed to look for two-sided markets for a few days. Indications are that arrivals of corn will increase and the new buying is not coming into the market as fast as the bull leaders would like. Sharp fluctuations are to be expected.

A number of the large local traders have unloaded their wheat and corn the past few days and several turned bearish while others remain friendly to the buying side on breaks, although they are not looking for large recessions in value from the finish Saturday.

With a decline of 1½c to 2c in cash corn and ½c to 1c in oats premiums here and an easing in premiums at the seaboard there is a feeling among cash handlers that business will be improved should there be a further decline. The drop in oat premiums yesterday brought a better demand, with sales of 100,000 bu here for export.

Lake and rail rates on grain from Chicago to the seaboard are now ½c higher than all rail and exporters are shipping grain all rail.

December wheat has declined 6¼c, corn 3⅝c, and oats 2½c from the high point of the week, which some traders consider break enough for the present, while others think there should be a further moderate recession followd by a good rally.

Expectations are that stocks of corn here will show a decrease for the week, although receipts were in excess of the shipments.

Considerable selling of December wheat and corn and buying of May was a feature of the trading. There was also large buying of December and selling of May corn at ¾@1c difference by several of the largest commission houses, who were credited with representing cash interests.

Indications are for a better supply of cars for moving grain in the west. Omaha wired that more cars are being supplied, the Burlington sending hundreds of empties to western Nebraska and eastern Colorado. Eastern roads are ordered to give the Union Pacific fifty boxcars a day to move potatoes. These cars are to stay in the Omaha district, and will take grain with the advent of the first cold weather.

There was selling of December corn by houses with extensive connections in western Iowa and Nebraska, said to be against prospects of a better movement.

A Buffalo message said there was 10,000,000 bu of grain afloat there and the elevators there were filled with grain. This is a higher estimate than received early in the week.

Bert Schwarz, who for four months has been in Europe, is back in Chicago. He says Europe will have to buy a lot of grain and he favors the constructive side of the market.

Arthur Leask, who was injured by an automobile at Adams and Wabash avenue a few days ago, expects to be able to leave the hospital within a few days. His left arm was broken and he received painful cuts on the head.

The first car of new corn from Iowa to reach Chicago this season was in yesterday It graded No. 4 yellow, tested 19.20 per cent, and sold at 66⅝c, or ¼c over December. On a retest it was 19.5 per cent.

Grain deliveries at primary markets the last week were 27,457,000 bu, the largest at this time since 1918, when they were 29,566,000 bu. There was an increase of 10 per cent, or 2,500,000 bu, for the week, or 13 per cent, or more than 3,000,000 bu over last year, and of 3,124,000 bu, or 14 per cent over the five year average. This shows that a large business is under way, despite claim of car shortage. Railroads in the west are loading 200 to nearly 500 cars of grain a day, which is moved in various directions The Burlington railroad is averaging 300 cars a day west of the Missouri river, and cannot supply the demand for cars.

RAILROAD NOTES

Officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis report a demand for cars exceeding any normal precedent outside of the war years. Production of coal is being limited by the lack of shipping facilities, but in the face of this there is a tremendous volume of coal moving and reserves are gradually being built up. The grain shipments by rail from Chicago and the west are heavy and packing-house products are being shipped in fair volume.

Officials of southern roads report a big increase in tonnage carried as compared to last year, and also confirm the reports of officials of northern roads that the general increase is almost unprecedented. Shipments of cotton and farm products are fair; there is good sized run of wheat to the Gulf, and this may increase, owing to congestion of traffic gateways on the Atlantic seaboard. Coal is moving in big volume.

A survey of the movement of revenue freight during the four weeks of Sept. 3 to Sept. 30 shows that there were 3,740,33 cars loaded with all classes of revenue freight, an increase of 359,759 cars, or 10.61 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Of this number coal loadings totaled 689,056 cars.

Plan of Reorganization by I. & G. W. Approved

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—Approving plans for reorganization of the International-Great Northern railroad in Texas, the interstate commerce commission today authorized the new corporation created following a receivership sale to issue a total of $44,150,000 par value in stocks and bonds. The proceeds will be applied to an interest charge of $2,199,000, which the system must meet annually, and the reorganized company will acquire ownership by security exchanges of the Austin Dam and Suburban railroad and of the Galveston, Houston and Henderson road

The property, the commission estimated, will be able to maintain solvency from the earnings of its lines which are located in Texas and the plan of reorganization practically as proposed by receivers was allowed to go into effect.

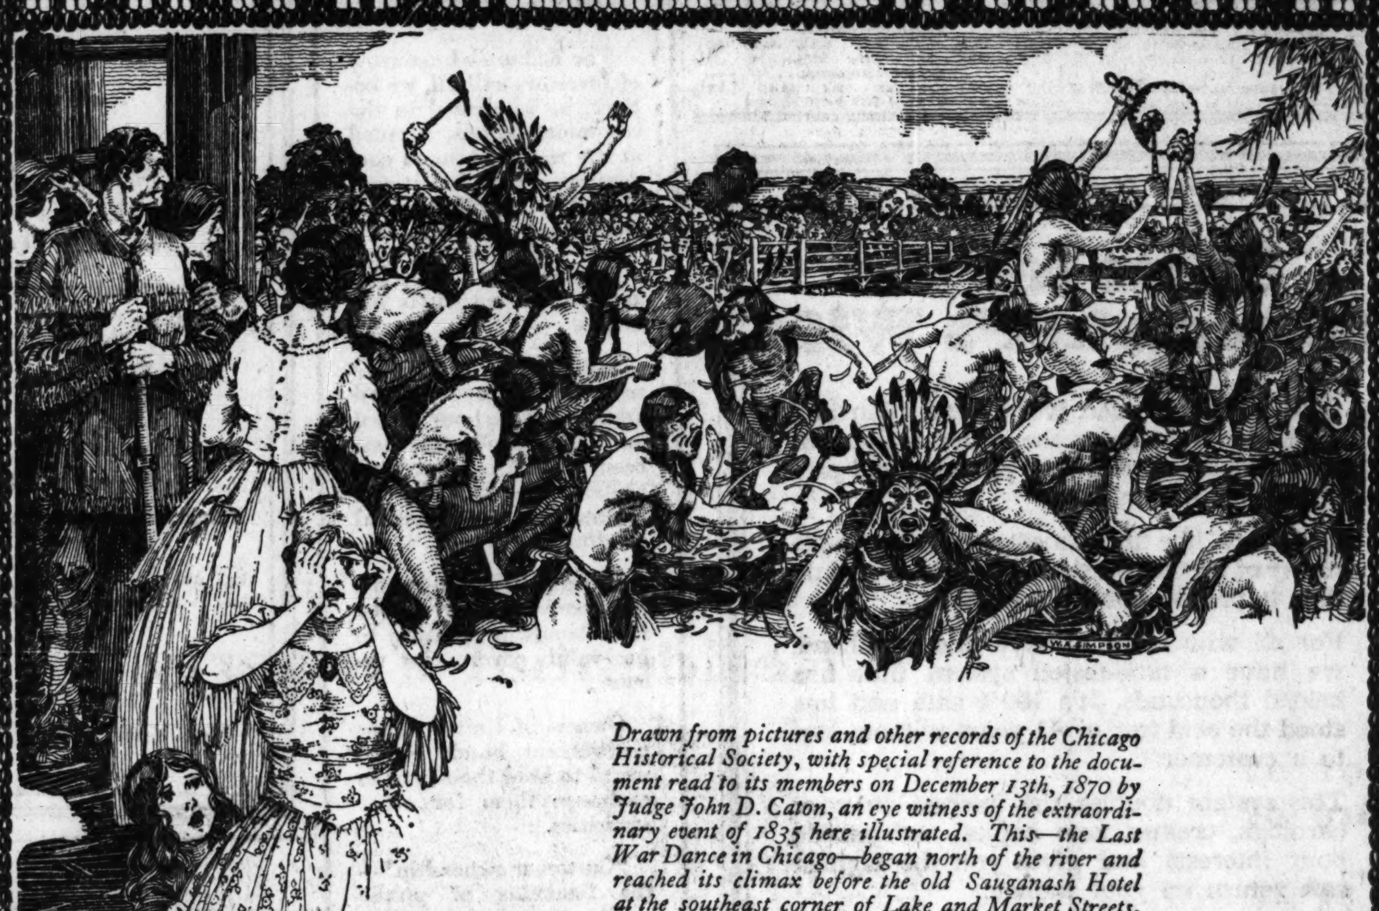
1835



Drawn from pictures and other records of the Chicago Historical Society, with special reference to the document read to its members on December 13th, 1870 by Judge John D. Caton, an eye witness of the extraordinary event of 1835 here illustrated. This—the Last War Dance in Chicago—began north of the river and reached its climax before the old Sauganash Hotel at the southeast corner of Lake and Market Streets.

At the Last War Dance in Chicago

IN 1835 — in front of the Sauganash Hotel where H. O. Stone first lived in Chicago — occurred an Indian ceremony of such savagery that the scene ever remained vivid in the memories of the pioneers who witnessed it.

H. O. Stone stands in the doorway of the famous old inn, rifle in hand. For, as history records, when the Indians saw the women there they redoubled their efforts to terrorize, so that even the brave frontiersmen feared the hideous orgy might at any moment be turned into actual massacre.

H.O. STONE & CO. CHICAGO
FOUNDATION LAID IN 1835

A Frantic Farewell to Their Native Soil

On August 18th, 1835 — just seven months after H. O. Stone arrived in Chicago — this war dance took place; a spectacle such as this city never witnessed but once.

The Government agent, Major Sibley, had ordered the Pottawattomies, Ottawas, Chippewas and other tribes to meet him at Chicago, receive payment for their lands and depart west. Five thousand Indians assembled here and their braves numbering eight hundred, with implements of war, paint, uncouth music, yells and contortions, gave vent in this last dance to their rage and bitter regrets. It was their final ceremony on their native soil — the start on the long, long trail — the Indians' last trail — to the Setting Sun.

But What Can This Event of 1835 Mean to Investors?

From the last Indian dance to modern investments may seem a far cry. Yet there is, indeed, an intimate relation. For H. O. Stone's first real estate investment was made months before this event took place and through it and subsequent investments he laid the foundation of H. O. STONE & CO.

So the story of this savage event must bring home to many an investor seeking safety the fact that there is one investment House whose record of honorable service dates back to the very beginning of Chicago — one House whose dependability is shown by history.

That every First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bond ever sold by us has proven a safe investment is the result of our eighty-seven years of experience — experience by which you can profit today in planning, deciding upon and making your investments. We invite you to do so.

SELLING DRIVE FORCES GRAINS TO LOWER LEVEL

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of the grain markets showed that the heavy selling for profits on the recent bulge had not yet been thoroughly digested. Prices were on the downgrade a good part of the day, with further liquidation by longs in the December deliveries which went to a wider discount under the May. There was also general evening up on the part of local longs and also some bear pressure, local sentiment being less bullish than of late.

Closing trades showed net losses of ¼@2⅛c on wheat, while corn was off ¼@2c, oats ⅛@1c, and rye 1⅝@1⅞c, with December leading in all grains. Lard finished unchanged to 2½c higher, and ribs unchanged.

While all grains sold at new high figures for the season the last week, the bull movement was checked by heavy profit taking sales and at the last wheat was 1¾c lower to ¼c higher, as compared with the finish the previous week. Corn was ⅛c higher to ¾c lower, oats ½@1⅝c lower and rye ⅞@1¼c lower. Lard was unsettled, with October 7½c lower and the deferred futures 15c higher. Ribs were nominally unchanged.

Wheat Situation Easy.

Aside from the fact that wheat has had a good bulge of late there was nothing in the situation to cause any uneasiness amongst the bulls. Winnipeg showed a strong undertone and Liverpool was unchanged to ½d lower or about in line with expectations. At the same time little is heard regarding demand, which causes some to believe the advance was too fast. Commission houses on the whole continue to advocate purchases on the declines.

Corn and oats were affected mainly by the action of wheat and reports of a better car situation in spots in the central west with indications of larger arrivals in the immediate future. Basis on cash corn was ¼@½c lower as compared with the finish of the previous day. The trade look for a fair decrease in the visible supply of corn to be shown in Monday's statement. Country offerings were not large.

Rye was sold by local traders and the northwest and while receiving good support at times closed well toward the bottom. The two northwestern markets had 150 cars.

Provisions Hold Steady.

Provisions held within naarrow limits. Trade was very light and undertone about steady. Hogs showed little change. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date aggregate 3,962,000 against 3,689,000 last year. Deliveries on October contracts were 450,000 lbs. lard. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export business in grain at the seaboard was considerably restricted, although there were moderate sales of wheat and corn.

Chicago handlers sold 8,000 bu wheat, 20,000 bu corn, 100,000 bu oats, and 50,000 bu rye to the seaboard for export, part of the rye bringing 13¾c over December, track Baltimore. Domestic shipping sales were 24,000 bu wheat, 120,000 bu corn, 156,000 bu oats, and 5,000 bu barley.

No charters for grain to eastern ports were reported, as it is relatively ½c per bu cheaper to ship all rail.

Premiums of hard winter wheat advanced ½@1c, with No. 1 hard selling at 5½@6c over and No. 2 yellow hard at 4½c over December, while red winter was unchanged, with No. 2 at 6½c over the future. Receipts, 46 cars. Outside markets were easy, with prices unchanged to 1c lower.

Demand for cash corn was less urgent and premiums ½@1c lower as compared with the close on Friday, and 2c under the outside figure on that day. No. 2 mixed sold at 5⅝c over early and 5c over December at the last, while yellow dropped from 6 to 5¼c over the future. Receipts, 240 cars. Outside markets were generally ½@1c lower.

Offerings of cash oats were not large, but demand was slow and the basis ½@1c lower, with No. 2 white 2@3c and No. 3 white 1@2c over December at the last. Receipts, 56 cars.

Home Financing of Public Utility Growth Favored by the Investment Bankers

The Tribune's huge army of investors will all, we believe, be interested in the recommendations adopted at the recent national convention of the Investment Bankers' Association, at Del Monte, California.

A vigorous campaign against fake securities was begun.

Investors in real estate securities were warned against buying bonds based on inflated land values, excessive building costs and rentals too high to be maintained under normal conditions.

Buyers of foreign securities were warned against fake bonds purporting to be valid government issues.

Owners of United States government bonds were urged to hold them; not to exchange them for other securities.

"Customer ownership"—the financing of public utility growth by selling shares direct to home investors, rather than by bonds based on mortgages, was strongly endorsed. The Association declared its faith in the fundamental soundness of the public utility business, including gas and transportation as well as power and light.

These recommendations represent the judgment of the best informed group of men in America with regard to the investment of capital and savings under present and probable future conditions. They confirm the wisdom of the more than 20,000 Wisconsin men and women and the hundreds in Illinois and other states who during the past six years have bought the notes and shares of Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co. and Wisconsin Gas & Electric Co. direct from these companies.

Buyers of our 7% cumulative preferred shares now on sale are getting a high grade permanent income investment at a low price as compared with other securities of equal merit. These shares at par, $100 each, yielding $7 a year in cash dividends paid quarterly, as dependable as bank interest, are a decided bargain. You can buy them either for cash or on monthly payments of $5 or more per share. Either way you get 7% on every dollar invested from the start. Mail orders filled promptly by registered letter.

Electric Power

DO you know that the business of supplying electric power is one of the most firmly established and steadily growing industries in the United States, —that the demands for electric power have been doubled in the past five years,

—that not far from one-half the mechanical power used in American factories is now supplied by power companies, —that a large proportion of American homes desiring electric service are not yet supplied,

—that the coal strike of 1922 has emphasized the reliable character of the power and lighting service supplied by the power companies,

—that nearly one-half of the immense quantity of power supplied by Central Station Companies is manufactured by water power, —that large scale electric production and extensive transmission systems are saving the public huge amounts in lighting and power bills,

—that these agencies are helping to develop the growth and prosperity of your state and your community?

The extraordinary growth of the electric power business in the past is, in all probability, an index of still more remarkable growth to come, in which YOU may participate.

Mr. Manufacturer:

Are you permanently located? Will your factory be "zoned out"? Have you learned from experience that an employe will produce more in a clean, well located plant? (Henry Ford learned that, years ago.)

Do you know that the big dividend paying industrial plants of this country are not located in the slums?

Then why not locate in "Ravenswood, where the sun shines?" In the heart of Chicago's best skilled labor market, with surface, elevated and C. & N. W. Ry. transportation.

The eleven acre tract at Lawrence Ave., Lincoln St., Argyle St., and C. & N. W. Ry. is offered for the first time in small parcels on very liberal terms, at a price that will appeal to the most conservative buyer. We can arrange to finance your building if desired.

There is a switch track on the property, available for serving a large area of the tract.

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special].—That the week-end movement of prices on the stock exchange should have been hesitant and irregular caused no surprise. Friday had been marked by repurchase at the lower prices of stocks which had been sold earlier for a speculative profit.

But it had also been evident during the week that a good many realizing sales had been under way, and comparison of today's closing prices with those of the preceding week gives the net result. There have been scatteered advances for the week, some of them of considerable magniture, but the general trend has been downward. The variation in the losses incurred by different shares is fairly proportioned to the scope of the professional speculation for the rise which had shortly preceded this week's reaction.

Bond Prices Also Decline

Prices on the bond market also have lost ground during the week, though as a rule not heavily In view of the continued relative ease in money rates, it is not easy to explain this movement, except as embodying withdrawal of their capital from such investments by business men who now foresee better opportunity to use it in their own business

Sales for a similar purpose by commercial banking institutions provide the only convincing explanation for the week's declines of ⅛@⅞ point in most of the older Liberty bonds. Yet it must be said that coincidence of these sales at prices under par, with applications of $1,400,000,000 by cash subscribers to the new 4¼s at par, is a bit difficult to account for. Establishment of a new high record at $100.14 by the new bonds was the feature in today's early dealings, the main trend of which was upward. Most of the gains, however, were of a fractional nature.

Foreign Exchange Is Unsettled.

Foreign exchange ended the week in a state of much unsettlement, for which Wall street had various theories to offer. The most plausible explanation is that continental Europe is financing purchases of American produce on a much larger scale than a year ago, because of the poor results of this year's European harvests. The German mark distinguished itself by seeking a new low price of .02¼ of a cent, making it cost 4,444 marks to buy a dollar, as compared with 4,000 on Friday and 1,666 at the end of September.

It is possible, but as yet scarcely probable, that the weakness in exchange (outside of sterling) has been emphasized by doubt as to what this country's merchandise trade balance in account with Europe will be when the new tariff rates are having their full effect.

New York Bank Loans Rise.

An increase of $126,765,000 in the loans of the New York clearing house banks, shown in today's weekly statement, is accounted for in part by payments for the new issue of United States 4¼ per cent bonds. Net demand deposits increased $54,376,000, and time deposits $13,781,000. A surplus reserve of $23,953,720 supplanted last week's deficit of $2,332,280. As a result of the financing, United States deposits increased from $25,833,000 a week ago to $110,802,000. Details of the statement follow:

HUNDREDS of men can design a factory for you. Getting the factory—the one that will do the work you want it to do in the best way at the least cost—is a different matter. Our career as Engineers and Architects is built on this difference—in seeing it ourselves and proving it to others.

"Gosh! I'll be terrible busy for the next few weeks. I've got billions and billions of these leaves to decorate—an' every one has to be a work of art—worth putting in a scrap book, an' then, when I get 'em all done perfectly beautiful, folks will say 'How purty,' and then rake 'em up in a pile and burn 'em up. Gosh!"

Fastidious women everywhere are using these famous skin treatments

Begin today to give your skin the treatment that suits its special needs

Fastidious women everywhere use these famous treatments to keep their skin clear and radiant

A BEAUTIFUL skin, fresh, smooth, fragrant with health and well-being—do you realize that with the right care you too can have this charm?

Just what type of skin have you? Is it dry or oily? Fine or large-pored? Sensitive or resistant? Is it subject to blackheads? To blemishes? Does it lack color? These are some of the things you must consider in deciding the right treatment for your skin.

There is a Woodbury treatment for each different type of skin

Don't imagine that the same treatment will do for every skin. The treatment that is right for one type of skin may be absolutely unsuited to another.

Three of the famous Woodbury treatments for different types of skin are given on this page. These and other complete treatments for each type of skin and its needs you will find in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Why the skin of your face requires special care

It is a well-known scientific fact that the nerves which control the blood-supply are more sensitive in the skin of your face than elsewhere—and that consequently the skin of your face is more liable to disturbances.

For this reason the soap which you use daily on your face should be of the best quality obtainable.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today and begin now to give your skin the special treatment that will keep it fine in texture, lovely in color, smooth and clear, as a woman's skin should be.

A 25 cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for general cleansing use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles, make it ideal for general use.

Send today for a complete set of the Woodbury skin preparations

For 25 cents we will send you a complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing samples of

> Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Cream, Cold Cream, and Facial Powder, together with the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

Send for this set today. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The right treatment for a skin that is too oily

FIRST cleanse your face thoroughly by washing it in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leaving the skin slightly damp.

Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Use this treatment for a skin that is subject to blackheads

Apply hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened. Now with a rough washcloth, work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse with clear, hot water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry carefully.

How to take care of a skin that is pale and sallow

One night a week fill your bowl full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the bowl and cover your head and the bowl with a heavy bath towel so that no steam can escape. Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into your skin with an upward and outward motion. Rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold. Finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

A scientist's suggestions on the proper washing of the face

Always wash out your washcloth after using and if possible hang it where it will sun as well as air.

If your skin is at all sensitive, dry it with a soft, rather than a rough towel.

Make it a rule to give your face a thorough washing with soap every night just before retiring. It is injurious to let dirt remain on your face overnight. Always rinse your face three or four times with clear, not soapy water. If possible use running water for rinsing.

If you happen to live in a section where the water is very hard, boil the water in which you wash your face.

This is the simplest way to convert hard water into soft.

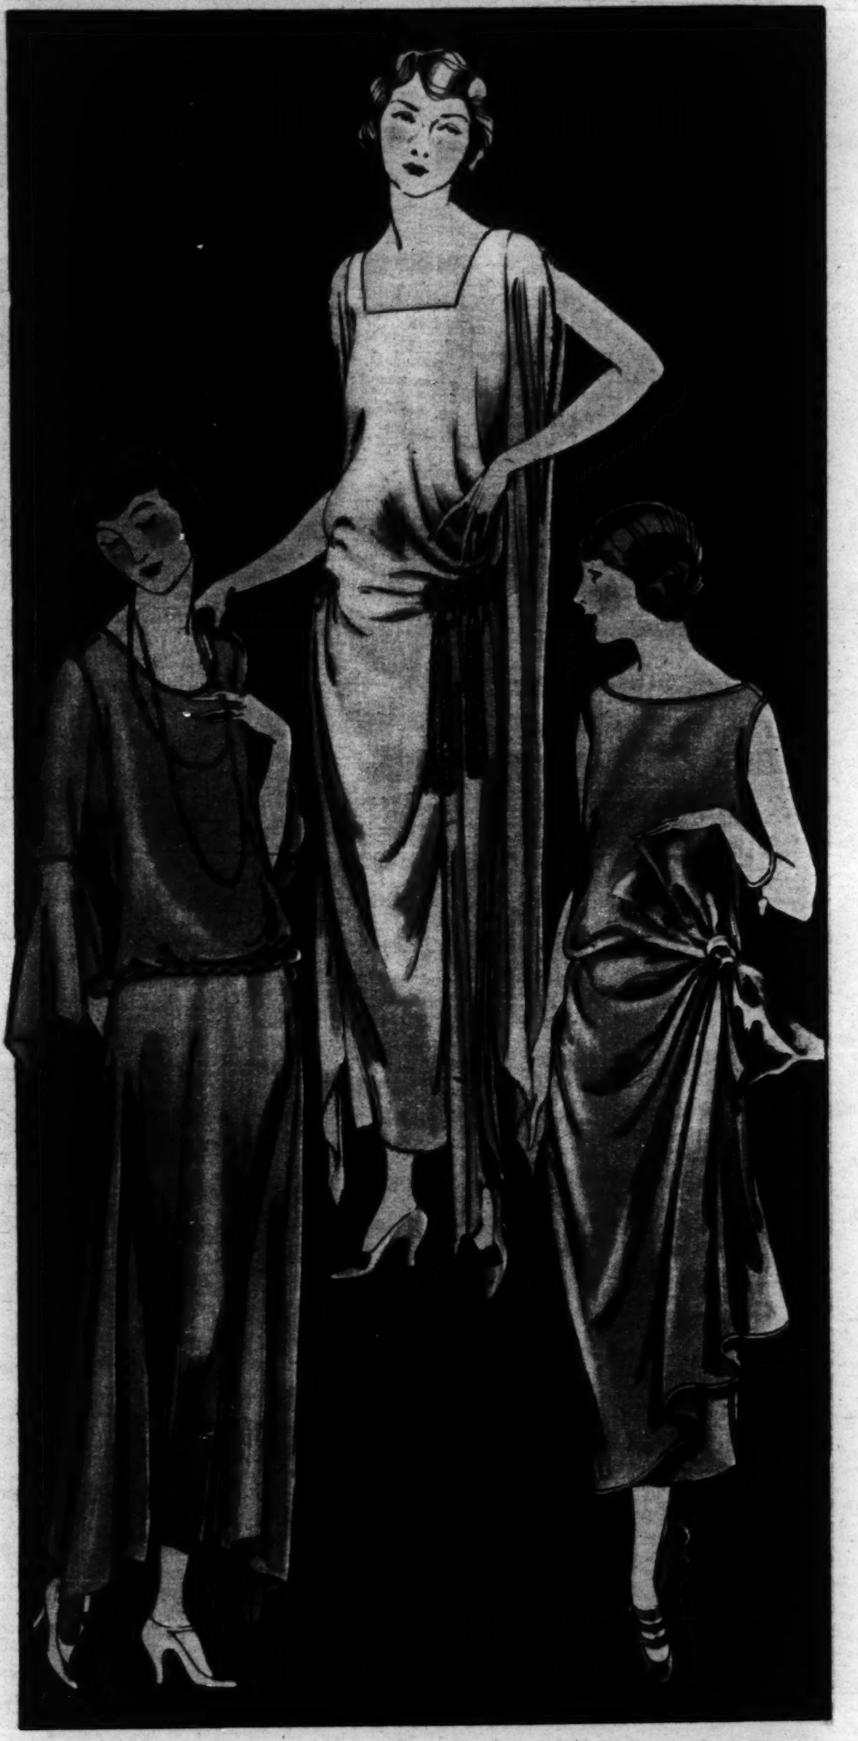
You can make the charming new dresses with professional success



Draperies—the circular skirt—such radical changes in the mode this season!

Everything has become more elaborate, more sophisticated this fall. But you yourself can make any one of the new dresses with all the success of a professional.

Hundreds of women have found that the Deltor makes home sewing an entirely different thing. They are making themselves, with the success of a professional, the new things it would cost them extravagant sums to buy.

First of all the Deltor cutting layouts show you just how to cut your dress out of the least possible material. They are made by experts. Because of them, Butterick patterns invariably call for less material than you would otherwise buy.

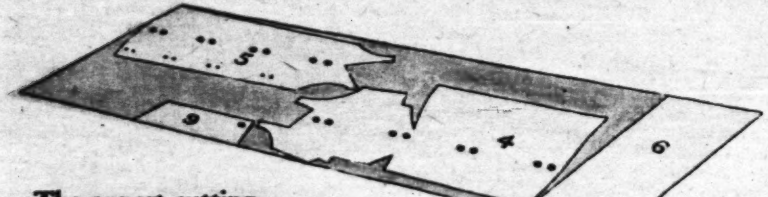
No two costumes are made exactly the same way—the Deltor putting-together pictures show you just how to handle your particular dress at every step of the making. With them you achieve the most intricate of the season's drapery as successfully as though it were merely the familiar straight chemise dress.

Never were the finishing touches that distinguish the French dresses as important as this season. No matter what new finish your costume demands, there it is for you in the Deltor—exactly how to make and apply it with all the distinction that is French.

Every new Butterick pattern now gives you this complete dressmaking service. Stop at the pattern department today. Learn why the Deltor is considered the greatest aid to dressmaking since the paper pattern itself.

Butterick—New York, Paris, London.

The Deltor saves you material on everything you make



The expert cutting that saves material

You have a cutting layout for your size pattern in your view, laid on the very width material you are using. Because this Deltor cutting layout is made by experts to meet exactly your own requirements it saves you material as the ordinary general chart cannot possibly do.

Professional putting-together

Every dress presents new and individual problems. The Deltor gives you professional guidance on every point in the putting-together of your particular dress. That is why you can give even the fashionable draped dress the perfection of an imported model.

Finish that is French

For example the brilliant ornaments that so often hold the drapery this season. They are expensive and it is often hard to find exactly the one you need. The Deltor shows you exactly how the ornaments and finishes belonging to your dress would be made in Paris.

Design 4045—New skirts are not only circular but circular and uneven of hemline! In making these very new frocks, the skill the Deltor gives you is invaluable.

Design 4043—The draped evening gown with an ornament defining the low waist-line adds to its classic beauty by long floating sleeves.

Design 4062—The French miss delights in a great crisp bow to place the low waist-line of her draped frock this season.

DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN ----

ASHLAND AVENUE, NEAR JACKSON, had its picture taken one quiet summer afternoon fifteen years ago? This was the sedate, dressed-up result. If you look closely, you can see two buggies in the distance, but nary an auto. You'd hardly know the old street now, but it retains its beauty.

FRANCIS WILSON created the character of Cadeaux in "Erminie"? He revived the production about a year ago, but became ill while on tour.

CAMILLE D'ARVILLE was a popular star with the Bostonians? Later she launched her own company and appeared as a vaudeville headliner.

J. K. EMMET, famed as an Irish comedian, was delighting another generation with "Emmet's Lullaby"? This portrait will evoke fond memories.

For whatever occasion you are dressed you can forget the cold of a winter's day—in this underwear

Knit underwear fashions of today are in almost startling contrast to the days of our grandmothers, when we put on our "winter flannels" in November, and on they stayed right straight through to the end of May!

Carter's Knit Underwear has followed every changing fashion. There is not a fashion or a material, for daytime or for evening wear, for which you cannot find the correct style in Carter's.

The original of each style of Carter's Knit Underwear is cut and tried on, just exactly the same as the clothes made by your own dressmaker are cut and tried on. Not tried on dummy figures, but on living models. The final result is an undergarment as near perfection in fitting as it can possibly be made. It is this superiority of workmanship and material that makes Carter's Knit Underwear an economy in the very fullest sense of the word.

Correct cut is not alone responsible for the remarkable fit of Carter's Knit Underwear. The cloth is specially knit to make it remarkably elastic, so that you never feel it pulling or binding, and it springs back into form instantly, so it never becomes loose and baggy. And its feeling of silky softness lasts as long as the underwear lasts, no matter how frequently you wash it.

At good stores everywhere you can get Carter's Knit Underwear, in styles for women, men, children and infants; in all weights of cotton, cotton and wool, wool, silk and wool, and silk.

THE WILLIAM CARTER COMPANY

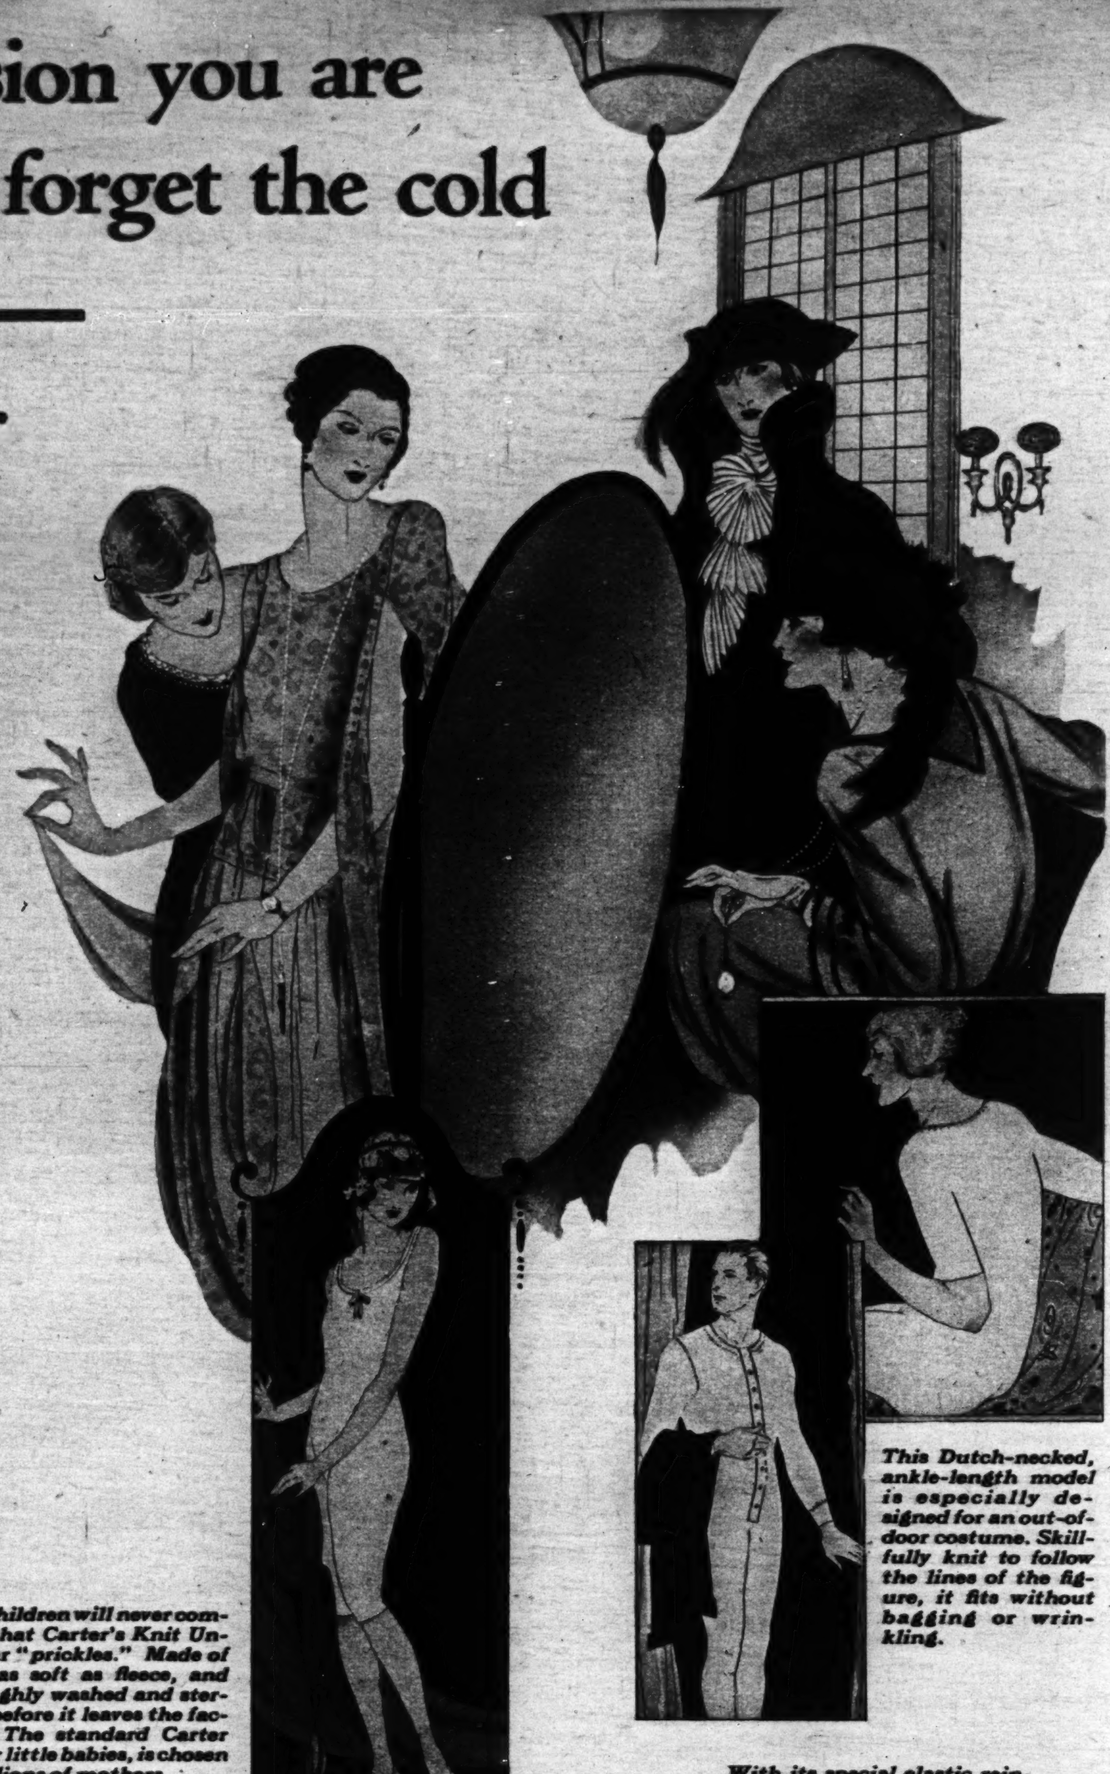
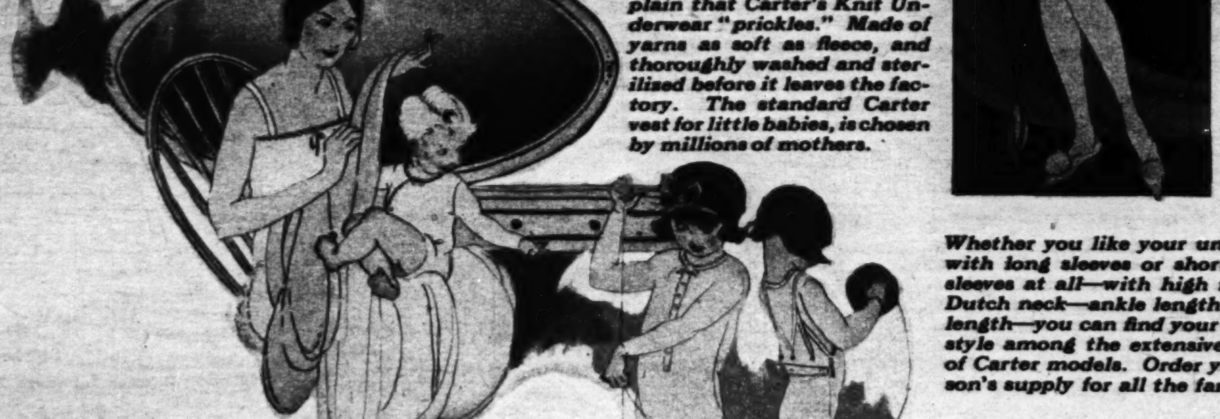
Mills also at Framingham and Springfield, Mass.



This Dutch-necked, ankle-length model is especially designed for an out-of-door costume. Skillfully knit to follow the lines of the figure, it fits without bagging or wrinkling.

With its special elastic reinforcements at the shoulder, a roomy seat that keeps its shape, specially knit cuffs at wrist and ankle, a soft springy fabric that yields to every movement of the body—this Carter one-piece suit is especially popular with men.

Whether you like your underwear with long sleeves or short, or no sleeves at all—with high neck, or Dutch neck—ankle length or knee length—you can find your favorite style among the extensive variety of Carter models. Order your season's supply for all the family.



Your children will never complain that Carter's Knit Underwear "prickles." Made of yarns as soft as fleece, and thoroughly washed and sterilized before it leaves the factory. The standard Carter vest for little babies, is chosen by millions of mothers.

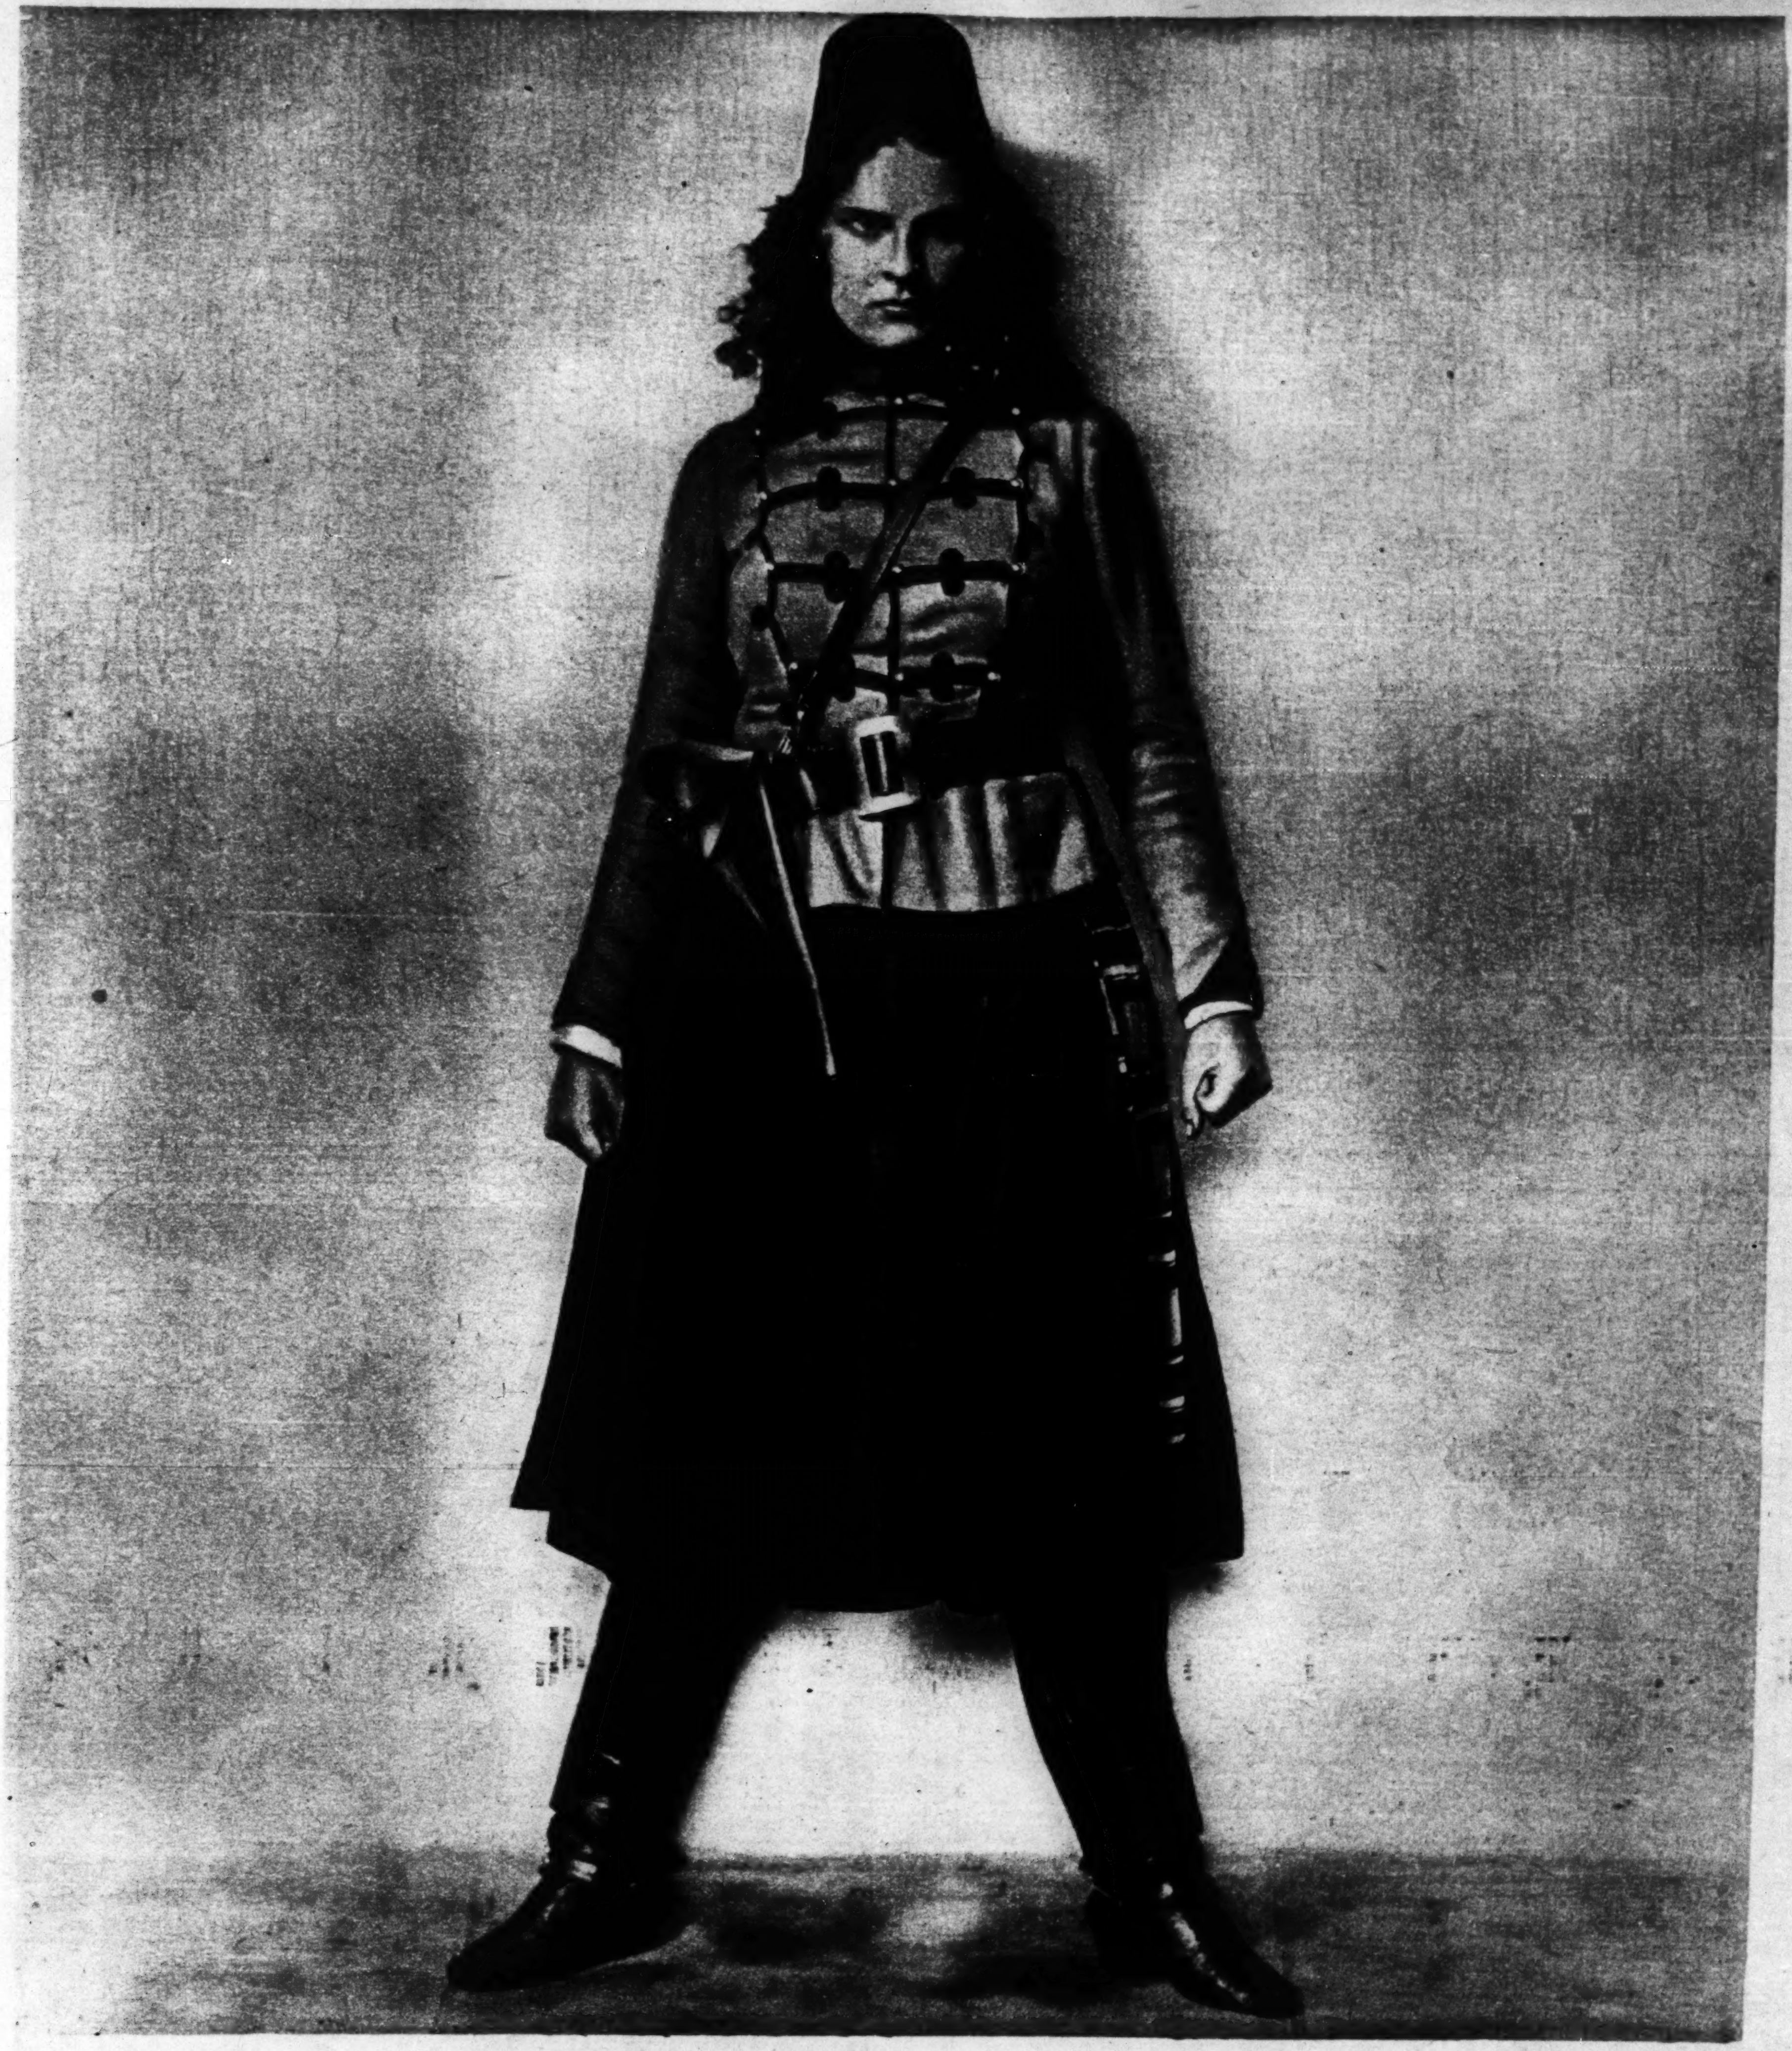
"SWEETEST · WHEN · SULKY."



LET US SPEAK THIS MORNING OF THE SCREEN STRANGLEHOLD OF MISS PRISCILLA DEAN, who in real or married life keeps Wheeler Oakman stepping pretty. This starry-eyed young woman appeared out of the everywhere into the here of Universal pictures not so long ago. These bore the titles of "Kiss or Kill," "Wicked Darling," "Wild Cat of Paris," "Brazen Beauty," etc. All of which proved that Miss Dean had appealed to somebody as being worth while as a good little bad girl. Since that time the temptation of her optiences has always been to call her "Miss Spitfire" and, as the good old western heroes used to say in the good old western plays, when we say them words, smile!

Yes, she can coax us and get away with it. She can act when she has something to act in and a director who doesn't rile her. BUT we realize that the times when she makes us most surely her own are when she's balky; when she lashes herself into a fury, or, just displeased —sulks.

Was there anything ever more captivating than her sullen advances to the Englishman in "Under Two Flags"? Or, in the same picture, her furious onslaught on the sheik? Or her lowering-browed visit to the apartments of the exquisite Englishwoman of whom she is jealous?

No—she smiles and we love her; we weep when she's sad—
But we'd lie down and die for the girl—when she's BAD!
—Mae Tinee.

How thousands are regaining the splendid vigor of health

When a man "slows up"—begins to feel his strength and vigor slipping away—gets run down, nervous, irritable—

One of two things is wrong.

His body is either failing to nourish properly the living cells which compose it, or it is failing to throw off the poisonous waste that gathers in the system.

Check either of these processes, even temporarily, and health is threatened. And yet the bodies of millions are either half-starved or clogged up!

The fresh, living cells of Fleischmann's Yeast contain a natural food—with the very elements which help the body perform these two vital functions.

Like any other plant or vegetable, yeast produces the best results when fresh and "green"—not dried or "killed." Fleischmann's Yeast is the highest grade living yeast—always fresh. It is not a medicine, it is a natural food. Results cannot be expected unless it is eaten regularly.

EAT
YEAST
HEALTH

Everywhere physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast to correct constipation, skin disorders and to restore appetite and digestion.

"Assured perfect regularity and added 25 lbs. of weight"

A recent letter tells of an unusually bad case of a common ailment—a New Yorker who suffered from chronic constipation. Since he was eleven years old, he had used "everything that could be suggested"—without a cure. Three operations had been necessary. And then three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day for a period of one month not only assured perfect regularity, but by adding 25 lbs. restored him to his normal weight.

Eat two or three cakes a day regularly—plain, or spread on crackers, or mixed with water or milk. If you prefer, get six cakes at a time. They will keep in a cool, dry place for two or three days. Begin at once to know what real health means! Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

THE TEENIE WEENIES.

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

THE DUNCE MAKES A SPEECH.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

DEAR Teenie Weenies: I read all about how your houses and clothes and furniture burned up. I am sorry for you. I am specially sorry for the Lady of Fashion and the General and the Dunce and the Twins and the Old Soldier. Now that you haven't any home I suppose you will be looking for a home. I have a doll's house. You can come and live in it. It is a big doll's house. It has lectic lights. It has an upstairs and a downstairs. There is lots of room for all of you. Please come. I have a little lectic stove. I will cook your food on it, for I am a good cook. I will sow and my Aunt will sow. My Aunt is a good sower and we will make you all clothes. Please write me a letter and tell me when you come. Be sure and write me so I can get the doll's house ready. Don't come until next week for the lectic lights don't light. My brother will fix them next week. Please answer. Your loving friend, JEAN.

The Teenie Weenies received this letter one morning, and you can well believe they were much excited and pleased.

"What a dear little girl!" exclaimed the Lady of Fashion when the letter had been read.

"Let's go," cried the Dunce, turning a handspring in his excitement.

"Sure! Come on. Let's go," cried several of the Teenie Weenies.

"Ah, fiddlesticks!" cried Grandpa. "We can't go and live with big folks. They'd be comin' around looking and starin' at us like as if we were in a sideshow. We'd have to do just as they wanted us to do and we wouldn't have any more independence than an all day sucker."

"What's him indeplendence?" asked the Chinaman.

"Why, independence means freedom," said Grandpa. "We'd have to ask permission every time we wanted to sneeze."

"Me no sneeze vely often," argued the Chinaman, who rather wanted to go and live in the little house.

"Ye yellow tomcat!" bellowed Grandpa, waving his cane over his head in his rage. "You haven't got any more spine than a jelly fish!"

"Allie same me no jelly flish!" cried the Chinaman, waving his arms excitedly. "Me Chinamans and me ploud of it, too."

"Ladies and gents!" shouted the Dunce, who had climbed to the top of a big mushroom. "Jimminie Christmas! Think what a great chance this is to be warm and com-com-comfortable this winter. Think, ladies and gents, what this means! Nothin' to do but sleep and eat chocolate drops and cookies and ice cream and everything. No work, just fun and play and sitting around the electric stove."

"Hooray!" shouted several of the Teenie Weenies, who had gathered around the Dunce.

"Ladies and gents," continued the Dunce, "it's goin' to be a cold winter, and think how we'll shiver when the cold and snow blow through the cracks of our straw shanties, with nothin' to keep us warm but thimble stoves. We have hardly enough clothes to keep us warm and nothing but rags to cover our feet. Say, jimminie fishhooks, let's go and live with this kind hearted little girl."

When the Dunce had finished his speech he jumped off the mushroom and the General stepped out in front of the circle of Teenie Weenies.

"Friends," he said, "there is much truth in what the Dunce has said. We are going to have a mighty hard winter. We may be cold many times and there may be times when we will go hungry. We are poor and the opportunity of living in the doll's house this winter seems mighty good; but, friends, there is another side, and I think you ought to consider it. As you know, it is quite dangerous for such little folks as we are to live with big people. If a book should fall on one of us there would be nothing left but a Teenie Weenie grease spot. We would be of much interest to big folks and at all hours we would be stared at. We would have to do just as the little girl and her friends wanted us to do, for we would be living in her house and we would have to do as she asked, no matter whether we wanted to or not."

SHALL WE GO AND LIVE WITH THE LITTLE GIRL OR NOT.

YES ☐
NO ☐

This is a sample of the ballots which the Teenie Weenies used. It has been enlarged thirty-five times.

"That's right. That's right," cried Grandpa.

"Now, friends," said the General, "you have heard both sides of this question and I want you to think the matter over. Some of you want to go and others don't. Think it over carefully and this evening we will vote on the matter."

While the Teenie Weenies discussed the question the Old Soldier, the General, and Paddy Pinn made arrangements for the election. They printed tiny ballots, which were handed to each of the little people.

When the Teenie Weenies had marked their ballots as to whether they wanted to go and live with the little girl or not they dropped them through the worm hole of an empty hickory nut.

It was quite dark when the voting was over, and, as the Teenie Weenies had no lamps and only a few candles, it was decided to wait and count the votes in the morning. When the nut was cracked next morning—horror of horrors!—a worm inside had eaten all the votes!

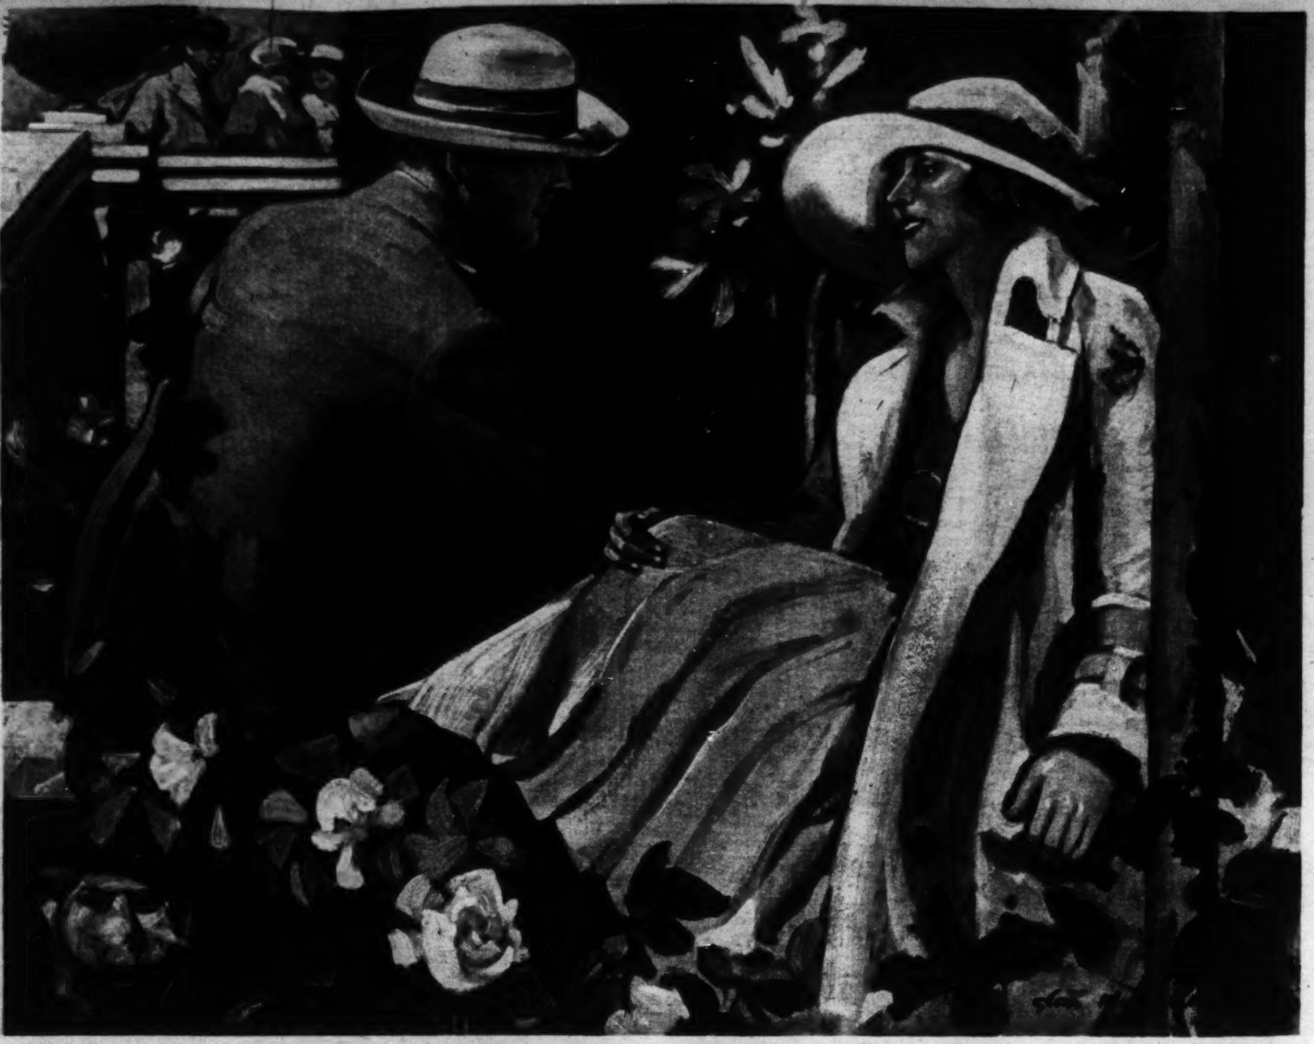
Self-Assembled Edward Bangs

by Elizabeth Jordan

Blue Ribbon Fiction

In Which It Appears That the Leopard Can, After All, Change His Spots if He Is a College Leopard.



He had planned his program very nicely.

YOUNG Edward Bangs, better known to his intimates as "Teddy," was pursuing a Big Idea. It was a very big idea—so big that Teddy had even ceased smoking to give it his full attention. Smoking, he had discovered, went with pleasant reveries, and with huge easy chairs, and with heels comfortably elevated to a restful position on desk or table. But on the rare occasions when young Bangs went in for real thought he found it advisable to lay aside his cigaret, to bring his feet to the floor, and even to assume a more conventional attitude in his easy chair. He was going in for real thought now—hence he was physically uncomfortable but mentally alert.

It will be no surprise to the gentle reader to know that the center of his thoughts was a girl—a very nice girl, a charmingly pretty girl—in short, The Girl. She was from Ted's home town, and he had known her since she was three and he himself was five. They had gone to kindergarten together, to school together. Without pausing to analyse the grounds of this hope, Teddy had assumed that they would always be together—except, of course, during those intervals in which the currents in the life of a young Captain of Industry would temporarily carry him out of her reach, only to sweep him triumphantly back again.

While he was in college he had spent his vacations ostensibly with his devoted parents, but in reality with the girl. His father openly grumbled that he "slept at home, but that was all there was to it." His mother had a daily talk with him during the late breakfast she kept hot for him. Then she resignedly watched him leave for Mabel's house. Her name was Mabel. Both families—Mabel's and his own—took it for granted, as Ted himself did, that he and Mabel would always be together. It was not until this very night that young Mr. Bangs had been visited by a horrible doubt as to the permanence of their association.

IT was all his own fault. Loyally he told himself that. He had invited Mabel and her mother to New Haven to be his guests during graduation week. He had planned his program very nicely. His own father and mother, also in New Haven for his final college week, would, of course, take Mabel's mother off his hands, thus leaving Mabel exclusively in his care. All that part of the plan had worked out beautifully. Mabel's mother, Mrs. Rorke, had been kept busy and happy by Mr. and Mrs. Bangs, who recognised a clear duty when they saw one. But—there was no getting away from the fact—the rest of the program had gone all awry.

Teddy had known, of course, that Mabel would make a hit. He had felt an immense satisfaction in the knowledge, and had looked forward to Mabel's "bowling over" Rexford and Whipple and Morgan and Sanderson, the four classmates he himself most admired and looked up to. What he had not expected, had not even remotely dreamed, was that Rexford and Whipple and Morgan and Sanderson would bowl over Mabel, would annex her, would firmly and enthusiastically monopolise her during her visit. Yet this was exactly what those fellows had done—with the result that tonight, at the class dance, Teddy, who had of course escorted Mabel there, had been given by her only the opening number of the dance program. It was then revealed to him that, consciously or unconsciously, she had promised all the dances to Rexford and Whipple and Morgan and Sanderson, possibly without realizing how short the program would be. All Teddy could do was to drape himself picturesquely against a wall and mournfully watch Mabel enjoy herself. He was not even privileged to take her in to supper. Rexford and Whipple did that. Teddy saw the three pass by, a chum on each side of the girl he loved, who seemed too much absorbed in her new friends to observe him as she made her triumphal little journey into the supper room between the mighty football captain and the popular half back. Ted watched her till she was out of sight, then turned abruptly at the touch of a fan on his arm. His mother stood beside him, smiling into his somber young eyes.

"Will you get me some supper, dear?" she asked cheerfully. "Your father has vanished with Mrs. Rorke. There's a delightful little corner off there near the stairs. Suppose you get enough sandwiches and salad for us both and bring them there, and I will hold the place against all comers until you are back."

Teddy looked at her suspiciously. Was she sympathising with him? Had she come to comfort him in his embarrassing isolation? If she was she was not showing it. Nothing could have been more carefree than her attitude, but now her voice took on a plaintive note.

"I am hungry, Ted," she added, "and thirsty, too. If you could get some lemonade——"

HE was off, forcing his way through the crowd in the supper room, helping himself to plates, foraging for what food he could get, and finally returning to his mother in a rather breathless and disheveled state, due to his exertions. She welcomed him with a soft little crow of exultation which he remembered as running through his childhood and youth and accompanying her gayest moments. Under it his heart softened and lightened. He was glad to be with his mother. She was the dearest thing in the world—save only one other. Though she was the mother of the twenty-three year old young man at her side, she had kept her youth, her beauty, her figure, and her knowledge of the art of dressing. He was very proud of her—almost as proud as he was—had been—no, was, of Mabel.

Mrs. Bangs ate her sandwiches daintily but with obvious enjoyment.

"You might have given me a dance, Teddy," she said at last. "As it is, I have ben thrown on the mercy of your father and a poor young freshman who was led up to me and hadn't the force of character to get away. To get rid of him I finally took him to Mabel. I suppose he is still on the fringe of her circle."

Ted produced a short sound in his throat. It was what novelists might call a sardonic laugh, but his mother did not appear to observe anything unusual about it. Almost simultaneously her son uttered the last words which he had intended should leave his lips.

"O, no, he won't," he said. "There isn't room near the circle."

Mrs. Bangs raised her handsome eyebrows, as if in surprise.

"You mean that she is surrounded all the time?" she asked, as if she herself had not observed the phenomena. "Well, that's perfectly natural. It's what you expected, isn't it? Mabel was sure to be a great success with your friends. You would have been horribly disappointed if she hadn't been, wouldn't you?"

Ted frowned. All this was true, but there was such a thing as a happy medium between having one's guest admired and having her altogether swept away from one. However, he was not sure he cared to discuss the matter. If he began he might say more than he wished to say. But his mother was already discussing it, in a casual voice, frequently interrupted by the consumption of salad.

"It must be a wonderful experience for Mabel," she was saying. "This is such a good salad, Ted. You ought to eat some. You see, you are the only college man Mabel has met till now. They don't abound in our little town. And the whole atmosphere here is different from anything she has ever seen. It must be simply fascinating for her to be in the life here and watch the different types. Any girl would find it so. If you are not going to eat that pickle sandwich, dear, I will. It's the novelty, you see, with a girl, and it's really Mabel's one chance to see and enjoy a phase she has not known anything about except what you have told her. And, of course," she added reflectively, "she would be more than human if she didn't enjoy showing off before you—letting you see her effect on others. Do eat something, dear."

Her son turned quickly and for the first time met her eyes. Under the look of misery in his the expression of her own changed.

"Do you really think there is anything in that?" he asked, abruptly dropping his guard—"that she is just showing off a bit, I mean? You see, what puzzles me most of all is that she seems so different—so unlike herself."

"Of course she is showing off," his mother warmly asserted, "and she is too young to realize that she is not being fair to you, nor courteous, either. As for those boys——"

She had said too much. Her son replaced his guard so promptly that she could almost see it slipping into position. Then, with an air of indifference, he said:

"O, that was all understood between us. She told me of her engagements. Now, if you'd like a turn, we might try one. The room is almost empty," he added, tactfully. His mother looked at him and shook her head.

"My dear boy," she said, your manners need polishing. I hope you don't say that sort of thing to Mabel. You ought to copy the manners of that nice Mr. Rexford. And I hope, too," she added, as she took his arm, "that your dancing has improved. You know I begged you to take some lessons this year. Any girl dislikes to have a man dance on her feet instead of his own!"

NOW the dance was over and Ted had taken Mabel and her mother back to the hotel, where the older lady had revealed a sad lapse of her usual tact. Exhausted herself, she had assumed that her daughter was equally so and had swept Mabel off to her room without giving the young couple a moment for a parting word. Teddy took back to his room only the memory of Mabel's excited eyes and her whisper, "I have had a wonderful evening, Ted!"

It was of that remark he thought now as he sat alone in his college room. It was, indeed, that remark which had been the turn of the screw. She had had a "wonderful evening"—and she had had it without him, even without the slightest realization of the suffering she had caused him. Never, in all the years of their association, had he seen her eyes shine like that. Never had he dreamed of the passion for pleasure which burned within her and illuminated her face like a flame. She had the look of a girl lifted outside of herself into a new world, a new life in which he, Teddy, had no part. What he had to face—and for an hour he had resolutely faced it—was the discovery of this new Mabel who, however much he had in common with her, suddenly appeared to have nothing whatever in common with him. If that was so—if that was so——

Ted's mind approached the thought as an

WHEN A FISHING BOAT PULLS UP ITS NETS this is the spectacle that is presented. The poor fish! The picture was taken on Lake Erie. Fish are plentiful this season in the great lakes and good catches are reported.

A STORY WITHOUT WORDS might be the title of this picture. The German peasants, with their wooden shoes and their ox team, are gazing wonderingly into the skies at the glider, last word in airplanes, by means of which man is enabled to fly noiselessly and without an engine to propel him.

YOUNGEST SOLDIER IN THE UNION ARMY during the civil war was Johnny Clem, 11 years old, famed as "the Drummer Boy of Shiloh." Recently, when he retired, Maj. Gen. John L. unwilling hunter approaches a hurdle, but finally made the leap. If that was so, then all his past had been leading up to nothing, to worse than nothing—for life without Mabel would be just that. If he had ever had her, and he realised now how big an if that had been, he had won her only because, as his mother had put it, there was no one else. At the first appearance of possible rivals she had turned from him with an ease that was appalling. She had turned to the "new types" of whom his mother had spoken—to the gay, debonair young chaps who were such a contrast to the quiet fellow, Edward Bangs, whose society was not only unstimulating but an old, old story. If that was it he must accept the fact—or must he?

IT was at this point that the Big Idea began to come, slowly lifting him out of the abyss into which he had dropped. Down there he had seemed to see the end of all his hopes. If the Mabel he had watched this week—the new Mabel he told himself he was just beginning to know—was the real Mabel, then there was nothing in the simple personality of Edward Bangs to justify his longing to win her. Three days among strangers and she had almost forgotten his existence, save when he was necessary to the carrying out of her plans. Away from the new environment, far from these agreeable strangers, she might once more revert to the acquiescent personality of the girl he thought he had known. But he had not known her. He would never know her, because there was nothing in himself to call out the new nature which he had just discovered. And, if after this discovery he married her, later some one else might call it out.

"Nothing in himself." Or was there? Or if there was not, could the necessary qualities be acquired? The Big Idea was becoming more definite, for Ted's brain, stimulated by his misery and his need, was working for him clearly and eagerly. He had, it told him, his choice of losing the girl he loved, or of meeting her on her new ground, of supplementing her new personality by something new in his own. What should that something be? Obviously, something she admired — the things the other fellows had and which he, Teddy, lacked.

Resolutely, he faced the difference between them and himself. Yes, he was a quiet chap —a very quiet chap. He had always been a quiet chap, willing to listen while others talked. He would have to change that, and other things as well, if he meant to keep Mabel in his life. For example, even his doting mother had told him he ought to copy Rexford's charming manners. What else would he have to change, to drop, to acquire? That question was easy to answer. He need only to call up the characteristics of the four men who for days had monopolised Mabel, and, as it were, fit himself with the most desirable ones. There was, as he had just decided, Rexford's manner, especially his manner with Mabel—a perfect blending of admiration, respect, and at least potential devotion. He, Ted, must add that manner to his equipment. His own manner, he now realised, had been entirely too matter-of-fact.

Next, there was Whipple. What could he take from Whipple that would help him to be the all-round man Mabel must have as a husband? Whipple's strong suit was his cheerfulness. He was the most buoyant and breezy of human beings, as refreshing as a cool wind on a hot day. Tad, deliberately studying himself with the critical eyes of a stranger, knew that he, too, was cheerful. He had rarely had any excuse for being anything else. But his cheerfulness was the quiet sort—the deep, underlying kind that did not easily find expression in such youthful exuberance as Whipple's. Still, he believed he could copy that. He had known Whipple for four years, and had affectionately watched him go through his paces. If he needed Whipple's best asset to hold Mabel, and apparently he did, he could and would show Mabel the best imitation of Whipple cheerfulness the old world could afford. For the first time in his reflections Teddy grinned. It had suddenly occurred to him that he was like a machine adding new and needed parts—he was becoming a sort of self-assembled chap in which the qualities he most admired in his four chums were to be added to his own makeup. Rather a good notion, that, if he could carry it out—and he believed he could. He had been rather good in college theatricals. It had always been easy to take on a new rôle, probably because his natural one was so unobtrusive.

All right. He had now assembled Rexford's manner and Whipple's cheerfulness. What could he take from Morgan and Sanderson? Even as he asked the question the two young men seemed to stand before him offering the answers. Morgan's patter, of course. Talk was Morgan's best suit, and, while it was never brilliant talk, it was rarely dull talk. Whatever it was, there was plenty of it. No group could be dull with Morgan in it. Ted was not a "born talker" like Morgan. He preferred the rôle of listener. But henceforth he would talk. He could talk, quite as well as Morgan, as he had demonstrated on the rare occasions when he felt like doing it. In fact—he saw it now—he had never exerted himself for anybody, not even for Mabel. He had taken it for granted that he need merely be himself—not because he was pleased with himself, but because he had never before gone in for such self-analysis as he was indulging in now. He wondered why he had not done so. It was easy enough to see his lacks; it should be easy to supply them. It was, indeed, so easy that he now leaned forward, helped himself to a cigaret, lit it, and drew a long, refreshing whiff.

There remained only Sanderson from whom to take a leaf, and the leaf fluttered before him even as the reflection came. Sanderson's rôle was that of man-of-the-world. It was a rôle that fitted Sanderson and which Teddy had observed with secret admiration. As he recalled it, he was not so sure of its adaptability to himself as he had been of the other rôles. But at least he could and would do his best with it. He would rehearse it—indeed he would rehearse all the new rôles before he publicly tried them—first by himself and then for the benefit of his family. It would be a little odd in the beginning, but he would soon get used to the effort—and it simply had to be made. Mabel's husband must be an all round chap. And if the new plan didn't work he would at least have tried it out. He would not have taken defeat lying down. With which conclusion young Mr. Bangs finally undressed and went to bed.

It must be confessed that when he awoke in the morning and slowly recalled his project, its hues seemed infinitely less alluring than on the night before. He did not feel at all like a man-of-the-world. He did not want to chatter like Morgan or to be as cheerful as Whipple. The whole proposition seemed rather absurd in the cold light of a new day. But he clung to it doggedly. He would try it at breakfast, on the family —an appalling test, but a necessary one, for there was no time to lose. That is, he would talk a lot, and be cheerful and worldly. He was glad that at least he would not have to assume Rexford's manner until later. Mabel and her mother had announced the night before that they would breakfast in their own rooms. He had promised to breakfast at the hotel at nine o'clock with his father and mother, and he met the appointment without enthusiasm but with his new rôles in play. He was as cheerful as Whipple, as chatty as Morgan, and almost as worldly as Sanderson. Thank heaven, there was a lot to talk about. His mother and father were interested in all sorts of details which heretofore he had not exerted himself to give them. Nevertheless, he could not feel that he was wholly successful. The effect on his father and mother was not quite all that he could have wished. Several times he saw them exchange glances, at first of surprise, then almost of anxiety.

Suddenly he knew what they were thinking. This gaiety, this talk, were assumed to conceal an aching heart under a carefree manner. Inwardly his father was chuckling. The boy was overdoing the thing, of course, but he admired his pluck. The elder Bangs played up to the new rôle good humoredly. Ted's mother's delicate mouth, however, was settling into unfamiliar lines. "That girl" was making her boy unhappy and wholly unlike himself. "That girl" ought to be brought to her senses.

MABEL slept late. It was afternoon before Ted was privileged to see her and to try on her the effects of his new cheerfulness and chatter. The effort, which would have been difficult at the best, was complicated by the presence of Rexford and Sanderson, who, dropping in at four, had settled into place beside Mabel's tea table with the effect of cornerstones and showed every intention of monopolizing her till dinner time. But each experienced a surprise. Young Bangs, so yielding until now, was suddenly asserting his rights. He talked constantly, interrupting even Rexford without apology. He coolly set Sanderson right when the latter made a statement that permitted correction. He hung over Mabel with a devotion slightly tinged with proprietorship, and he maneuvered quietly but steadily until he had attached both his unwilling classmates to the sides of his mother and Mrs. Rorke.

It cannot be said, however, that he was winning increased popularity by his methods. He was merely surprising and annoying his companions. For he was playing his new rôles badly. Even more than at breakfast time he was overdoing them—and to a degree that made Rexford and Sanderson exchange comprehending glances. At last Ted himself realized that he was not making a success of the Big Idea. He was merely making himself absurd. For a moment a sense of hopelessness enveloped him. Then, as he caught a look that passed between his two chums, something better than the Big Idea suddenly came to life in Edward Bangs. Without effort, almost without realization, he suddenly revealed a new personality—that of the strong man lurking hitherto unsuspected in the depths of his nature.

"We must get rid of these chaps," he coolly told Mabel under the cover of the talk between the two mothers and the restless young men. "I'm going to take you and the family to dinner and the play, and you need an hour of rest first."

Mabel, still at the tea table, gazed at him in surprise. Something she saw in his eyes changed the objection that rushed to her lips.

"I—I—promised Mr. Rexford—that is, I ——" she faltered.

Teddy sadly shook his head.

"Rex will have to play with some one else tonight," he said firmly. "So will Sanderson and the others. We're fed up with them. Of course they don't know that you and I are engaged to be married. That's their excuse. If they did they wouldn't be under our feet all the time."

"But we're not engaged——" Mabel began.

Teddy looked at her in surprise.

"Of course we are," he said. "We always have been. Didn't you know it? Then it's high time you did, my dear girl. And I'm going to tell the others right now."

He told them, and the little group, at first rather stunned by the announcement, rose to it and to its social demands. True, Sanderson's man-of-the-world air was a slightly blurred and Rexford's air of devotion had suffered an eclipse, but Mabel was not

Teddy suddenly revealed a new personality.

What happens inside your vacuum bottle when it falls?

"OUR day is ruined," she confessed. "I dropped that new vacuum bottle as I was getting out of the car. The glass lining is probably smashed to splinters."

"Well, it would be," he replied, "but the inside of that vacuum bottle isn't glass. It's steel! I had a bright moment yesterday and bought a Stanley."

Made entirely of steel, the unbreakable Stanley Vacuum Bottle does away with the disappointment of having the ice cold or steaming hot drink spoiled just when you are counting on it most. It ends the constant necessity for careful handling—the inconvenience and expense of buying new glass "fillers."

A lining of blue Amalite, fused into the inner steel wall, keeps the Stanley Bottle always sanitary and will not rust or tarnish.

Pint, quart, and two-quart sizes. The Stanley Lunch Kit is equipped with the pint bottle. For keeping solid foods hot or cold, use the Stanley Food Jar, also unbreakable. Every Stanley product—Bottle, Food Jar, Jug—is fully guaranteed.

Closing a Deal with Carolyn

by Hamish McLaurin

These Bootleggers! They Invade Even the Fields of Literature and Romance to Achieve Their Purposes!

IT was ten o'clock, and the Eversburg Public library was about to close for the night. Alec Buchanan sat beside the desk of the comely young librarian, impatiently waiting for the remaining patrons of the reading room to return their books and go their way. He had something of overwhelming importance which he wished to discuss with the librarian—a matter involving a decision on her part as to whether she preferred to continue indefinitely as Miss Carolyn Wheeler or whether she might choose to become known in the more or less immediate future as Mrs. Alec Buchanan. It was a subject which had been gone over between them many times in the past, but, up to the particular evening in question, no decision had been forthcoming.

As general manager of the Eversburg Auto Sales corporation Alec had acquired a covetable reputation for his ability to close a deal. When it came to the little matter of the dotted line he had been known to persuade customers to go into action with a fountain pen after all other salesmen had been sent away gazing at their expense accounts through a blur of tears, but the closing of this particular deal—the one involving Miss Wheeler's change of label—seemed somehow to evade him.

Notwithstanding his hitherto fruitless efforts in the matter, this bright youth's lexicon had in it neither the word "defeat" nor any of its synonyms, and he was proceeding on what he believed to be the well founded aphorism that "if you stick long enough they're bound to weaken." Pursuing this policy, he talked to the "prospect" of this and of that, in a vein seemingly inconsequential enough, but inwardly he was watching her all the time with the eye of the trained "dotted liner," awaiting the advent of the psychological moment when his instinct would prompt him to—figuratively speaking—shove the fountain pen into her hand.

Now and again he cast a resentful glance at the figures bent over the long tables in the reading room and wondered whether all these persons could really be interested in the books they were perusing or whether they had no place else to go. As soon as these readers had departed, so Miss Wheeler had promised him, he was to escort her home. Once at her home, he had high hopes that he might be invited to sit on the veranda awhile, and once on the veranda there was a chance of their occupying the hammock, and once together in the hammock—well, Alec had a new selling talk to which he had devoted considerable thought and he was anxious to try it out.

IN the interval of waiting Miss Wheeler tossed him a letter to read, remarking as she did so: "Here's something rather curious. It came three or four days ago. The books to which it refers arrived this afternoon in a big truck—twenty boxes of them."

It was just at this point that Alec's long awaited psychological moment arose, stretched itself, and began those preparations for its arrival of which this story is the chronicle.

"Dear Miss Wheeler," the letter ran, "in a few days I am sending to you by motor truck several cases of technical works which I believe will be a welcome addition to the Eversburg library. These books are not yet on the market, and my only request in connection with the gift is that you will not open the cases until I notify you that the publishers have released the contents of them for general circulation. My men will render you all assistance in storing them until such notification is possible. For personal reasons I prefer to keep these little benefactions of mine anonymous, so I shall merely sign myself, yours sincerely,

"A FRIEND OF LEARNING."

"Odd, isn't it?" said the librarian, as he returned the letter to her.

"Fully that. It's downright mysterious. Where did you put them?"

"In the basement. The men on the truck helped Evans carry them down there and stack them up."

"Evans—is that the janitor?"

"Yes, the one that looked in at the door just a few minutes ago."

"Well, he's a surly brute and I don't like him."

"I know he is. I don't like him either."

"It's a wonder he didn't tell you it was no part of his job to unload trucks."

"That's what I expected, but he was really obliging for once, and cleared away a space in the furnace room where the boxes could be stored. They make a most imposing display. I can hardly wait to open them. You see, our reference shelves have always been somewhat sparsely populated and I'm anxious to bring them up to date."

"Naturally. Out of date reference books are about as useful as out of date almanacs. I wonder what particular kind of technical works they are. Was the publisher's label on the cases?"

"Yes, but it was a concern I never heard of—Nagle and Holtz of Chicago. Do you know them?"

"No, they're new ones on me. Sounds German. Do you suppose this can be some form of postwar propaganda? It would be just like them."

"That hadn't occurred to me. M-m-m—I wonder, now——"

"You don't want anything put over on you. Suppose we have a look at those cases. I have a hunch that this method of supplying the dear public with information is a trifle tilted—not quite on the level, as it were. Let's go downstairs, shall we?"

"By all means," consented Miss Wheeler. "It takes a business man to uncover hidden motives. I never would have dreamed of such a thing."

THE moment the door had been locked behind the last lingering seeker after knowledge, Alec and the librarian descended the stairs to the basement and surveyed the pile of cases in the furnace room. They were ordinary wooden packing boxes of the size in which books are customarily shipped and, stacked as they were, they formed a partial rampart across a shallow alcove in the brickwork of the basement wall.

"I wonder what their idea was in piling them so high?" puzzled Alec, as they stood in front of the stack. "Three rows would have been plenty, I should think, and much easier to handle when it it comes to unpacking them."

Miss Wheeler nodded, but made no reply. She was sniffing suspiciously, her head held high and her brows contracted. "What's that smell?" she inquired, moving closer to the boxes.

. Alec sniffed conscientiously. "I declare," he exclaimed, a smile of delighted surprise overspreading his features, "I declare, if I were any place but here I would say I smelled Scotch whisky."

Miss Wheeler's eyes were on the floor. "Move aside a little, please," she requested. "I think I see something."

As Alec's shadow shifted, a slowly widening puddle of thin liquid was disclosed, its source apparently being a slightly isolated packing case which had not been placed upon the pile.

"What ho!" cried Alec. "Your reference books are leaking, Miss Wheeler. I thought there was something queer about this. Wait a minute."

He stepped across the room toward the furnace, clattered around among a stack of tools in the corner, and returned presently with a battered hatchet. Stooping over the packing case, he pried loose one of the top boards and disclosed a layer of straw.

"I thought so," he said, triumphantly. "Here's volume one, Miss Wheeler—a slightly damaged copy, but still interesting." As he spoke he drew out by the neck a broken bottle which, if its label were to be believed, had recently contained a quart of whisky.

"Nothing dry and dusty about this consignment," he went on. "Me for the higher education."

He laid the bottle on the floor and was thrusting his hand gingerly into the straw again when a businesslike young man, with an automatic pistol held at his hip, emerged from behind the packing cases and said quietly, "Get up outa that!"

Alec promptly did as requested. So that was the reason for piling those cases so high, he reflected; it was to serve as a hiding place for this hard eyed young guardian of the treasure.

"The both of you stick your hands up," ordered the intruder, "An' keep 'em up, see? I can't afford to monkey with you, nor nobody else."

When Miss Wheeler and Alec had executed the order, the man with the gun continued, "Now turn around and stand with your faces to that wall, see, an' if either of you moves or makes a holler I'll croak the both of you. An' don't think I won't, neither."

Needless to state, these instructions were immediately carried out, after which the businesslike young man removed Alec's belt with one hand while with the other he held the muzzle of the pistol against his ribs. Slipping the free end of the belt through the buckle, he held the loop behind Alec's back and made him put first one hand through it and then the other. Thrusting the pistol into the waistband of his trousers for the moment, he tightened up the strap with cruel efficiency and made it secure by a few deft twists of the loose end.

"Lay down on your face," he commanded, when this operation was concluded. Alec hesitated. "Lay down or I'll knock you down!" threatened the youth, and at a glance from Miss Wheeler Alec knelt down and rolled over.

"Now you, lady," the young man proceeded briskly, "put your hands behind you."

"If you hurt that girl I'll kill you!" raged Alec, raising his head from the floor.

"You won't kill nobody, feller," retorted his captor, with a scornful chuckle, "and if you make another crack I'll cave your nut in for you. Get me?" While speaking he was untying his necktie and when Miss Wheeler obeyed his orders he fastened it firmly around her wrists. "I ain't agoing to hurt this lady, nor you, neither, if you behave yourself, but I ain't agoing to let no boob like you keep this job from going through, see? There's thousands of dollars worth of stuff in them cases an' she all goes out tonight, whether you like it or not. Lie down over here, lady, an' don't make a squeak, d'ye hear me?"

The young man's next move was to wrap in his handkerchief a fragment of wood from the broken packing case and gag Alec in the most approved fashion. Using Alec's handkerchief, he then did the same for Miss Wheeler. The girl's sash was requisitioned next as a rope for Alec's ankles, and the job was completed by the tying up of her own ankles with Alec's four-in-hand.

When the last knot was secure, the young man gave a grunt of satisfaction and switched off the electric light. "There y'are, folks," he said, "an' if you got any sense you'll stay just like that until this stuff is distributed tonight. What do you care about it, anyhow? You can't help it if we breeze in here and use your nice little library for a storage joint. It was the only safe place we could dope out, where we could deliver such a heavy shipment, see? Them revenue hounds bothers us something fierce these days and all our old clearing houses is watched. But our customers has been notified and they'll be around here after midnight to get the stuff, see? The boys on the truck will be back to help pass it out and in the morning she'll all be gone and nobody is going to know the difference. If you'd minded your own business instead of nosing around down here this wouldn't have happened, see? But I can't take no chances, folks—not with this stuff."

He paused, started to light a cigaret, thought better of it, and continued: "Listen—I'm going outside now, to keep an eye out for the boys. If you know what's good for you, you'll lay right where you are until I get back, because I'll be watching for you and if you try to tip us off I'll put a hole through you, sure as hell. Think it over, mister."

With that he cautiously opened the cellar door, peered out into the grounds for a brief space, and then disappeared, closing the door after him.

FOR a moment there was complete silence, but it was broken almost at once by the sound of footsteps thudding swiftly across the lawn, across the sidewalk, and across the street.

"He's gone," decided Alec promptly. "He was bluffing. He isn't standing guard at all. He has gone to warn the gang."

Alec had been doing some quick, hard thinking in the previous few minutes, and now he knew exactly what he meant to do. Wriggling along the floor, he raised himself on one elbow and moved his face along the edge of the half open packing case until it encountered the head of the nail, left projecting when he had pried off the cover board. It was a simple matter to hook the nail head under the handkerchief and twist his head until the handkerchief slipped around his neck and he could spit out the gag.

"Carolyn!" he whispered, the second his tongue was free. "Where are you?"

The inarticulate reply made by the girl gave him his direction and he hunched himself along the floor until he found her. After that it took but a few seconds for him to get the knot of her gag in his teeth and slip the handkerchief loose as he had done with his own.

"O, do be careful, dearest!" she implored. "What if that man should hear you?"

Alec's whole being thrilled to the "dearest" and the tone in which it was spoken. Under different circumstances that one little word would have been his cue to try out the new selling talk at once, but there was no time for that now.

"Rats!" he derided. "He isn't outside. Didn't you hear him run away? He won't permitted to observe these lapses. Teddy, very happy and wholly at his ease, was now Rexford, Sanderson, Whipple, and Morgan all in one, and he was also the new Bangs Mabel had met so unexpectedly ten minutes before.

When, at last, they had a moment alone together, she clung to him almost convulsively.

"O, Ted, I'm so happy," she said, "and I was so wretched."

"Wretched?" He stared at her incredulously.

"Yes, wretched. I knew you wanted your friends to like me, and that you would be dreadfully disappointed if they didn't, so I did my best. I had Miriam Armstrong coach me for weeks before we came here—you know she's the most popular girl in town—and then I acted exactly the way she does. I felt I had to make a success. I thought I would lose you if I didn't. But I couldn't have gone through it at all if I hadn't copied Miriam. They got so on my nerves—Mr. Whipple with his cheerfulness and Mr. Morgan with his everlasting talk—that I thought I should scream! And the strain of my own efforts almost drove me crazy. O, the comfort of being myself again! Teddy, darling, I'm so glad you're strong and determined—and restful!"

Teddy held her close. He made no reply, for it was not a time for conversation; but he experienced a dizzying sense of happiness, combined with one of incredible relief. Like Mabel, he could drop the new parts. They did not fit him. He could go on being himself—a better self, of course; a stronger self, a self fit for Mabel, and all that sort of thing; but not a chattering, over-cheerful, over-sophisticated self. He didn't want any of those things. All he wanted was what he had got. Nevertheless he had unconsciously acquired and ever afterwards retained one of his new qualities—a manner of devotion for Mabel which not even Rexford in his best moments could have bettered.

got?" Jenny wanted to know. "Plumbers'?"

Jansen grunted and dropped to his knees; and shortly the banging ceased. As he stood up something fell from one of his pockets, giving a metallic ring as it struck the floor.

"What's this?" asked Jenny, recovering the object. "A door plate."

"Say," began Jansen, taking the plate from Jenny's hand, "I found that atop the cellar wall this noon. Must 'a' been there for years. Couldn't make it out until I gave it a polish. Some hard luck story, if you want to know. It all comes back now. I've been doing janitor work twenty-odd years in this locality, and I've heard some queer stories, but this one knocks 'em cold. Want to hear it?"

"Go ahead," said Bancroft.

"Of course," said Jansen, leaning against the radiator, "I ain't got anything but outside facts, what the neighborhood said. The man who once owned this house went to South America and never came back."

South America. Bancroft stirred uneasily, conscious of a chill.

"Seems he turned over everything he had to a friend to play the market on a sure thing, borrowed money on his house and all that; and this friend cleaned him to a fare-ye-well. Stole everything and beat it. When the crash came the poor dub was thousands of miles away from home. The shock killed his wife. There was some talk about a kid, but I never got the rights o' that. But this poor come-on"—waving the door plate—"got news some way and jumped overboard. Anyhow, he never came back. He didn't mortgage the house but borrowed on thirty day notes; and when they fell due the bank closed in, with an auctioneer to clean out the inside stuff. But this town's full o' tales like this. Queer, that door plate on the cellar wall all these years."

"Let me see it," said Bancroft, his mouth gone oddly dry.

The door plate was of copper. In the center was graven simply—

Kennedy.

BANCROFT walked the streets far into the night; and there was a gesticulative frenzy to his despair that drew the curiosity of passersby. He was indifferent to alleys and all they might hold of bodily injury. He did not care whether he lived or died. That house! The ghostly miseries that still paraded those hallways! He understood everything now; the puzzle had ceased to be and become an open page in bold type. The blow he had been expecting from the beginning had fallen. His father had, somewhere in the past, commited an abominable act.

It was of no matter that, since the association with Snell & Pride, his father had been honest. Before that he had betrayed and ruined this poor devil of a Kennedy. "Paid Kennedy in full" had significance now. Satisfied vengeance had caused the underscoring of these words. Years afterward his father in an idle moment had written and underscored them in contemplation of a deed accomplished utterly. It went back to something Kennedy had done, trivial or serious; and Silas Bancroft, still pretending to be his friend, had smashed him by damnable trickery. Even if Kennedy had wronged him such a reprisal was horrible.

These millions of his, then, were based upon the blood and bone of a poor dupe and the complete ruin of his family. O, he, Bancroft, would have none of that money; he would never touch another dollar of it. What he had given in legacies should stand; good out of evil; but as for himself, not a penny. He would go to work at anything he could put his hand to—pick and shovel, if need be.

He was incapable of realizing at this moment that he could not ignore offhand these millions simply by willing it, that it would take him years to give them away without bringing himself under the interest of the lunacy commission. His thoughts were focused upon the discovery that his father had robbed, morally, if not legally, a trusting man. The utter knowledge that his father had been a thoroughly honest man all his life was the one thing needed by which the son could forgive the years of coldness and neglect; and now he must hold his father's memory forever in contempt. A memorial window! He laughed aloud, brokenly; and a policeman eyed him doubtfully.

The blow had two edges, and presently he felt the cut of the second. He had lost all hope of Nancy, for now he had absolutely nothing to offer her. He would have to leave that house, too, where he had known his first happy hours. O, no; he could not remain there with the black deed of his father filling the halls and rooms with pitiful ghosts.

The highly developed imagination knows but little of the happy levels of ordinary mortals; today it is the height, tomorrow it is the abyss. Such imaginations must acquire the balancing philosophy of worldliness; and Bancroft had so little that it was negligible.

All those forlorn years, and this to cap them! As he walked on aimlessly there was suddenly projected upon his recollection the serene face of his father, touched by the setting sun: a face upon which he had never seen any emotion, any agitation, the graven calm of one who had struck out of his life all things but money—money—money.

Bancroft stopped, as if some invisible barrier had reared itself in his path. Blind fool! Why, of course that was it. The Great Adventure Company! And he was to pay his father's debts!

Tomorrow he would see Snell. He would tell the old fellow of the infamy he had stumbled upon and declare himself as regarded the money.

AND Snell called him a fool, or words to that effect.

"How are you going to get rid of it?" cried the old lawyer wrathfully. "If you start any real damfoolery I'll apply for trusteeship on the ground that you are not capable of handling your affairs. You'll refuse to touch a dollar of it, you say? What then? Money doesn't rot like vegetables. It'll keep on growing and mounting; and some far off relatives will come into it and blow it like sailors on leave. If there is any taint in it take it out doing good with it to the community at large. Take the St. Lawrence River where it leaves Lake Ontario. It is drinkable; and yet it has drained great cities. It becomes pure by contact with air. Well, put your money out in the air, and it will become pure enough for all earthly purposes. And I tell you I don't give a tinker's dam what you have discovered, I'll hold until the crack of doom that your father never rooked anybody, and that he was as honest a man as ever walked this earth. You, his son, may doubt him, but I, his lawyer, never will."

"But why did he hide?"

"How do you know he hid?"

"No office of his own. The secret knocks on his door, as if he feared some one, and all that."

"And all that!" jeered Snell. "Boy, you've stumbled upon something queer, that's a fact; but damn me, if you've got the right angle. There's a mystery, I'll admit; but it concerns not your father's honesty but the odd way he lived. He set a groove for himself and never deviated out of it, year in and year out."

"What about me? How did he treat me?" asked Bancroft, bitterly.

"He left you seven millions, to do with as you pleased. He made it possible for you to become a scholar without risking the attendant evils of college life. He taught you to labor in the fields, to know the joy of an honestly earned dollar. But I understand what you mean—parental neglect, the lack of friendly communion between father and son. What you complain of is that he always held himself aloof, you never could get anywhere near him."

Bancroft nodded.

"Well, that will be a part of the mystery, too. Your father never made any moves that weren't perfectly calculated. But get this fool idea about the money out of your head. I told you once before that it is a moral obligation to humanity. If you do not accept this obligation you'll be far more contemptible than you believe your father to be. He had the courage to get this money; and you haven't the courage to spend it. Bah! You're asleep; you'll wake up presently. You've been reading too much and taking for gospel fact what is merely theory."

"Perhaps." But doubt began to edge into the young man's mind. Snell might be right. Moral obligation; to direct into worthy channels that which had come out of bad.

"Do you know what these seven millions represent?" went on Snell. "The steady employment of three or four thousand men, when millions are out of work, when the financial world is reeling around like a drunken man. Son, the getting of money is nearly always tainted in the beginning; it's what a man does with it afterward that counts. You're unbelievable; you're one out of ten million boys. They would whoop 'er up for a couple of years, then get down to brass tacks. You're a queer boy."

"I had a queer father."

"But he stuck; he was on the job when he died. Now, are you going to stick? Any man who is ready to defend his girl against four thugs—yes, I heard about it—is game. This money is distasteful to you, but you can make it as white as snow by keeping it moving toward the betterment of human beings. A man is happier earning ten dollars than he is in receiving it as a gift. Fix it so that three or four thousand men can go on earning living wages until the end of their days. The average man does not want charity; he wants a job. Take these millions and turn them into a thousand more jobs than your father did. A job is a man's self-respect. And you'll lose yours if you throw up this job. I'm an old man; I know this world from contact and observation. If your father ever committed a dishonorable act—which I'll never admit he did—you, his son, can wipe it off the slate by manfully accepting the obligation thrust upon you. You've been living in a dream world of fine books; you've seen the world only in the printed page; and you want to run back to your hermit's den the moment the first rub comes. After the first of the year take a trip on one of your cargo ships; go up to your great logging camp; go down among men. That'll cure you of this nonsense."

"All right," said Bancroft; "I'll stick, even though I don't want to."

"And one of these days you'll thank me for this straight talk. If your father paid Kennedy—whoever he was—it was an honorable debt. Your father bought that house from the bank."

"But there is that man who entered this very room—Johnson's man. What about him?"

"Some crank, probably."

"He came in here to kill my father."

"Why should any one want to kill your father?"

"Vengeance."

"More book stuff."

"No. For the same man is going to try to kill me," said Bancroft, quietly.

"What the devil are you talking about?"

"Battle, murder, and sudden death. My father escaped; so I've got to pay the debt myself, possibly."

"Have you signed any document?" demanded Snell.

"I'm not telling you another word, Mr. Snell. I've got to go through this all alone. Now, I want you to jot down the bequests in my will. You never can tell."

"A will?"

"Why not? Got to make one sometime, and this happens to be a good time. I'll be in Monday to sign it. To Miss Nancy Bowman."

"Young man, I'm going to have you locked up until I've investigated this business!"

Bancroft laughed. "That'll be wasting time. The game would start again the moment I was free."

"Have you deeded away any of your property?"

"I honestly don't know. But what I did I had to do."

"Had to?" cried Snell, growing more and more bewildered. "How about that affidavit you had me draw up?"

"It may serve; I don't know."

"Why can't you take me into your confidence, son? I might be able to suggest something." This boy was beyond him.

"No, sir. I'm sorry. You would only add to my difficulties and perhaps prolong them. I'll tell you this much: I want to be absolutely sure that a man sought my father's life. I have a fairly good warranty for believing I know; but I must have the proof. I'm not going through life looking over my shoulder, as my father must have. I'm going to have it over with now."

"Come in!" Snell called, impatiently, in answer to a knock.

"A telegram for you, sir," announced Johnson, backing out hurriedly as he observed the stormy countenance of his employer.

Closing a Deal with Carolyn fire, he threw himself into the effort to cut down the distance between himself and the fugitive.

When he reached the far end of the alley he saw with a thrill of satisfaction that the janitor's lead had been cut down by half. The man was just across the street. Alec came to a halt, took hasty aim, and cut loose another shot at him. Evans stumbled, but kept on, and was immediately swallowed up in the blackness of the alley running through the next block.

ALEC sped after him, spurred on by a seething anger of a kind he never before had experienced. All at once he noticed the footfalls ahead of him had ceased. Abruptly he pulled up, but he was too late. From behind an ash barrel just in front of him there came a blinding report, and something that felt like a pair of white hot tongs tore viciously at his left shoulder, spinning him around in his tracks and bringing him to his knees.

In a flash he was on his feet again, the anger within him blazing hotter than ever. The crash of another shot greeted him, this time close to his face. Alec answered it with blind fury, firing again and again as fast as he could pull the trigger.

When the weapon no longer responded he hurled it from him, and, staggering forward, threw himself headlong upon the crouching figure on the other side of the ash barrel, battering at it feebly with his open hands.

The figure was curiously inert, he thought, as he fought to clear his eyes of a thick haze which had begun to settle down over them—strangely passive for a man as powerful as Evans. Well, he would hold him down, anyhow—hang on to him until help came at least. The strength seemed to have left his arms for some reason, but he mustn't let this man get away—he mustn't—he mustn't! As he drifted into unconsciousness he twisted his head with one last effort and sank his teeth into his enemy's sleeve. That was how he lay when they found him.

In a corner drug store, some twenty minutes later, Alec felt tiny drops of hot water splashing on his face, and, speculating idly as to what their source might be, he opened his eyes slowly to find out. He was quite charmed to discover that the only thing within his range of vision was the tearful but otherwise adorable face of Miss Carolyn Wheeler.

He mustered a smile. "Did they get those roughnecks?" he inquired.

"Yes, dear; every one of them," answered Miss Wheeler. "Don't worry about them. Just keep quiet. You're badly hurt."

But Alec was not to be hushed up. "There was something I had on my mind," he went on, striving to gather his thoughts together. "Something I wanted to ask you. O, yes—I know: will you marry me some time, Carolyn?"

The girl bent over until her lips were close to his ear. "Yes, Alec," she whispered gently; and then with a sudden surge of emotion: "O, yes, dear—yes—yes!"

Alec managed another smile and made a futile attempt to raise his hand to her face. That annoying blanket of haze was beginning to settle down around him once more and it seemed an effort even to formulate a thought, much less carry out an action. Still he felt vaguely that the situation called for comment, and so, as the haze blotted out everything for the second time, he lapsed into familiar phrases.

"Fine—fine—you have secured a real bargain——" he murmured faintly, "an investment you'll never regret. Just sign here, please—yes—right here on the dotted line—that's it—thank you—I hope——"

The ambulance arrived just then and they took him along home, with Carolyn sitting close beside the stretcher to hold his hand and to gaze into his face with eyes in which not even the deep anxiety of the moment could entirely obscure a new and radiant happiness.

be back with his gang for twenty minutes, at the least. We'll be out of here in five, if we work fast."

"But suppose the library is being watched. They'd kill you sooner than let you get away. You know they would."

"Me!" said Alec, astonished. "Never mind me; it's you I'm thinking of. You don't suppose I'm going to have you lying here helpless when that bunch of bandits gets back, do you? Not much!"

"O, Alec, I'm so frightened!" moaned the girl. "Please, please be careful!"

"Nonsense. There's nothing to be frightened about now. I'll have you out of here in a jiffy if you just keep your nerve and do as I tell you. I'm going to get hold of that broken bottle and roll over here, and I think if I hold it tight you can saw that necktie off your wrists with it."

AFTER a prolonged period of scuffling about in the darkness Alec was back with the remains of the bottle. During the time it took him to find it both he and the girl were acutely conscious that affairs between them had suddenly taken a significant and exciting stride forward, so if their hearts were thumping riotously, it was not entirely due to the hazards of their predicament.

Alec now turned on his side and took a firm grip on the jagged fragment of glass. Squirming into position behind him, the girl pressed the necktie against the broken edge and sawed it vigorously back and forth. It was a discouragingly awkward business and her wrists were bleeding from innumerable tiny gashes before she finished, but the silk parted at last and she was free.

"Now this belt, please," prompted Alec, rolling over on his stomach.

"I know—I was just feeling for it," breathed the girl, tremulously, and with a skill born of desperation she solved by sense of touch the twists and knots with which the leather had been fastened. Half a minute more and Alec had taken out his jack-knife, cut the bonds on their ankles, and located the hatchet where he had dropped it.

"And that's that," he whispered, taking the girl by the arm. "Now we have a date at the police station."

"Can't we telephone?" she suggested.

"Not from here. The quicker we get out of here the better."

They found the stairs and mounted them cautiously. "Aha!" exclaimed Alec softly, as he pushed open the door into the reading room. "I was afraid so." The lights in the reading room and everywhere else in the library had been extinguished! He gently pulled the door shut again.

Miss Wheeler clutched at his arm and clung to him in the darkness. "Who put out those lights?" she gasped.

"Search me. Some one must have been up here while we were downstairs. It wasn't the man who tied us up; he went straight out the cellar door."

"Maybe they're still in the building—hiding out there in the dark!"

"Just what I was thinking, but, all the same, we've got to get out of here. Listen; if we turn to the left outside this door and slip into the children's room I could lower you out of a window and drop after you before they knew what was happening. It's an easy jump. Think you could make it?"

"Yes, Alec, if you help me." Carolyn's voice trembled a trifle, but there was the unmistakable note of determination in it. Alec impulsively caught her in his arms. "You angel!" he murmured, pressing his lips to her temple in a swift caress. "You plucky little angel!" Then, without a sound, he eased the door open.

"All right," he breathed in her ear. "Come ahead," and he stood aside to let her pass him.

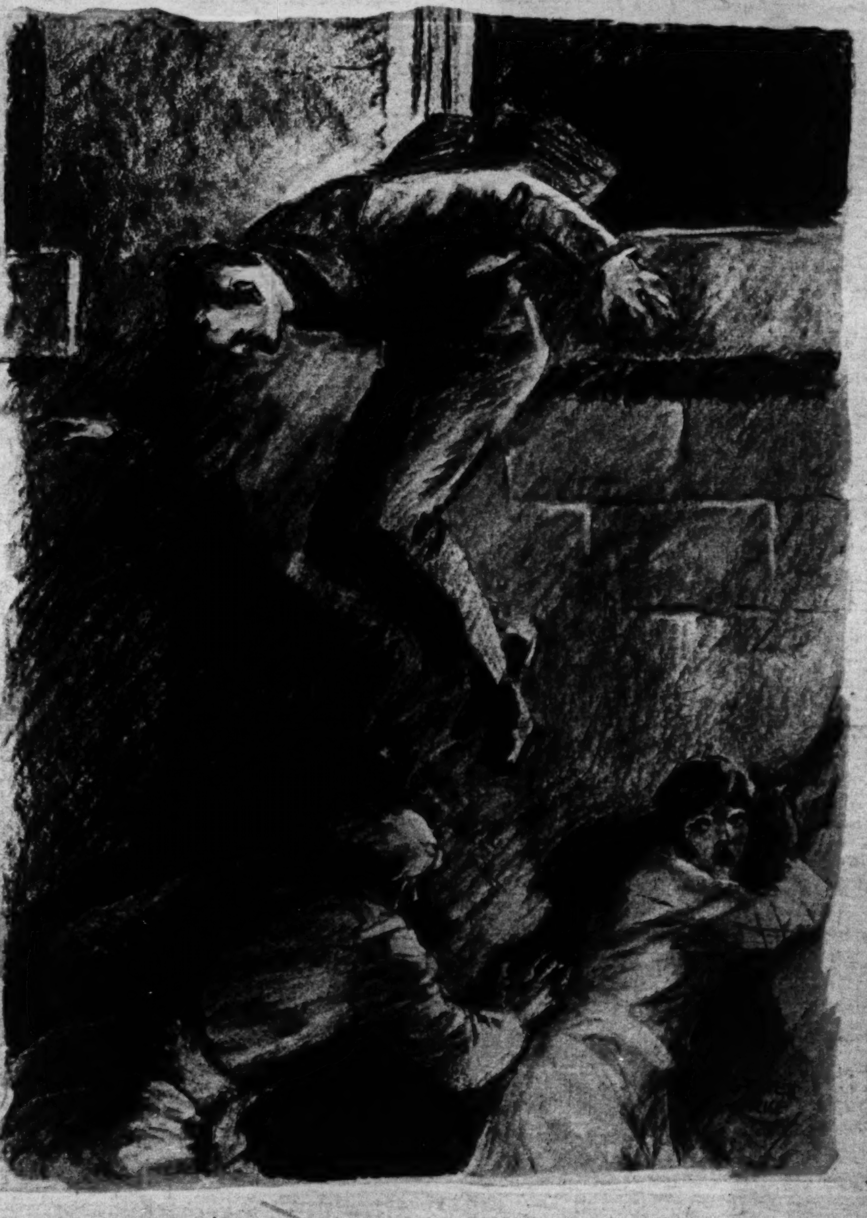
LIKE a ghost Miss Wheeler sped into the small room devoted to the juvenile library, and turned the catch on the big window. Alec flung up the sash and, grasping the girl by the wrists, swung her over the sill and dropped her. She landed safely, but no sooner had her feet touched the ground than a heavily built man in overalls stepped out of the shubbery and clapped a silencing hand over her mouth. In the beams shed across the lawn by the arc light on the corner, Alec was not greatly surprised to recognize this new adversary's unpleasant features as those of Evans, the janitor.

The new actor in the drama made a determined effort to drag Miss Wheeler into the shrubbery where he had been hiding, but the girl twisted away from him and ran back toward the window. Evans started in pursuit and, the instant he came within range, Alec leaped feet first from the window sill, landing on him with a malicious violence that knocked the wind out of him completely.

"So you're in on this, too?" said Alec as he knelt on the janitor's chest and ran a precautionary hand over his clothing. "You're a bootlegger now, eh? Revolver and everything." This last remark was prompted by his finding a sixshooter of antiquated model in the hip pocket of the overalls. "All right, Mr. Evans, we'll 'tend to you later."

The janitor was making spasmodic efforts to say something in reply, but his struggles resulted in nothing but a series of painful squeaks. Still kneeling on him, Alec handed the revolver to Miss Wheeler. Then he stood up beside her.

"You'll have to be pluckier than ever, now," he warned her quietly, "I'm going to leave you here to guard this man while I get the police. I won't be gone fifteen minutes. Just stay right here in the shadow of these bushes and if he makes a move of any kind don't hesitate to pull the trigger. You can do it."



Alec leaped feet first from the window sill, landing on the man with a malicious violence that knocked the wind out of him.

He gave her an encouraging pat on the shoulder and darted off toward the police station, a quarter of a mile distant. With a look of brave resolution, the girl mounted guard over her late assailant.

TEN minutes later the sergeant on duty at the police station was buckling on his pistol belt and remarking to Alec, "No way we can warn the revenue officers this time of night. We'll make this pinch ourselves."

"Fine," said Alec. "Give me a gun."

He was quickly provided with a heavy regulation revolver and they joined the three policemen who already were waiting in the patrol wagon at the door.

"Drive like blazes, Joe," ordered the sergeant, "but keep your foot off that gong. We want to surprise these birds if we can."

Half a block from the library they descended from the wagon and approached the building on foot.

"Better station your men around the rear of the grounds," advised Alec. "They'll try to carry the stuff out by the cellar door. I'll get around to the side and take care of the janitor until you've made the arrests."

"All right," acquiesced the officer, and then to his men he said: "Boys, we want to spread out around the grounds in the rear of the library, so we can close in from all sides, see? We're expecting there'll be four or five of them and they're apt to be bad actors. I'll give you the office when to close in."

The men accordingly diverged in the block next to the library and by various alleys, yards, and side streets approached the edifice in such fashion that they could command the rear of it from all angles. Alec remained with the sergeant, who chose for himself a route which would bring him out directly opposite the cellar door. As they drew near their goal the police officer halted suddenly and said: "What's that? Sounds like a motor."

"Great snakes! I wonder if they could have got back already!" Alec hastened ahead until he could see the library through the trees. One glance showed him that his apprehensions had been realized. A huge motor truck was backed into the driveway and stood there with its engine running and all its lights extinguished.

"There they are," he told the sergeant. "I don't see any one moving. They must have just gone down cellar. They'll be hustling out again in a minute, after they find we've got away."

Scurrying across the street, he and the officer crouched behind the hedge which lined the driveway. They were still breathing hard from the sprint when the cellar door opened and sounds of bitter dispute reached their ears. Four men emerged from the basement and stood around the tailboard of the truck, gesticulating angrily.

"T'ell wit' the stuff!" said one, in tones he hardly took the trouble to keep within the range of caution. "The bulls'll be down on us any mintue. We better lam outa here while we got the chance."

"What's bitin' ye?" retorted another, whose voice Alec recognized as that of the young man who had been hiding behind the packing cases. "Leave five thousand dollars worth of good stuff get away from us without a battle? You're crazy."

"Come on, Jake," urged a third. "There's only twenty cases. That's ten trips apiece fer us. We can do it in jig time. Don't quit cold. Lend us a hand."

"An' s'pose we get her loaded on—then what?" demanded the first speaker.

"Back to Chi, of course. This job's cold, but there ain't no sense in leaving the stuff behind. Come along."

"All right," agreed the reluctant one, "but you'll have to make it good and snappy. I just done one stretch, remember, an' I ain't lookin' to do another."

With that the quartet disappeared once more into the cellar.

"Now we got 'em," exulted the police sergeant, and he blew a sharp signal on his whistle.

ALEC moved swiftly to the corner of the building, on the side where he had left Miss Wheeler, and stood with revolver in hand, awaiting developments. They arrived with startling suddenness. There was a rush of feet near the basement door and Alec heard the sergeant say, "Stand right where you are, boys. You're under arrest."

"You go plumb to hell!" was the unexpected reply from the doorway, followed in the next second by a deafening fusillade of pistol shots. The sergeant dropped behind the hedge, whether badly hit or merely seeking cover Alec could not determine. Two of the gunmen darted forth, leaped over the tailboard of the truck, and threw themselves flat behind its sides. The other two ran around the machine, sprang on to the seat, and had the brakes free and the gears meshed before Alec could recover from his astonishment at their daring.

His position gave him a clear shot into the end of the truck, so he blazed away at it, and was promptly rewarded by a volley from the guns of the men on the floor. Chips of stone from the corner of the building stung his face, but none of the bullets found him, and he had raised his revolver to shoot a second time when a curve in the driveway swung the open end of the truck out of his line of fire.

Charging at reckless speed, the truck approached the street, and the desperadoes seemed in a fair way to make good their escape, but just at that moment one of the policemen, running across the lawn in response to the sergeant's signal, took a pot shot at the driver. Alec saw the man at the wheel slump suddenly, and held his breath as the huge machine swerved from the roadway and crashed into a fire hydrant.

The two men on the seat were hurled to the ground with stunning force, but the other two were still full of fight and they proceeded to put up a pistol battle that raged with increasing fury on both sides.

IN the excitement of the fighting Alec had ungallantly forgotten all about Miss Wheeler, and he was on the point of reinforcing the policemen when a scream of terror from the shrubbery at the side of the building caused him to turn around with a start. A dozen strides brought him within sight of the spot where he had left the plucky librarian, and as he raced over the turf toward her he could make out a confused struggle going on in the shadows. When he was within forty feet of the place he saw the treacherous Evans tear the revolver from the girl's clutches and strike her a cruel blow on the side of the head. She collapsed limply against a bush and the janitor ran for the street.

Alec saw red. His jaw closed with a snap and he set off after the flying figure in overalls with just one thought in his mind; he would make the man pay for that blow or he would not come back alive.

Seeing himself pursued, the janitor dashed for the mouth of the first alley he came to, and as he turned into it Alec let fly at him with his revolver. Evans fired two shots in return and then hastened on. Alec could hear the man's footsteps when he got to the alley, but the shadows were so dense he could not see him. Wisely withholding his

On the contrary, fate had played him a kindly stroke. The naïve confession had caused the evanishment of all doubt relating to the kiss from Nancy's mind. Jenny had told the truth, that he hadn't meant it. He hadn't, or he wouldn't have jested about it. (Not that it mattered!)

The little comedy had made away with much of her depression; and there was now apathy rather than misery in her heart as she constructed tomorrow's defense of what she considered her abominable conduct. Craig was to call at four, the coming afternoon.

PRECISELY at four Nancy opened the door for him. With terror in his heart and a smile on his face he entered and laid his hat and coat on a chair; then he offered his hand.

"I ought not to take it," she said gravely. "I have done a beastly thing."

"No. I should say that you were a young lady who had been thinking too much of late." He sat down.

He knew exactly what this interview signified—the wreck of his dreams. He had had a premonition of this hour immediately after he had left her at the stage entrance and returned for his aunt. Why? Because all his life he had been unlucky; and it did not seem possible that fate should relent so unexpectedly. The girl's manner at his house, the artificiality of her laughter, the unchanging pallor on her face, had put this premonition into his consciousness. As he picked up her telephone calls and later saw Mannheim this premonition became absolute conviction: Nancy wanted to get out of it, to break her promise. Never in all his life had he known such hurt; and never would the future hold anything like it.

But the thing uppermost in his mind just now was to let her get out of it with all the honors, subtly to draw the onus upon his own shoulders. He recalled the exact wording of his proposal. Fortunately he had not actually spoken of love. So, then, to lie cheerfully but adroitly. He could not hold her; so why waste his breath in trying? But, ah, dear God, how it was going to hurt! Strange, but he knew this child better than any other man would ever know her. She was made up of all metals, and the gold was constantly working its way out through the baser in the melting pot of her conscience.

"Well?" he said.

"It was all base and vile of me," she began, her fingers locked. "I wanted the things you could give, not you. I have debased myself. I shall never be clean again. I could have written you and ended it that way; but that would have been cowardly. I am going to hurt you, but I'm going to hurt myself, too."

"Then you didn't mean it?"

"No. I was full of fury against the world, against myself. I thought, if you came here, I could make you understand better the basis of my madness." She rose from the lounge, crossed to the window, and beckoned to him. She pointed to the dingy back yards and the cluttered clotheslines. "Wherever there was a window, that was the vista. So long as I had my ambition these vistas only vaguely oppressed me. But now I haven't any ambition. Honest folk have told me that I was wasting my time, that I could never reach any but subordinate heights as a singer. So now I see all that yonder—the ash cans, the sodden clothes, the hodge-podge—with a clear eye. It is a part of my life, and may always be."

"Nonsense! Your success——"

But she interrupted him. "O, yes! I am a born comedienne—so Mannheim says, so Sorrentino says, so they all say!" There was a touch of fury in her gesture. "But what if I hated the stage?—the present grade of it? Supposing you weren't quite great enough to play in concert, and supposing you were offered a piano in a moving picture theater, would you accept it—that is, if you didn't depend upon your talent for bread and butter? You would laugh and shake your head. Wait!" She ran to the wall stand and fetched the Jaipen enameled brass box, opening it. "Here is a little box of brass; inside, a little gold chain. Ah, dear God, if these could speak! But they can't. I am a foundling, Mr. Craig. I don't know where I came from or to whom I belong. They might be terrible people; I may have inherited dreadful things."

Craig forced a laugh. "Never in this world! The trouble is, you are supersensitive: mountains out of molehills. But I understand."

"Because you are a good man. But on Thanksgiving day, recollecting all these things, a bitter madness laid hold of me, and I went to your home, hoping you'd say the very words you did. O, it was despicable! I never thought of the injury I might be doing you. It was only after the performance that the shock of what I had done came to me. You will forgive me?"

"Do you love anybody else?"

"O, no!" She was perfectly honest. "If I had loved any one I should never have known this shame."

"And you want me to release you from your promise?"

"Yes."

Craig began to tramp about, making a pretense of inspecting the pictures on the walls, mostly photographs of famous composers and opera stars. Finally he paused at the window, out of which he stared for a moment or two.

"Will you forgive me?"

He turned, offering a kindly smile. "Why not, you poor child? I'm glad you sent for me, that you did not write. I can understand now. Confession is good for the soul; so I'll make mine. I'm a lonely man, something of a self-made outcast. I drank some. I had no anchor. Then I saw you and you caught my fancy. You were different; you had charm and manner; your environment irked you. My house was empty; you would have graced it; I saw myself no longer a kind of Ancient Mariner. Perhaps there was some vanity, too. You are beautiful, and you have talent, and the town beginning to talk about you."

"Then it isn't going to hurt."

"Not half so much as it hurts you to tell me these facts. Besides, I am almost twice as old. Just a little flare in the ashes that would probably have died out in a week or so."

"I want to cry!" she said, sitting down and covering her face.

"You mustn't do that!" he cried, alarmed. He might spoil it all if he saw her in tears. "Understand, I do not hold you to your promise. You are free—upon one condition."

That brought her face up. "And what is that?" O, if it were only his vanity that she had hurt!

"Well, that I may drop in once in a while for tea and that you will take tea with me some afternoons."

"O, anything like that!" she cried eagerly. "Just friends—I have so few."

"It's a bargain," he said. So long as she loved no one else! "Well, I'll be going along." He stooped and picked up Ling Foo. "Has he been a good pal?"

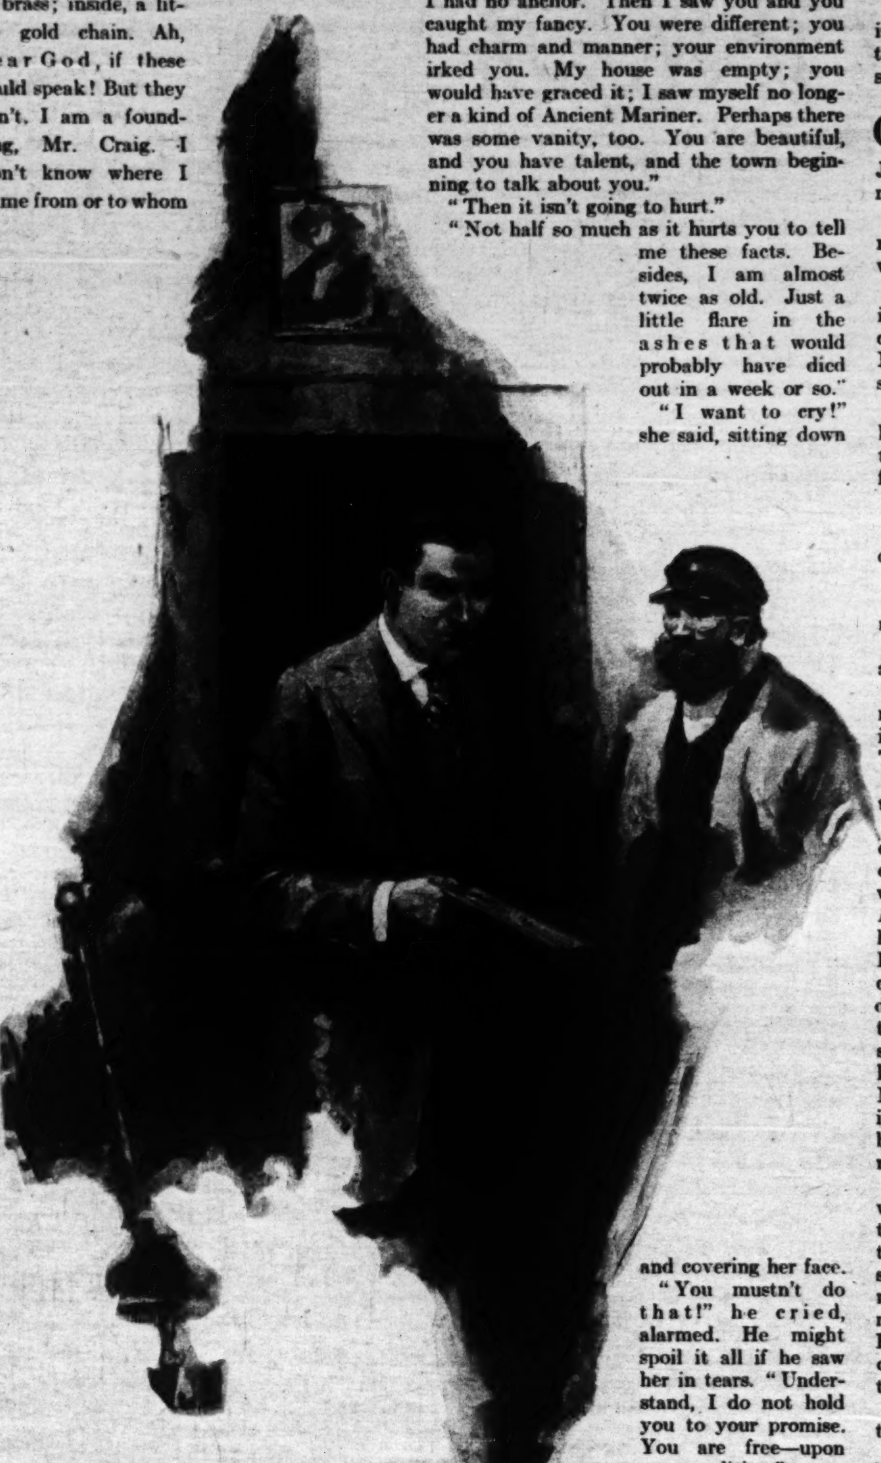
"I don't know what I should have done without him." It did not seem possible that she had got out of it so easily.

"I'll tell you what," he said. "Enter him at the Plaza show. I'll send you his pedigree and his registered number. I didn't send them because I was never sure you were going to keep him. Put him in the novice and puppy classes and he'll win. He has stout bones, a fine coat, and an exceptionally good head. It will be an outside interest; and that's what you need. Your new salary will give you more freedom; so go in for outside interests. Now"—as he dropped Ling Foo in a chair—"forget this interview and the cause of it; wipe it off the slate. It was all my fault. And just as soon as you can—move. You have thought too much in this room."

Strange inconsistency! She had suffered in this room, and she would go on suffering, in various degrees, so long as she remained; and yet she now had no wish to leave. But she nodded, so he would not pursue the subject and to get him gone.

He bade her good-by, patted her hand reassuringly, and made his departure with the air of one who had finished a most casual visit.

As the door latched Nancy leaned against it, her forehead resting upon her arm. No tears, no sobs; but occasionally a long, deep sigh stirred her shoulders.



The doorplate was of copper. In the center was graven simply—"Kennedy."

CRAIG had the misfortune to meet Jenny on the sidewalk; and of all persons Jenny was the last he cared to see at this moment.

"Hello, there!" cried Jenny. Then she noticed his face, gray and drawn. "Why, what's th' matter?"

Craig realized, with much bitterness, that if he did not take Jenny part way into his confidence she might innocently produce in Nancy's mind the very effect he had taken so much painful labor to dissipate.

"Can you keep a secret, Jenny?" He knew, by the abruptness of her question, that everything was written clearly on his face.

"Sure!"

"Well, then, don't ask Miss Bowman any questions. I don't want her hurt."

"Hurt?"—bewildered.

"Yes. I lied to her; told her it didn't matter."

"In Gawd's name, what are you talkin' about?"

"She promised to marry me the other night. I have just given her back that promise. I never want her to know that it hurts. That is all."

Craig entered his car and huddled into the padded corner, closing his eyes.

Jenny stood at the curb and watched the car until it vanished, her throat stuffy, her eyes stormy. The little fool!—to let a white man like that slip through her fingers! A man who could give her everything and love, too! What did she want, anyhow? But as Jenny went up the stairs her anger evaporated. The poor kid! Of course, if she didn't care for Craig, Nancy wasn't the kind to marry him for his money. But what had she been thinking of to jab the hook into him and then yank it out? That wasn't Nancy Bowman. What was the world coming to, anyhow? A few weeks ago they had been as happy as a couple of crickets and now everything was on the squeegee.

Jeremiah? Something Jeremiah had said when his noodle was wabbling? Had something like that caused Nancy to give Craig the gate? Jeremiah and Nancy! Thunderstruck, Jenny paused at the landing. Jeremiah and Nancy! Well, why not? she demanded belligerently of the hall shadows. Both young, both highbrow; Craig a bit too old and she, Jenny, with no more brains than a blimp.

"Gee!" she said, audibly, "but this is a tough old world, all th' same!"

THREE days later Bancroft made an extraordinary discovery; or, rather, this discovery was thrust upon him in a most casual manner and drove him to wandering about the streets, his brain foggy and his heart steeped in misery. It came about in this fashion:

His head no longer bothered him save when he stooped and recovered quickly; then there was a transient stab and points of dancing fire. Otherwise—excepting the fading black eye—he was quite himself. He had actually begun work on his Latin Primer; two pages, introductory. (Which is as far as he ever got.)

The day was cold and blustery. It was four in the afternoon, Jenny was making tea, Nancy was idly thrumming the piano, while Bancroft sat on the lounge and ruffled the puppy's ears. The radiator was banging and sputtering so regularly that Nancy could not sing. Finally she had gone to the speaking tube and summoned the janitor. They were waiting for him.

Jansen came in shortly, with his usual grumble. He wore an old gray sweater, long since pulled out of shape by the weights he had carried in the side pockets.

"Why, all you gotta do is to turn that," he said, indicating the nickel cap.

"But it's too hot for bare fingers," replied Nancy.

"What kind o' fingers d' you think we've

The World Outside

Blue Ribbon Fiction

by Harold MacGrath

THE STORY THUS FAR

DANIEL STEWART, a sinister stranger, contracts to supply Collingswood Jeremiah Bancroft, who has just inherited his father's $7,000,000 and is exploring "the world outside," as represented by New York, with an adventure for $10,000. Stewart then secretly erases all except the signatures, and Jerry's copy of the contract vanishes. Meantime Jerry falls in love with Nancy Bowman, a foundling who has become a Broadway stage favorite, and Nancy, informed that her opera ambitions are vain, becomes engaged to Arthur Craig, the backer of her comedy, only to repent and to begin a frantic hunt for him, that she may repudiate her promise. Jerry finds a dagger and a note beneath his pillow. Four ruffians blackjack him while he is escorting Nancy home, and in his delirium, while she is nursing him, he reveals his love for her. A detective, hunting for clews that will untangle the mystery that binds together the malevolent Stewart, Jerry, his father, whose death is still a puzzle, and a mysterious "Kennedy," referred to in the older Bancroft's effects, reports that "Kennedy" vanished in Bolivia years ago after selling an emerald mine to Stewart.*

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT.

The Doorplate.

HERE the girls came in, one with toast and the other with cocoa. Jerry loved them both, differently. The touch of their tender hands was the sweetest tonic he had ever known. They scolded him, and fussed over him, renewed the fluff to his pillows; and one of them fed him toast and the other hot cocoa; and he knew that he had nothing of which to envy the gods.

"I'm going to get this way once a week," he said.

"What?" cried Nancy.

"Yes, ma'am. This is worth all the bumps a man could take in a single night."

"You poor nut," said Jenny; "if you ever come in this way again you go t' th' hospital. We're through. We haven't had any sleep yet on your account."

"You mean you two sat up all night with me? I wonder if I'll ever appreciate my luck? Supposing I'd moved in somewhere else!"

"Horrible thought!" said Nancy lightly. "I didn't bring in the puppy. He's full of pep and wants to romp. But I'll bring him in before I go to the theater tonight."

"That'll be fun!"—wondering whether it was the puppy's throat or his ears that she kissed oftenest. The funny little codger! "Now you two run along and get some sleep. I'm all right. Hicks are hard to kill."

"Did you lose much?" asked Jenny.

"Not enough to hurt," he answered. He could lie easier these days, almost blandly; that is, he could utter harmless fibs serenely, since these would never react except upon himself.

"I wondered," said Jenny. "They might 'a' got your whole roll."

"They didn't."

Nancy, returning alone to her room, drew upon all her courage and telephoned Craig's home; but Craig had not yet returned from the country. For a short time her thoughts were confused. A strange kind of lover, not to telephone, not to send her even a note! The deed must be done, it was inescapable; but for all that her immediate sensation was of relief, with an undercurrent of shame that she should welcome this respite. The longer it was delayed the harder to do. But one decision she had come to irrevocably: she would not hide behind the telephone or a letter; she would make her miserable confession here in this room, face to face with him. Else her self-respect would always be a shattered thing. She would not try to escape any hurt that was due her. But, O, to have it over and done with, over and done with! Still dressed, she flung herself upon the lounge and slept until four.

SOON after becoming a tenant Bancroft had had a bed lamp installed. This day the janitor had rigged up the key so that Bancroft could have light or darkness merely by pulling a string. At nine o'clock that night he shut off the light and talked softly to Ling Foo, who occupied a side of the pillow and snored frequently, because at certain angles it was hard for him to breathe easily with that joke of a nose.

"You're a lucky pup, Ling."

Ling Foo's tail admitted the soft impeachment.

"She took a lot of trouble for you one night; mud and rain, and all that, so you wouldn't be thirsty."

Ling Foo remembered that night.

"Of course, I'm a fool."

Ling Foo didn't know about that.

"I haven't a chance in the world; but it's kind of hard. Do you think she loves anybody else?"

"Me," said Ling Foo's tail.

"I mean, does she care for Craig? I shouldn't blame her. Craig has everything. He knows all the tricks of attraction; and I'm only a poor hick from the sticks, as Jenny would say. Lord, how the man can play the piano! And I can't pick out 'Yankee Doodle' with one finger."

"Music tickles my ears," said Ling Foo's tail, "and makes me sing."

"We human beings are funny, Ling. I want to know the future; and yet if the eminent lady from Cumae entered at this moment, ready to foretell, I'd boot her hence. Why? Because hope's the only thing worth having; and all hope would vanish if we could know tomorrow. There wouldn't be any good stories either. A story is always somebody else's hope. Ling, I'm all banged up because Craig's turkey choked me. Sounds funny, doesn't it? Truth, though. Well, let's go to sleep."

Ling Foo had long since been ready for that. He rose, turned around a few times, then curled up on the spot he had just vacated, thereby executing one of those dog mysteries humans will never solve. But scarcely had the puppy begun to snore than a true growl vibrated his lithe body.

"Sh!" whispered Bancroft, alert.

Out of the silence came a slight click, which Bancroft instantly placed. It came from the lock in the door.

"Come right in, Mr. Stewart; come right in!" he called, cheerfully if ironically, through the dark.

The noise—the clicking in the keyhole—ceased instantly. No other sound followed directly; though Bancroft attuned his hearing to running feet, he heard nothing; but a minute later there came the sound of a door roughly closed. There wouldn't be any dagger or bowie knife tonight.

But hard upon this thought came another, quite bewildering. Stewart had not known that his victim was laid up in bed. Now, what could that possibly signify? Stewart was thorough. Bancroft was assured that if Stewart had set those thugs in the alley he would be most certain to find out what they had accomplished. Again, it had not seemed possible that Stewart would sink to petty robbery. If the man had any scheme it would have breadth and originality. Chance medley, then; ordinary thugs who would have pounced upon any man well dressed. Suggestion; the idea of the alley had been suggested to him at the start as having a new and peculiar interest once the Great Adventure contract was signed.

Bancroft now regretted that he had not permitted Stewart to enter and given him a thorough shocking. He might even have got a glimpse of the future through Stewart's conduct in being surprised. Instead he had warned the man away. Had he, Bancroft, been afraid? He wanted to be honest with himself. If he were afraid of Stewart, physically, he wanted to know. But, search as he would, he could find no element of fear back of his action. He had merely jumped at the first thought that had entered his head—and missed a bit of real melodrama: Stewart, blinking in the sudden light, a dagger in his hand, for all the world like a child caught jam handed in the pantry; and part of the fun would have been to witness Stewart extricate himself from such a ludicrous situation; and in his rage or chagrin the man might have exposed a card or two. Too green, too green, Bancroft sighed; his brains were still so much lumber. Stewart was right.

So the alley rumpus had been Chance medley: good-by to his dollar watch, his emeralds, and his several thousands. And he might have escaped but for Craig's Thanksgiving turkey!

One thing, however, was believable: he would be the recipient of no more daggers. That phase of the game was played out; and Stewart would recognize the fact readily from the cheerful invitation to enter. But if only he had thought to let the man in and then turned on the light! Funny how the right thing came into one's head when it was too late. But if one always thought the right thing to do at the right time human beings would be perfect and there wouldn't be a laugh left in the world.

HIS thought leaped back to Nancy; it would always be leaping back to her when any other thought began to lose its stimulant. It was the most compelling thought he had. Whenever he encountered resistance in this queer battle in the dark he turned back to the thought of her. Rather a melancholy refuge, to be sure, but certified, unaccompanied by doubts. He loved her, but he never thought of her in the possessive sense; loved her as he loved the dawn, the sunset, the stars, the impossibility of possessing them—or her—being obvious.

He had read of the maddening attraction of the theater, and Nancy would always be on the stage or preparing for it. In a year or so—according to Jenny—Nancy would become the idol of the town—that is to say, the idol of the continent—and Collingswood Jeremiah Bancroft (it was his habit of naming himself in full when he was ironical) would become to her recollection an inconsiderable mote.

As all true men are, he was skeptical about his powers of attraction. Assembling his features, he had a face, and that was all he could see in the mirror. Eyes, nose, mouth, and chin, blocked in with flesh; none of that distinctive melancholy which drew women's glances toward Craig! Hang him! The more Bancroft thought it over the more he became convinced that his face was merely a sketch and that the Artist had not cared to develop it.

And yet Nancy and Jenny could have told him that he possessed what many women would have offered their souls for—an utter complexion, a scarless fine skin under which the clean blood came flood and ebb to his emotions. He could still blush. He could even blush in the dark: as he did when Nancy called to him through the door, after midnight. He had slept fitfully, never soundly; so when she knocked he awoke instantly.

"Jerry?"

"Who is it?" he called.

"Nancy."

'Twas then he blushed. "You want Ling Foo? The door is unlocked. Open it a little and I'll drop him to the floor."

When this business was accomplished Nancy asked: "How are you?"

"O, I'm all right. Head aches, but nothing to speak of."

"Is the bandage all right?"

"O yes!" he answered, eagerly, substantially afraid she might offer to come in and fuss over the bandage; and with her fingers fluttering about his head, heaven knows! "Got the puppy?"

"Yes. But your door ought to be locked."

"Nobody will bother me."

"Well."

"How was everything tonight?"

"The same as usual."

"Where's Jenny?"

"Burning other people's candles for them."

He laughed; there was a flash of pain. "I don't see how she does it and still keeps her good looks."

"Jenny is stunning, isn't she? I don't see how men can resist kissing her."

"They never kiss her more than once."

"Why not?"

"Hatpins."

"O! Did she ever stick one into you?"

"No." A wave of mocking recklessness rolled over him. "I only kissed her once."

"What! You kissed her?"

"Once. I didn't offer to do it again, because her eye was full of hatpins."

Silence for a moment. "So you're the kind that kiss and tell!"

"But Jenny didn't kiss me. I'm not telling on Jenny, I'm telling on myself. She was the innocent bystander."

"Jerry, your moral fiber——"

"But I kissed her only once, and I'm sorry," he added, with a stab of remorse. What had made him tell? "I'm afraid I'm a cad."

"You would be, if Jenny had kissed you."

"Well, she didn't. But please don't tell Jenny I told you."

"No need to. Jenny told me herself."

"Then I haven't spilled the beans, as she would say?"—relievedly.

"No; but I'm going to wear hatpins myself after this."

"Why, Nancy, I wouldn't——"

"Well, that's complimentary! Am I not as pretty as Jenny?"—a little female devil jogging her elbow.

All this in the dark, of course, and softly spoken.

He was speechless; he did not know what to say. Presently he heard a low laugh, succeeded by the light patter of shoes. She was gone. She had been having fun with him; and no doubt, from now on, she would be giving him sly digs regarding that harmless kiss. All at once the colossal mistake of his confession came home to him. He had told the woman he loved that he had deliberately kissed another! O, the double dyed ass that he was!

STRICTLY BUSINESS MEN

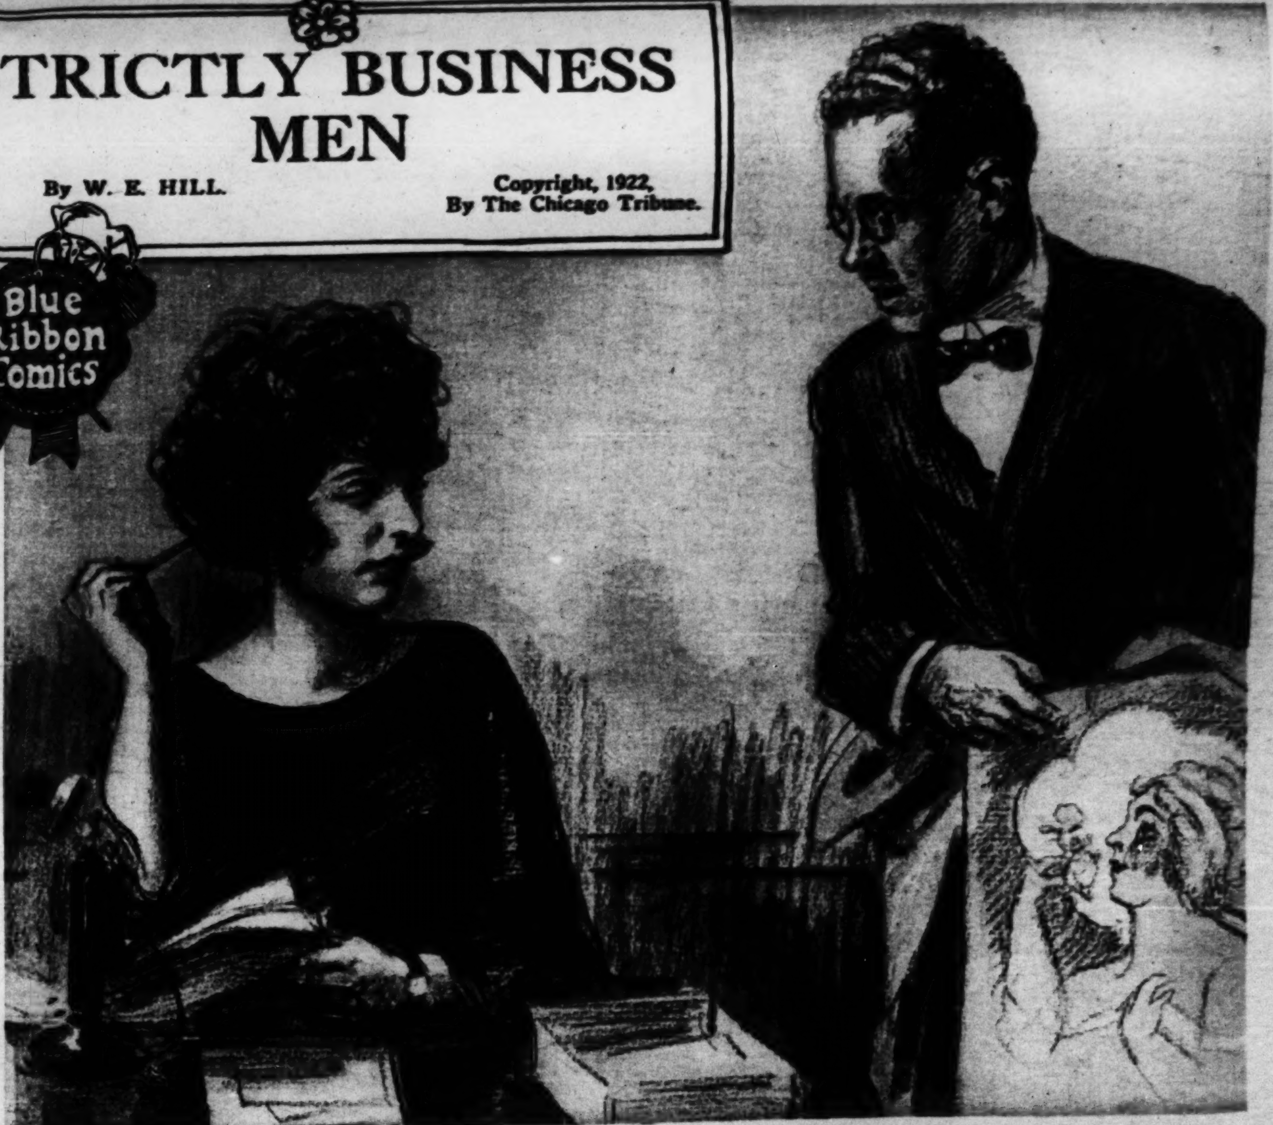
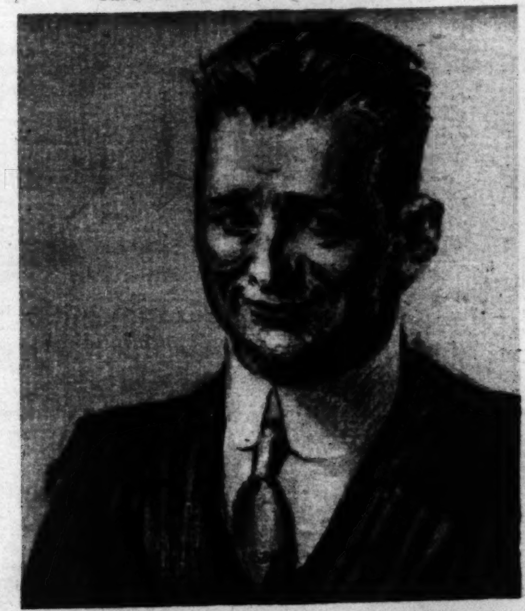
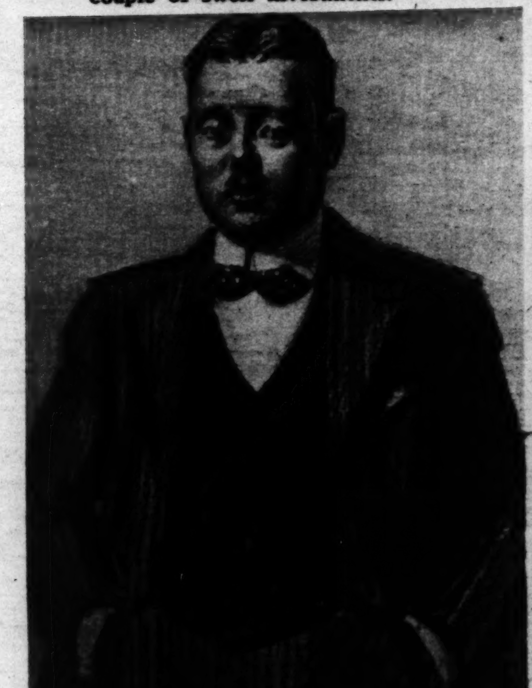
The broker. Away from the Street. The broker loves to get away from it all and tell you confidentially how he cleaned up on a pretty good proposition, etc., etc. All about margins and selling short, and points, if you care to listen.



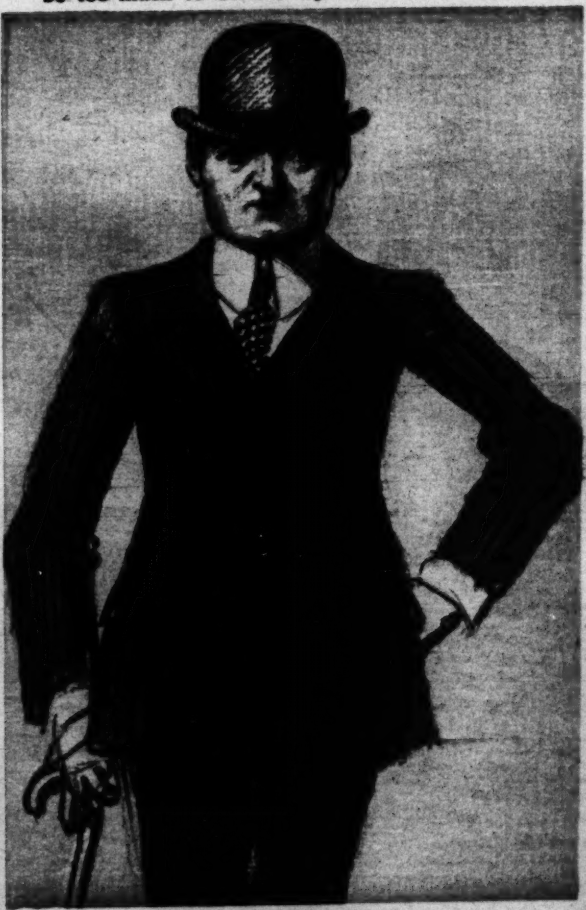
The commercial artist. Arthur was full of enthusiasm when he left home with a parcel of sample drawings. Yes, siree, he was going to knock the eye out of the art departments around town and ask 'em whatever he darn pleased for his work! But under the withering eye of Miss Peggy Sedlitz, who guards the outer portals of the Roto Art Service, Arthur isn't feeling quite so chipper. He's wondering if ten dollars for the lot will be too much to demand—provided they like the drawings!



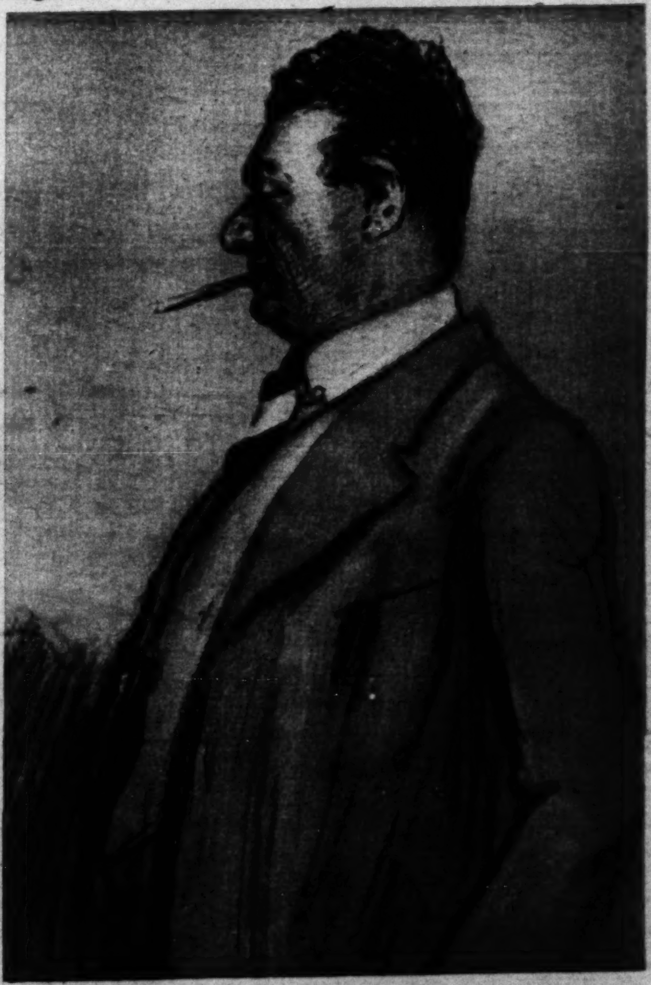
The bond salesman. Oh, the happy, trustful glance of the bond salesman who would like to interest you—only take a minute of your time — in a couple of swell investments.



The hereditary member of the firm. Something had to be done with Collinwood after college, and with Poppa and Uncle Birnett at the head of things, what was there to do but let Collinwood in? Collinwood takes three hours off for lunch as a rule and worries about dividends.



The actor. You wouldn't call an actor a business man, just offhand, would you? But wait. Here's Lester Priestly on the way to rehearsal the morning after the opening performance, and maybe he isn't going to demand his rights. Mr. Bently, the critic, has said of Lester that "in a part which made no untold demands on the actor, Lester Priestly gave a praiseworthy performance." Lester is going to request—nay, DEMAND, rather—one hundred a week extra on the strength of the notice. And if the management doesn't like it they know what they can do with their old part, so there!



The automobile salesman. A happy existence is the lot of the average automobile salesman. At any rate, it looks that way from outside the big plateglass windows. Grouped tastefully among the palms and the Rolls-Royces and the nearly new cars, with nothing to do till tomorrow but watch the flappers go by! And then a beautiful lady comes in who simply can't decide between the Ford station wagon and the little sedan, changes her mind and back again at least a dozen times, and the troubles of the automobile salesman begin.

A cream that really holds the powder

How many times, especially when you were dancing, you have wished your face would not get shiny and that the powder would stay on!

POWDER put directly on the skin does not stay. Too much of it clings in spots. Some of it catches on little rough places for a time and then flecks off. This roughness of the skin's surface is often so slight that you cannot see it, but it is enough to prevent the powder going on smoothly.

Try putting powder on after you have used Pond's Vanishing Cream—the soft velvety surface it gives your skin forms the ideal powder base. The powder goes on evenly giving your skin a lovely transparent tone and it stays on for hours—even when you walk in the wind or dance.

This fragrant cream contains not a drop of oil to reappear in a shine, and will actually make your skin feel and look softer and smoother the moment you apply it. Only a cream that your skin can absorb instantly will do this.

You can buy it in jars and tubes at any drug or department store. It does not clog the pores or promote the growth of hair. The Pond's Extract Co., 131 Hudson Street, New York.

For a thorough cleansing you need a very different cream. Use Pond's Cold Cream every night and after every dusty trip. It is made with just the right amount of oil to remove every bit of dirt.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—There are some of the new evening gowns which look for all the world like a Hippodrome set—you know that sort of glacier or stalactite effect upon which are turned blue or pink or purple rays. These are of the metallic fabrics in crinkled weave which are shot with some color. They are constantly represented in the new evening gowns, but it is a question whether the average woman is going to adopt them. For one thing, this sort of glare is becoming only to the rare and radiant sister. It is really too harsh to be a good choice for the most of us.

There is, however, in addition to the colored and crinkfed metallic weaves, a more becoming fabric, which goes by the name of satin glacier. Puffed and possessed of a marvelous shimmer, this satin de luxe is being exploited widely abroad for evening wraps and frocks. Velvet has now been treated to the same process, and both of these materials represent the high water mark of fashionable dressing.

But the average woman can do nothing better than get herself a velvet, just a plain, old fashioned velvet. White is good in this. So is green. And some of the most exclusive women in New York are turning to that deep blue which just escapes being indigo. Designers differ on the subject of treating these velvets. Beads are used on a number of them, but we are certainly displaying an artistic restraint in the administration of such baubles. Indeed, some of the most stunning of autumn evening dresses in this material are just plain draped.

An example of this new dictum, "Spare the bead and save the gown," is found in the fifth model on the page. This velvet frock from Doucet is in one of those deep blue tones of which I have just spoken, and its corsage trimming of mingled jet, crystal, and blue beads assists in the development of the graceful side drapery. In the back a capelike loop of self-material is banded with the same trimming.

So, too, does the brilliant frock of yellow velvet to its right. These bright golden yellows are, by the way, constantly shown by the smart shop of today, and for the brunette who lives up to that mid-Victorian ideal of "alabaster skin and raven locks" there could certainly be no better choice. Gold and silver laces are extensively employed this autumn on both dinner gowns and the more elaborate décolleté, and this frock is developed with the aid of a deep bertha of gold lace, supplemented by a panel of the same glittering tissue.

Even if the circular flounces of which I recently spoke be employed today, they are usually cautious not to interfere with the injunction, "Be thou ever slim and beautiful." Thus in the second model from the left we find a circular flounce trespassing not at all against the classic edict. This flounce is banded in the same green and crystal beads which trace a harmonious diagonal on the skirt below. An arresting feature of the model is a panel covered with the same beads forming a partial jacket effect on the blouse.

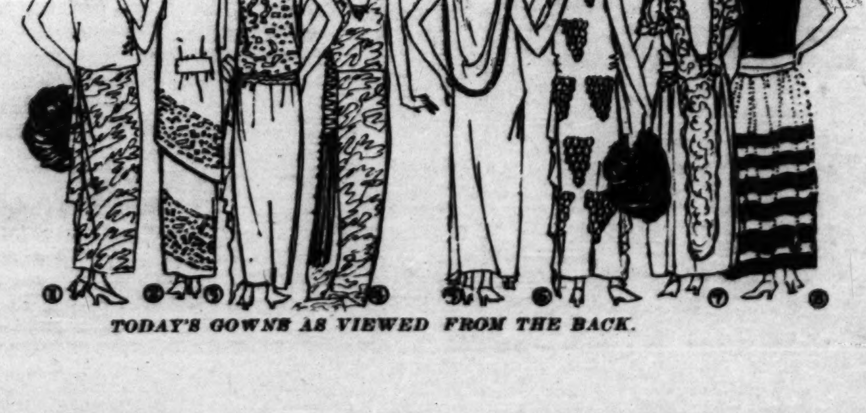
We are certainly not color shy this year when it comes to our evening modes. Aside from the metallic effects, among which, by the way, is to be included the fashionable copper, we have poppy and flame color well up in the ranks where I have already located bright yellow, green, and deep blue.

It is poppy tint that the crêpe de chine model numbered six exploits in a design notable for its novelty of trimming. This consists of motifs of matching velvet leaves. Such appliques are much seen just now.

The favored metallic ribbon touch is indicated in Jenny's dinner frock at the extreme right. Here we have a long waisted model of black satin, over which falls a rather full overskirt of black net banded in graduated sizes of black velvet ribbon. The distinctive note is supplied, however, by tiny sleeves of metal ribbon in various jewel-like colors. A tiny strand of this ribbon is added to a wide belt of silver metal ribbon.



TODAY'S GOWNS AS VIEWED FROM THE BACK.

The other models on the page are as follows: No. 1 is a Worth model allying a gray satin blouse with a draped skirt of gray and silver brocade and introducing on the former a stunning pattern of red and crystal beads; No. 3 is a green georgette with crystal and green bead trimming, and No. 4 is a white brocade with a stunning side trimming of jet and crystal beads, from which hangs long fringe of the same elements. (A train seizes this opportunity to assert itself.)

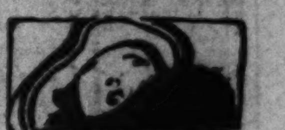
Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions



By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

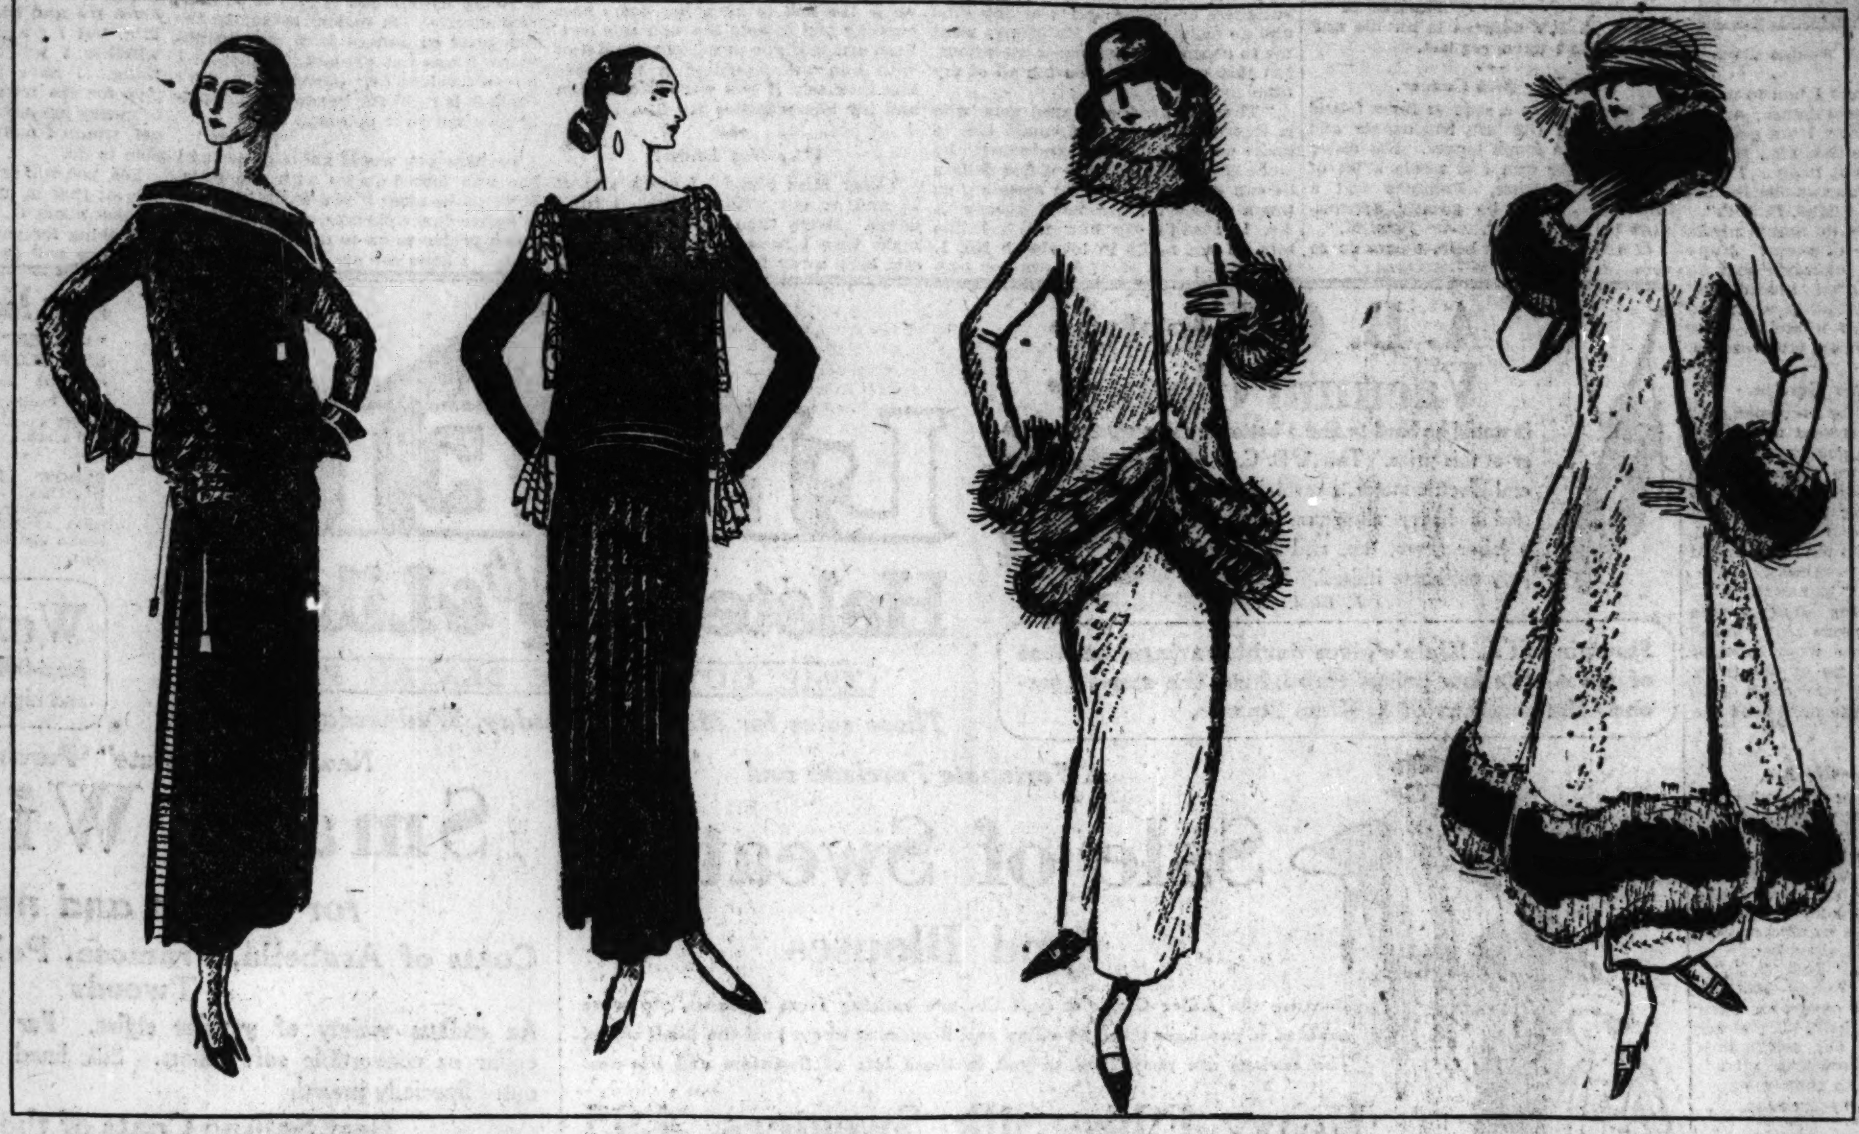
PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—They tell me America has gone mad over the one piece dresses: the complement to that piece of news you can perhaps guess. Paris worships skirts and blouses. A woman said to Vionnet the other day, when the designer was urging her old customer to come and have a look at the collection: "Madame Vionnet, I simply don't want to buy one single dress."

"Ah, but madame," answered the great creator. "A tailleur; it is for you! How they are delicious!" Every French wardrobe for the moment includes at least one of these, and the French nation has let itself loose on the business of designing and launching blouses to accompany same. They make them up to imitate chain armor. There is one in thin crepe de chine, encrusted in embroidery, and studded with hard metal, like the little rings you punch through groups of typewriting pages to hold them together. The sleeves float delicately at the wrists in an opening of some eight inches, and are in crepe georgette, which allows the outline of the arm to shadow through.

The neck's the thing that really gives this creation a great deal of character; it is just the shape of the throat at its base, only the blouse is cut in a straight line down the front for six inches, and the round neck line does not come close together, but is held by a little cord that runs through one of the eyelets in each corner studded with the steel rings. The name of this creation is armourette, and you look pretty dressy when you get into it, with a plaited skirt to carry it (or perhaps one as tight as a tube) and don your little bob tail fur jacket. It costs one hundred dollars, and I should think that even in our United States this ought still be a pretty fair price for a blouse.

One of the best dressed French women I know is costuming herself exclusively in blouses and skirts. She has a long cloth coat, a long fur coat, and two short ones, besides a tailleur. Her blouses range in elegance from one like armourette to others in pale beige colored tricot de soie, the silk made by the people who manufacture the famous lily stockings of France, and made every stitch by hand after a pattern which the French have worked out to look careless and easy to get into—and mostly you know their things look the reverse of simple, even to the point of being over dressed.

There are certain rules for conduct in a French blouse. They must all come below the waistline and on the outside of the skirt. They must be made of materials that fall heavily. If the goods is not heavy naturally, it must be embroidered and studded and have things planted in it until it is. None of your light, billowy, floating effects, except in the short waisted things that really make a part of a three piece suit.



Dark Blue Crêpe Trimmed in Striped Indian Embroidery. Black Crêpe with Cape and Frills of Thin Silk India Printed. Suit of Soft Gray Wool Corduroy Edged with Opossum Fur. Long Tailored Coat of Deep Brown Duvetyn.

The models illustrated show a few of Premet's best efforts of the year. The first one, I think makes an awfully pretty dress with an unusualness and chic about it—and above all something that in my eyes is a virtue, you can have it for your only costume up until 6 in the evening, "so long as it shall endure." It is of crepe in a blue that is dark yet bright, alive and yet soft.

The unusual things about it are the collar and embroidery. This trimming is in Indian colors of bright green, red, and yellow. It goes in insets of strips down the sides of the skirt and round collar and sleeves. The neck preserves the boat shape, with a band following its outline, rolling away from the throat and ending in two points on the right shoulder. A friend of mine wears it with a long squirrel coat from Premet's, with a tight band round the hips, and a narrow skirt, which take away from the enormous bulk which squirrel usually gives to one. Her appearance is chic, indeed.

The second dress has many of the same virtues as the first. You would scarcely need them both in your wardrobe. It is in a black, crepey material, bloused higher above the waistline than many of the prevailing models, and fore as well as aft. The skirt is gathered across the front and also along the middle of the back, but smoothes ungathered over the hips. Note the tight sleeves of the other costume and this.

The garnishment of the second model is a short pellerine or cape effect of silk in Indian print that goes across the back and falls over the shoulders in front. The pipings at the wrists are of course in this same silk, and so is the piping round the waistline below the blouse. Premet is the designer of this one.

The third offering is the typical old time tailleur, so established in America that I understand we are almost shelving it, so newly accepted here that it is regarded as an innovation. This one, I think, is especially successful. I should love to have it. The material is a soft gray woolen, ribbed like corduroy, with opossum fur in lighter gray banding it and bristling with its long whiskers around collar, cuffs, and bottom of coat. It is extremely smart, I think, to have bands of the kind of thick fur that stands out bushily from the garment itself. The upward trend of this fur round the coat hem gives a great chic to the ensemble.

Another item contributing style is the fact that the coat is not double breasted, and still another is added by the slimness of the skirt. This suit looks awfully well with the first blouse I was describing—armourette. You are so simply tailored for the severest occasions with your coat buttoned and are so amply well dressed for any luncheon when you take it off.

The fourth coat also is one of the favorites of the day to wear with blouses. It has the smart Russian line and is effectively banded in long haired fur. The flare of the skirt gives it character—that and its absolute simplicity. It takes great strength of character in the city of Paris to wear a garment as simple as that. The material is a duvetyn in deep brown. The coat fastens on one side with a single button, and this, with the sharply defined line down the front of it, gives the coat great chic.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

"THEY SAVED OUR HOME."

DEAR FRIENDS: Do you want to renew your faith in human kind and learn how you can do something you will always look back upon as one of the big things in your life? Then read this letter, delivered to us last week:

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: A few years ago I appealed through the Friend in Need for some castoff clothing and shoes. I was 12 years old then, and the sole support of an invalid father and sister, my mother being dead. Things looked black as night for us, with nothing in sight but a broken home, father in a home of some kind, and sister and I with different relatives.

"A few days after my appeal was printed in THE TRIBUNE packages of clothing and provisions commenced to arrive, also letters of sympathy and encouragement, several containing money. They say joy sometimes kills, but we managed to swallow back the lumps that came in our throats big as Harding's majority.

"What did it do for us? It saved our home. My father would have died had we been separated. It gave us a start, and my earnings increased as I grew older. I am now a strong, husky lad and have earned enough the last summer to help us through the winter. My father is still alive, though very poorly. But he has a home and we owe it to the good people who answered our appeal for help. Ain't this worth telling the world? I'll say it is.

"Now I have a good pair of blue serge pants that will fit a boy of 13 or 14; also some neckties and Boy Scout books that I will gladly give to any one who wants them. I hope this little offering will help you bring some such joy into one home in Chicago as you brought into ours. D. J. C."

Read that letter again, my friends, and ask yourself about it! Are you in such need as this lad was, even when he was writing this letter out of the gratitude inspired by the help of four years ago? Right now the few nickels the ragman would pay for the articles he offers undoubtedly mean something to the upstanding chap, now 16 years old, who wrote this letter. But he has learned the lesson of what a lift over a rough road means, and even with all his needs he wants to give the articles to provide a lift for some one else!

Now look again at your own case! That bed you were thinking of selling for scrap metal—that bundle of clothes you thought the ragman would buy for something near a dollar—can you afford to take the dollar, and miss the chance of bringing to some family the joy that was brought to this boy's home by gifts that cost their donors so little? Can you afford to sell out the chance to bring life into a home that thinks it is facing certain death, for what the junkman will give you for your castoff articles? Can you afford to let this boy's offer to help go unmatched by a good deed that will be so easy for you?

The appeals printed below may seem simple to you, but many of them are life and death to the people who make them. A few bundles of castoff clothing gave the sturdy lad above the courage to take up a man's burden and carry it to the point where now he can help others. Your "castoffs" can do the same. Please read below—then ask yourself whether you can afford to miss out on the chance of answering whatever appeal your "castoffs" will fit!

Her Needs Are Many.

"I am a widow with two children—a boy of 12 years attending school and a crippled girl in delicate health. I also have my aged mother of 76, whose eyesight is impaired by cataracts, so it keeps me busy meeting the every day demands of existence.

"I am employed in an office, and quite often I get a pang when I see how the other young women dress in comparison to me.

"About a month ago I had to move, which was an extra expense, and it keeps me guessing how I am going to buy stoves, coal, clothes, etc., for the winter. I need a coat badly. I hope you will keep my name on file for the next offers made. MRS. E. J. C."

Here is a case with many needs. Can't you meet one of them? Many people throw away clothing that to others would be a boon, indeed, and it only needs a plea like Mrs. C.'s to warn us that we are wasteful. The address is at your service, dear readers.

Young for This Burden.

"Cold weather will be here soon, and I haven't a heavy garment to put on. I am 16 years of age, supporting an invalid mother and two sisters and a baby brother. Father has been dead two years. Anything in the line of clothes will be greatly appreciated. Please help me as I am terribly worried and dread the cold weather. "ELEANOR R."

Were you supporting four people when you were 16 years old? Think what adult cares mean when most of us are having the time of our lives. Then think whether you can't give Eleanor R. a lift on the hard road she is traveling bravely!

Asks for Baby Clothes.

"Knowing of your great kindness, I come to you with my need. My husband has been in an army hospital for two months, and it will be some time before he is working again. I am expecting the stork and need baby clothes, also clothing for my 19 months' old boy. I thank you in advance for any assistance which may be given. "MRS. G. D."

Surely there are many mothers whose children have outgrown their baby clothes who can help. If you are keeping the clothes for sentiment's sake—isn't this a chance to attract even more sentiment to their memory than attaches to their possession.

Ever in Request.

"I have about twenty pieces of popular music to give away, most of which is quite recent. I should be glad to send it to one of your cornerites. "MRS. S. H."

Thank you. Popular music is ever in request and joyfully received, and your generous supply will be quickly exhausted.

Five Pups Want Homes.

"I wonder if you can find homes for some puppies. I have five born Oct. 5 and their mother is a full blooded Airedale. I will be glad to give them to some one who will give them a good home. I should like them to be called for. However, my husband says he will be willing to meet any one who wants them at the Union station on a Sunday. B. P."

Good pups are always in demand, so if you want one of these write me, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope. It will be useless to telephone, as only the written requests will be sent to the donor.

Pieces for Quilts.

"I have two pair of crutches to give to some one who needs them; also some pieces for quilts. I am going to move soon, so please call promptly. "MRS. C. B."

Mrs. C. B.'s address is on file and will be sent upon request.

Dying with Cancer.

"May I make a request for a friend who is very ill? He has cancer and will not live much longer. His sister is caring for him and needs a lot of cotton and gauze. Pajamas and a bathrobe would be greatly appreciated by the patient. MRS. K."

If any reader can help, please do so soon, as the need is imminent.

Making a Woman Happy

"You surely made one woman happy in this big world when you sent me the shoes I've been trying for over one year to get. I put them on and went right back to the P. O. and got the enclosed Money Order and I want to thank you very kindly for making me the shoes. As I've said before, they are the only shoes I've ever had that's perfectly comfortable on my foot. Sure they are large, but I am a large woman and on my feet all the time. Please don't let anything happen to last 55, for some day I'll be sending for another pair of shoes."

The above letter from a woman in the West came last week to the Cantilever factory. It is typical of many letters written by wearers of the Cantilever Shoes.

There's a reason for this. You'll feel the same way yourself when you have been properly fitted to a pair of Cantilever Shoes.

FLEX WITH THE FOOT

Cantilevers have no stiff piece of steel in the arch, just where your foot ought to be allowed to flex. They are made with a flexible arch—just like that of your own foot—built on the same Cantilever plan. They let your foot flex when it ought to flex. They allow every muscle its natural exercise—which keeps the feet strong and young and supple. They throw the body's weight on the ball, the outside of the foot and the heel, just as you will see it should be if you will take the trouble to look at the imprint of a child's bare foot in the sand or its wet footprint on the floor.

Cantilever Shoes will leave your foot as free and natural in its action as a child's bare foot. No binding anywhere—just a snug, comfortable fit without a bit of waste room. The rounded toe and medium heel of Cantilevers is now all the style. It has always been the vogue for the youthful foot.

Be fitted to a pair tomorrow and keep your feet young and your spirits buoyant.

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

"He Means Well."

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 23 years old and have been keeping company for near three years now. He means well and would like to settle down, but there aren't prospects of any kind and no money saved. He doesn't want me to accept any one else's attentions, but just wants me to devote all of my time to him.

"There is another young man who is interested in me and would like to make me his wife. I have known him since childhood. He has a few dollars he can call his own. Not spending as much time with him as I have with No. 1, I can't say how much I like him. I am really in love with No. 1. I'm sure a girl of 23 knows her own mind. I am worried and have made myself ill over it. I have tried explaining things clear to him, but he just says something must turn up, but nothing is done.

"I have given him six months to find something that would change matters entirely. I love him too much to give him up. HEARTBROKEN."

The kind of man who is waiting for things to turn up holds small promise of happiness out to a woman. The one who gets out and makes things turn up is the one to keep the home fires burning and to hold the woman's love. I am afraid if you are discouraged now with him, you would grow to dislike him intensely if you were tied to him and his idle promises for life.

Why Not Learn?

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 16 and go out with fellows. I can't dance. Every time there is a dance I make sure I have an excuse on hand and keep away for fear they will find out I can't dance. Do you think I should let them know I can't dance? "WORRIED."

I would lose no time learning to dance. It is the nicest accomplishment a young girl who would be popular may have. And, besides, it is a genuinely healthy and wholesome amusement.

She Must Be Amused.

Dear Miss Blake: I am engaged to a young woman and expect to be married shortly. On various occasions she has gone to dances with girl friends when I was not present. Although I haven't voiced any objections I don't think it is right for her to do so. Kindly give me your opinion. "Edward"

Perhaps you would not take her and she was forced to go with the girls. It would be nicer if you would arrange to be her dance partner, as a girl would much prefer to go to dances with her fiancé. I hope you are not the sort who just because you are engaged, expects the girl to become resigned to an amusementless future.

He's Not Worth It.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and in love with a man who is married and claims to care for me. I have known and loved this man for three years and have gone out with him occasionally, until recently I thought it best to give him up, which I assure you is hard. Now, there is a young man who loves me and has asked me to marry him, but I really would like to know whether I would be doing the right thing. I have told the latter of my love for the former, and he is willing to marry me provided I promise to forget, which I don't think I ever will be able to do. EILEEN."

Yes, you will forget the married man, Eileen; that is, if you are honestly in earnest about it, which is the only decent thing for you to do. One of these days you will be wondering how you could have been so foolish and so heartless, too, as to have made an idol in your heart out of one who assuredly is no idol in his own home.

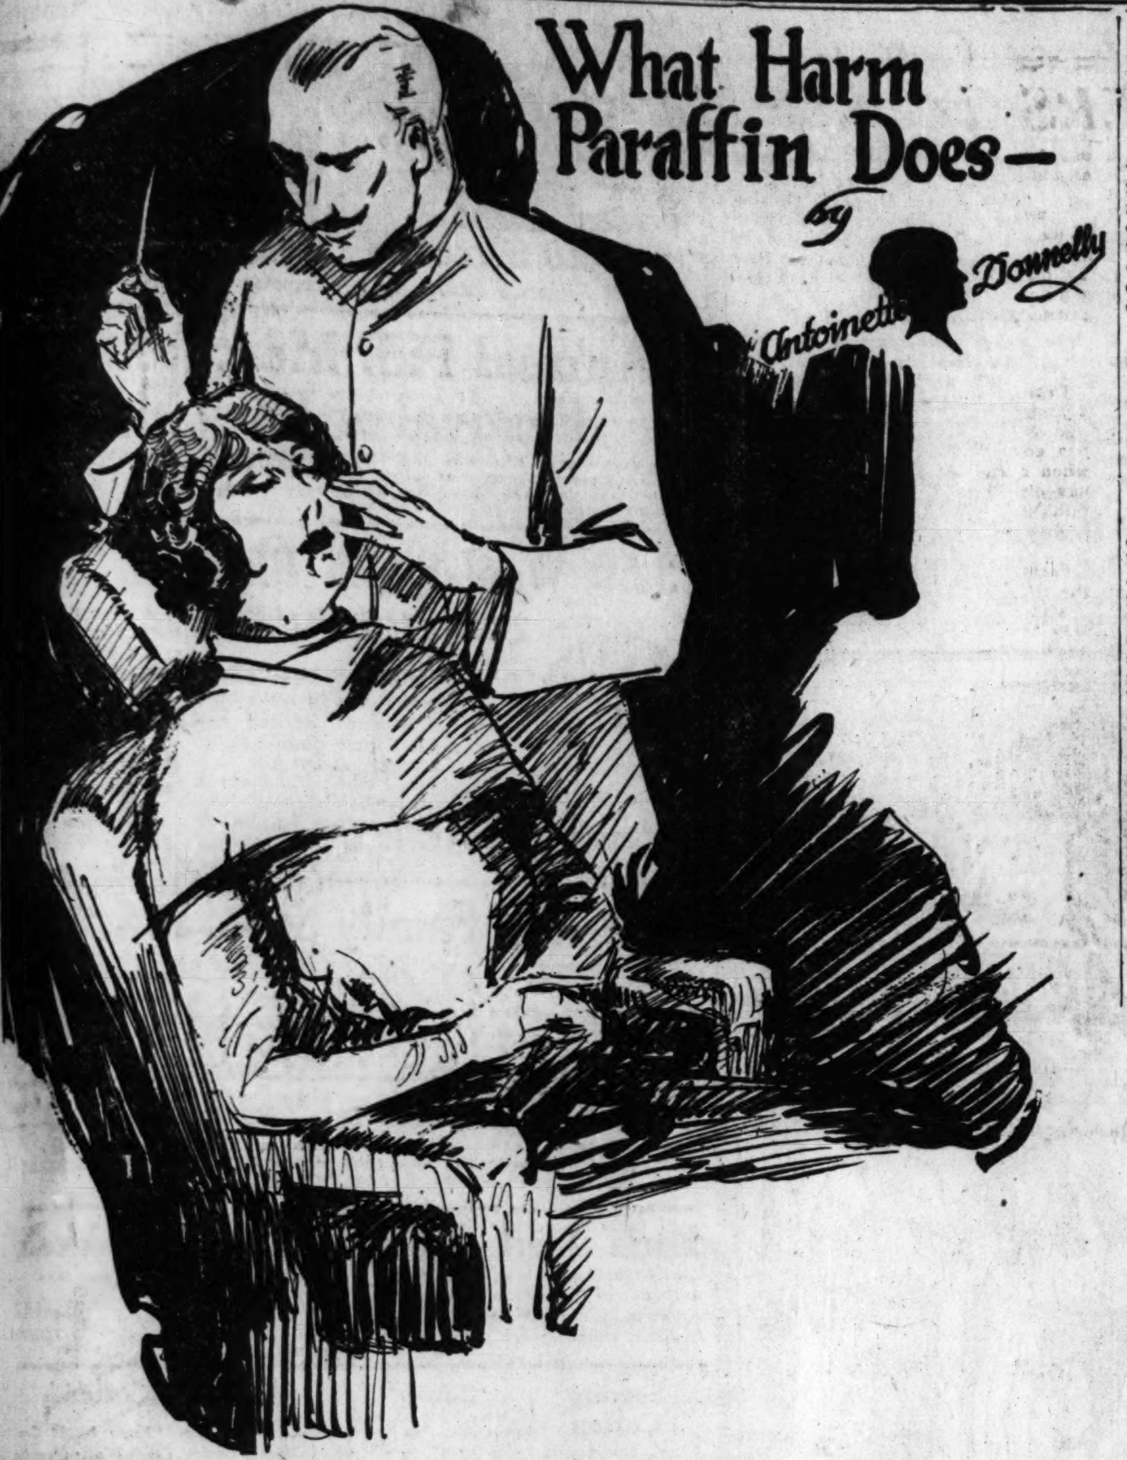
What Harm Paraffin Does—

by Antoinette Donnelly



> What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Corresence.]—Recently the story of a young theatrical woman who sacrificed a perfectly good face in the hands of a paraffin fiend and then brought suit for thousands of dollars worth of damages attracted attention to this amazingly widespread practice upon woman's faces—aye, men's, too. For the vanity that is all vanity knows not sex, according to statistics on this harmful practice of injecting paraffin to fill out hollow cheeks, hollows under the eyes, in the neck, and in an attempt to remove lines and remold noses.

I set about upon an investigation cruise, as it seemed inevitable to me that the practice was as widespread as reports would have it. I found it even more appalling. One institution of the quack advertising species in this city alone performs an average of 250 of these operations a month.

I had fancied, as you do perhaps, that the patients would be older women, grown desperate with sagging cheeks and other disparaging features of middle age. On the contrary, I find the majority recruited from the young girl class, bent upon acquiring a rounded face and boneless neck in the briefest space of time possible.

Tales of Suffering.

I saw nearly one hundred photographs of patients of one ethical surgeon to whom some of these same young women had gone in desperation to have removed the paraffin grown into solid lumps of wax. Frightfully distorted faces were pictured, one alone of which would be convincing enough of the criminality of this practice.

One girl of 24 had three ounces of the distorting material removed after having carried it in bulges at the side of the mouth for almost two years. Her photograph tells the tale of what suffering she must have undergone.

One pathetic case was that of a girl of 14 who, through ignorance and desperation, was persuaded to have paraffin injected into her face to cure pimples. Her face was a pathetic sight.

I interviewed several plastic surgeons of high medical standing, who, by the way, are as far removed from the advertising "beauty doctors" as the most ethical surgeon from the patent medicine doctor, and found them unanimous on the opinion that the use of paraffin in any case is wrong and injurious.

Always Results in Deformity.

Dr. H. Lyons Hunt, one of the foremost plastic surgeons of the country who removes pounds of paraffin yearly from the faces of the unfortunate ones, said: "I would like to see legislation against the practice of injecting paraffin. There is no legitimate use for it in the face, and I've never seen a case yet that did not result in deformity. No reputable medical man will do it. Years ago surgeons experimented with it for saddle back noses, but abandoned it entirely finding it unsuccessful.

"Anywhere from two to ten years after the operation the patient begins to suffer with deformities, and the paraffin masses cause tumor.

"The paraffin is injected in liquid form and hot. Being liquid, the operator can only guess how much to inject, often leaving the patient undercorrected or overcorrected. Sometimes it is fatal, air getting mixed with the paraffin and into the blood vessels. Sometimes small particles get into the blood blocking the circulation. Again, interfering with the function of the part treated so, the muscles are rendered useless.

Sometimes Causes Gangerine.

"Paraffin is nothing but melted wax which in time becomes hard lumps, pulling down upon the most pendant part of the face.

"Sometimes it is put in with immediate and marked inflammation. It may be absorbed with poisonous effect to the system, and abcess formation with great scars after the abcess has subsided.

"Too, it sometimes causes gangrene of all parts around it. It has to be injected hot which often results in a sloughing of surrounding tissues.

"Again, it undergoes decomposition or disintegration. And nearly always the skin becomes hypersensitive and frequently discolored, either assuming an over red or blue black appearance like the color of a black eye. Sometimes it stimulates normal tissue to overgrowth, so even a small amount of the injection may result in surrounding tissues growing into regular tumorous like masses. Gangrene often takes place in a different part, due to the pressure of paraffin on blood vessels that carry nourishment to that distant part.

"Is it any wonder it is to be condemned?" asks Dr. Hunt.

Plastic Surgeons Condemn It.

"One case," he continued, "was that of a woman who had paraffin put in her neck. With years it became so heavy as to sink down on the large veins that come up from the arm, causing extreme irritation of the veins of the arm and hand. And I have seen many detrimental cases.

"I have never found a case that justifies its use. There is hardly a day I am not called upon to remove the tumorous masses. Every surgeon of reputation doing plastic surgery—and there are a number of them—condemns paraffin injection. There is no excuse for it in plastic or surgical work.

"The first job of this kind I ever had was in London in 1905," Dr. Hunt said. "I was called in to operate on a man who had had paraffin injected to cure a saddle nose—a depression between the eyes. It was laughable, despite the poor fellow's dilemma. For after the paraffin had been injected he went home and sat before a grate fire and tilted his head back. The paraffin had run to his forehead and formed a perfect horn. His looked like a false face.

"Another case was that of a young business woman who had fallen into the hands of a beauty quack, and at a great money sacrifice had undergone paraffin injection to remove heavy wrinkles between her eyes. A bulging lump formed there in time. She went back to the operator who advised her to go home, heat a steel knife and apply it over the lump. She did, and got a frightful burn from the heat of the steel and the lump still remained."

Scars and Misery.

One girl of 22 went into a hairdressing parlor. Her attendant urged paraffin injection for a slight depression in her face. At 32, her present age, she was forced to go to a plastic surgeon who removed three ounces of hardened wax, and in the meantime the misery she suffered over the abnormal beauty distortion was pitiful. It required many visits to the surgeon and a vast amount of money to heal the scars.

Another patient of Dr. Hunt's had, through a like injection, a mouth stretched so wide as to require twenty or thirty operations to get all the stuff out and remold the natural form of the mouth. So if any one tries to talk this get beautiful quick scheme to you, just grab your hat and make for the nearest exit.

PEGGY: IF YOU CONTINUE with your present treatment of washing your face in hot water without rinsing in cold, you'll have an ugly case of enlarged pores. Rinse after the hot water in as cold water as you can stand, and then take a piece of ice done up in a handkerchief, and rub over the face.

BIBBY: USE A SOLUTION OF equal parts peroxide and water, say once a week, and rinse around the teeth with it. It is a good bleach and recommended by dentists as an antiseptic. I have a pamphlet on mouth hygiene in which I think you would be interested. Please end s. a. e.

LOUISE G.: WHAT IS ACNE? A disease of the skin, confined to the face, back, shoulders, and chest, consisting of pimples which are caused by an inflammation of the sebaceous glands and hair follicles. Unless treated properly, small depressed scars will remain. It arises from blackheads plugging the follicles, and so the treatment should be directed to stimulating the sebaceous glands of the skin to action and hindering further spread. The daily use of a soft flesh brush with hot water and soap is especially beneficial, as it prevents the formation of blackheads. I have in pamphlet form detailed directions on this subject, including an acne cream, to be applied at night after the wash. I should advise you to send for it.

ANXIOUS: WELL, EXERCISING alone is a slow route to a perfect 36. Diet when one is forty-odd pounds overweight is the thing to pin your hopes upon, with a certain amount of exercise thrown in. Naturally this excess weight makes walking hard, and I should advise your going on a diet for two weeks before you go in for exercise. But you had better let me send you my booklet on reducing, which explains this all more clearly than space permits here.

SYLVIA: WHERE IS THE WAIST line going to be? Anywhere from the high line of the directoire of Recamier's time to the hip waist line of the current season is forecast for winter frocks. If you are slender you may launch your waist line anywhere on the varying shore, but if you are not you would better launch the fat on the gymnasium floor. Yeppe, I have a number of exercises for that particular part of the anatomy—diets, too, guaranteed to make a figure fit into the Empire, Italian renaissance, Moyen age, Egyptian or plain American mode. So, now for the stamped addressed envelope.

M. A.: YOU ARE QUITE OVERWEIGHT, M. A. I wonder if you are not a heavy consumer of candy and ice creams? Perhaps you eat far too much bread and butter, a common mistake among the young. Eat just three meals a day—no piecing between meals—and go in for as much exercise as you can get. I would advise you to join a gym, and exercise and swim every day. But at your tender age take three meals, going easy on all sweets.

BELLE: SOFTEN THE LIPS with vaseline or cold cream once or twice a day. Some persons are susceptible to cold sores or fever blisters. A cold or slight indigestion may be responsible for them, the remedy therefore being obvious.

ANITA: I WONDER IF YOU sleep in a well ventilated room. Your headache and dullness would indicate a lack of the necessary fresh air which your lungs should be imbibing as you sleep. You cannot awake refreshed and rosy unless the windows are wide open. You breathe as much during your sleeping hours as your waking, and your lungs cry for fresh air. Remedy this first, if therein lies the trouble; then I have a set of exercises, called "My Youth Preservers," which I would ask you to send for. Do them every morning first thing, then hop into the tub, and I'll wager your boss will be wondering what has struck you that you arrive on the job so promptly and tackle your work with such "wim" and "wigor" as you have not registered for days.

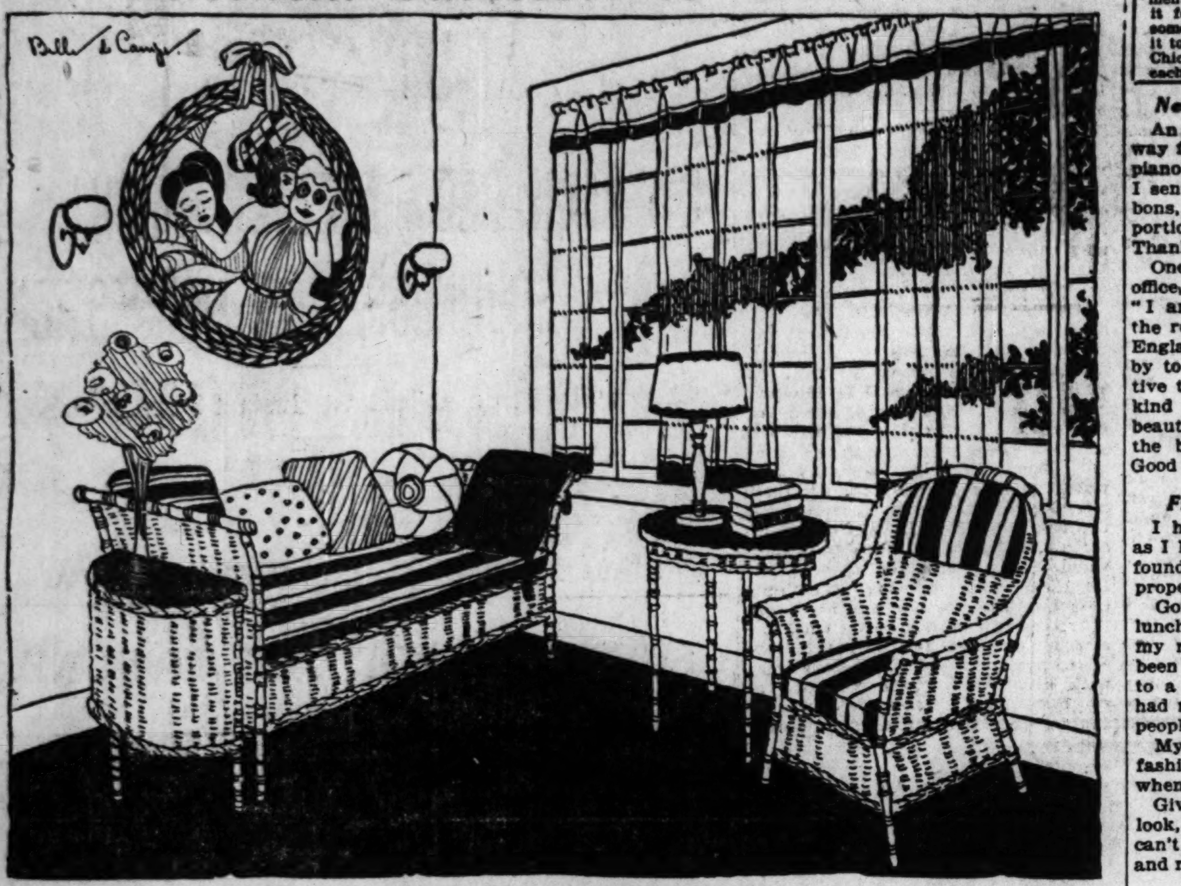
Machine Made Fiber Furniture Proves Excellent Successor to Woven Wicker



Room Attractively Furnished in Wicker.

By Anita de Campi.

EVER since the basket was made in which Moses took his memorable trip down the river wicker weaving has been done in the same old way—making the framework first and then weaving and wrapping by hand around it. Nowadays what is commonly known as down the river wicker weaving has been done in the same old way—making the framework first and then weaving and wrapping by hand around it. Nowadays what is commonly known as wicker, but is really an imitation made of fiber, is worked up by a new and economical process. Instead of weaving the basketwork in and out of the frame, so that the whole article is done in one piece, by the new system the frame is made first, then the patterned pieces, woven separately, or even cut from lengths of woven fabric, are adjusted to the framework. Frames are made in one department, weaving is done in an entirely separate section, and then the various parts are brought together and completed.

We have just been through one of the largest and best fiber wicker product factories in the country and think it might be of interest to some of our readers to know how the work is done and what fascinating articles are being turned out.

First we were shown the building in which carloads of rough, rock-elm lumber are received. The wood is cured by a gradual process, which seems to give better results than the recent method of forced curing. After it has been cured, each piece is cut into long, narrow strips, and rounded by machine. Some of the rounded strips, which are to be used for the cheaper chairs, are beaded in imitation of the wrapped pieces. This process having been completed, the strips are cut into matched lengths, suitable for the purposes to which they are to be put.

The method of shaping the rocker runners is entirely new. Instead of being sawed in curved lines, crossing the grain of the wood, they are cut in straight pieces, and then bent by machine. They retain their bent shape perfectly, and do not have the tendency to split, as the crosscut runners often do. They are finished by being shaped on the ends and then run through a machine by which they are sanded.

Boring holes, so that one piece will fit into another, is done through an iron form, so that all are uniform, and any two may be put together easily. The sticks for the legs of chairs, tables, and other pieces are cut in uniform lengths, so that there is no confusion in their being assembled.

All of the pieces, such as legs and uprights, are wrapped separately, before being assembled. The machine for this work handles straight as well as curved dowels. Winding from one end to the other with one continuous piece of fiber gives a perfectly smooth even appearance, which is practically unattainable in hand work. In the hand woven pieces the article which was to be wrapped was held stationary, and the reed wound around it. By the machine method the line of fiber which is attached to the end of the dowel is held in a steady position, the dowel is spun and moved along by machine, wrapping itself in the fiber as it moves. The fiber used for wrapping is flattened in the inside.

Having passed from hand to hand, the pieces, when completed, are assembled into frames and passed upon by an inspector, before they are sent to be combined with the woven parts.

After having seen this framework process, we were taken to the department where the fiber is made. Huge rolls of common paper are cut by machine into rolls about one and a half inches wide. These rolls of strips are sent through another machine, which twists them into fiber for weaving. Some of the strips go through tubs of glue, on their way through the twisting machine, so that when they have dried they are extra hard. The thicker cords are made by running two strips through at once. After having been dried and stretched, the fiber is wound on huge wooden spools. That which is to be used for the upright strands is reinforced by being twisted around fine wire, and then cut into uniform lengths prior to weaving.

The newly invented weaving machines are intensely interesting. One of these can do the work of three men. Their swift and dexterous weaving does away with heavy labor costs, and enables the manufacturer to add extra quality, stability, and charm, minimizing the prices of his products. The work has many advantages over hand woven work.

Wicker or reed is usually woven in short pieces because most of it, being a natural product, grows in limited lengths. But the looms used in this factory weave endless lengths of wicker fiber, and consequently the pieces are of continuous length. Sharp unsightly ends are disposed of, and there are no loose pieces to catch clothes and make scratches. Another advantage of these wonderful looms is that they will weave any shape, and the result is remarkably fine, light, smooth, tough, and flexible.

Metal selvages, stronger than any other part of the fabric, make it impossible for the pieces to ravel. These selvages are, of course, entirely concealed in the finished articles.

Coloring is the next step. In the centers of cavelike apertures there are stands on which the pieces are placed one at a time. There is a different cave for each color, and in the back are two suction fans, like great eyes, which dispose of surplus paint. We watched them color a chair flag blue. It was set up on the stand then blown or sprayed with enamel paint until the color had penetrated well into all the fine cracks.

More interesting still is the gilding process. We saw a black chair being gilded. The aperture in which this is done looks like a veritable "Cave of the Forty Thieves," with pure, glistening gold paint all over its three walls, and the weird looking eyes in the back wall. The black chair was sprayed until it greatly resembled a golden throne. Then it was taken down from the stand and rubbed well, while still wet, so that the greater part of the gilt was removed. The black, predominating again, was enhanced by the faint lightings of dull gold. A finish that is called "frosting" is done by the same process, with white paint spray instead of gold.

Before this present process of coloring was employed, they dipped the pieces into tubs of enamel, or painted them with brushes. A new method, which is just being tried out, is that of running the fiber through color before it is woven at all.

The colors most in demand just now are blue and gold, glazed oxblood, gray and gold, corn color, and dove gray.

By the processes which have been described, it has been made possible for dealers to offer furniture flawlessly woven, of the finest fiber wicker, at prices so reasonable that they are easily within the reach of every home furnisher.

Variety of color combinations make this sort of furniture thoroughly desirable. Almost any color is suitable for its decoration. In today's illustration the attractive wicker fiber furniture is enameled black with trims of scarlet. A deep midnight blue carpet covers the floor, and gold colored silk gauze curtains the windows. Lamp shades and shields are of parchment edged with black and scarlet. The only decorations on the natural colored sand plastered wall is a colorful impressionistic picture, in a carved, leaf green frame.

Nicest Compliment I Ever Got

What was the nicest compliment you ever received? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Neither Young Nor Beautiful.

An Englishwoman lived across the way from me, alone and lonely, giving piano lessons for a livelihood. At times I sent her small boxes of fruit or bon bons, a few roses at Easter time, a portion of friend chicken and cake at Thanksgiving.

One afternoon she appeared at my office, and, extending her hand, said, "I am leaving this evening to spend the remainder of my days in dear old England, and I will want to say good-by to a young man, who from no motive than pure goodness of heart was kind to a woman neither young nor beautiful. May heaven send you all the blessings you so richly deserve. Good day, sir, and good-by." W. E.

From the Heart of a Friend.

I had moved to another state and, as I had always lived in a large place, found some difficulty in getting into proper adjustment.

Going back to the city for a visit, I lunched with a friend. We discussed my new home and I told her it had been difficult for me to adapt myself to a small town and I was afraid I had not been successful, as I thought people did not like me much.

My friend has big blue eyes and a fashion of looking at one squarely when she talks.

Giving me a long, rather searching look, she said, "Well, dear, I just can't imagine anybody's knowing you and not liking you." H. K.

Happy Ever After.

A friend sent me a card with the following verse:

"A true fairy story. It happened once upon a time, as fairy stories go, I met a charming woman whom it was a joy to know. A friend who always did the right things; whose every word and deed pleased me. And now the story is ending, as all fairy stories do. I lived happy ever after, 'cause, you see, that friend was you."

And the real compliment came later. I said to my friend, "I think that is lovely. I would like to get a card like that," and she said, "I bought two—you may have the other, for I cannot think of another person to whom I would send it." A. D.

All the Qualifications.

My employer gave me the nicest compliment I ever received when he s[illegible] "Some man is going to get a good wife, if you manage your home as well as you do my office and succeed in your duties as a life partner as well as you have as a silent partner." M. S.

Force of Example.

The compliment I regard as the finest I have ever received was given to me by a girl who, having had two or three unsuccessful love affairs, has become rather cynical in regard to the success of marriage.

She has visited me several times for week-ends, and last Sunday as I was bidding her good-by she said with tears in her eyes, "Majorie, you can never know what these visits mean to me. Before I come I am bitter and depressed, and then seeing you and Jack so happy together, and being in your home only a few hours, change my spirit entirely. I feel contented and hopeful of having a home of my own just like yours some day—one which is an honor to the term marriage."

I could never wish for a compliment finer than this one. L. E. A.

Got His Reward.

"Red head, red head," small boys would shriek as I walked down the street, Old Sol touching my curls with unmerciful tenacity.

One day as I passed my tormenters one of them approached me. A grubby hand slid into mine.

"Never mind them. I think you are pretty. The sunshine makes your hair all glad!"

The small chap went with me to the nearest ice cream parlor. D. J.

One for Uncle Oliver.

My nicest compliment came from my nephew. Having no home of my own, I spend Christmas with my brother and his family. Last Christmas I found it impossible to get away and wrote my brother to that effect. When my nephew heard I was not to be with them he said, "It won't be Christmas until Uncle Oliver comes," and it wasn't, for they postponed their festival and I arrived in time to have a wonderful time with them on New Year's day. O. S.

Best in the World.

The nicest compliment I ever received was from my little daughter, Eleanor. She was saying the old, familiar prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep" the other evening. I told her about my own dear mother and about how she used to teach me the same prayer, with others.

After a moment's deep thought, Eleanor said: "You had a good mamma, didn't you?"

I told her I had the best mother in the whole world, to which she immediately replied: "Why, I think I have the best mamma in the whole world." A. J. M.

ROME DeLuxe QUALITY

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

What Do You Choose—Comfort or Discomfort?

When you buy a bedspring do you buy comfort or discomfort? If you just go into a store and say "I want a bedspring," the chances are you are buying discomfort. The ordinary bedspring is not fitted for rest. It sags and twists the body, causing nerve pressure and restless sleep. To avoid this discomfort select a Rome De Luxe bedspring. It is built for comfort. It supports the hollows as well as the prominent parts of the anatomy equally. It can't sag. Many annoying ailments and some very serious ones have disappeared when a change from an ordinary bedspring to a De Luxe was made. See the Rome De Luxe at your dealer's. It is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

How to Use the Patterns

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

A FINE quality of navy blue Poiret twill, or a tan or brown kasha or covert cloth would make up charmingly by pattern No. 1422. Waist and skirt are cut separately and joined to the same band at the waist line. The closing is at the left side front. The skirt is just a little different from the usual one piece type; there is a narrow front gore, also side and back gores. It is, however, straight and gathered at the waist line. For size 36 the lower edge measures 1⅞ yards.

Collar, cuffs, pocket laps, sash or girdle, and front panel will look well made of contrasting color and material.

Pattern No. 1287 is unusually attractive for a small child. It includes a dress and bloomers that are gathered and set into a band at the lower edge of each leg.

Bloomers and dress should be made of the same material. If something washable is chosen, there is nothing prettier than chambray. Mercerized poplin is also good looking and satisfactory in every way. It doesn't shrink enough to bother about, comes in all the lovely shades, and the weight of it is just right. It should never be starched.

Pongee is a good material, and sometimes one sees these dresses made of black taffeta, with some bits of gay embroidery judiciously used. But pongee and taffeta may not be warm enough, and if one likes wool challis it is not a bad idea to use it. It washes perfectly.

This pattern is cut in two pieces—front and back. The pieces gore out towards the bottom quite sharply, giving a decidedly smart flare at the edge of the skirt. The opening is a short one in the middle back at the neck, and this is bound, matching in color the binding used to finish the scallops around the lower edge of the skirt. The pattern provides for a slit at the waist line each side of the front and back. Through these sashes are put tying on each side. The picture shows the effect.

There seems to be no end to the variety of designs for making aprons and pattern No. 1518 may be made most attractive. Cretonne, sateen, or one of the more usual apron materials will make up well. There are two sections to the pattern, front and back. These pieces are seamed together on the shoulders and underarm seams. The apron is to be slipped on over the head. There are large, deep armholes, and a belt which goes across the back and fastens each side of the front. Large pockets complete this useful garment. Neck and armholes may be finished with an outside, fitted facing, or a narrow piping, preferably of some contrasting color. And, if one desires, a design in cross stitch may be embroidered on each pocket.

Answers to Sewing Queries.

MISS GRAY: Crepe is still one of the favorite materials, and would make you a charming dinner frock. Black is always in good taste and it could be trimmed in a color or, using a bright color to face the flowing sleeves, line the panels and show as a facing to the girdle.

MRS. P. S.: Wouldn't you like to include in daughter's school wardrobe one of the soft, pretty woolens made up into one of the new style one-piece dresses, with side front or Russian closing? Bands of some contrasting color could outline the closing, and also be used on the wrist bands and neck. These bands could be plain or cross-stitched.

Edward had been going to school four days—long enough to learn he was not to go home until the bell rang. On the fourth day he got up from his seat, went out to the hall, picked up the bell, and rang it sufficiently to be heard all over the building. Then he marched back into the dressing room, picked up his hat, and started out just in time to be called back by his teacher.

"Where are you going, Edward?"

"Home."

"Why?"

"'Cause I was tired and just thought I'd ring the bell and go home."

Lena forgot what she was sent to the grocery to buy. The proprietor called the names of several articles to refresh her memory, finally calling his clerk, saying, "O Mac, come and see what this little girl wants."

Lena exclaimed, "Now I know what I want. You called half the name of it. I want some macaroni."

MRS. L. S.

Johnnie, in school the first day, started to go home several times, so the teacher made it a point to speak to him at noon time and ask him if he was coming back after dinner. He studied a moment, then answered, "Yes, but I can't come back after supper."

R. E. H.

Kenneth had only recently begun taking lessons on the piano, and after much laborious practice and assitance from mother was able to play one small exercise from memory.

Marion, who had gone through with the same experience at that age, came in, and mother said, "Marion, Kenneth can play his exercises from memory. Don't you want to hear him?"

"No, for the love of Mike, if he knows it by heart, let the poor kid go," answered Marion.

Pompeian Day Cream vanishing
Pompeian Beauty Powder
Pompeian Bloom
These three for Instant Beauty

Pompeian Beauty

Pompeian Day Cream

They All Want to Cut In

ALL the men want to cut in when she dances, for there is only admiration for the woman who applies her cream, powder, and rouge correctly. Youthful beauty in an instant comes from the Pompeian method.

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly. Then apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance. Now a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty? Lastly, dust over again with the powder in order to subdue the Bloom. Presto! The face is beautified and youth-i-fied in an instant! (Above 3 preparations may be used separately or together. At all druggists, 60c each.)

TRY NEW POWDER SHADES. The correct powder shade is more important than the color of dress you wear. Our new NATURELLE shade is a more delicate tone than our Flesh shade, and blends exquisitely with a medium complexion. Our new RACHEL shade is a rich cream tone for brunettes.

MEN'S FASHIONS

Frank Tinney
Sketched from Life

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every Tuesday and Friday in The Daily Tribune.

Who are the best dressers among men? Undoubtedly the successful actors. The study of clothes and appearance is a chief part of their business. Accordingly for my men's fashions article this Sunday I interviewed three well known professional players—namely: Frank Tinney, Eugene O'Brien and Richard Barthelmess—and present herewith their views on dress.

Last week I had similar stories about Wallace Eddinger, Percy Marmont, and William Collier.

MEN WHO DRESS WELL.

By A. T. Gallico.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—When Mr. Frank Tinney takes a walk along Broadway, he could not, according to his own assertion, be picked out of the passing crowds, did not one see and recognize his face, as theatrical. Comfort and facility are his main objects in dress. Not that actors in general do not like to be as comfortable as anyone else, but as a rule the construction of their costume gives evidence that a certain amount of planning and selection has been indulged in.

But Mr. Tinney, upon being questioned, announced that he had just that day had a lengthy interview with his tailor, during which he had ordered some three or four suits, and yet he was unable to tell me any of the details about the future addition to his wardrobe, so little did the subject absorb him.

However, he always wears dark suits and of a conservative cut, sometimes double and sometimes single breasted. His street attire always includes a white silk shirt and a black bow tie. The cuffs of the shirt are single with one button, because of the expediency in putting on.

Fall and winter finds Mr. Tinney a faithful patron of the high lace shoe, always tan, and always of the variety with the quick lacing apparatus on the upper half, a style so rapidly fading out of date that Mr. Tinney has his made to order. The suggestion of spats left him entirely disinterested. When the days are sufficiently chilly to demand a lightweight topcoat, Mr. Tinney will be seen in a box coat of brown gabardine, with a half belt.

Mr. Eugene O'Brien sat in a bright Chinese blue dressing gown and smoked his pipe. We observed that this color was a most fortunate one for him, and were not surprised to learn that he wears blues of every shade in almost exclusive preference to any other color. Mr. O'Brien on the street does not present any more vivid a spot of color than the average conservatively dressed man. He wears dark suits, and his shirt never exceeds a quiet blue. But in the privacy of his apartment Mr. O'Brien allows his love of color to run riot—a riot, however, of good taste.

He likes to lounge around his room in this Chinese blue dressing gown, bought in New York, under which he wears a Chinese suit of purple, acquired in San Francisco. And under this there is still a third layer of pajamas, which are always of silk. The dressing gown is, as you see it in the sketch, of heavy silk, with collar, cuffs, and girdle of a darker blue. The Chinese suit is a loose plain coat and trousers of silk.

This, however, is merely for comfort while resting. Shaving being a special ceremony takes a special costume. Over his pajamas he slips, not a terry cloth bath robe or fancy wool dressing gown, but an old sweater which he has had for years, a sweater which in its youthful days must have been a beautiful fuzzy garment which would have graced any golf course, but now remains in retirement and thinks upon better days. Its color is a soft blue.

Mr. O'Brien's bedroom slippers are of red Russian leather, forming a cheerful combination with the blue of the rest of his costume.

Mr. Richard Barthelmess paused a few minutes in his studio work to tell us that he never wears a full dress suit unless he goes to an evening wedding, and he hasn't been to many of these. In this avoidance of the strictly formal in evening dress Mr. Barthelmess expresses a marked tendency of men's fashions towards an exclusive use of the dinner coat for all evening functions.

Mr. Barthelmess' tuxedo and accessories are most conservative. The coat is satin faced, and although his present one has notched lapels, Mr. Barthelmess plans to have his next one with a shawl collar, thinking that this will give an effect of greater height.

His waistcoat is of black silk, his shirt has a plain stiff bosom with a line running through it, his socks are ribbed black silk, and his shoes patent leather oxfords. Mr. Barthelmess varies from the wing collar to the turndown, expressing no preference one way or the other.

As for outer garments, his choice is an oxford gray top coat, box model, with gray gloves and a soft hat. He never wears derbies. His whole wardrobe, in fact, has a collegiate atmosphere, as indicated, for instance, by a decided preference for four button sack suits and the possession of a coon fur coat for winter.

MY QUEEREST BOSS

There are good bosses and bad bosses, and then again there are bosses who are just queer. Will you ever be able to forget the queerest boss you ever had? The perplexities, and the frowns, and the laughs he caused you? Was it his attire that yielded the comedy? Some odd personal habit? Some eccentricity that reduced you to despair? Write out your story, using one side of the paper only and telling it as briefly as possible and send it to the Queerest Boss Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter published.

Given to Emphasis.

The queerest boss I ever worked for owned a small department store. He made it a point to reach the store when we were all at our places.

He would come stamping in, thump his desk with his fist, and yell out: "I'm boss, I'm boss, I want you all to understand!"

Then he would sit down and look over his mail. He was a remarkably easy going man and nice to work for, but this performance was repeated every morning. J. V.

Utilizing Every Moment.

If I left my desk for a second he squirmed and fidgeted until I returned; one day I went for a drink; he followed me, handed me a pencil and paper, and said "Take a telegram." I used the water cooler for a desk and jotted down the telegram. The peculiar part of it was there was absolutely no time gained, as I had to return to my desk to type the message. E. C.

His Was an Angel.

Mine, although a married man, is a woman hater. After several unsatisfactory men typists he finally condescended to have a woman do his work.

In an argument one day I said, "Your wife is a woman."

He replied, "No, my wife is an angel."

Believe me, she must be, to get along with that man. M. V.

Wants No Publicity.

My boss has one marked eccentricity. He never contributes money for the support of his church, but always does more for it than any one of the other members.

This is his way of going about it: He is a grain dealer. Among other duties, I was told that after weighing each load of grain I was to m out one peck and pour into which connected with bins near by. A often as each bin was filled the g was run out, weighed, and credited t the church, and this continued d the whole of the year. One peck a l doesn't sound like much, but at the e of the year it amounts to a tidy s

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about the natural buoyancy, which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

PROLOGUE.

We of the more subdued, the more serious, are grieved and bereft by the passing of the mellow old bar room, for there alone could one find that cloistral calm, that almost ecclesiastical aloofness from the infinite turmoil of life . . . how quiet was the old mellow bar room, how peaceful! . . . compare that dim, dignified haven of rest with the guady, brazen soft drink emporium of today . . . compare that mellow repose with the hysterical pendemonium of fizzes and sirups and juices and odors that assault your senses in one of those glittering ice cream dens . . . compare that gangling youth squirting alien juices into each other with no feeling of appreciation for their lack of affinity . . . compare him, with his flat forehead, his flat tophead, his flat backhead, and his flat feet . . . compare him with his narrow views and shoulders and his waist line all sunk down in the middle like an old grave . . . compare this pitiful specimen of the genus homo strawberry crush—the very flower of our Victrolian age—compare him, I say, with the fine, big, robust, generous, whole souled, philosophical, keen, kindly whimsical buckaroo who used to fill 'em for us and boot 'em out with equal aplomb and gusto . . . ah, there were giants in those days . . .

Seated at one of those little white topped tables talking over their troubles we find Mamie Potter and Red Miller . . . let us sit down at the next table and hear what it is all about, since we are interested . . . are we not?

Scene—An Ice Cream Den.

RED (taking the only printed list of pink atrocities) What'll you have, honey?

MAMIE: (who can never decide what she wants in one of these places) Let's see what they have, dear.

RED: (with belated gallantry, handing her the list): There you are, little feller. Read 'em and weep.

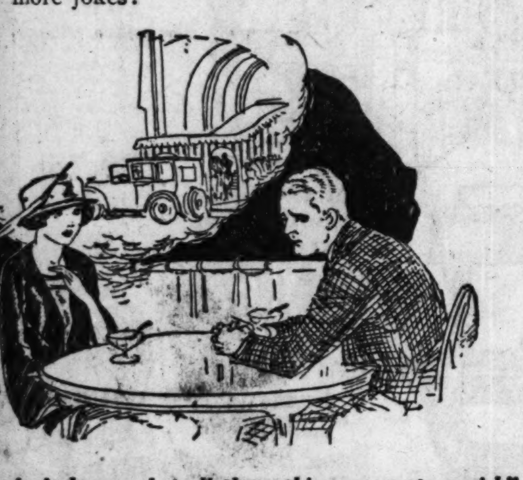
MAMIE (half aloud): Strawberry sundae . . . Dream o' Delight . . . Turkish Nut Special . . . What's a Turkish Nut Special?

RED: (facetiously): Probably one of those things they've been feeding Mustapha Kemal. Say, I wonder why he must? I thought those Turks liked Fatimas.

MAMIE (with an appreciative snicker): Tee hee, that's a nifty. Did you think that one up all by yourself?

RED: Yes, just us . . . me and my brain.

MAMIE: Ain't the kid clever? Do you know any more jokes?



"You don't know what all those things mean to a girl."

RED: Sure, I heard a good one the other day. The teacher was asking the class if they knew what a Stoic was, and one little boy held up his hand. Well, Abie, says the teacher—his name was Abie, you see—well, Abie, do you know what a Stoic is? Sure, says Abie. It's a big boid vot brings liddle babies to d'house . . . Ha, ha, isn't that good?

[Mamie agrees that it is good . . . meanwhile the waiter waits for his order . . . that's where they get the name . . . Mamie and Red finally agree on a couple of highly colored portions of indigestion flavored with dyspepsia . . . the waiter brings them proudly with two sets of straws wrapped in duplex swaddling clothes like Siamese twins . . this covering, we are told, is to keep them away from the flies, a rather vain precaution, since flies seldom if ever use straws. . .]

MAMIE (gradually intrenching herself in glutinous potpourri): Well, we certainly got Ma and Pa running around in circles. They don't know where they stand now.

RED (eagerly): They don't, eh?

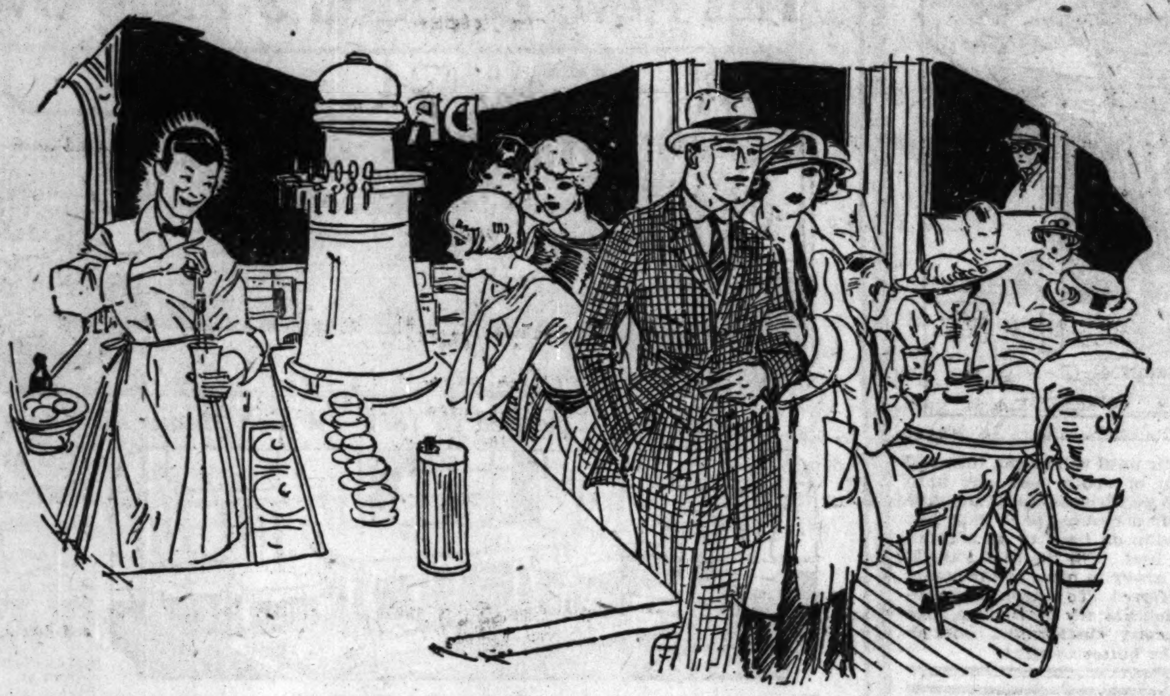
MAMIE (gayly): They don't know if they're on foot or horseback. First Ma was for us, you know, and then she tried to convert Pa, but he wouldn't stay awake, and then Ma has a coffee klatsch or something with the Ladies' Aiders and some of them said let the young folks alone and some said don't let them get married, and they said so many things Ma finally got all confused until now she's almost as set against us as Pa was at the beginning.



Pitiful specimen of the genus homo strawberry crush.

RED: Yes? How about Pa? Is he still cold on it?

MAMIE: That's the funny part of it. Pa gets together with his gang downtown and they have skull practice all over the place about us and the result is that Pa gets so confused and rattled he's more for us now than Ma was at first. (Reflectively) Gosh, it's a fine mess.

RED (hopefully): I think it's better for us this way with Pa on our side.

MAMIE: O, you do, do you? Well, you don't live at my house. What Pa wants he sometimes gets—sometimes. What Ma wants—well, she's usually got it before she begins asking about it. She's a neat worker, Ma is.

RED (furtively): I got an idea.

MAMIE (eagerly): Yes?

RED (timidly): Suppose . . . suppose we . . . we . . . well, suppose we just let 'em talk their heads off and we . . . ran away . . .

MAMIE (excited): Ran away? Ran away where?

RED (flushed): Why, ran away and got married.

MAMIE (intoning the magic word) Eloped?

RED (warmly): Sure. It's been done . . .

MAMIE (thrilled . . . who would ever have thought Red could be so romantic!): Oooooooo! Wouldn't that be snooky!

RED (impressively): The sardine's whiskers!

MAMIE (glowing): But . . . but could we do it?

RED (with masculine bravado): Huh! You leave that to me. You get your clothes together and we'll . . .

MAMIE (interrupting . . . O, sweetly solemn thought!): My clothes! But I haven't a thing to wear.

RED (he might just as well get used to hearing that): Nothing to wear? Why, wear anything. Wear a—why, wear a sport suit. Eloping is one of our best little outdoor sports.

MAMIE (crushingly): This is no time to be flippant. This is serious.

(Serious? Well, that's putting it mildly, indeed.)

RED (humbly): I was just teasing. Wear anything because we'll have to drive quite a long ways, I guess.

MAMIE (excited once more): Where? Where'll we go?

RED (who might almost be suspected of being a regular union elopement tour conductor): Well, you pack your clothes in a handbag and at the time we agree upon I'll be under your window and you drop the bag out to me and I'll catch it and put it in the car.

MAMIE (feverishly): Yes, yes, in the car. What car?

RED*(casually)*: Your father's car, of course. It'll probably be out in front and if it isn't they'll let me have it at the garage . . . they often have, you know.

MAMIE: Yes, yes, that sounds all right . . . then what?

RED (practically): Then you come out the front door, get in the car with me, and we'll go like—well, we'll beat it for Crown Point and get married. That's all.

MAMIE (brought up short by the rather barren abruptness of the whole thing): Why . . . why won't we have no friends or nobody along? It seems so—so unromantic when you put it that way.

RED (sarcastically): Why, we might invite Pa and Ma and Bill and all your friends and mine to come along and elope with us.

MAMIE (nervously): But, it seems so—so—well, it doesn't seem like anything the way I always dreamed of getting married—bridesmaids and flowers and a lovely gown and a big long veil, and a great big church with music and lights and you all dressed up in a nice black suit and all our friends and relatives there, and then the wedding march and a minister in a lovely white lace surplice and the wonderful ceremony and all the candles and the flowers and all the presents and the bouquet that I throw to the bridesmaids and how jealous they'd be of me, and then my going away suit and a honeymoon and everything . . . why, it . . . why . . . I . . . I . . .

(Mamie's eyes begin to fill with tears and her lips tremble)

RED (to whom all of the above sounds too much like the details of his execution . . . the condemned man ate a hearty breakfast and walked to the gallows with a steady stride, talking seriously to the minister who walked beside him . . . and yet it hurts Red to see Mamie unhappy . . .): There, there, I wouldn't worry about all those things . . . they don't count.

MAMIE (tearfully): But they do count. You don't know what all those things mean to a girl . . . it's been my dream and to give it up . . . it's just like . . . it's just like giving up a part of me.

RED (practically): But don't you see if your folks won't agree to us getting married you gotta give it up. Or else we can't elope, that's all there is to it. Besides my folks aren't so keen about my getting married, though they've got nothing to say about it. I'm free, white, and twenty-one, and it's just like I says to dad, when you wanted to get married I didn't object, did I? No! Well, then, fifty-fifty.

MAMIE (with sudden inspiration): Suppose we got your folks and mine together some way and let 'em thrash it out. Maybe they'd all talk each other into letting us alone and letting us get married.

RED (happily): Say, that's an idea! I can see Dad and Pa talking it over. You know Dad is a terrible high brow. His words are so long they have to have joints in 'em so he can steer them around the ends of his sentences. Poor Pa won't know till weeks later what they were talking about.

MAMIE (gayly): We'll get 'em all together some evening before the week's out. Your father and mother and mine and I bet everything will work out just fine. Isn't that a good idea?

RED (loyally): It's the alligator's adenoids, sweetheart. You're a wow!

MAMIE (impulsively putting hand across table and squeezing Red's huge paw): You say such sweet things, dear.

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

HALLOWEEN CHOCOLATES AND MUSHROOMS.

ALL that is necessary is a cake or two of sweet chocolate and some sirup to make dark decorations galore on Hallowe'en cookies, sandwiches, apples, nuts, pies, sweet croquettes like witches' caps, and so forth. Thinned sweet chocolate may be used to ice cakes, and then the dark icing may have faces made on it with the easily managed royal icing which is nothing but powdered or confectioner's sugar beaten into egg white.

There are no ends of sweet chocolates. One of the oldest American sorts is darker than most of the Swiss sorts, but it is quite spongy when melted in the top of the double boiler, and requires the addition of a thick sirup—corn sirup may be used or "stock" sirup—to soften and smooth it to the stage were it may be used as an icing or a cover of an apple or what not.

Some of the Swiss chocolates of the expensive types have the real flavor of the cocoa buds, and are in fancy forms in eating bit size already, so it seems almost a pity to remake them, but they may be extended almost a half with sirup, and because of their superior flavor the nuts covered with them, or the candied fruit, or what you will, are as fine as the candies which cost a dollar and a half a pound and these are of the same color as the finest candies, while some of the other sweet chocolates give a much darker chocolate cover, like that on the so-called bitter chocolates.

Proportions of Chocolate to Sirup.

A "stock" sirup made of one cup of sugar and one-fourth cup of water cooked to sirup stage was only about two tablespoons more than was needed to dilute three ounces and a half of a fine Swiss chocolate, costing 10 cents an ounce, when it was melted. Instead of being spongy this chocolate was exceedingly smooth, but like a paste so thick that it could not be spread.

It seems to take less corn sirup than stock sirup to dilute other types of sweet chocolate, and perhaps the chocolate cover when prepared with corn sirup is a little more brilliant, which brilliance gradually disappears although with the right temperature—cool and dry—it keeps bright for many hours. And speaking of hours, we know that the leading chocolate makers of the country two decades ago always advertised candies as "fresh every hour," and some of us may know that when fine candies are stale they are as stale as any candy made.

Heating up quite stale sweet chocolate rather freshens it, and a most pleasant confection may be made of it and some chopped nuts or chopped fruits. This sort of thing is not a bad addition to the dessert, and is as easily made as anything that requires heating.

Dipping.

It is easy to dip pieces of nuts in melted and diluted chocolate, but this must be beaten until as smooth as an easy running sirup to get the best effects, even for small things, and for larger pieces terribly gummy effects will be secured if the mixture is not smooth. A thin tined fork will do, but a wire candy dipper is the thing, although clever fingers are often used by the expert, and when the piece is put down a clever twist of the fingers gives that twisted thread, or loop, or fold, which is a decorative finish. But when a small amount of work is done it is surely wasteful to use the fingers.

The whole business of dipping chocolates is one not to be dismissed with such a few words as these, since a great deal of technique goes into expert work, such as raising the dipping material to just the right temperature, keeping it so, keeping the mixture smooth and of the right thickness. Yet a home candy maker can by a litttle practice cover nuts and centers to make something quite as good as the vast amount of slovenly candies made. And she can work out ways of pouring out her cover that may resemble the "enrobing" machine.

Chocolate Apples.

There seems to be a rage for candies on a stick or something of the lollipop order. Many candied apples are not at all pleasant of flavor, but should be to contrast with the sweet. These apples should be clean and on the stick before the dipping preparation is ready. In trying to dip anything of this size the mixture must be thin enough. If too thin the apple may be dipped a second time after the first cover has set a bit, but if the mixture is too thick, not only is the cover uneven but it is gummy.

Sweet chocolate melted and thinned is easier to work with in covering apples than are some of the candy glazes or sirups cooked to the stage when a little in water will form a hard but not too hard a ball. When dipped in this sweet and thinned chocolate and put down on an oiled plate, this is not so likely to form a pool on the plate as are the taffies. In dipping an apple in anything it should be so held that any extra cover should run off from the part opposite the stick, and to make a perfect cover the skewer should be stuck in something so the apple is high and dry from touching anything. The heavy pierced glass pieces used in flower bowls might be all right for this, or a clean pot of dirt.

Decorating Apples.

One cup of sifted confectioner's sugar beat into one egg white till a smooth and easily running icing results, then flavored with a drop or two of lemon or orange juice, may be used for making little white threads or dots for faces or anything iced with chocolate. The little paper cone is best, but a skewer dipped in the icing may be used for amateur work. It is important to keep the icing from drying out, if any small work like this is done, and a damp napkin over the bowl will prevent this rapid drying.

Decorating Cookies.

A teaspoon dipped in melted and thinned sweet chocolate of the right consistency may be used for making faces on white cookies, and the whole will be quite effective, too, even if every face made with dots and dashes is different.

Chocolate Sandwich Fillings.

Just as a crushed chocolate cream between two thin and buttered slices of dark bread makes an excellent sandwich, so will melted sweet chocolate make something acceptable combined in this same way, and nuts chopped and mixed with the chocolate as in the quick dessert confection, improve the filling. Of course, slices of cake may be used with this sort of filling. A cake sandwich for Halloween made of devil's food cake, filled and iced with chocolate and perhaps fixed up with white icing figures of bats and cats, threaded on from a paper cone, would be quite "au fait." There is much chance here for individual fancy to work out its will.

Halloween Mushrooms.

Since we do not have the truffle, and since the frightfully expensive canned ones are hardly worth having, we may use the one really black food supply we have, the mushrooms—from the market or gathered from street parkings and parks.

No matter how the mushroom is to be prepared, it is safer as a food if, after it is cleaned, boiling water is poured over it. Then it is rinsed with cold water. This further cleans them and, in most cases, they are improved, even for broiling, by this treatment. They came up through a soil that may be rich in wholly undesirable things to have in contact with food, as do vegetables.

When mushrooms just gathered cannot be used for eight hours or so, they keep much better if they are scalded and rinsed with cold water than they do unless kept near ice.

Simplest Broiled Mushrooms.

Put clean mushrooms on an earthen plate, season with butter and salt, put in broiling oven until juices start out; remove from oven, cover, let stand five minutes, and serve.

Baked Market Mushrooms.

Wash, scald, and peel caps of mushrooms; save the stems for sauces. Butter a baking pan, pnt the mushroom caps in it, top down, sprinkle them lightly with salt and any other seasoning you like, and dot with tiny bits of butter. There should be no suggestion of greasiness when the mushrooms are cooked. Add a little cream or not as you choose, and bake in a rather hot oven for ten minutes. Serve on toast or as you will.

Stewed Mushrooms.

Stewed mushrooms make the handsomest dishes perhaps. If of uniform size they may be piled symmetrically and ornamentally. The caution is to cook carefully since the solid element in them is of the type of foodstuff that toughens with much heat. To stew mushrooms is really the easiest way to cook them, since when they are either fried or broiled, part or all of their daintily flavored juice may be lost. However, they may be gently sautéed first.

Prepare mushrooms, put to cook in a flat bottomed aluminum kettle or a kettle that can be closely covered. They will keep their shape most perfectly if there is just one layer in the pan and just about half a cup of water. Cook over a minimum fire for twenty minutes. At the end of fifteen minutes there will be but little water, then add a little cream, and finish.

Instead of water mushrooms may be stewed in any highly flavored sauce, or this may be used for the last half of the cooking. A little salt and a little butter added at the last brings out the flavor.

Sliced and Diced Mushrooms Stewed.

Clean and prepare half a pound of mushrooms; slice them in thin slices. Put three or four tablespoons of butter in a frying pan; when it is melted add the mushrooms and cook for five minutes, stirring with a wooden spoon, so as not to break the pieces. Sprinkle over them a scant level tablespoon of flour and stir until will mixed, then add half a cup of cream and stir until smooth and gently cook about ten minutes more in a covered pan. Salt just befoer serving on toast or as a sauce for filet of beef. For the beef a thickened meat gravy in place of the cream may be preferred. To season these further add delicate fry seasonings, like chopped parsley, shallots and some pimento in the butter to start.

What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875. I am now 83 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. I say family laxative because all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is on every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. Calomel, a mercurial that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived; salt waters and powders that draw needed constituents from the blood; coal tar disguised in candy form that causes skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years I have never seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping, and without shock to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It lowers your strength 28 per cent, hardens the arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope but go to a druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite or sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

I REPEAT MY FREE OFFER
$10,000 worth of trial bottles of Syrup Pepsin free

Last year I agreed to spend $10,000 cash for free samples of my Syrup Pepsin, and send them free and postage paid to all who asked. A tremendous mail was the result. But there must be many who did not write. I would like to get their address this time. So I now renew my offer, in remembrance of my approaching 84th birthday, and will again devote $10,000 to free samples. I am anxious to see one in every American home. Write for yours today. Simply give me your address. Send it to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Mine is truly a free gift; it costs the public nothing.

The generous patronage of the people of Chicago has been the judge and jury in the case of our great Alteration Sale. The attendance has exceeded any other similar occasion that we have any knowledge of, and we believe, from our records of purchases made, that it will be a long time before a bigger value-giving sale will be attempted. All of our ten stores have taken part in this great bargain event, and more than a year's output of furniture has been delivered to our patrons since we first announced the beginning of alterations at our stores. This wonderful sale is nearing its close, as the contractors are making good headway with the work of remodeling; therefore, if you have not yet found time to visit us, we suggest that you do so as soon as possible—better neglect something else than miss the astounding money-saving opportunities that await you at this unusual furniture sale.

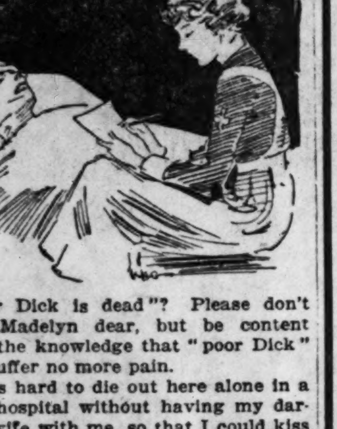
DOWN THE LONG, LONG TRAIL.

MY DARLING: The last time I can call you that! O, the ache in my heart is far greater than any physical pain I may be suffering and I feel as if I cannot die without seeing your dear face once more, but it must be so. Dearest, ere this letter reaches you, you will know that poor Dick is dead. Do the tears come to your beautiful eyes as you read this? Do they fall on the words "poor Dick is dead"? Please don't cry, Madelyn dear, but be content with the knowledge that "poor Dick" will suffer no more pain.



It is hard to die out here alone in a field hospital without having my darling wife with me, so that I could kiss her lips and hold her hand until I had safely passed beyond the waters of the Jordan, but a soldier must harbor no bitter feelings and I can only say, "God's will be done; He meant that it should be so." But is it wrong of me to rebel just a little that I should receive my fatal wound the day before peace was declared? The war is over, dear; no sounds of battle greet my ears; all is quiet. The armistice was signed at 11 o'clock this morning.

Do not grieve too much over my death, dear; I do not want you to. Time will heal the wound of sorrow, and our six months of married life will seem like a beautiful dream to you.

I must tell you this, Madelyn, much as it hurts me to do so; in place of the arm that used to hold you close to me, there is only a bleeding stump. Do you shudder and shrink away from me now? Don't, sweetheart, please! My heart holds more tenderness than ever for you, and it is such a comfort to know my wife loves me still, even if I am maimed beyond repair.

It is a bitter drop in my cup of sorrow to know that I must leave earth before seeing our child, the darling babe whom you have told me so much about and whom you have named after me, but you will teach him to love the memory of his soldier father, and perhaps some day I shall come down to see him and you. Who knows?

I must stop soon, dear, because I am getting weaker and can hardly make myself heard. I know you will not reproach me that another hand must write my last letter to you and other eyes than your own violet blue one read it before yourself. You are kindness and justice itself; O, God, that I could see you once again!

Darling, there is a film gathering before my eyes and there is a rushing sound in my ears. In fancy I clasp you in my arms; in fancy I kiss your sweet lips; in fancy I look into your eyes and read the wealth of love you give me; surely I have been mistaken in saying I shall never see you again, because in the blurring mist I can see you coming; your face is close to mine. O, my dear, I am so happy to feel that you are with me and you will stay until I pass safely into God's keeping. I am going now, dear, and I must say good-by but not forever; a few years on earth for you and then you will join me in the place where there can be no pain or sorrow.

Good-by, dear; I am dying with the beautiful vision of your face before me. Good-by, Madelyn, my wife, good-by!

In death as in life, I am your loving

RICHARD.

Hallowe'en Superstitions

by Doris Blake

HALLOWEEN, or Hallow Even, the last night of October, is the eve of vigil of All Hallow's or All Saints' day. No time in all the year is so replete with superstitious lore, none of which is to be taken seriously, since it is above all an eve of fun and laughter. But if you would invoke charms and spells for prying into your future, the following may aid you to a merry outlook:

If you wish to find out what your matrimonial chances are before another year is out, take three dishes, put clear water in one, soap in another, and leave the third empty. Have some one blindfold you and lead you to the table where the dishes are arranged. Dip your hand in one. If you dip it in the clean water, your future husband will be a rich and handsome bachelor; if in the soapy water, a widower; if in the empty dish, no husband at all.

To find out if your sweetheart is true, light a match and set it to one of his letters. If the flame is high and clear, he is, but if small and blue he will forsake you.

Apple Seeds.

Name two wet apple seeds, and with the palm of your hand stick them on the forehead. The seed which remains stuck longest is the one upon which to pin your hopes. Another test is to cut an apple and pick out seeds from the core; if only two seeds are found it portends early marriage; three, legacy; four, great wealth; five, voyage; six, great fame; seven means you will get anything you desire.

Apple Paring.

With a sharp knife peel an apple round and round without breaking; then swing the paring round your head and let it drop to the floor. The letter formed is the initial of your future mate's name. Or, you may hang the paring over the door, and the first of the opposite sex to pass under it will be your mate.

Ring and Goblet.

Tie a wedding ring or a key to a silken thread, and hold suspended within a glass; then say the alphabet slowly. The letters you have reached when the ring strikes first will be the initial of your loved one's name, and the second strike will register the initial of his last name.

Needle Test.

Grease three needles and place in a bowl of water, naming one for the girl and one for two suitors. Impelled by gravitation, the needles will act curiously. The manner in which they behave toward the young lady is supposed to be suggestive and prophetic.

Popcorn.

Put a grain of popcorn on a hot stove and whichever way it pops that way your sweetheart lives.

Walnut Test.

Remove meat from good sized walnut shells, and in each half shell fasten tiny pieces of different colored candles, the smallest you can get, each of which is named for a member of the party. After lighting, set boat in a large pan of water. The behavior of these tiny boats reveal the future of those for whom they are named. If two glide on together their owners have a like destiny. If they glide apart, so it will be. Sometimes the little boats will huddle together, leaving one out in the cold, an outcast, as it were. Again two will start, the rest will follow, declaiming a wedding procession. The one whose candle goes out first is destined to be an old maid or bachelor.

These nut shell boats may be made, too, by pouring melted wax candles into the half shells, using short string for wicks.

Rose Test.

Take two roses with long stems, naming one for yourself and one for your sweetheart. Go to your room without speaking to any one, kneel beside bed and twining, repeat the following lines gazing intently on the adored one's rose:

Twine, twine, and intertwine,
Let my love be wholly thine.
If his heart be kind and true,
Deeper grow his rose's hue.

If your swain is faithful, color of rose will grow darker.

The Four Saucers.

Put four saucers in a line on the table. Into the first put dirt, into the second water, into the third a ring into the fourth a thimble. Guests are blindfolded and led around the table twice, then urged to go alone and put fingers into one saucer. Into the dirt, means divorce; into water, an ocean voyage; where ring is, to marry where thimble is, never to marry.

Pumpkin Seer.

Carve all the letters of the alphabet on a good sized pumpkin. Set on a stand or table. Each guest is blindfolded, given a hat pin and led to the pumpkin, where he or she sticks the pin into a letter, thus indicating the initial of the intended's last name.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Varied Activities of Women.

Mme. Riviere de la Souchere, who has made a remarkable success of a rubber plantation and cattle farm in Indo-China, has been decorated by the French government with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

There are nearly as many women as men connected with the United States civil service.

There are fewer women barbers in the United States today than there were twenty years ago.

Mrs. Henry Luther of New York has made quite a business of selling her blood. She has submitted to fourteen transfusions in the last three years, receiving $50 each time. She uses the proceeds to keep her son in school.

Oxford, England, has a school where women are instructed in the duties of voting.

New York boasts of having more than 2,500 women engaged in lumber and furniture work.

Miss Ethel Austen, who has made a success in grand opera in London, was a stenographer employed in a Liverpool office five years ago.

Mlle. Renee Prahar, a young Bohemian sculptor, who has won a place in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, allows no other hand to touch her work, but does her own marble cutting as well as modeling.

Miss Elsie Homes makes a specialty of raising fish for the state of Washington.

Of the 25,000,000 more women than men in Europe, Russia has the greatest surplus.

Mrs. Jean Shassere of Terre Haute, Ind., is the representative in Indiana and part of Illinois for one of the largest structural steel concerns in the country.

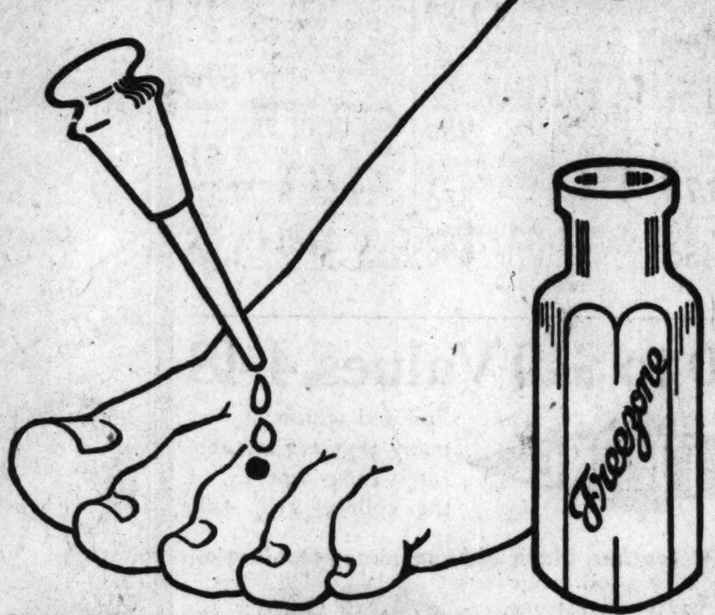
Twenty out of every 100 persons engaged in gainful occupations in the United States are women.

Mrs. Schuyler L. Parsons, New York and Newport society woman, has taken up the study of sculpture with the intention of making it her prefession.

A woman in England has earned her living for forty years by the novel method of shelling peas for London markets.

Corns

Lift Right Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation.

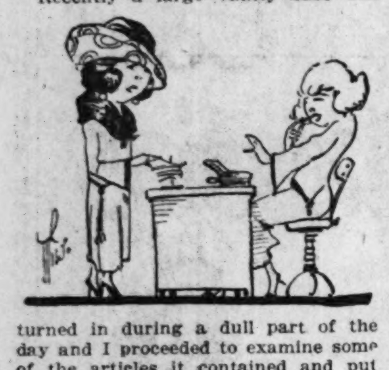
THE LOST IS FOUND.

Part of my daily routine consists of handling lost and found articles.

Recently a large vanity case was turned in during a dull part of the day and I proceeded to examine some of the articles it contained and put them through their various uses. At the height of my exhibition on the art of using a lipstick a sweet voice said: "Well, when you've finished with that, I'd like it. It's mine."



"There Was a Little Girl."

One of the stenographers in our office, a brunette, has a fetching little detachable curl that she wears when hatted for the street.

Now, I am a decided blonde, and one days in the dressing room I had been trying this curl on, sticking it at various rakish angles among my golden locks and calling upon the other girls to admire the striking, not to say startling effect.

When my employer rang vigorously for me I remembered that I ought to be at my desk at that hour, and as he is an irritable man at best, I made a frantic dash for my note book and pencils.

I found him "in conference" with several men, waiting impatiently for me to type an important contract. Their fascinated eyes fixed with one accord upon me, and I am sure there could be no more embarrassing moment in my life than when I realized that idiotic black curl still hung right in the middle of my forehead. D. B.

She Probably Did Then.

We had callers—rather important people.

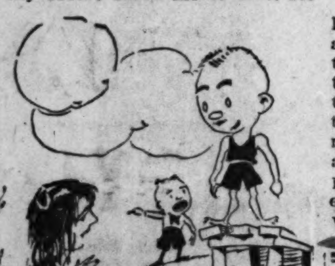
The woman mentioned going home several times without starting.

Finally Bobby spoke up. "I thought you said you were going home?" Was I embarrassed? Well, slightly, yes.

E. H.

Her Crowning Glory.

We were spending our vacation at a fashionable resort where young men were scarce. One day while in swimming my escort dared me to dive. He was the type of man who admires the athletic girl, so I decided to make the attempt.



The dive wasn't so bad, but imagine my embarrassment upon coming to the surface to hear a little boy frantically yelling, "Look, the lady lost her hair."

I looked and there upon the briny deep, floating away, were my artificial bob and bathing cap. My escort looked horrified and, then realizing my predicament, laughed and said as he helped me on the pier, "Vanity of vanities."

I laughed, too, but I assure you had I been a deep sea diver I would have gone down and never come up.

M. E. H.

Just Like an Umpire.

It was in public speaking class at school that I suffered my greatest humiliation and embarrassment. Upon the advice of my parents and teachers I had enrolled in this class in order to try to overcome my abnormal embarrassment in public.

The class was a large one, with only two periods of one hour each week. Luckily it was a month before my turn came, and I kept assuring myself that I couldn't do any worse than some of the others I had listened to in the meantime.

Finally my day arrived. I had had a week to prepare my assignment, and I believed I had done nobly the previous evening, when I had induced my roommate to listen to my recitation. Bravely I left my chair when the instructor called my name, but the nearer I approached the platform, the more nervous I became. By the time I had reached the instructor's desk my legs were trembling terribly, my pulse pounding, and I felt a choking in my throat.

My assignment began with the quotation "Strike While the Iron Is Hot," and that first word was the only one I could think of.

"Strike," I said, and then stopped. Was that thin, squeaking sound from me? No, that wasn't my voice! It must be the instructor prompting me to get me started. I must begin. Taking a deep breath, clenching my hands behind me, and closing my eyes, "Strike!" I cried. Ah, that was better; my own natural voice, but a bit trembly. But why not go on? O, what is the rest of that line? My knees were getting weaker, my hand trembling badly, and I was leaning heavily against the instructor's desk. I must go on, I must!

"Strike!" I put every ounce of energy I could summon to my aid into that shout. It was loud and clear, but it finished me, and I felt myself slipping down alongside the desk.

"Strike three—you're out!" yelled a waggish boy in the class.

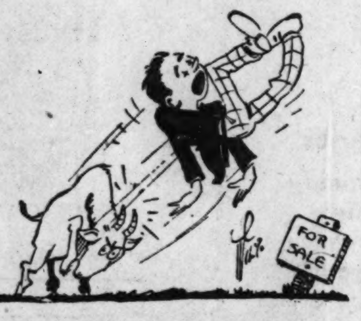
I was. And as the instructor grasped my arm to let me sink limply into his chair behind the desk, I buried my head in my arms to shut out the pandemonium of laughter from the class.

L. A. D.

Got His Goat.

Hurrying to keep an appointment one afternoon, I cut across a vacant lot to a boulevard. Two goats had got loose and were eating grass along the edge of the sidewalk. One reared upon his hind legs and charged.

So sudden was the onslaught that I just had time to grab him by the horns in order to save myself. The old boy was exceedingly strong and it was all I could do to hold him.



Besides the nanny was getting interested and I had to keep one eye on her. To the amusement of a lot of onlookers I tried to make as dignified getaway as possible. Swinging around suddenly, I began to walk rapidly away. Billy planted his horns in the middle of my back, and pushed me for about thirty feet.

F. E. T.

Far, Far Away.

It was during my freshman year in high school. Our class was large, and, as there were not enough desks, I had to occupy a chair. As I was wasting time, the principal asked me to open the window. I thought he told me to move my chair. I got up and carried the chair to the front of the room and then sat down again. The principal and class gazed at me with curious eyes and a boy got up and opened the window, while the class laughed.

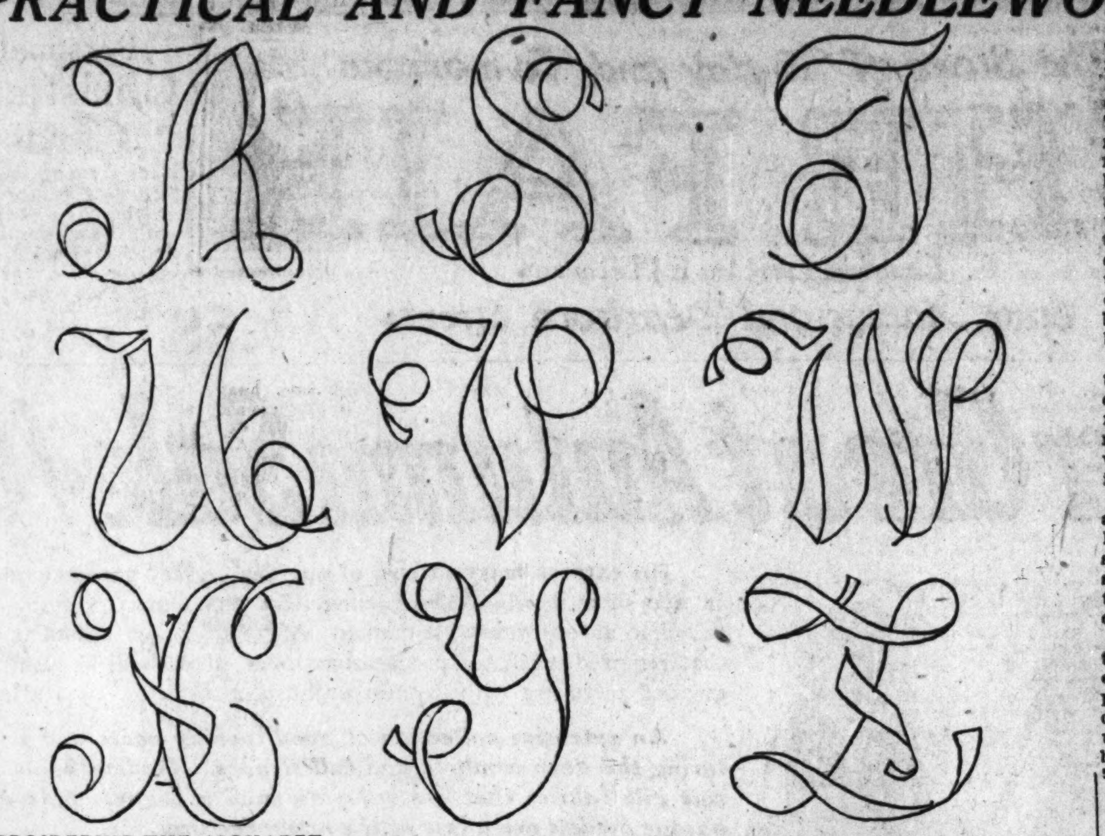
PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



EMBROIDERING THE ALPHABET.

Here is the last installment of the alphabet. It is so pretty I imagine it will be well liked for many purposes. It is just enough different to make it more interesting—the long lines and graceful curves making it possible to use more than one kind of stitch in a letter.

Where padding is used the raised satin stitch will be best for covering, the fine lines will be outline work, and some of the smaller spaces may be filled with the seed stitch instead of padding and working in the usual way.

Each letter must be clearly stamped on the material and a single thread of darning cotton used for the outlining. Take small, even stitches exactly on the lines, making them shorter on the wrong than on the right side. Then, using a couple of strands in the needle at a time, use darning cotton for padding. A darning stitch may be used, making it long on the right side, and as short as possible on the wrong. This work is always done on the length of the letter, and the padding is always heavier in the center of the space, making it lighter as the outline is reached. This work should be done with the material in the embroidery rings.

Choose a needle for embroidering that will take the floss easily, for if it is difficult to pull the eye through, the material will surely be injured. To make embroidery good looking the work must be evenly done— and haste is out of the question.

The stitch used is simply an over and over one, always taken across the letter at right angles to the filling stitches. Where there are curves, the stitches must be taken unusually close together on the inside, and on the outer side there must be no spaces.

A little practice will make it possible to do beautiful work. If one is inexperienced, time will be well spent practicing first on an ordinary piece of cloth. It is fascinating work, but unless it is well done there is no beauty in it.

Eatmor Cranberries

From Nature's Own Laboratory!

A cunning theft from the soil—a whiff of the sea—a tinge of frost—and you have the most healthful—most zestful of fruits—Cranberries!

Cranberries are also the most economical of fruits—they cost the least—are easiest to prepare—quickest to cook—and there is no waste!

Try these recipes:

Cranberry Jelly

Cook until soft the desired quantity of cranberries with 1½ pints of water for each two quarts of berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag.

Measure the juice and heat it to the boiling point. Add one cup of sugar for every two cups of juice; stir until the sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for five minutes; skim, and pour into glass tumblers, porcelain or crockery molds.

Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, two cups boiling water, 1½ to 2 cups sugar. Boil sugar and water together for five minutes; skim; add the cranberries and boil without stirring (five minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins are broken. Remove from the fire when the popping stops.

Strained Cranberry Sauce

If a strained sauce is preferred, cook the cranberries and water; then press through the strainer, keeping back the skins; add the sugar and finish the cooking as suggested.

Cook cranberries in porcelain-lined, enameled, or aluminum vessels—never in tin.

To be sure of a selection of the choicest varieties—ask for Eatmor Cranberries.

A Skin Like Early Girlhood

Real Beauty Comes When Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used to Rid Face of Pimples, Blackheads, Blotches and Such Blemishes.

After using Stuart's Calcium Wafers you will note that they remove from the system the waste products that so often get into the skin to cause pimples, blackheads, blotches and such complexion disfigurements. Then the calcium is a natural aid to skin repair and health.

Your skin not only improves but there is a general appearance of firmer flesh, your face will fill out to its natural lines if thin, because the action of the calcium sulphide in these wafers stimulates the transference of the red arterial blood to where the venous or stale blood has become impure and must be returned to the circulation.

You cannot get this wonderful result from cosmetics or drugs nor can you have a clear, beautiful complexion without this wonderful transference. So when you are near a drug store ask for a 60 cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, far better and more certain of the results you want than the yeast and vitamine drugs.

"Burning Sands" Is as Sheikish as "The Sheik"

"BURNING SANDS."

Produced by Paramount. Directed by George Melford. Presented at the Orpheum.

THE CAST.

Muriel Blair	Wanda Hawley
Daniel Lane	Milton Sills
Kate Bindane, Muriel's friend	Louise Dresser
Lizette, a dancer	Jacqueline Logan
Robert Barthampton	Robert Cain
Mr. Bindane	Fenwick Oliver
Governer	Winter Hall
Ibrahim, an Arab	Albert Roscoe
Old Sheik	Cecil Holland
Hussein	Jim Ray

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

When they made "The Sheik" they began something, didn't they? Not only was the good old desert made to rise and shine on the silver sheet—but they started the player rolls rolling and the phonograph records recording. That a course of Arabic in the public schools was not suggested is remarkable. However, it is with the sheikish pictures that we are concerned—and George Melford has made another one. A BETTER one than "The Sheik." (After which remark it is suggested to the motion picture editor by the flapper at large that she crawl in a hole and pull the hole in after her.)

Can't be done. Got to write about "Burning Sands."

From out the dim, dark past—not so vurr' dim nor so vurr' dark—Paramount brought forth the novel by Arthur Weigall, read it, found it good bought the picture rights, and told Mr. Melford to go ahead with the screen version. Mr. Melford obliged. The result is a picture full of color, action, and thrills whose only false note is Wanda Hawley.

Miss Hawley is splendid when it comes to straight comedy or when she depicts the tempestuous emotions of inexperienced youth. But she has not the poise nor bearing for her rôle in "Burning Sands." As the governor's daughter she reminds one of a maid who has carefully observed her mistress' manners and is fairly apt at imitation. Only—with the maid—dignity becomes pose, and hauteur impudence.

WANDA HAWLEY.

The scenes are laid in the desert where you meet Daniel Lane, a philosopher, who, finding civilization not to his taste, has taken himself and his books and his beliefs—the main one of which that man's chief duty to himself and the world is to conquer himself—to the desert.

He becomes a sort of foster son of an old sheik. The latter he aids and counsels to the best of his ability.

The sheik has a renegade son who plots with Arabian enemies of the British government to hold that government up for a large sum of money.

After many Englishmen have been mysteriously killed the British governor, hearing of Lane and knowing of his influence with the Arabs, beseeches his aid. And so the philosopher pitches his tent outside the gates of Cairo, meets the governor's daughter, and becomes enmeshed in a network of intrigue and adventure.

Mr. Sills does better playing than he has for ages in this rôle. Jacqueline Logan as Lizette, a dancer, is charming. Louise Dresser as friend and chaperon of Muriel, the governor's daughter, does some good work. Robert Cain, as the governor's secretary, gives a clever char-

St. Denis and Isadora Duncan Will Dance Here This Week

By Edward Moore.

AGAIN the art of the dance confronts Chicago, but this time in its American rather than its Russian manifestations. Ruth St. Denis, with Ted Shawn and the Denishawn Dancers, will be at Orchestra hall tomorrow and Tuesday nights; Isadora Duncan plus a symphony orchestra conducted by Nahan Franko, will come to the Auditorium on Friday night and Saturday afternoon.

Miss St. Denis and her organization are scheduling a somewhat complex program. The first part is a group of what she calls "music visualizations." She explains that the attempt here is to translate accurately into visible form the actual construction of the music.

"There is no dancing as the music makes the dancer feel," she says, "no aimless wandering about the stage picking imaginary daisies and drinking from invisible fountains. Rather, each eighth note, each arpeggio, each trill is conscientiously paralleled by an analogous movement of the dancer, with careful thought to the rendering of melodic themes, development of themes, and the dancing of separate voices." Beethoven, Chopin, Schumann, Brahms, Liszt, and Zucca will be thus translated.

Then comes the second part, in two groups. A Spanish suite includes a "Shawl Plastique," details not given; a "Tango" by Mr. Shawn, and Moszkowski's "Malaguena," by both the leaders, followed by "In the Garden," a suite for other members of the company.

ISADORA DUNCAN
Dancing at the Auditorium Friday and Saturday.

"Xochitl" is described as a dance drama in two scenes, based upon an ancient Toltec legend. The music is composed by Homer Grunn, who has made a study of music of the American Indians. Martha Graham takes the name part, with Mr. Shawn in the rôle of the emperor of the Toltecs.

The final section is called "Orientalia." The entire membership is billed for the various sections, which include scenes of China, Crete, India, Siam, Japan, Java, and Egypt.

Less has been learned of Miss Duncan's intentions. One program will be interpretative of the music of Wagner, the other of Tschaikowsky. The "Entrance of the Gods Into Valhalla" and "The Ride of the Valkyries" are emphasized on the first, and the "Marche Slave" on the other, but there will undoubtedly be more of it. One infers that the performance will be in Miss Duncan's customary unrigid manner. She, or her press agent, sends word that "it follows no rules of a binding, artificial technique—it is natural, and follows only the laws of nature in giving rhythmic expression to music."

Music Made to Order.

The Music Publishers' Association of the United States and the Music Publishers' Protective association have issued in leaflet form a "Warning to Song Writers." Under the caption, "The Song Writing Swindle," it protests vehemently against the activities of the "composers" who advertise that they will set your song poems to music and guarantee publication. As the contents are quite in line with remarks at one time and another made by publishers to the one who writes this, a few excerpts may therefore be noted.

"Without advertising," says the leaflet, "these concerns could not secure fresh victims. Here are a few typical advertisements;

"'Why don't you write the words for a song? We'll help you along by composing the music free and publishing same. Send poems today.'

"'Write the words for a song. We will compose music, secure copyright, and print. Submit poems on any subject.'

"'No money needed for publication. Poems set to music and published free on commission.'

"'Write a song poem—Love, Mother, Comic, or any subject. I compose music and guarantee publication. Sends words today.'"

There are other specimens, but the association says that they are all wrong. "Any hack musician of experience can grind out commonplace music by the yard," it continues. "With song texts set before him on the piano rack

Three Pleasant Plays in a Week Brighten First Nighter's Path

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—One of the new plays of the week is called "Swifty," after the hero, who is a reformed prize fighter. It is a trivial comedy drama and not likely to cause much excitement in this play ridden town. But it boasts a few bright lines, and the first-night audience seemed to get a moderate amount of amusement from it.

"Swifty," who is, in the person of Hale Hamilton, quite as handsome as Georges Carpentier was before "he took Siki," as the hero explains, hires out as the trainer of a rich man's son. One of his first jobs is to help his young employer out of a scrape with a girl, and the girl, Swifty discovers at the end of the first act, is his own little sister Alice.

His first impulse, knowing the drama as well as he does, is to take the trusty automatic from the table drawer and bore the bad little rich boy full of holes. Then he has a better idea. The bad boy has a sister, a fresh little flapper eager for any kind of an adventure. Swifty will make love to her and then treat her as shabbily as his own sister had been treated. It is easy for him to stage an elopement with the impressionable flapper, but with the family properly excited he returns honorably with the girl to report that they had walked up and down 5th avenue most of the night and then gone to the Plaza for breakfast. After which a general adjustment is effected, with Swifty retiring temporarily, but with a promise that he will meet them all in Palm Beach for the winter's flirting.

HALE HAMILTON.

Frances Howard plays the flapper heroine, and the cast includes William Holden, Grace Goodall, and Humphrey Bogart. John Peter Toohey and Walter Percival are the authors.

Glimpses of the Sunny Side.

It has been a blessed relief the last week to come upon three pleasant plays. The artistic drama, gloomy and soul searching, is all very well, but too much of it is too much. You recall Hal Skelly's joke about garlic—it builds you up physically, but it pulls you down socially. The art drama is often mentally stimulating, but physically a bit of a test.

The pleasant plays include "The Faithful Heart," born in London as a typical English melodrama by Monckton Hoffe, but played in the key of parlor comedy and thus made into a searchingly human and appealing little drama. The story is of a sailor who loves a lass and runs away, only to be faced by the consequences of his forgetfulness twenty years later when a young woman calls upon him with proofs that she is his illegitimate daughter. It is not easy to imagine this type of story furnishing such a play as society would sit up and split its gloves applauding, is it? And yet that is what is happening.

The sailor person is a decent chap, one of those clean Englishmen who believe it dutiful "to do the thing we can't explain because we know it's right"—just as we fought the great war. In melodrama he would be explosively grand and heroic, but he is mild enough here. When his daughter comes to him he is just about to be demobilized after having won a lieutenant colonelcy and a decoration or two in the war. Society is eager to take him up, and by marrying the sister of an army pal he can have a financial settlement thrust upon him that will insure his independence, if not his happiness, for life. He loves his prospective wife, too, though he does recoil sensitively from the knowledge that by marrying her he is bound to take her money and social position with her.

Then in comes the little daughter, pale and wistful, but not at all pathetic. Her mother had died in Southampton when she was born and had left a letter

Chicago Pays, and Jolson Sits on Top of the World

By Sheppard Butler.

GLOOMY observations have appeared in this column of late concerning the prevalent lack of prosperity in the theater. It is true that good plays are failing because of slender patronage; that once successful entertainments are being withdrawn here and there about the country and wending their ways to the storehouse; that, consequently, there are more playhouses than attractions to fill them, and that the temples of the drama are turning, one by one, to the movies.

But there is another side to the picture. Disturbed, as you no doubt are, by the tidings of woe, you will be glad to hear that Chicago now has some cheerful statistics to report. In the vernacular of showdom, Al Jolson, at the Apollo, is at the moment doing the biggest theatrical business in the United States—which, no doubt, means the biggest in the world.

Jolson's receipts for the seven days ending a week ago are reported on the best of authority to have been $39,810. A tidy sum, of which some $20,000, they say, was profit. During the same period Mr. Ziegfeld's "Sally," in Philadelphia, is credited with having taken in $38,000; the "Follies," in New York, $37,300, and the "Music Box Revue," in Boston, $32,500. The latter figures are not, perhaps, authentic, but they are reasonably accurate.

IRENE BORDONI
in "The French Doll," a comedy with songs, at Powers'.
[Apeda Photo.]

Were this pace maintained, each of these four entertainments would play to receipts of nearly $2,000,000 a year. Two of them have done approximately that. The others, not yet a year old, may come somewhere near such an achievement. And figures like these, of course, mean that for most performances every available seat is sold and many would-be patrons turned away. If some magician could make theater capacities flexible, the favored of the gods would be correspondingly more prosperous.

In any event, it appears that the gods do favor some of the footlight adventurers. In the desert of theatrical fortunes an occasional oasis is to be found. Some light shines through the cypress trees, and all that.

Kind Words for Mr. Pollock; He's Coming Back.

One conspicuous phenomenon of an "off season" in stageland is the promptitude with which producers lose their nerve. If a play does not start well, off goes its head. Such a fate befell "A Bill of Divorcement," which departed last night from Powers'. On the third day after its opening—i. e., after three performances had been given—it was decreed that the auguries were not sufficiently favorable and orders were given to abandon the campaign in the Chicago salient.

But the erstwhile owner of a "A Bill of Divorcement" did not reckon with Allan Pollock. Pollock likes Chicago, and believes in "A Bill of Divorcement." He has bought the play and is going to bring it back. Next week, after filling an engagement in Detroit, he will establish himself at the Central, in Van Buren street, to stay as long as he can.

Here is a fine compliment to Chicago, and an enterprise worthy of support by every playgoer who seeks something more than fluff in the theater. No better play has come to town this season; not many more arresting examples of good acting are to be observed than Pollock's vivid portrayal of the broken soldier about whom the piteous story revolves. It is the actor's own venture, and he proposes to stand or fall alone.

"It's heartbreaking," he told me, "not to be given a chance. We had exactly the same experience, at the start, in New York. Small audiences, and an order to close. But there they had to give us three weeks' notice, and before

Introducing! The California Type Nash
A Chicago-Nash Special

Today we inaugurate an attractive display of the newly-improved Nash Six with California Type Top.

Here's a car that provides a wonderful combination of closed car comfort and luxury at but little more than open car cost.

It's a special Chicago-Nash offering and we'll have but a few of them—so come in at once.

They'll be delivered immediately in the "first-come first-served" order.

The top is beautifully tailored to the car and fits snugly and tightly all the way 'round. All the windows are extra wide and of heavy polished plate.

The graceful lines of the top serve further to accentuate the low-hung smartness of the car itself.

Added to all these advantages are many new improvements and refinements now embodied in the design and equipment of the Nash Six.

Altogether, it's the greatest "buy" that Chicago has seen in a long, long time. But you'll have to act quickly if you're to get one.

The New Plays

First Aid for First Nighters on Attractions Scheduled for the Coming Weeks in the Theaters.

OPENING TONIGHT.

"The French Doll" (Powers)—Here is the beauteous Miss Irene Bordoni, playing the marriageable daughter of a poverty-stricken baron in a comedy adapted by A. E. Thomas from the French of Paul Armont and Marcel Gerbidon. It is not a musical play, but there are interpolated songs for Miss Bordoni. Her company includes Harry C. Browne, Will Deming, Edouard Durand, Claire Grenville, Mary Robinson, and Laura Lussier.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"Greatness" (Olympic)—Zoë Akins' new comedy for Miss Jobyna Howland, setting forth certain domestic perplexities of a temperamental and much-married notable of the operas. This is the play's first important showing. Cyril Keightley heads the supporting cast, and others in it are Percy Helton, Stanley Howlett, Georges Renavent (whom Mr. Cohan offered as a star here not so long ago), Beth Varden, and Lizzie McCall.

OPENING NEXT WEEK.

"The Hairy Ape" (Studebaker, Oct. 29)—Eugene O'Neill's grim drama of the emotional adventures of a ship's stoker, with Louis Wolheim in the leading rôle.

"Revue Russe" (Playhouse, Oct. 30)—Russian players, headed by Mme. Maria Kousnezoff, once of the Chicago opera, in a varied program of musical and dramatic bits.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"The First Year" (Woods, Nov. 5)—Frank Craven in his own play, reputed to be an uncommonly fine comedy of American life.

"For All of Us" (La Salle, Nov. 12)—William Hodge in a new one of his own authorship.

"The Czarina" (Powers', Nov. 12, or 13)—Miss Doris Keane in Melchior Lengyel and Lajos Biro's comedy about Catherine II. of Russia.

"Music Box Revue" (Colonial, Nov. 13)—A spacious and expensive musical show, with William Collier and various other important people in it.

"Kempy" (Selwyn, Nov. 13)—An amusing comedy by J. C. and Elliott Nugent, with Grant Mitchell and the authors acting in it.

Kind Words for Mr. Pollock

the three weeks were up the play was a hit. We went on for five months, and were enormously successful.

"I believe it will work out the same way in Chicago. It's a curious thing: our audiences at Powers' have not been large, but they have been most amazingly enthusiastic. Every night they have given us twenty curtain calls—twenty, mind you! It was like that in New York before the crowds began coming.

"So I want to see if history won't repeat itself. And after 'A Bill of Divorcement' I have two other plays that I hope to put on. I want to stay in Chicago."

An interesting experiment, and a novel one, for we have not given shelter to many actor-managers. Pollock knows his theater, and should do well. Here's luck!

"Lightnin'" Prepares to Go.

"Lightnin's" days in Chicago are numbered. The record breaking play is still gathering in the shekels at the Blackstone, but its owners have reached the wise conclusion that it cannot stay forever and that it will be well to seek other pastures. Frank Bacon and his players, therefore, will depart on Dec. 9 and betake themselves to Boston, where they have been waiting for "Lightnin'" since they first began hearing about it more than four years ago.

This amiable piece was a theatrical phenomenon before it came to Chicago. It had been played in New York for three years and a day, and had aroused the mercurial Gothamites to such a degree of admiration that, when it left, the mayor and various city officials and the actors and the folks about town turned out to bid it good-by with a torchlight procession. We saw it first on the evening of Sept. 1, 1921, and since then there has been no interruption of its career at the Blackstone.

The last Chicago performance, on Dec. 9, will be the six hundred and first. New York saw "Lightnin'" 1,291 times, so that the total for the company headed by Frank Bacon is 1,892 performances in two cities. Other companies, in cities which Bacon will not be able to visit, are swelling the figure nightly. An amazing record!

No one knows, of course, how it all came about. There are many better plays than "Lightnin'"—many with more pungent humor and more searching pathos. But none seem to have so definitely caught the public fancy. No doubt the kindly, mellow character of the ne'er-do-well, Lightnin' Bill Jones, is the play's dominant asset. Bill Jones is, in effect, another Rip Van Winkle, and it was Rip who placed Joseph Jefferson among the immortals. Perhaps Frank Bacon will be as well remembered.

Gossip of Plays and Players.

Mrs. Fiske, casting about for something worth while to do, is reported to have joined forces with Holbrook Blinn for a joint starring venture in a new play. This will be in the nature of a reunion, since Blinn's first real prominence in the theater was achieved as Mrs. Fiske's leading man. He has reached the end of his tour in "The Bad Man," and rehearsals for the forthcoming production, 'tis said, will soon be under way.

Some perplexity is in evidence as to when Mr. Ziegfeld's "Sally," with Miss Marilyn Miller and Leon Errol in it, will come to Chicago. It has been a great money maker, and was to have had the preference in booking arrangements here, but other plays seem to be delaying its arrival. The Colonial, first named as its destination, is to have "The Music Box Revue" on Nov. 13, and a long run is expected for that lively entertainment. The Apollo, next on the list, is inhabited by Mr. Jolson, who shows no inclination to leave. Probably "Sally" will come when the peak of Jolson's prosperity is past; when that will be is a matter of conjecture, though members of the "Sally" company, it is known, expect to be here on Thanksgiving day.

Ten days ago Leo Ditrichstein commissioned Ben Hecht to write him a play about Benvenuto Cellini. Yesterday Hecht walked into the La Salle theater with two acts completed. There is no idea of producing the piece before the fall of next year, but Ditrichstein insists on beginning rehearsals at once, just for the fun of it.

The Palace Music hall joins today with other Orpheum circuit theaters throughout the country in beginning a week's celebration of the circuit's "third of a century anniversary." Players from the various entertainments now in town will drop in for impromptu appearances at one performance or another; civic and business organizations will be present en masse on specified evenings, and everything possible will be done to insure a general atmosphere of gayety.

A. A. Milne's "The Romantic Age" is to be produced soon, but not, as was promised, with Miss Patricia Collinge heading its cast. Miss Margalo Gillmore is the one chosen, and Miss Collinge, married and content, remains in retirement in Chicago.

Miss May Irwin, long absent from the stage, will return to it next month as mistress of ceremonies for "The Forty-Niners," the band of playwrights and actors who are preparing a sort of American "Chauve-Souris" program in New York. "Nothing in the world," says Miss Irwin, gracefully, "would have induced me to come back from the farm but the opportunity I am thus given to associate myself with these great minds."

Frank Bacon will journey to Peoria today to see his daughter, Miss Bessie Bacon, play in the "Lightnin'" company headed by Thomas Jefferson and, perhaps, "sit in" on the stage for the edification of Peorians during the courtroom scene.

John Barrymore has begun rehearsals in "Hamlet," but there is still some question as to who will be the Ophelia.

How Miss Morgan Earned More Money

Miss Morgan had a fairly good position. Yet she was not satisfied. She wanted to move up. But somehow, there seemed nothing ahead to strive for in the work she was then doing!

Part of the time she served as telephone operator and part of the time in the general office doing clerical work. The important men in the business scarcely ever saw her—few knew her by name.

One day she happened to read an advertisement of The Illinois School of Filing. It appealed to her as worth investigation, so she sent for the free book—"Finding a profession instead of a job." It gave her an insight into filing she had never had before and answered all her questions.

She could not afford to give up her old position so she studied at night. As soon as she had completed the course she obtained a position offering advancement.

She now feels that she is doing something worth while—that, in filing, she has a profession—that she is no longer "lost in the shuffle," but really amounts to something.

I asked Miss Morgan the other day what she thought of The Illinois School of Filing.

"I think," she replied, "it is a wonderful school. It did so much for me that my two sisters are also taking the course. I wouldn't be surprised if they get even better positions than I have."

"Burning Sands" Is Fully As Sheikish As "The Sheik"

acterization of a human snake. You are always sure Winter Hall will skillfully depict any character given him to portray. As the governor he is dignified, gracious, harassed, and determined. His frenzy in the scene when he thinks the worst of his daughter and the philosopher is exceedingly real.

This is one of those pictures where a great deal of attention has been expended on those playing the minor rôles. The two sheiks haven't a great deal to do—but you are impressed by their every appearance. Mr. Roscoe as the renegade son gives you a pain (as he is meant to) and the various servants, thugs, etc., are sinister personages who are never permitted to overact but who perform their parts so that they are vital toward making the film a convincing whole.

Much thought has been given to sets, scenery, and photography. So—if you like sheikish pictures, with their quota of desert atmosphere, flowing robes, and hot emotions inscrutably repressed, "Burning Sands" ought to fill the bill.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

JAMES S.: Yes, I "really" saw Mary and Doug' in person. Too bad you couldn't get seats. Thomas Meighan is married—to Frances Ring. Happily, too. No, you have that twisted—Dorothy Davenport is the wife of Wallace Reid. Glad to be of service at any time.

MRS. R. G. S.: "Twist thee and me"—art sure?

DECENCY: You're having an awful fit, aren't you?

ARMISTICE: All right.

MISS N. M. C.: I suppose I could if I had time—but I haven't time. We don't play guessing games in this department.

K. S. H.: I think it would be a good thing to revive the comedies in which Sidney Drew and his wife appeared—just as an object lesson to some so called producers of comedies, if for no other reason. Mrs. Drew is nicely, thank you. Somebody told me recently that she is learning to ride a motor cycle. Thanks for your lovely letter.

KICK KORNER

Dear Miss Tinée: Sheba, Mae, has just come to the provinces. Awfully sweet girl—Betty Blythesome, n'everything. But Mae, she's not been taking her daily dozen of late! As Eckie might chronicle from the ringside—"there were little rolls about the belt not exactly ridges of muscle, though it must be admitted, Battling Solomon was, on the contrary, a bit drawn."

But with less of the facetious, Mae, provided the Korner has not already Vangied such babble, doesn't such a spectacle evoke pity? Pity for the producers who apparently believe they are the quintessence of accuracy; pity for us benighted souls who are the essence of gullibility.

Bard of Avon, thine anachronisms are engulfed in one fell swoop! Hand mirrors of Pittsburgh plate; a circus maximus, with chariot races therein; Roman flat swords; Bactrian camels [possible] not a Semite in the cast [mirabile dictu!] Roman games; Chinese shuttle-cock; Assyrian-Babylonian architecture [not impossible, but never as heroic]; a chariot run-way like the romp storage system in the La Salle garage; unheard of "tomb of Kings;" air-plane speed between Sheba and Jerusalem; 12th century drawbridge; a monogamous Solomon; ignorance of the awful [in its strict sense] reverence due the ark of the Covenant and Holy of Holies—and—I pause only because I consume too much space.

We don't even flush at Betty's draperies. Nice girl, Betty, we repeat. Hardly need to see more of her. Lotsa other nish gurls, Mae, lotsha 'em. But—O, well, let's hear your comment.

ICON.

[Editor's Note: I'll "COMMENT" all right. You're jealous! Can't blame you, though. Miss Blythe was lovely enough in "The Camels of Sheba" to disturb almost anybody.]

[Mae Tinée's serial of movie life, "A Star at Large," will be found on page 16 of this section.]

Three Pleasant Plays Make Lively New York Week

she was to deliver to her "illegitimate father," as she calls him, when she grew up. The father doesn't even open the letter, so guardedly is the play staged to avoid the obviously melodramatic incident. Not a single "Mygod!" escapes his tightened lips. He recognizes the girl he had forgotten in the daughter he has found, and, quietly, without gushing or protest, accepts her as his responsibility. She is his daughter and she shall have his name and his protection.

The high born fiancée is hurt, of course. But she is decent about it. Her marriage would never be a success, she feels, with this reawakened dream love as her rival in the home. So father and daughter go to sea again; he as the captain of a tramp freighter rolling down to Rio with one snug cabin aboard for the little girl. And they leave from the same sitting room in Southampton where the sailor and his daughter's mother parted in the prologue.

It is an English company, as it should be, though mostly recruited in America. The Broadway woods are filled with English actors just now. Tom Nesbitt, who played three parts so capably in "Mary Rose," was brought over for the rôle of the sailor, which he plays beautifully. Flora Sheffield doubles the rôles of the mother of the prologue and her daughter in the other acts, and also gives a wholesomely sympathetic performance. The others include Herbert and Daisy Belmore and Lionel Pape.

Not Long for This Life.

Another pleasant play is called "The Ever Green Lady," but I am a little afraid this one will never reach you, save through the stock companies and on the screen. It seemed none too robust the other night, when David Wallace offered it at the Punch and Judy theater.

It is one of those plainly artificial little comedies born of the theater that neither attain nor sustain a satisfying illusion. Abby Merchant wrote it, after a studious year or two as a member of Prof. Baker's drama class at Harvard.

In it a 65 year old grandma, mother of an honest Irish contractor who suddenly comes into a lot of money, rebels at being wrapped in satins and softies and set away to be happy. She is not sure she ever saw a parasite, but she had rather see than be one. And when the family would ship her off to Lakewood for the four weeks they will be at Palm Beach, she contrives to change places with the family laundress, who lives in Greenwich Village.

Here she has the time of her declining years washing and ironing and mixing a little home brew for the influenza patients around her. Incidentally she finds the young reporter her granddaughter loves and patches up their romance. But she also gets into trouble when the district attorney investigates the home brew, and it is thus her masquerade is discovered and her shocked son made aware of her rebellion.

During her stay in the tenement grandma takes in a boarder—one of those ancient messenger "boys" you may see wandering the streets of the larger cities a little consciously after midnight. "Doody" is this boy, [illegible] 60 or thereabouts, and he had [illegible] live in New York than any other [illegible] on earth. He has a real zest for [illegible] too, and reads his Nick Carter with [illegible] ditional enthusiasm. A little soft [illegible] tally, pompous and pathetic, this is [illegible] fine characterization by J. M. Kerrigan, which furnishes at least half the [illegible] taining force of the comedy. [illegible] Mercer plays grandma sympathetically, but never very convincingly, [illegible] Miss Merchant hasn't written her [illegible] that way.

This Russian Vaudeville.

On the Century roof Nikita [illegible] has changed the program of the [illegible] sians of the "Chauve-Souris" for the third time. And achieved, to [illegible] body's surprise, the best bill of [illegible] three. An amazing success, this [illegible] sian vaudeville. After 300 perform[illegible] ances the theater is still practically filled to its capacity at each perform[illegible] ance, and though capacity in this [illegible] stance means no more than [illegible] persons seated, it still is an unusual record.

Society to Greet Imposing Array of Debutantes

By Mme. X.

MISS ELLEN THORNE.

[Drake Studio Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne will give a tea Saturday, Nov. 11, at their residence, 1046 Lake Shore drive, to introduce formally to society their eldest daughter, Ellen. Mr. and Mrs. Thorne will give a ball at the Casino Wednesday night, Dec. 20, for their daughter. Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne of 1200 Lake Shore drive will give a dinner party at their residence Friday, Dec. 22, for Miss Thorne, who is their niece, and their son, Ward Thorne, who will be at home from Princeton.

MISS VIRGINIA TAYLOR.

[Ira C. Hill Photo.]

Miss Virginia Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Taylor, will make her debut at a tea to be given by her parents Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 22, at the George Henry Highs' residence at 1242 Lake Shore drive, which Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have rented for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will give a ball for their daughter Tuesday night, Dec. 26, at the Blackstone. Mrs. and Miss Taylor returned recently from West Goldsboro, Me.

THE national wheat crop is reported to be one of the largest in history, but it is as nothing compared to this year's crop of debutantes in Chicago. A month ago it was reported on reliable authority that there were fifty-two of them. This number has been augmented by I don't dare say how many since then. The question arises: Are there enough young men to go around, to beau the buds, to provide partners for the dance, to complete the grand show of youth which will [illegible] this season's contribution to society?

Already the debutante teas have begun, those preliminary affairs by which the young girls are first presented by their mothers to the older element in the social world who, as it were, pass judgment on them. These are almost as much a ritual as baptism and vaccination are early in the life of the young person. The number of bouquets and boxes of flowers she receives, the density of the attendant crowds of guests, the degree to which the neighboring streets are made impassable because of the waiting automobiles, all attest to social standing of the bud and her family, and are matters of conversation and comparison.

Ears, but They Hear Not.

There is small opportunity for anything approaching conversation among the guests at these debutante teas. People meet and murmur banalities without any consciousness of either side of the exchange of sentences. There is a tale told by a woman of wit and discernment. She attended one of these debutante crushes. She shook hands with her hostess and said: "I'm so sorry that my husband could not come! He committed suicide this morning." "I'm so sorry!" responded the hostess, "I want to present my daughter to you." This same gruesome announcement as to her absent husband the inspired guest made to person after person without eliciting any answer that showed that her remark had been taken in by those she addressed until she met a solitary and wandering man. When she gave him the same melancholy news he almost shouted: "Good heavens, woman! what are you doing here then?" She explained the nature and success of her experiment.

The great to-do made year after year over the social introduction of the young daughters of those "in society" is an expression of the youth of Chicago. In older, more experienced communities this annual accretion is not so conspicuous nor so elaborately celebrated an event.

In London and Paris, for instance, the young girls do not come out with a bang; they become a part of the gay world much as their prototypes, the tender buds in a garden open to the sun, become a part of the garden's many hued splendor. The debutantes of these hoary old capitals are accepted much more as a matter of course. Their mothers give dances for them and also take them about with them to be presented to the dowagers and stars of society. But society, in the London and Paris interpretation of the term, goes on its way with no pause to watch the young step forth into the limelight.

They Are Different Over There.

In the great world on the other side of the Atlantic society is the coming together of men and women of a certain amount of worldly experience and mature outlook on life. In London social gatherings of any distinction one is almost always sure of meeting celebrities, people who have accomplished something to the glory of mankind; scientists, statesmen, artists, explorers, writers, musicians, even occasionally, though not so often, poets.

The London hostess, though she manages to discharge her social obligations, is not so prone to clog her dinner parties with people to whom she owes dinner invitations, as are we Americans. This gratitude for past favors or for those to come is an admirable characteristic, but sometimes operates against original or brilliant dinner conversation.

But to return to the real topic of this discourse: this year's crop of debutantes. In such an imposing list it is impossible in a short space such as is the domain of this chronicler to name all of them. We can only pick out a few whose family background makes them a part of the past and contemporary history of Chicago which is our passionate concern. Among them are many third generation Chicagoites.

There is, for instance, Miss Lydia Hibbard, whose father, Frank Hibbard, is the second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hibbard. The latter were fine examples of our pioneer citizens, that past generation which laid the foundations of our domestic, religious, social, and business life. Miss Louise Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, is another, her grandfather, the late William Mitchell, having been one of the early bankers of the city, a career in which his son, John J. Mitchell, follows him.

Miss Helen Isham is on both sides of the family of this third generation class, her grandfathers on both sides having been builders of Chicago in the last half of the last century. In fact, on her father's side, she is a fourth generationer, Dr. George S. Isham's grandparents having been among the early settlers here. Her mother's father, the late H. H. Porter, was a well known railroad man and financier in his time.

Chicago's Third Generation.

The Misses Laura Thompson and Polly Packard are both, on the maternal side, of Chicago's third generation. Miss Thompson belongs to the numerous and widely known Poole family, her mother having been Miss Alice Poole, daughter of the late Abram Poole. Miss Genevieve Carpenter is on both sides a third degree Chicagoan. Her father's father was the late George B. Carpenter, founder of the firm that still bears his name, while her maternal grandparent, Joseph Winterbotham, is a well known resident of Chicago today. Miss Daphne Field, daughter of Stanley Field, while not, strictly speaking, a member of this great order of third degree-ites, belongs to one of the best known Chicago families, her paternal great-uncle having been the late Marshall Field, founder of what is said to be the largest retail establishment in the world, and also of the Field museum, one of the city's chief monuments and institutions.

Miss Alice Carpenter, Miss Marjorie King, Miss Marion Warner, Miss Mary Meeker, Miss Frances Wood, Miss Ellen Thorne, Miss Frances Heyworth, Miss Emily Hamill, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Elizabeth Copeland are all of this noble order of the third degree Chicagoese, while Miss Joan Williams, Miss Katherine Trowbridge, Miss Janet Lawrence belong to a still higher order, those who can trace their Chicago ancestors back to great-grandparents.

Miss Williams' great-grandfather on her father's side was the late Judge John Dean Caton, one of the most distinguished jurists of his time, while on her mother's side her great-grandfather was Allan Pinkerton, head of the national secret service under President Lincoln. Miss Katherine Trowbridge's great-grandfather was the late Roswell Mason, mayor of Chicago at the time of the Chicago fire in 1871. Miss Janet Lawrence's maternal great-grandfather was the late F. H. Winston, well known in the business and social life of his time.

Handsomer and Handsomer.

This is by no means a comprehensive list of even the third and fourth degree order of debutantes, but wood pulp is still too expensive to print a complete list of the season's crop, which has already been published by the real authority, THE TRIBUNE'S society editor. I have omitted the Misses Carol Elting, Louise Rodgers, Margaret Boyden, Margaret MacCaughey, Jane Scriven, Elsa Bartholomay, Mary Parker, Anita Lihme, Elizabeth Morse, Virginia Taylor, Katherine Prest, Alice de Windt, Florence Addington, Barbara Dunham, Virginia Dennehy, Madeleine Childs, Rachel Foster, Louise Searles, Vera Anderson, Betty Fitts, and Ruth Channon because this column will need an addition to carry this imposing list, but if so be as you belong to some one of the many clans and sets into which Chicago is yearly getting more and more subdivided, you will have a chance to meet some or all of this, one of the finest, most ornamental crops of "buds" that have yet made a bow to society. Year by year, it is quite clear that we grow 'em handsomer and handsomer (if Mons. Coué will forgive the paraphrase.)

This Isn't the Half of Them.

In giving a fleeting glance at the coming winter events of note last Sunday I forgot to mention one of the most glittering, the Persian ball, which is to take place Dec. 6. It is being organized by the board of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, of which Mrs. Potter Palmer is president. And its profits will go to aid that excellent charity. It is sure to be a brilliant success if one can predict on the strength of the names some of the well known and experienced men and women who are organizing it.

Among them are the Mesdames John Borden, John A. Carpenter, Barney Goodspeed, George Higginson, and the Messrs. Potter Palmer, John A. Carpenter, John H. Winterbotham, and Rosecrans Baldwin. I've not given the half of them, but being marooned on the desert island that is Lake Forest in the latter days of autumn I am not in a position to find out more accurately the composition of this august company. However, there's lots of time to correct this between now and December.

Somewhat later in the winter the Alliance Francaise will give a "Bal Poudré." The date for this will be Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 13, 1923, and the place will be the Drake hotel. A bal poudré, as you undoubtedly know, is a ball where powdered hair or a fluffy white wig such as was worn in the time of Marie Antoinette, is the special feature of the costumes. The "Bal de Tête" given by the same association last winter was one of the features of the season. The proceeds from these balls go to the maintenance fund of the alliance. This society does much to promote interest in the study of French literature, language, and institutions.

Thrills in the Rain.

The steeplechase which was held at Lake Forest a week ago yesterday is already growing dim and becoming a part of the chronicles of the world that amuses itself, but it is not too late, I hope, to give a tribute to the good sport of those who took part in it in spite of a soaking rain. One of the thrilling moments of the afternoon was when the contestants in the women's half mile race came dashing up to the final goal with Miss Eleanor Bradley just a neck ahead of her nearest competitor, Mrs. William Swift. Miss Bradley rode astride, with a red kerchief binding her hair back from her forehead. Mrs. Swift rode on a side saddle and wore the conventional woman's habit and derby hat.

Both are first class horsewomen. Mrs. Swift's horse burst into a final spurt and to the onlookers it looked as if she was going to forge ahead of Miss Bradley, whose horse gave an impression of being "all in." Glancing back, and seeing the lessening distance between her and Mrs. Swift, Miss Bradley leaned low and forward on her horse's neck and, urging him with words and whip, inspired the final burst of speed which won her the race. It was a special proof of good riding, as she had never seen the animal until that day, he belonging to a local stable and being a recent importation.

"Sell a Box."

Mrs. Jacob Bauer, who has just moved into her new house in Astor street (an event which occupies the entire attention of most women) and who is usually one of the most active workers among the women in Republican ranks when, as now, an important political campaign is on, has abandoned both home and party to devote her whole time and attention to a final campaign to sell all the remaining opera boxes for the coming season. She has called a box committee meeting of the Friends of Opera for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Arts club and has also issued a call for help to the entire membership of this association and to the guarantors of the civic opera.

The clans are to meet Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock (with luncheon following) at the Arts club and form there a big committee of 100 (or more) to go out and dispose of all the rest of the seats and boxs. Her slogan is "Sell a box, or part of a box, a seat, or a book of coupons!" The last named will be sold in books of six or ten coupons. The coupons enable the owner to secure seats a day ahead of the rest of the world, thereby giving a decided advantage in the matter of choice.

It is to be hoped that there will be a quick response to the call for support of our opera. There are still many people who can afford boxes who are not on the roll of honor. It is possible that at the eleventh hour they will see the light (and the delight) and join the fashionable and highly ornamental throng that fills the Auditorium on grand opera nights.

Relationship of Men.

There is nothing in social life so brilliant as a crowded evening at a popular grand opera performance. It is the only opportunity that is presented when all the various elements that go to make up the world of society have a chance to meet together.

There are many who delight to decry "society" in the narrow meaning of the word. But on society depends the livelihood of thousands of human beings scattered all over the globe, from the diamond digger in Rhodesia, the ostrich farmer in the Argentine, the silk worm cultivator in Italy, to the fur trapper of Hudson's Bay, not to mention all the intermediaries who handle the dresses, jewels, furs, and feathers before they go to the adornment of the great ladies who, in their turn, adorn the front rows in the boxes and seats.

A successful grand opera performance is the result of a complicated and pretty tremendous organization of varied forces such as the mere onlooker can hardly imagine. There is nothing to equal it, unless it be the management of one of the big circuses which annually ramble about the country. And between the two, believe me, the management of a circus, with its combination of human beings and savage animals, is a more peaceful business than the direction of a numerous and varied grand opera troupe.

Well Known Citizens Active.

To return to the Friends of Opera and their efforts in behalf of our own company, the advisory committee of women is composed of Mesdames Jacob Baur, chairman; George Higginson, Arthur Meeker, Arthur Ryerson, Julius Rosenwald, and Russell Tyson. The business end of the opera is run by five of the best known citizens of the city—Samuel Insull, chairman; Stanley Field, L. B. Kuppenheimer, John J. Mitchell, and John G. Shedd.

This pillar of polite information has to chronicle still another change of residence of social importance: Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick have sold their charming house in North State street to James C. Hutchins and are going to join the colony in Lake View avenue for which Howard Shaw is building the fine and palatial apartment on that thoroughfare and Arlington place.

Among the new neighbors of the McCormicks will be the John T. McCutcheons, the Noble Judahs, and the Charles Edward Browns, who, with seven other families, will all be under the same roof, though each apartment is owned by its occupant, who has had the interior arrangement made to his or her satisfaction.

Prof. Leith Speaks Saturday.

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations is offering its members next Saturday what promises to be an exceedingly worth while talk from Prof. C. K. Leith, who occupies the chair of geology at the University of Wisconsin. His cubject will be "National Mineral Resources as a Cause of National Strength and of International Difficulties," a long title, but one that explains the contents and direction of the lecture. Little did the men who endured the unspeakable horrors of the western battle line think that the goal they were fighting for was not everlasting peace and brotherly love, but oil fields in Mesopotamia and mineral resources in distant lands.

During the war Prof. Leith was on the war committee of the United States shipping board, which supervised the importation of minerals into the country, an important question, and later he was a member of the American economic commission to the peace conference. The meeting will be at half past 12 (noon) at the Palmer house, when a luncheon will be served first.

Jacob M. Dickinson is president of this association; Mrs. James W. Morrisson, vice president; Francis R. Dickinson, secretary; Mrs. Edward M. Collier, executive secretary; Victor Elting, treasurer; William B. Hale, chairman of the executive committee; and George F. Porter, chairman of the program committee.

"Art, Dress, and Common Sense."

On Friday morning at 11 o'clock Frank Alvah Parsons, president of the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts, will speak in the crystal ballroom at the Blackstone, his subject being "Art, Dress, and Common Sense." He has come here under the auspices of the School of Domestic Arts and Science. This institution has already demonstrated its value to the community by the work it has done in making cookery and the serving of food a fine art.

It is now branching out to include in its curriculum the applied arts, which means sewing, weaving, tapestry making, and similar handwork. Already its student enlistment for the season is larger than ever before.

Through an error, not on the part of this column, a mistake was made last week in the announcement made herein of Miss Jeanne de Mare's musical talks. The first one will be at the residence of Mrs. William R. Linn, when the subject will be "Claude Debussy." The second one will be at the residence of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick; topic, "The Followers of César Franck and Gabriel Faure," and the third one will be at Mrs. John Borden's; theme, "Present Day Tendencies in Music."

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

the lectures arranged for them. Louis Anspacher's second lecture on "Art and Internationalism" will be at the Playhouse tomorrow afternoon. It is the second of two lectures arranged for the benefit of the Chicago League of Hard of Hearing by Mrs. Robert B. Dickinson.

Next Thursday morning at the Hotel La Salle the fourth season of the women's free class on finance will open its season with an address from David Forgan on "The Present Financial Situation."

Lecturers and newspapers would better make hay while the sun shines. Soon a widespread use of radio service will take the place of all other forms of dissemination of news or information. We are persuaded of this after meeting M. Saranoff at dinner last Monday evening. He is a New Yorker and is at the head of the radio service in this country. He explained to a well filled, therefore more understanding, dinner company something of the nature and possibilities of radio. If those who come after us have any angle of life not entirely under the domination of radio it won't be because of the inability of this newly discovered source of power to penetrate our inmost souls. I'm glad I was born in the dark ages. Too much light and enlightenment is bound to make existence complicated and burdensome.

The Queen Anne
A Life Time Possession

WHEN you buy the Queen Anne you are not buying a phonograph that will be out-of-date in a few years. The Queen Anne Sonora represents the utmost in present-day production of phonograph tone quality. It is far in advance of other makes in this respect.

Many believe the Queen Anne to be unsurpassed in tone by even the more expensive Sonora models—the extra cost of which is based largely on exclusive designs, extra long running motors, convenient attachments and refinements.

The Queen Anne is to phonographs what the Grand piano is to the upright—the touring car to the runabout—the hall chime clock to the mantel clock. There are many other Sonoras to suit the more modest or the more luxurious taste.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Alumnae of Four Colleges to Hold "Petticoat Lane"

By Kate Webber.

THE North Shore alumnae of Goucher, Vassar, Wellesley, and Wells colleges will hold a huge benefit for the endowment funds of their respective colleges on the afternoons and evenings of Nov. 10 and 11 at the Evanston country club. The feature committee has announced the plans for this affair, which is to be an up-to-date replica of the famous Petticoat lane of London.

It is said of this quaint market place in London's east end, that one may buy there anything from a wedding suit to a dried herring. While the committee does not claim quite as much for their version of the well known street, they are striving to embody in a logical fashion all the merry making, the cheer, and savory festivities of old England in this Yuletide season.

The country club will be divided into a number of booths, each named appropriately from English derivations and containing articles of every sort. To satisfy the sweet tooth, Mrs. Ralph Renwick will preside under the boughs of the "Sugar Plum Tree," where the gingerbread dog and the chocolate cat will hold sway with old English and modern sweets.

From Russia, Italy, China, France, and Belgium comes a wealth of lovely treasures which Mrs. Albert C. Koch will offer for sale at the "Golden Galleon." "The Hobby Horse," a favorite comedy character in old English fairs, has given the name to the shop full of children's toys and clothes conducted by Mrs. Bruce MacLeish. A gift shop, in charge of Mrs. Ralph C. Brown, has been named the "Four Holly Wreaths," symbolic of the four colleges uniting in this undertaking.

The "Gode Wyf's Cupboard" will be a timely pre-holiday display of jams, jellies, pickles, cakes, plum puddings, and pies, presided over by Mrs. Edmund D. Soper. A necessary adjunct for an English street will be the bookstall run by Mrs. Peirce C. Ward. There will be unusual Italian prints and Christmas cards to complete the stock at "The Sign of the Bookaneers."

Mrs. Scott Brown will run the "White Swan Tavern," serving a typically English supper with some modern touches and also an attractive menu for afternoon tea.

As added attractions, the Mummers of Petticoat Lane will present afternoon and evening performances under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Stanwood, and Mrs. Horace L. Dawson will supervise public dancing. To heighten the charm of color and atmosphere, itinerant venders will circulate among the spectators crying the wares from the various stalls.

Directly responsible for the unique plans for the mammoth affair are Mrs. Frank C. Dakin and Mrs. Robert Wyness Millar. Mrs. George B. Dryden and Mrs. Robert S. De Golyer of Evanston are the two general chairmen of the executive committee. Others on the committee are Mrs. Henry S. Gilbertson, secretary; Mrs. Philip P. Merrill, treasurer, and Mrs. Frank W. Kingsley, chairman of publicity.

Mrs. Frank C. Dakin, assisted by Mrs. Robert W. Millar, Mrs. Robert S. De Golyer, Mrs. George B. Dryden, Mrs. Henry S. Gilbertson, Mrs. Philip P. Merrill, and Mrs. Frank W. Kingsley, is in charge of a unique benefit to be held on Nov. 10 and 11 at the Evanston Country club to help swell the endowment funds pledged by the north shore alumnæ of Goucher, Vassar, Wells, and Wellesley colleges.

Members of the Vassar Alumnæ Association of Chicago will present Irene Castle and her company of Moscow artists on the evening of Nov. 14 at Orchestra hall. The proceeds will be used to complete the Illinois pledge to the Vassar salary endowment fund. Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham Jr. is general chairman of arrangements.

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

AUTO SUGGESTION.

O, don't you remember away back when
Little children and bearded men,
Fragile ladies and sturdy brats,
Puppy dogs and pussy cats
Rode their bicycles all around
And 'round and 'round and 'round and 'round?

And they were considered so blooming fleet,
Nobody dared to cross the street,
For they ran over ladies and bearded men,
Over and over and over again,
And all were stunned and stood aghast
To see those bicycles go so fast.

And now I dodge the snorting bus
At forty-eight miles an hour, plus.
And if a poor bicycle staggers near
I step on the thing with a sneerful sneer,
And should it collide with me, unawares,
It has to be sent to the shop for repairs.

O, a super man I will be bye-'n-bye,
Swift of foot and keen of eye,
And the time is coming—you mark my word—
When a bump by a flivver will seem absurd,
For every day in every way
I'm getting better and better (Coué).

Mrs. Ann Haykins of Sheffield, England, who recently celebrated her 103d birthday by riding in a motor car for the first time, attributes her longevity to plain living. She also thinks that smoking tobacco has something to do with it, for she has smoked a pipe for the last seventy-six years.

RUTH ST. DENIS AND ISADORA DUNCAN TO DANCE HERE THIS WEEK

plenty of music paper, he'll wearily work all day on one or two formulas until sick of them, then use another, always basing his scheme on the popular [illegible] of the hour. This heartless, mechanical piffle is what these set-your-poem-to-music grinders sell at a good profit to their ignorant victims. We have positive evidence of the same music being sent to different victims in different states at the same time."

One New Yorker, says the statement, in 1920 entered his own name in the copyright records at Washington as composer of 1,948 songs. This was more than the copyright entries during the same period for every class of publication, vocal, instrumental, choral, band, orchestra, and books of four of the largest publishers of high class and educational music in America. Another "composer," a Chicagoan, reached a total of 1,676 in the same year, but his prolific output has since been checked by the postal authorities. Incidentally, newspaper reports on the arrest of the concern with which this man was connected, say that $1,000,000 was cleaned up by it in three years.

The leaflet concludes with "What the Song Writer Should Know." It says:

"1. Anything can be set to music of some sort, from the cheapest jingle to the most wonderful poem.

"2. Music written to order is, as a rule, valueless and is rarely, if ever, actually published.

"3. Professional copies, so-called, are worthless to the legitimate music publisher, and promptly go into his waste basket.

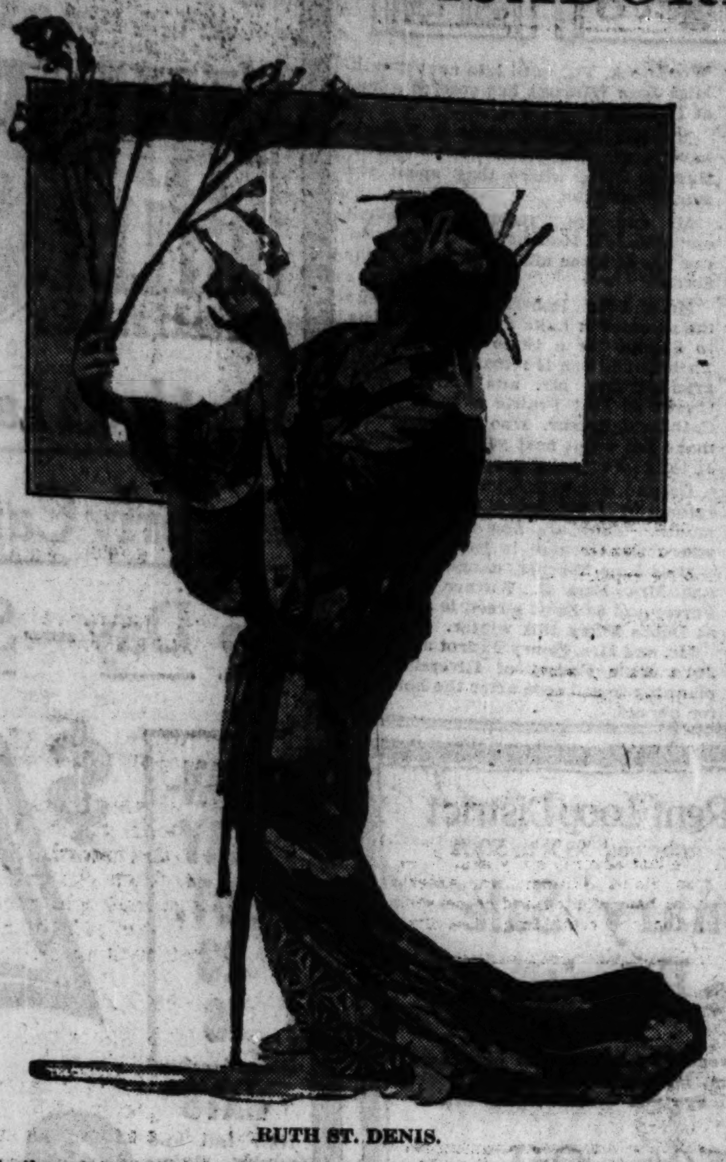
"4. Printing is not publishing.

"5. No high class, genuine music publisher takes orders for publishing or charges a composer for publishing. They only accept music they are willing to invest in, they themselves assuming all the risk and expense of publishing, besides paying the composer for his work either in cash or royalties.

"6. Genuine publishers copyright their publications at their own expense in their own firm names, and it is not only unnecessary to copyright manuscripts when dealing with honorable concerns but better not to do so.

"7. What are termed 'hits' are rare and the statement regarding their earnings are greatly exaggerated."

In view of the many letters sent to this desk regarding popular music, the warning would seem to be timely.



RUTH ST. DENIS.

The first soloist of the Symphony season will appear this week. He is Alfred Wallenstein, the new principal cellist of the orchestra, and he will play the Saint-Saëns Concerto in A Minor. Mr. Stock will conduct Vaughan Williams' "A London Symphony," one of last season's most interesting novelties; also Elgar's overture, "In the South," which has not been heard for nine years, and Glazounow's Symphonic Tableau, "The Kremlin," which has been silent for fourteen.

Margaret Lamar, the soloist at the Chicago Theater Symphony concert this noon, sang the principal part in "The Rose Girl" when that piece was given at the La Salle theater last February. She also counts grand opera among her experiences, having sung the rôles of Yniold in "Pelleas and Melisande," Dmitri in "Fedora," and others one season when the late Cleofonte Campanini took the Chicago Opera to the Lexington theater in New York. Miss Lamar will sing today a new art song composed for soprano and small orchestra. It is by Theodore Stearns.

Today's Music.

The recitals scheduled for this afternoon have their own points of interest. Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan opera, will make his first Chicago appearance at the Auditorium. He will be assisted by Gladys Axman, soprano, of the same organization, and there will be many arias and songs on the program. Elena Gerhardt, a lieder singer of considerable renown some years ago, is returning to the Studebaker after an absence of nearly eight years. Mischa Elman, who used to give many violin recitals here, has been touring the world for two seasons, and will be at Orchestra hall. The Illinois announces a pair of newcomers, William Wylie, tenor, who was a musical director in the Italian army during the war, and Mary Louise Gale, violinist, winner of the Fontainebleau (France) prize for violin in competition with eighty-five other Americans.

A passing comment in this column last Sunday, to the effect that "Sniegurotchka" was a new spelling of the Russian opera to be given at the Auditorium this winter, evokes a plaintive but effective protest from the opera company's publicity office. That industrious department holds that "Sniegurotchka" is correct, and only seems new because it is correct. This column's comment was made because almost invariably four different people will spell a Russian name four different ways, and thus an interesting collection can be made. Witness Tschaikowsky, Tschaikoffsky, Tschaikovsky, and Chaikofski, all referring to the same composer. However, "Sniegurotchka" will be considered officially correct until further notice, at least during the present operatic régime. If you want to rehearse pronouncing it, elide the i into low audibility, accent the second syllable, and call it "goor."

A new Chicago singer will appear at Fine Arts Recital hall Thursday night in the person of Ilse Forster. She has made a name in the east as a singer of children's songs, both in the New York Children's theater and over the radio. Philip Warner, pianist, will be with her on the program.

The Y. W. C. A. Choral club, founded last season under the chairmanship of Mrs. Archibald Freer, is taking up its activities again with a membership of sixty. Gilbert Wilson directs them every Thursday night at the central branch, 59 East Monroe street, and every business woman whose voice meets the test is eligible, whether or not she is a member of the Y. W. C. A. Courses are also offered in music diction by Christina Tomlins and in musical appreciation by Lyravine Votaw.

McVicker's theater in its new guise, now announced to open on Thursday, will have as one of its first features the Tartar dance from "Prince Igor," in which Adolph Bolm and his associates created frantic whirlwinds of color and movement a few years ago when he presented it at the Auditorium with the Diaghileff Ballet Russe. He is announced as the director of the scene, but Konstantin Kobeleff, his associate and a former member of the Pavlowa Ballet, will do the dance in which he used to appear. The leading women dancers will be Amata Grassi, who was with Pavlowa three years in South America, and Franklin Crawford, a Seattle girl. There will be a symphony orchestra directed by H. Leopold Spitalny.

Mary McCormic, and not Thomas Chalmers, will give the first recital of Edna Richardson Sollitt's series at Kimball hall Nov. 7. Mr. Chalmers has canceled his tour, giving illness as the reason. Miss McCormic has been continuing her musical studies in Europe this summer.

Eleanor Spencer, the American pianist, who has been concertising in Europe the last two seasons, has been engaged by Willem Mengelberg for the Cesar Franck festival, to be given by him and his orchestra, the Amsterdam Concertgebau, at Amsterdam and The Hague, Dec. 7 and 8, in commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of the composer's birth. Miss Spencer will play the Symphonic Variations in both cities.

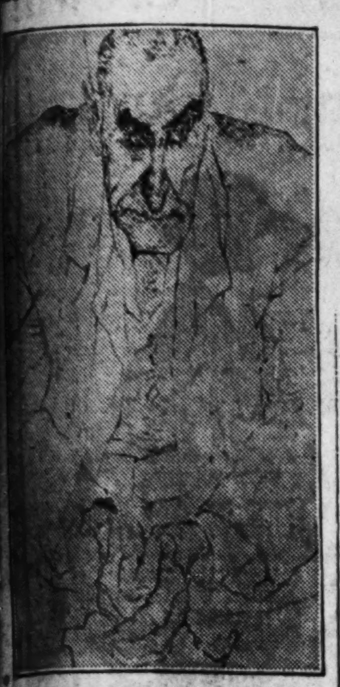
ART AND ARTISTS

Commercial Arts Classes Overtax Institute Capacity

By Eleanor Jewett.

THIS week a number of items, unconnected in a certain sense and yet each of sufficient interest to be set down in due order, apparently hold the place of honor in the world of art. Possibly the first in importance—at all events the one the most stressed by officials of the Art institute—is that which refers to the surprising development of the institute art school.



"Jacobus Alyn," by Jules de Bruycker of Ghent, an etcher whose exhibition of unusual prints is creating much interest in the print room of the Art institute. The etchings will remain on view for another few weeks.

The school began its forty-third year last week under unusually auspicious circumstances. Much of the vastly increased interest in the work is attributed to the expanded teaching of the arts employed in industry. In addition to regular academic courses, students may now study practical weaving, pottery, toy and jewelry making, printing, interior decorating, and costume designing. The practical application of these artisan trades and the prospect of the early teaching of more of the arts and crafts have given the institute a wider appeal than it ever possessed before.

Students began registering at the school as soon as it was possible to do so and in a short time every locker was taken, and late arrivals had to content themselves with check room accommodations. All facilities for caring for first year students were quickly exhausted, and late applications were necessarily declined, the same being true of the normal department. The percentage of old students returning is the heaviest ever known. Another significant fact is the great number of students who have applied for employment to enable them to work their way through the school.

The registration, on Oct. 14, totaled approximately 2,200, the largest ever known at this date, indicating that the number of students for the year would probably pass the 3,500 mark. For the first time in the history of the institute the number of men exceeds the number of women students. The men form a more than 15 per cent majority over the women. Even if there were no federal board students there would still be a predominance of men, as the 106 great war veterans account for but little more than two-thirds of this majority.

Comparatively few of the students are from homes of wealth. Among the young women are teachers, clerks, and governesses, while among the men are soldiers, and here and there a barber, a carpenter, or a blacksmith.

Carl N. Werntz, director of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, lectured on Friday before the Indiana state teachers' convention at Indianapolis. His subject was "Modern Tendencies in Art Teaching."

Mr. and Mrs. Werntz are leaving this week for the east, where Mr. Werntz is having an exhibition of thirty paintings of the Catskills at Lake Mohonk, N. Y.

Clarence O. Woodbury, a former student of the Academy of Fine Arts, has just returned from London, where he has been the last year and a half. During that time he won a five year scholarship in the London Royal academy. He intends to take up the scholarship in the near future. Russell Patterson, another Academy of Fine Arts student, has recently returned from two years abroad, the most of which time was spent in Paris, painting with Harry Lachman.

The Chicago Camera club is starting the new season with much enthusiasm and a well planned program of interesting events. Wednesday evening an autochrome lecture by Dr. George C. Poundstone on "Here and There in Nature's Garden" is offered. This promises to be a rarely beautiful lecture, as the colored slides made by Dr. Poundstone are really lovely in their coloring and their composition.

The officers for the year of the Camera club are Raymond Trowbridge, president; Arthur E. Anderson, vice president; Frank W. Hatton, secretary, and Nels Temte, treasurer.

George Elmer Browne, whose work is familiar to many of us, spent the summer months conducting a class of artists and students on a sketching tour through France, Spain, and Morocco. He expects to sail from Gibraltar for New York early in November. His class has done much excellent work and return well pleased with the trip and themselves. Probably a number of the paintings that have been executed will be shown here some time this winter. Among the Chicago artists are Mrs. Mary H. Wicker, Donald Wetherstine of Peoria, who began his studies at the Art institute, and another former Art institute pupil, Mrs. Janet Reid Thompson.

If you have read Carl Van Vechten's novel, "Peter Whiffle," you will be interested in the futurist painting called "The Absence of Edith Dale," by Andrew Dasburg, that has been on exhibition for a little time past in the window of a downtown bookstore. It makes the story of Peter Whiffle remarkably realistic, imposing upon one the conviction that as Edith Dale and the painter Dasburg were really of the flesh, why could not Whiffle also be a blood creature, not alone a figment of Van Vechten's imagination.

An innovation in the method of selecting exhibits for the anticipated show of American paintings and sculpture that will be held at the Art institute beginning Nov. 2, will be attempted this year. Instead of only one jury meeting in Chicago there will be an auxiliary jury composed of members of the regular jury, John C. Johansen, H. Dudley Murphy, and George Sotter, which will meet in New York. This will enable many young painters of the east to have their work passed upon without going to the trouble and expense of shipping their canvases to Chicago.

Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, has gone east to supervise the work and also to gather exhibition material for the prospective exhibit of the Art institute alumni, which is scheduled to open Dec. 15. These alumni exhibitions are spaced at five year periods and this is only the second to be held. It will be an ambitious affair, destined to arouse wide interest, for it will include not only paintings and sculpture but examples of every branch and side issue of industrial art.

In room 250 of the Art institute is a unique collection of eleven original pieces of sculpture, mostly in marble, which were unearthed in various parts of Europe, Africa, and Asia Minor. It will remain on view but a few weeks longer. It is greatly hoped that some if not all of the pieces will be acquired for the permanent collection of the institute. While the museum has many reproductions of Greek, Roman, and Egyptian sculpture, it is sadly lacking in originals.

Among the pieces in the exhibit is a head, carved in Egyptian limestone and discovered in lower Egypt, said to be a portrait of Cleopatra. It is the work of an artist of the Ptolemaic period. Another excellent piece of modeling is seen in the sculptured head of Augustus Cæsar. And still a third, aside from a torso so perfect it makes you despair of modern art, is the marble head of a Greek philosopher who lived 2,600 years ago.

The last lecture on "Early American Paintings" by John Hill Morgan of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts will be given Tuesday afternoon in Fullerton hall.

Under the auspices of the School of Domestic Arts and Science, Frank A. Parsons will lecture on "The Art of Common Sense in Dress" at the Blackstone, Oct. 27.

In Fullerton hall of the Art institute on Oct. 27 Lorado Taft will speak on "Contemporary French Sculpture."

Prof. Stella Skinner will lecture on "The Gothic Period in Dwellings and Furnishings" in Fullerton hall Oct. 31.

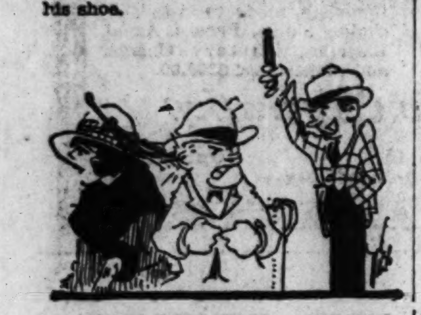
THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. Address Best Joke Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Once Too Often.

As the oats on her hat nodded and trembled, they persistently tickled the ear of the man seated next to her. He stood it for some time; then he took a huge pocketknife out of his pocket and began to sharpen it on the sole of his shoe.



"What are you going to d-d-do?" cried the girl.

"O, don't you worry, miss," said the man, testing the edge of the blade on his thumb, "but the next time them oats get in my ear there is going to be a harvest." H. F.

Paid in Advance.

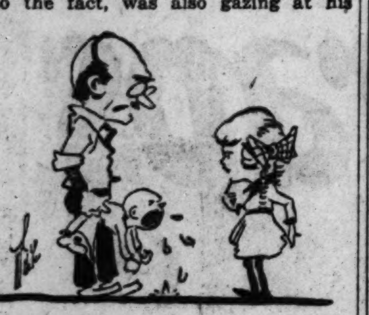
An autoist, who had the habit of driving somewhat faster than the law allowed was haled before a local justice, who imposed a fine of $15. The autoist drew out a roll of bills and laid a sum of money on the desk, and started to leave the room.

"Here," the justice called. "There is $30 here."

"That's all right—keep it. I am going out of town faster than I came in." N. V. K.

It Comes and Goes.

A little girl was regarding with critical eye her newly arrived baby brother. The proud father, who was decidedly bald and hated any reference to the fact, was also gazing at his son and heir.



"Brother hasn't any hair," said the little girl.

"It'll grow beautifully later on," replied the nurse.

"But hasn't daddy's been a long time starting?" exclaimed the little girl. W. J.

Placing the Blame.

The foreman of a roundhouse was "breaking in" a new helper. After telling the new man to put a certain engine in the roundhouse, he watched him run the engine partly in, then back out, just missing another engine; in again and clear through the other wall of the house.

Said the foreman: "Well, why don't you put the engine in?"

"Why didn't you shut the door when I had it in," was the answer. V. M.

THE SOFTEST SPOT

By Guy Lee.

The journey through life's a circuitous route,
  And brambles be-spatter the highway;
It is uphill and rocky—rough going throughout;
  Illusions mark each tempting byway
And call you incessantly—urge you to stop,
  But twistings and turnings be-knot 'em.
It's exceedingly hard to arrive at the top,
  But there's plenty of room at the bottom.

It's a rarefied air up among the elect,
  But the climb isn't easy to handle;
The reward's hunkydory, but tough to collect,
  And the game's scarcely worthy the candle.
Fame and wealth may be sweet, for I've often heard so
  From the fortunate fellers who got 'em;
But I think, on the whole, I'm contented to know
  That there's plenty of room at the bottom.

There are many down here, but the landscape's widespread,
  And the folks are all chummy and humble;
When you're stuck in the mud you're not dizzy of head,
  And you stand in no fear of a tumble.
The people who capture the happiness prize
  Let not an ambition besot 'em;
So the best I can do is to put you all wise
  That there's plenty of room at the bottom.

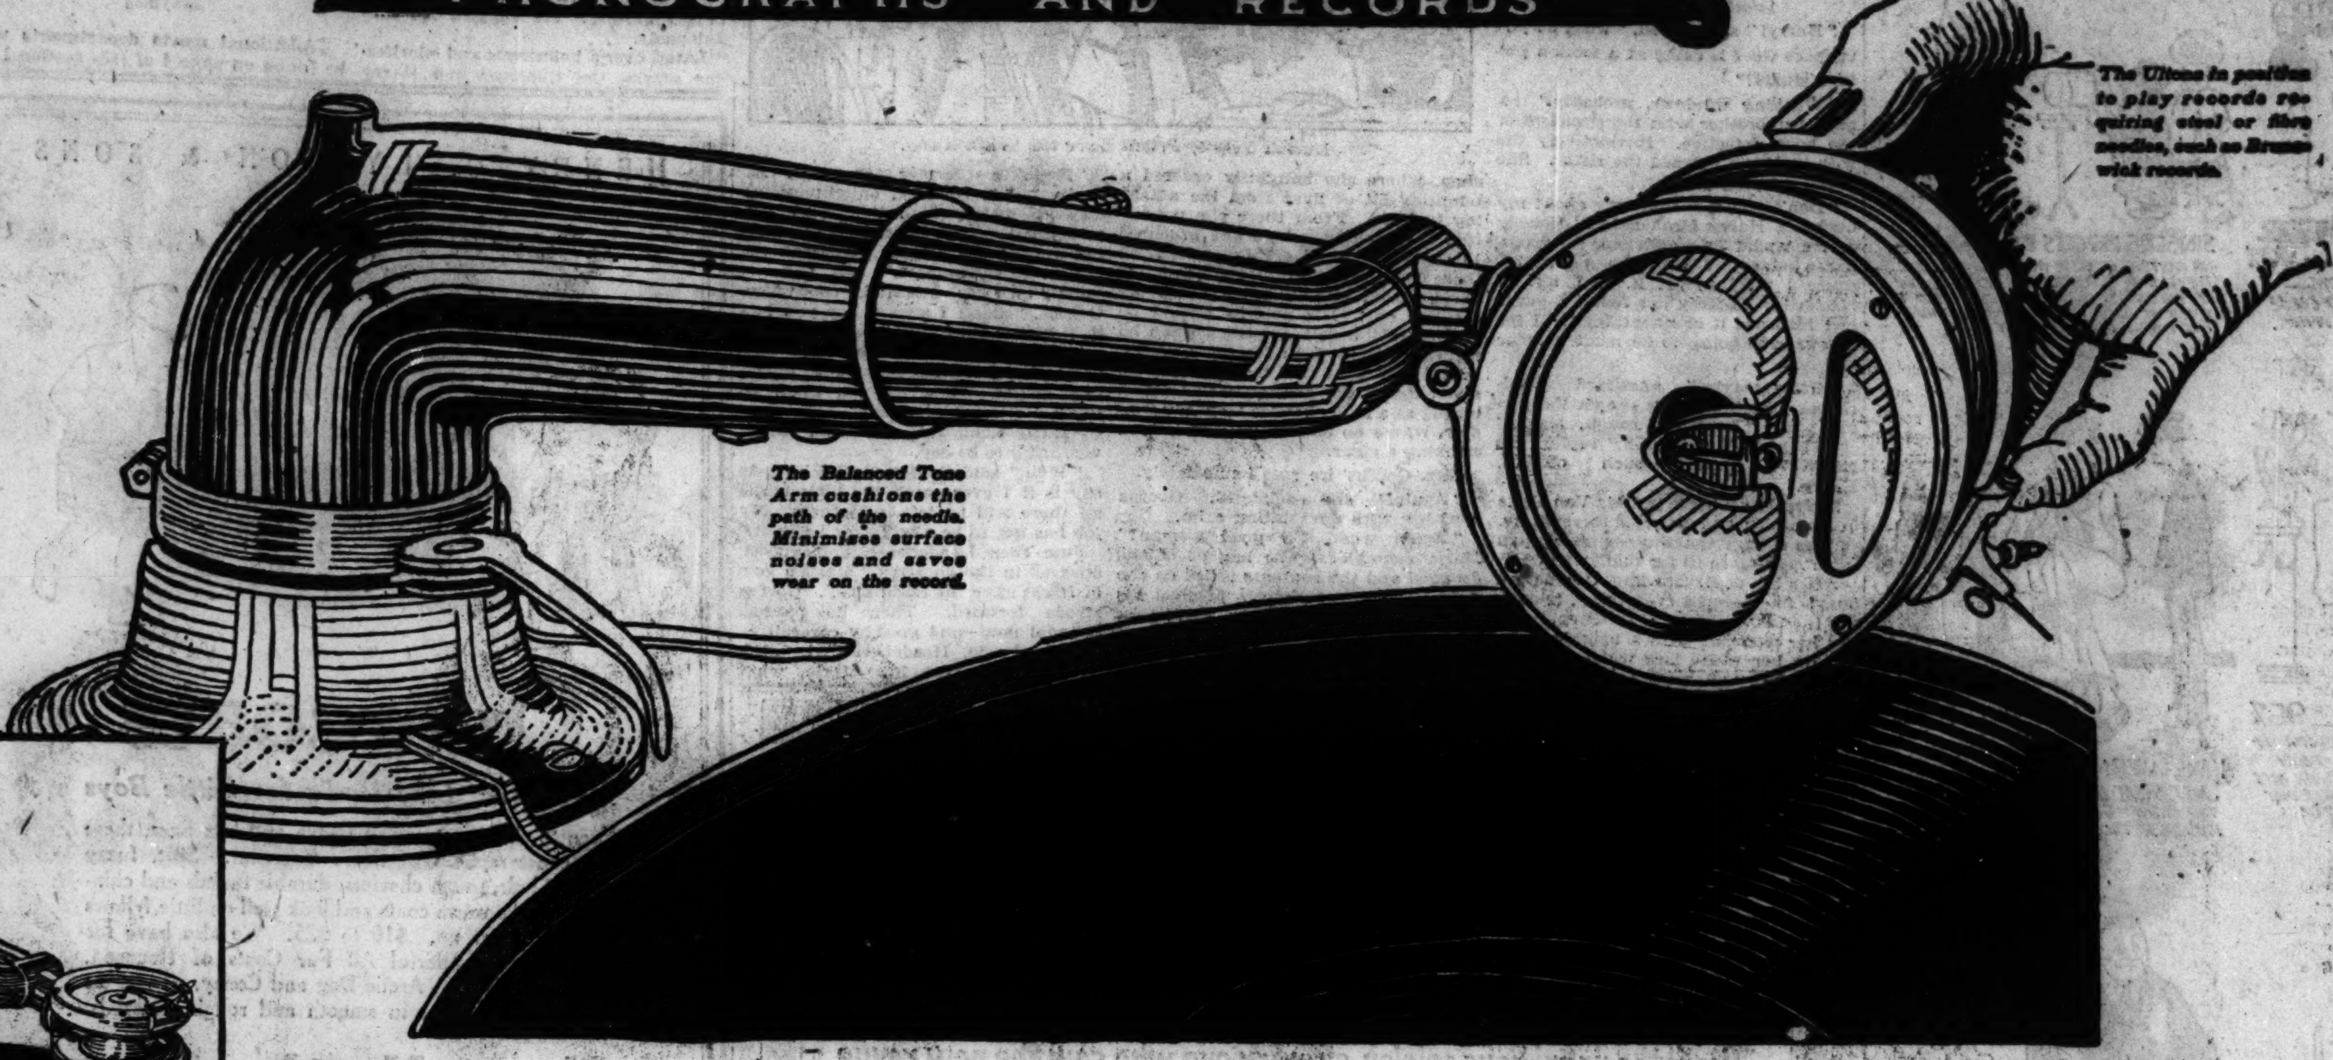
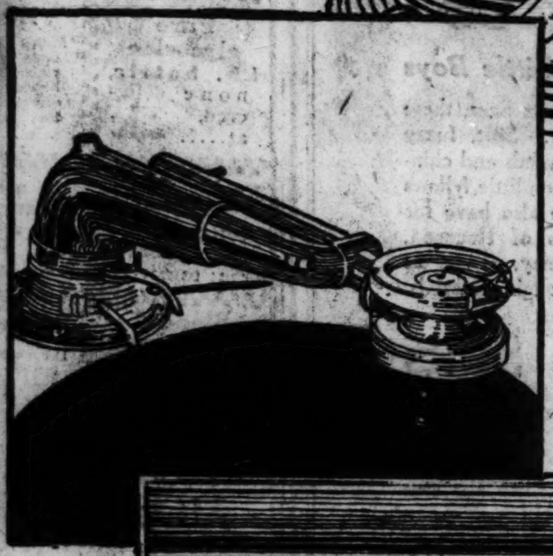
PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS



The Ultona in position to play records requiring steel or fibre needles, such as Brunswick records.

The Balanced Tone Arm cushions the path of the needle. Minimizes surface noises and saves wear on the record.



The Ultona in position to play records requiring genuine diamond point.

Plays All Records Made

Without Using Attachments

Make This Test of Any Phonograph

Will the phonograph you buy properly play any record, without the bother of putting on and taking off attachments when you change from one type of record to another? If it will, it must be a Brunswick, for on no other phonograph is this possible.

But the Brunswick Ultona does more than give you this convenience—advantage. And it does more than bring all the world's best recorded music into your home.

By reason of its Balanced Tone Arm it is sensitive enough to bring out the most minute tone-refinements—the slightest vibration of the violin string, the faintest inflection of the human voice.

Tones are sweet and clear, and amazing in their fidelity. Enunciation—the difficulty with which phonograph music has always contended—is noticeably clear on The Brunswick.

No Metal in the Tone Chamber

The Brunswick Oval All-Wool Tone Amplifier is oval in shape—to approximate the human mouth and throat. Absolutely no metal is used. Hence, grateful absence of any tinny, metallic accompaniment in Brunswick music.

Other desirable Brunswick refinements are—the Brunswick (natural way) Tone Modifier—the Brunswick Positive Automatic Stop—the Automatically Balanced Top—the Brunswick Silent Motor. All have a bearing on the perfection of the modern phonograph.

Society Ladies Adopt New Hair Curling Method

Since the introduction of the Silmerine method in this country, it has become quite "the proper thing" among society women, who have readily adopted it in place of the destructive curling iron. The waves and curls acquired by the new method are far more natural in appearance, and the hair of course is glossier and prettier than could be if the life were cooked out of it.

The liquid is pleasant to use, being neither greasy nor sticky. It is a simple thing to apply with a clean tooth brush before doing up the hair. The lovely wavy effect in evidence in about three hours is all that one could wish for, whether the hair be long or bobbed. It costs little to use liquid Silmerine, as a few ounces from the druggist will keep the hair in curl for weeks.

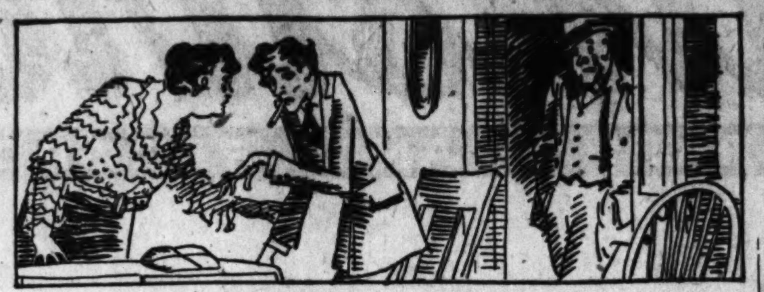
A STAR AT LARGE . . . .

By MAE TINEE

INSTALLMENT V.

(Unless thoroughly appreciated, every installment threatens to be the last.)



Maria's Yelp of Fright Gave the Truth Away.

WHEN Harry Headcheese returned with his report, Maria was, as the saying goes, knocked all of tremble.

"Harry!" she gasped, "what do you suppose Goof is doing at a motion picture studio?"

"Washing windows, probably," replied her brother with the cynicism of the born detective. Instinctively the wife in Maria downed the sister. She seized a frying pan.

"Don't you talk that way about my husband, Harry Headcheese. Nobody ever got paid $25 in advance for washing windows. I know he got it, because I tried to lift it. No, sir! I betcha my Godfrey has found a purse and returned it or something, and for a reward is going to be made a actor of."

"Quite maybe," answered Headcheese placatingly, his eye on the frying pan. "Don't get rough, Maria."

"Then don't get fresh," replied his sister. "Good-by—much obliged, Harry."

Harry Headcheese put his Van Dyke in his pocket and departed sorrowfully. It was always the way—a frying pan (with nothing in it) for thanks!

After his departure Mrs. Goofus got busy! She scoured everything, including the twins and herself. Then, parking her offspring with a neighbor, she put on her white lace waist and magenta skirt and went to the butcher shop, where she haughtily ordered a tempting bit of liver from the admiring butcher. From there she patronized the grocery, where she procured 10 cents' worth of dry onions. With these delicacies she returned home. If her husband was an actor, he should eat like one. His nostrils should be greeted with a delicious smell when he returned weary from his day's labors.

The first sight that met her eyes as she entered the kitchen was Goofus, sitting at a safe distance from the window, where no creditor could see him, smoking a cigar.

Mrs. Goofus' ire rose immediately.

"Again!" she exclaimed. Goofus eyed her with devastating calm.

"Again what, my good woman?" Maria crumpled. The bag of onions dropped and the contents rolled on the floor. Godfrey delicately pinched his nostrils together with the hand that wore the near diamond.

"Was you canned, Goof?" she asked, weakly.

"Re-takes of former scenes were necessary," said Godfrey, enlighteningly, "Barkis merely wished a tryout this morning, anyway. It developed amazing well, amazing well. Tomorrow the real grind commences."

"My own dear husband," cooed Mrs. Goofus, "didn't I always say you had it in you to be a star!"

"Maria Goofus," thundered her husband, rising to what seemed an appalling height, "how do you know so much about my business?"

"Little birdie told me," said Maria, venturing to be coy.

"Well," said Goofus, "all I have to say is if I ever catch the little birdie all there will be left is feathers. My job has got to be a secret or I lose it!"

Just then Headcheese, undisguised, apeared in the doorway. Maria's yelp of fright gave the truth away. Goofus strode forward. Then he paused. Scandal now—and good-by career!

"Howdy do, Headcheese," he said. "Come in! Come in! Maria, what about an early dinner? What you got for dinner?"

"Liver and onions," announced Maria, proudly.

"You and Headcheese can eat the onions. Never no more for me. I sacrifice pleasure to duty from now on."

"What did I tell you?" asked Maria of her brother. He wiggled his ears dubiously.

Later, over a bounteous and odoriferous repast, the Goofuses and Harry Headcheese whispered eagerly while the Goofus twins, unnoticed, tied their mamma to the chair by her apron strings and fastened their Uncle Harry to the alarm clock on the table by a long cord.

Everybody was radiantly happy.

Why the Danger of "Secret" Diseases Lies in their Secrecy

WHEN, a generation or so ago, medical science began in earnest its fight against smallpox, there was no thought of secrecy. Indeed, why should there have been? It was recognized as purely a medical problem and treated as such. Education, open discussion, vaccination—all these and other factors played important parts in bringing the disease under control until today it has been virtually eliminated in civilized communities.

The same with yellow fever. Typhoid is going. The fight against tuberculosis still wages—and signs are not lacking that Science is on the verge of victory—that some day the great White Plague will be a thing of the past.

Medical Science has long known that the twin venereal or "social" diseases exact a far greater average yearly death toll than tuberculosis, or than any other single disease.

Why? They are not incurable. They do not present any baffling mysteries to modern medical science. Why, then, do these scourges still thrive with hardly any perceptible diminishment?

One word answers the question—"Secrecy." For too long has the public attitude been one of maintaining silence—a state of mind which accepts abhorrent conditions passively and with the thought that they are necessary evils and not to be talked about.

Secrecy—silence—the soft pedal—the public s-s-h—yes! And that is the very reason why countless thousands of victims of venereal diseases have given up their lives; why other countless thousands are on crutches, in insane asylums, in hospital surgical wards, are stumbling through life blind from birth. For in secrecy has always lain the real danger of these so-called "secret diseases."

Not until the public conscience has been awakened—public opinion crystallized—public action intelligently directed—can any real headway be made against these scourges.

Such was the belief of the broad-minded, public spirited Chicago citizens whose names appear in this advertisement.

With that thought uppermost in mind they organized the Public Health Institute. Through this agency they proposed to bring this entire subject into the open, issue a warning against the dangers of secrecy—and its equally dangerous offspring, quackery—and fight "social" diseases to a finish according to the most approved scientific methods, both preventively and curatively.

This campaign of enlightenment, education, enlistment of public co-operation and of practical measures adopted for the prevention and cure of "social" diseases has been consistently carried forward by the Public Health Institute for more than two years.

From the very conception of the idea of the Public Health Institute it was recognized that it should necessarily be operated on broad lines. Effective combat against venereal infection should lose sight of financial gain. Treatment facilities, especially, should be easily available to the infected person regardless of his or her financial condition.

The Public Health Institute turns no one away for immediate lack of money. However, the purpose is not to maintain it as a charitable project, but on a basis that will enable it to be self-supporting in the conduct and expansion of its services. Consistent with this aim the fees are made as low as possible.

No one need feel the slightest hesitancy in coming to the Institute. The utmost possible privacy is assured. Kindly, sympathetic physicians make a most thorough examination and exhaustive diagnosis of each case; and every diagnosis is verified by exact chemical, bacteriological and serological tests conducted in its own laboratory, the most completely equipped in America for that purpose.

The treatment prescribed and administered in each case is the most advanced and successful that medical science affords. The utmost confidence can be placed in the treatment if the patient will but follow the advice of the Institute's physicians.

At the Public Health Institute there are two distinct departments—one for men and, on a different floor, one for women and children where trained nurses are in constant attendance to minister to the increased comfort of the patient.

* * *

Again let it be understood that "secret" diseases have visited their untold misery upon the human race under cover of darkness and ignorance. The forces now engaged in this work of eradication have brought the enemy from cover.

In order that the ground already gained may not be lost, in order to go ahead with assurance of full accomplishment, hearty co-operation on the part of the public is needed.

It is sought—and it is believed it will be found—in the hearty support of every right-minded man and woman in Chicago.

Employers can help in the good work of the Public Health Institute and add to the efficiency of their working forces by letting their employes know the facts about venereal disease and the service of this Institute. On request we supply employers with placards for posting in proper places, also literature for distribution among employes.

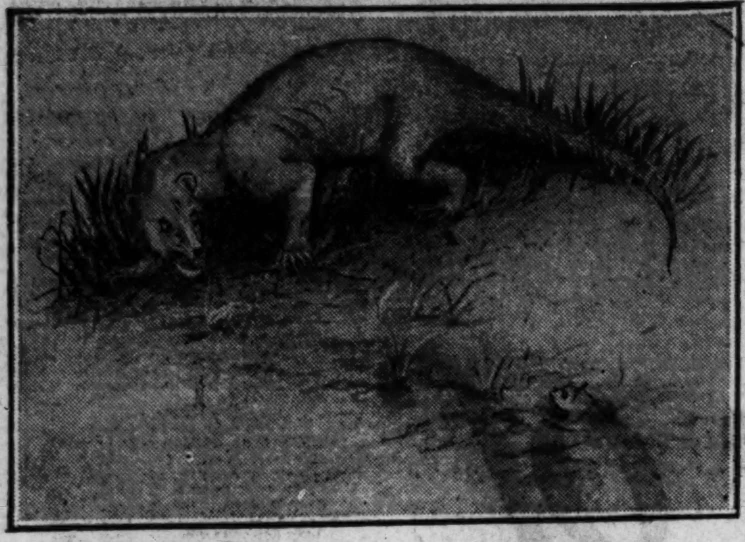
GEOLOGY



Patriofelis was an animal as large a s a jaguar.

HIS RACE STILL LIVES.

By S. F. Maxwell.

AFTER the age of reptiles was over the world lay almost tenantless. For a half million years no new forms arose. The nightmare of the rule of dragons was past and a new day was at hand. But the world was exhausted. The old tyrants had done their work thoroughly; they had hunted almost to extermination every mammal that they chanced upon.

For many ages the mammals, including the ancestors of man, had been here, but so terrible were those centuries that they made no advance at all in body size. Instead, all the energy they could command was put to building brains. The stupidest mammal is smart compared with a reptile, for the latter seldom have even sense enough to come in out of the cold.

Dinosaurs killed themselves. It is a rule of nature that every creature must have some other creature to destroy it. Dinosaurs sought to evade this law. They grew huge and fierce; they developed armor like a war tank; they hid their colossal bulks in dank swamps, and for the moment it looked as though they had defied nature. It seemed that there was no creature powerful enough to bring them low.

They fooled themselves with vain delusions; they themselves were their worst enemies. They ate up all their available food supply, living only for today and giving no heed for the morrow. They died, but in their dying quest for food they almost finished us.

When the mammals finally had the world to themselves and their old enemies were gone to stay, the evolution began which was to people the world as it is today. Three stocks of mammals separated — those with hoofs, those with nails, and those with claws.

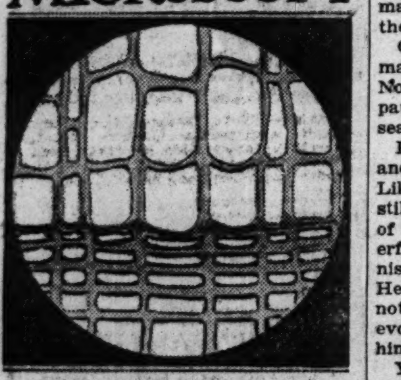
Geology reveals the skeletons of many strange creatures of this time. None is more interesting than that of patriofelis, the common ancestor of seals, cats, and otters.

Patriofelis was about eight feet long and as savage and strong as a jaguar. Like all the creatures of his time, he still retained his long tail as a remnant of the age of reptiles. He was a powerful swimmer and no mean antagonist on land. But he could not run. He had no need to run. There was nothing to run after; no prey was yet evolved that could move faster than himself.

Your ancestors and mine looked on patriofelis. They feared him, they avoided him, and in time they came to kill his descendants.

The age of mammals is still an enduring epoch. Next time you see a seal or tiger skin, remember you are looking at the coat of a blood descendant of the old time "father of cats."

MICROSCOPY



THIS is not lace; it is the pattern of cells in a piece of wood. Nature made exquisite designs long before the eye of man was here to behold them. At best our art can only imitate nature. We can admire and copy, but we cannot improve on that which is already perfect.

CHEMISTRY

ART OF HARDENING COPPER.

YOU have, no doubt, heard of the lost art of hardening copper. Like Atlantis or El Dorado, it is a myth. Even legends, however, are founded on truth, and the hardened copper myth is no exception.

The iron age, properly speaking, entered Egypt only about the time of the Romans. This in itself is surprising. Excavators working amid ruins of tombs and ancient cities find many implements of brone, but almost none of iron. Iron was not unknown in Egypt and was used occasionally for knives and swords during a period of 2,500 years or more before the Romans' time.

Iron was always expensive in Egypt. There were few workable iron mines near, while copper abounded. The Egyptians found it cheaper to smelt down the rich copper ore of the Levant and to import tin stone from great distances than to beat iron out of its black ores.

Iron has not always been a superior metal to bronze. We use iron because our industry is equipped to turn it out cheaply. We know how to temper it and how to manipulate it, either into tough, hard steel or soft, almost waxlike malleable iron.

The ancient Egyptians were not so skillful as we. Iron to them was a soft metal. The more they heated and pounded it the softer it became. Copper, they found, with about 20 per cent of tin added, makes a hard bronze that can compete with iron.

If you have a forge or a blowpipe, melt down a handful of pure copper, then add the required quantity of block tin. Pour the white hot metal upon a slab of fire brick and when it has cooled, break it up with a hammer. The alloy is a pale yellow, you find, and quite brittle. It is hard, too, and will scratch nails, horseshoes, and many sorts of cast iron. This alloy is the hardened copper of legend.

In ancient times it was not so much the copper that was so hard, it was the iron that was so poor. Chisels of white bronze, if they are fashioned with thick blades and reground at frequent intervals, can make far more impression on stone than chisels of soft iron.

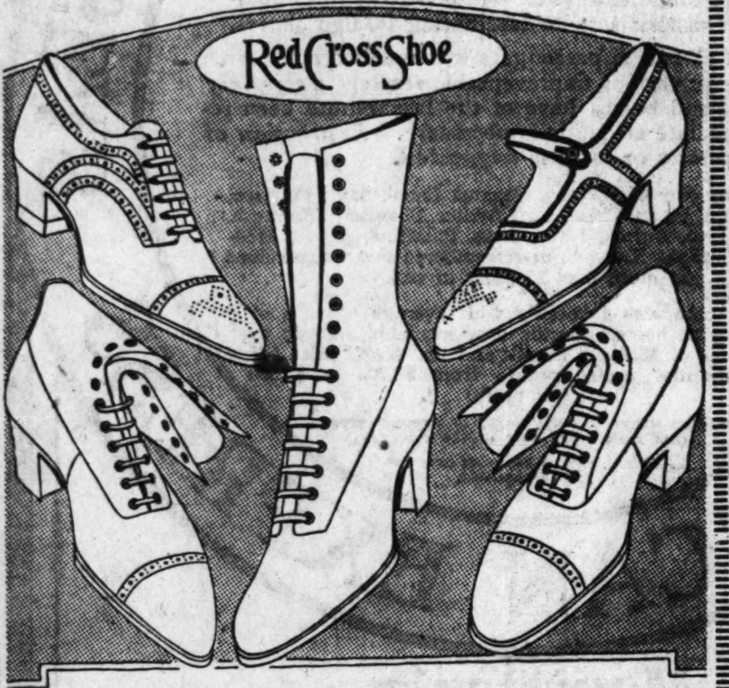
Women's $8 to $10 Red Cross Shoes and Low Shoes at 5.98

Fourth Floor—State Street



Every one of the many thousands of women in Chicago who have worn Red Cross Footwear in the past will quickly tell you that this is certainly the most vital footwear economy news in the newspaper today, for they know in just how particular a manner Red Cross Footwear is made and how very seldom is the opportunity to secure it so very much below the standard prices.

Models to be discontinued at present and the ends of lines from our own great stock of Red Cross footwear—or this most astonishingly low figure would not be possible.

The low shoes include black kidskin or brown calfskin oxfords with low walking heels, patent leather oxfords for dress wear and strap effect slippers of patent leather or brown calfskin, many with covered heels.

The high shoes are made of fine selected black kidskin in a variety of splendid lasts, with Cuban, military or low walking heels—the Red Cross trademark to be found on every pair of Red Cross footwear included—is a guarantee of style, fit and finish; a guarantee of real foot comfort that is not obtainable in other makes—if workmanship and craftsmanship mean anything in footwear, you have but to see how remarkably well Red Cross footwear actually is made—an opportunity that you should take prompt advantage of. The Corseted Figure Back Says Antoinette Donnelly

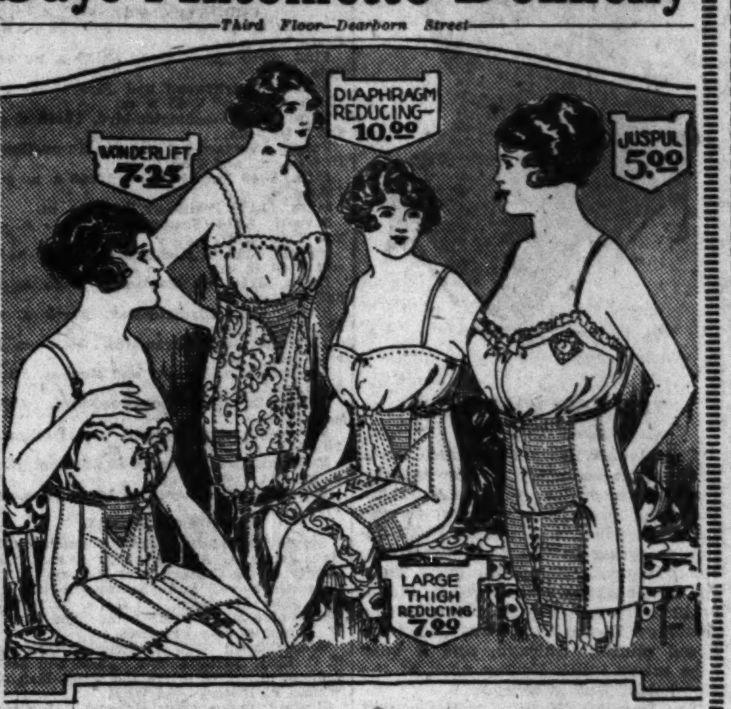
—Third Floor—Dearborn Street—



In last Sunday's Tribune Antoinette Donnelly wrote of corsets—so interesting was her article that we reprint the gist of it here—to us it is particularly gratifying to note the importance she attaches to having the corset properly fitted, for fitting corsets properly has been a hobby with us for many a year—so much so that here each year has seen our corps of corsetieres grow larger—each member is a graduate of the "N. H. F. I." of New York—

Each is trained rigorously in the foremost scientific and hygienic fitting methods, each can aid you to choose properly the model best suited to bring to your figure the long fashionable lines and still keeping you perfectly comfortable and healthful—for this masterful fitting service no charge is made.

If you have allowed your figure to spread as so many thousands of women have, you should ask to have a pair of Nemo self-reducing corsets fitted, for they do so much to remold the figure. There are numerous models for the various types of figures. See how these low bust corsets support, hold in and reduce the abdomen—in sizes to 36 at........ $4 and up to $10

From The Tribune of Sunday, October 15th, 1922, by

Antoinette Donnelly

—and nowadays, when line is preached from every magazine and woman's feature page, the importance of correct corseting is not to be overlooked. Now they are being draped about the 1923 figure. No new model, unless particularly favored by Providence, can well appear corsetless with the new clinging, slinky frock, which calls for the illusion of grace and slenderness.

But since corsets are designed on certain lines for certain figures, on other lines for heavier figures, why go to a counter and pick up a bargain pair when one might walk out much more triumphantly with a corset that would wear longer and give a better line if fitted to the individual figure.

There is no doubt that a corset is to the majority of figures as important as the dress.

If you have uneven hips or other deformities of figure, you will be surprised what a good corsetiere can do for you. But do not buy a corset on one of your hurried shopping days. Take time to try on a number of pairs, and if you are heavy do not economize. Economize on the dress instead, since it is "line, line" that is all important today.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Pope Appeals to America for Near East Relief Fund

By the Rev. W. B. Norton

HIS HOLINESS POPE PIUS XI. has issued an appeal to the Catholics of America and to all humane persons, even though not Christian, to help Russia, Austria, and the near east from being destroyed by hunger and pestilence. An offering for this purpose will be taken in all Catholic churches next Sunday. The appeal will be made today in every congregation requesting an offering or a subscription to be brought in the Sunday following.

The Most Rev. John Bonzano, apostolic delegate, Washington, D. C., has expressed the desire that the message from his holiness be given the widest publicity. Letters of thanks from the cardinals in the suffering fields for help already granted accompany the appeal for further aid. A papal blessing on all who give is authorized by the pope.

Pope Pius XI. pledges a subscription of 2,500,000 lire to the fund from the holy see. In the papal letter the distress in certain sections of Russia is called "the greatest catastrophe in history."

The dedication of the new organ of the First Presbyterian church, 41st street and Grand boulevard, the Rev. The new instrument is a four manual, forty-eight stop organ with tower chimes and echo organ. It contains thirty-six miles of wiring.

The inaugural recital will be given Wednesday evening, Nov. 1, by Eric DeLamarter, organist of the Fourth Presbyterian church. Ernest Skinner, Boston, will give an illustrated explanation of the structural principles of the organ. Herbert E. Hyde, St. Luke's church, Evanston, will preside at the organ on the evening of Nov. 2, and Frederick A. Stock of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will speak on "Music and the Community Life." The dedication of the organ will take place Sunday morning, Nov. 5, with a musical program in the evening.

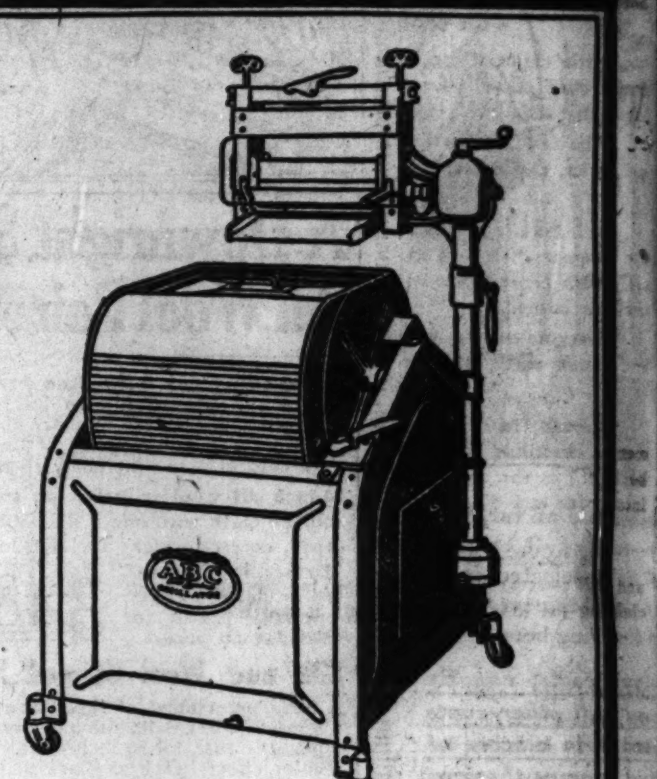
ABC OSCILLATOR
$99



Amazing Value for the Money

It is hard to believe that any factory can regularly turn out such a high grade copper tub electric washer to sell at only $99. Frankly, as electric washer specialists, we were amazed when we first saw this A B C Oscillator.

It simply illustrates, however, what a great big modern $2,000,000 plant can do when efficiently organized to produce quality on a tremendously large scale. The public certainly gets a bargain out of the combination.

If you only realized what extraordinary value is offered you in A B C washers—product of one of the oldest, largest and most successful firms in the industry—you would be in to see the nearest one of us without delay.

There is no longer any reason for putting off buying that new washer you need. Take advantage of this offer we make below. Mail the coupon. Assure yourself on every point before you pay a penny!

Features such as in highest priced washers

Heavy Copper Tub. Made of thick copper, the same gauge as used in the $150 A B C washers. Lined with tin. Easily wiped clean. Has a snug-fitting lid. Should last a lifetime.

Full Size Capacity. The tub is the regular family size. Holds six sheets or the equivalent. Clothes are washed rapidly, thoroughly and safely.

Swinging Wringer. Electric driven. Eleven-inch rubber rolls, reversible. Instantaneous safety release. Wringer locks in any position. Rigidly mounted—can't sag.

Enclosed Moving Parts. All moving parts are safely enclosed in a handsome cabinet. There is positively no danger to children or pets who may get near this washer while it is in operation.

1.75 per week

Think of being able to buy a genuine A B C washer for as little as $1.75 per week—25c a day! While cash prices are quoted on this page, we will gladly explain how you may pay for an A B C while you use it. The payments—weekly, semi-monthly or monthly—depend simply upon the amount you wish to pay down.

Machine-Cut Gears. All gears are accurately machine-cut. They run in heavy oil which insures quiet operation and a long life of dependable service.

Springless Mechanism. No springs are used in the operation of the tub. The tub is caused to rock by a simple, extremely durable mechanism.

Angle Iron Frame. The frame is absolutely rigid. It is made of heavy angle iron, the same as the frames are made in highest priced washers.

Insulated Motor. The Westinghouse electric motor is completely insulated from the washer by a belt drive. Belt tension is easily adjusted by thumbscrew.

Fully Guaranteed. Every part guaranteed perfect by the manufacturers, Altorfer Bros. Company, of Peoria, Ill. Individually we also guarantee each washer.

Satisfy yourself without any risk!

Let us do a washing free, in your home. See exactly how an A B C washer suits you before you decide. Mail this coupon today. Don't put it off. This is your opportunity to get a wonderful value on amazingly easy terms. Sending the coupon, however, does not obligate you in any way whatsoever.

"Though the blood of the Prophets of Freedom be spilled, The Thunder of Sinai cannot be stilled."

"Earth's Martyrs keep step with the strides of God."

(Edwin Liebfreed.)

Christian Americans resist the effort of the enemy of democracy to draw them out from their own country, back into a "league of nations," from which in 1776 America once freed herself.

When ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass . . .

Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom:

And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and famines, and pestilences; and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from heaven. . . .

For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled. . . .

And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring;

Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.

And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. . . .

Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.

—CHRIST JESUS. (Luke xxi., 9, 10, 11, 25-27, 36.)

Little children it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now there are many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time.

Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.

—JOHN. (I. John ii., 18,22.)

But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

—PETER. (II. Peter iii., 10, 13.)

Eternal Truth is changing the universe. As mortals drop off their mortal swaddling clothes, thought expands into expression. "Let there be light," is the perpetual demand of Truth and Love, changing chaos into order and discord into the music of the spheres.

. . . .

The thunder of Sinai and the Sermon on the Mount are pursuing and will overtake the ages, rebuking in their course all error and proclaiming the kingdom of heaven on earth.

. . . .

As the mythology of pagan Rome has yielded to a more spiritual idea of Deity, so will our material theories yield to spiritual ideas, until the finite gives place to the infinite, sickness to health, sin to holiness, and God's kingdom comes "in earth, as it is in heaven."

. . . .

The question, "What is Truth?" convulses the world. . . .

Peals that should startle the slumbering thought from its erroneous dream are partially unheeded; but the last trump has not sounded, or this would not be so. Marvels, calamities, and sin will much more abound as Truth urges upon mortals its registered claims; but the awful daring of sin destroys sin, and foreshadows the triumph of truth. God will overturn, until "He come whose right it is."

THE second appearing of Christ, the Son of God, who is to rule all nations and establish the kingdom of God, the reign of righteousness on earth, is at hand. The prophecy of Isaiah is near fulfilment:

> Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. (Isaiah ix., 6.)

Christ's imminence is apparent to all who are able to interpret spiritually the events of 1914 and the succeeding years of warfare, and who are looking for the fulfilment of the promise of Christ Jesus that he would come again. Paul believed Christ's promise, and recorded his faith in the Son of God, in his statement, "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." (Hebrews ix., 28.) The Scriptures record the words of Christ Jesus:

> The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:
> But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.
>
> But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

> (Matthew xiii., 24-30.)

Christ has thrust in the sickle. These are the latter days, the time of harvest, in which the tares are being bundled to be burned, while the wheat are being garnered into heavenly places. The tares represent all who have not recognized and acknowledged Christ as the Son of God, also all who for ages have bowed the knee to antichrist. At his first appearing, Christ Jesus proclaimed God as the only creator, and the universe, from the infinitesimal to the infinite, as His work, His body, the manifestation of His eternal self-existence. The Principle of being is the I AM, who spoke, or commanded through His mouthpiece, the prophet, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me." (1) Christ testified of his sonship with the Father, and avowed, "The Father that dwelleth in me, He doeth the works." (2)

At his first appearing, Christ Jesus triumphed over the enemy of God, the sin-god, or the carnal man, whose wages is so-called death. "For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." (3) The first-born of Spirit, the Son of God, was crucified because of his declaration that there is but one creator, the eternal I AM, Spirit, Mind, whose universe, or body, composed of spiritual ideas,—or God's man, whom He made in His own "image" and "likeness",—is eternal. The demonstrator of God's omnipotence and omnipresence, the Truth-man who voiced the Principle of being, eternal Life and Love, was crucified by those who believed in material generation, which emanates from sexuality and sensuality, the Adam-Eve dream-creation, whose embodied material senses come up in the morning and finally go out in darkness, so-called death. This sin or pseudo mentality, masquerading as man, is opposed to God's man and universe and is doomed to self-extinction. Paul distinguished between the carnal so-called man and the spiritual man, in the following words:

> The carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. . . . But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you . . . For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.
> (Romans viii., 7, 9, 14.)
> The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (Romans vi., 23.)

Antichrist is the enemy of God's man and universe, the "accuser of our brethren, which accused them before our God day and night." (4) The present contention between the mental forces of good and evil, the conflict between Christ and "the dragon and his angels", is prophetic of the self-extinction of all that opposes Christ, Truth.

God controls His ideas, or children, under His law of eternal Life, Love, and immutable Truth. The I AM, the eternal Spirit or Mind, God, and His spiritual creation—and there is no other, for God is infinite, All,—is described in the first chapter of Genesis, in which all that God created is good, the emanation of His divine selfhood. The spiritual, individual, immortal man and immortal universe, can never be separated from Principle, God, Mind, Spirit, eternal Life and Love. This is the Science of being, which Jesus demonstrated, and it is as workable as the science of mathematics or music, which must be practised according to the law governing numbers, or tones, rhythm, melody, and harmony.

The imminence of Christ's second appearing, in the events of 1914, was apparent to all whose spiritual development enabled them to read the "signs of the times." Jesus said to the Pharisees and Sadducees, "O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?" (5) In this hour Jesus' denunciation applies to the Pharisees and Sadducees of to-day, who cannot discern the "signs of the times",—the reappearance of Christ, in verification of his promise to his followers, "I will come again." (6) In 1914 the fulfilment of his mission was apparent, as imparted in the words of God to His prophet:

> I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him. (Ezekiel xxi., 27.)

John, the faithful disciple, foretold this hour,—the final doom of the material so-called man, who is "conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity." His denunciation of the materialists has rung down the ages:

> Woe to the inhabiters of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, for he knoweth that he hath but a short time.
> (Revelation xii., 12.)

This beloved disciple of Christ presaged the conflict between the Son of God and the dragon; and the twentieth century disciple of the Wayshower to Eternal Life, who, through spiritual illumination, has begun to awake from the Adam-dream of life and intelligence in matter, read the signs of the times in the beginning of the final combat in 1914. The evil forces which compose the Adam-man, to whom Paul referred when he said, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," (7)—these evil forces, malice, hate, revenge, lust, greed, avarice, envy, jealousy, human will, pride of place and power, are the tares, or mental qualities of the so-called carnal man, that are ripening for self-annihilation.

The horrors of those dreadful years of carnage which began in 1914, the war with antichrist, confirmed John's prophetic vision of the final battle between truth and the lie and liars, whom Jesus condemned in his denunciation of his accusers and oppressors:

> Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.
> (John viii., 44.)

Christ Jesus averred, "And I, if I be lifted up . . . will draw all men unto me." (8) God, through His Christ, impelled the Norseman, Leif Ericson, to come out from under the yoke of oppressors, or the reign of autocracy and pagan idolaters, and led him, in the year 1000, to virgin soil, America,—the land to which the invisible Christ was drawing all who were ready to respond to his summons, and who accepted and obeyed him as their Exemplar and Shepherd. Leif Ericson, the Discoverer of America and the Norse colonists of 1000-1347; the Pilgrims of 1620; the Huguenots and Walloons of 1624, and all the Christian pioneers who followed, came out from among the tares, from those who subscribed to "the divine right of kings," from all who accepted and were governed by pagan philosophy, and from such as once crucified Christ Jesus, the first-born of Spirit. These opposers of Christ would not acknowledge him as the Son of God, and although Christ continued to prove by his mighty works that he was endowed with divine power to execute the law of God, his enemies cried, "Crucify him!" Jesus said to them, "Many good works have I shown you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?" (9) Yet they continued to deny his sonship and nailed him to the cross. They hoped to extinguish the life of that representative man of Spirit, whose existence is an emanation of eternal Life and Love, the creative Principle of being.

Christ, the Son of God, endowed with the power of Omnipotence, appeared on earth to awaken the dreamers from their mesmeric sleep, the hypnotic lie, the belief of life, truth, and intelligence in matter,—material birth, growth, maturity and decay,—and to redeem humanity from bondage to antichrist. Throughout the Scriptures Jesus denounced the carnal mind and its phenomena,—sin, sickness, and the illusion of death. At Christ's first appearing, he proved His teaching and came forth from the tomb, crowned with the glory of immortality, His oneness with eternal Life, who He declared was his Father, the source of his being and the Author of his mighty works. During his earthly mission he had destroyed the false claim of a power opposed to eternal Life, God, for others, and had executed the law of God in the raising of Lazarus from his dream of death; in the calming of the angry waves, which were the phenomena of the fear that was controlling his disciples; in the feeding of the five thousand with five loaves and two fishes; in the lesson which he taught Peter, when he sent him to the fish's mouth for the money with which to pay his taxes, and in his continual proofs of the power of his divine selfhood, as the executor of the law of God; and at last having met the foe, the enemy of God, in a combat on the cross, he triumphed over the materialists' claim to life, truth, intelligence, and substance in matter. His divine presence at this, his second appearing, will forever destroy for his faithful disciples of all ages, the false claim of a power opposed to God and His Christ, the evil belief that man emanates from dust and returns to dust, nothingness. At his first appearing, Christ proved for himself his eternal oneness with God, eternal Life and Love, the Principle of existence, and he left to the world the rich legacy of his teaching and demonstration.

After the personal absence of the Son of God, "the light of the world," darkness, or separation from God, again covered "the earth, and gross darkness the people." (10) His faithful disciples struggled to demonstrate the teaching of their Master, and as scribes of Spirit, they left, in the New Testament, a record of their fidelity to their Shepherd and Wayshower to eternal Life. The majority of the people continued to worship material gods. They conceived in sin, and ignored the commandments of Omnipotence, and brought forth sin's wages, so-called sorrow, sickness, and death.

During all this time the invisible, eternal Christ, the Son of God, has been on earth,—for "the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof." He has been actively engaged in his warfare against the "prince of the power of darkness," antichrist, in fulfilment of his mission, his final victory over the material world and evil. The manifestation of the Son of God, in verification of his promise, "I will come again," is imminent. His disciples of the first century accepted his pledge and looked for him to complete his work, in the destruction of the so-called dragon. They believed that their Wayshower to immortality would demonstrate his teaching and manifest his spiritual presence, his forever oneness with eternal Life, the omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent I AM.

To-day the tares are being bundled to be burned. Humanity considered the war at an end when the Armistice was signed, but the spiritually illumined, the present-day disciples of Christ, Truth, know that all hate, malice, envy, jealousy, greed, all workers of iniquity, all who bow to other gods, ignoring the law of eternal Life and Love, God, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me,"—I repeat, the followers of Christ, the Christian Americans, know that these elements, or tares, have not yet all been destroyed, or burned,—that they have not all come to the moment of self-extinction; but this is inevitable and imminent. Christ will put to silence every lying tongue, or witness for the pretended reality of material birth, growth, maturity, and death, which are the opposite of spiritual birth and spiritual development under the law of eternal Life,—man's immortal birthright.

The tares and wheat cannot continue to grow together. At the harvest, Christ's disciples of all the ages, including those of the present hour, who have suffered with him in their defense of his teaching and in their demonstration of that Mind which was in him,—this wheat of God is being separated from the tares, the tares to be burned, the wheat to be garnered into heavenly places.

> For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall the coming of the Son of man be.
> Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left.
> Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left. (Matthew xxiv., 27, 40, 41.)

It is evident that at his second appearing, Christ planted his standard in America, and established God's law and government through the Pilgrims and the Mayflower compact. The spiritual law of God was recognized and executed through the Declaration of Independence; through Washington and our Constitution; through Monroe and the immortal Monroe Doctrine, and through Lincoln in his Emancipation Proclamation. In proof of his words, "And I, if I be lifted up . . . will draw all men unto me," Christ drew to him all who were then ready to respond to the will of God. Thus America, the pilgrim from material sense to Soul, from so-called matter to Mind, began the work under the control of the invisible Christ, for whose coming the pioneer settlers had longed.

The true American, inspired by God and His Christ, knows that America was founded upon spiritual ideals and that her ideals must be defended and preserved. America must free herself from theocratic autocracy and pagan philosophy. It was in America, in 1866, that the voice of Christ was again heard by his disciples of this age, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end." Through years of consecration to his teaching and the study of the Word of God, as imparted to His prophets, from Moses to John the Revelator, Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, awoke to the presence of the Christ. She discerned the Science of eternal being, man's oneness with his Maker, and gave to the world the textbook of Christian Science, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. She declared:

> The foam and fury of illegitimate living and of fearful and doleful dying should disappear on the shore of time; then the waves of sin, sorrow, and death beat in vain. (p. 203.)

The wheat of God, the followers of Christ, are not disturbed by the chaos of mortal mind, which foreshadows the "cosmos of immortal Mind," (11) nor by war, famine, and pestilence, which fulfil the prophecy contained in the Word of God, the Holy Bible, and which is interpreted in the "Key to the Scriptures," Science and Health. Our nation, America, is in travail. She is struggling to free herself from the presence of the invader, "the accuser," and the oppressor, whose autocratic human will is opposed to the divine will, upon which Christ founded America. The fruits of obedience to God's will are apparent in the phenomenal prosperity to which America has attained. When Americans bring all their "tithes into the storehouse," the promise of God will be fulfilled: "I will pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." (12)

Christ, God's vicegerent, is on the field, keeping watch above his own. All who possess the Mind of Christ are assured of his presence and are sustained by his protecting power. The travail, the birth throes, will continue, until everything that "worketh or maketh a lie," until all who are under the yoke of human despotism, bondage to the mental elements of the carnal mind,—hate, greed, avarice, envy, lust of the flesh and pride of human power; until all who pay obeisance to "the divine right of kings, and persist in endeavoring to serve two gods; until all who live in the Adam-dream of life and intelligence in so-called matter, with its pains and pleasures; until all these shall be expelled from the land of the redeemed, or Christ's domain.

War will continue, until the final bundling of all tares will be manifest. At length every knee throughout the world will bend to the omnipotent creator, eternal Life and Love, and Christ, the "King of kings and Lord of lords," will rule all nations under the law of righteousness. John the Revelator gives a full description of this imminent cataclysm, the final conflagration, the "consuming fire" of God, or the burning prophesied throughout the Bible:

> Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen . . .
> Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, that ye receive not of her plagues.
>
> And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning. . . .
> And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise (the phenomena of mortal thought) any more.
> Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her.
> And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone (the stone, Christ, which the builders of Babylon rejected), and cast it into the sea (of human concepts), saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all.
> And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee; and the sound of a millstone shall be heard no more at all in thee;
> And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee; for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived. (Revelation xviii., 2, 4, 9, 11, 19-23.)

Babylon typifies the multitudes of the worshippers of antichrist, all who are without understanding, who deny, or rebel against the law of Life and Love, which Christ, the Son of God, executes.

The meekness which gave Christ his mighty power was attained by Mary Baker Eddy, when throughout her writings she condemned carnality and sensuality and rebuked it under every mask; and the followers of Christ in this age are striving to possess that Mind which was in him, that they may continue to fulfil the law of love for God and man and free our nation from those whom Christ denounced when he declared:

> Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness . . .
> Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?
> (Matthew xxiii., 27, 33.)

On the cross Christ triumphed over the dream,—death. History records but one death grapple "twixt old systems and the Word"; but history will record another. A second death grapple between human autocracy, pagan philosophy, and Christ, or the Word of God, is strikingly apparent, even to those who possess but in a small degree the Mind of Christ. The power of the Son of God over the mythical so-called mortal man and his claim to life and intelligence in matter is near a final demonstration.

Pagan nations and all who are under "the divine right of kings," human autocracy; all who are swayed by the evil mental qualities, hate, malice, greed, lust, revenge, avarice, personal ambition, arrogant human pride, human will; all peoples who oppose the will of God and His Christ—these tares fanned themselves into fury in 1914 to preserve the reign of antichrist, and to wage further war with Christ and with them that are Christ's. The mythical dragon and his hosts continue to contend for supremacy. They are resolved to occupy Christ's domain, America; but they are meeting the resistance of the invisible Christ and the innumerable hosts of his invisible disciples, from Moses to this hour—for man is immortal, there is no death; and these hosts, together with his followers of today, he bids, "Occupy till I appear." Christian Americans resist the effort of the enemy of democracy to draw them out from their country, back into a "league of nations," from which in 1776 America once freed herself. Americans must defend their country and purge it of elements which are foreign to its mental soil.

Christ is separating the tares from the wheat. All must finally yield to the law of God and His Christ and become obedient followers of the meek and lowly One, who triumphed over the dream-experience, death. The self-imposed suffering and torture of the animal qualities which compose the fleshly so-called man will finally cause all nations to submit to the law of righteousness, and the Mind which was in Christ Jesus will eventually establish throughout the world the spiritual brotherhood of man.

Pagan nations, governed by the law of sin, cannot forever perpetuate a generation, which prolongs sufferings, sorrow and terminates in death, and which continues, at this hour, to crucify Christ at his second appearing. These warring elements, the mental forces of the so-called carnal mind—hypnotism, mesmerism, occultism, necromancy, esoteric magic, etc.,—compose the "league of nations." Their subtle sophistry is striving with all its claim to power and presence, to draw from America the defenders of Christ's Christianity. Americans will remain on their own soil, and defend their own heritage. Christ will complete his mission. He will apply his rod, divine love, to all peoples, throughout the nations, until all acknowledge God, eternal Life and Love, as the Father of man.

The soldiers of Christ compose the innumerable and invisible host, augmented by the visible disciples of today. Thus Christ's great army of the past and present are united in their allegiance to the oncoming "King of kings." This visible and invisible host wear in their foreheads "the white stone," "the stone which the builders (of Babylon, the carnal mind) rejected." It is the stone upon which America was founded.

This host is armed with "the sword of the Spirit, the Word of God," and is under the command of "the Prince of Peace." Standing upon their own soil, America, and guarded by the God of Israel, they will defend their country, and Christ will deliver America from all who are opposed to God and His Christ. Democracy cannot unite with autocracy and pagan idolaters, to save that which Christ alone is able to save by applying his rod—the power of the law of God, eternal Life and Love.

True Americans will continue to stand upon their own soil with Christ. They will obey the law of God; and the potency of Love, Life and Truth, which they reflect, will finally reach all nations and will enable humanity to pass through the exalting experiences, the suffering out of the fleshly or carnal psuedo mind, which the Master endured, that he might redeem his immortality. They will ultimately attain the humility which exalts the divine nature in man, and unites him to his creator.

Finally "every knee shaw bow . . . and every tongue shall confess" that there is but one God, one Father-Mother, eternal Life and Love, and that all men are brethren. Then will be revealed the "new heaven" and the "new earth: for the first heaven and earth" will have passed away. (13) Then will end the conflict between God and His Christ against the "dragon and his angels," the so-called carnal man. Then "the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose," (14) "and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things" (thoughts) will have "passed away." (15)

Americans cannot unite with the world of theocratic autocracy. Classification is inevitable. Contention is not yet ended. It will continue until Spirit compels the recognition of God and the spiritual universe, as the only reality of being.

Again we emphasize the spiritual fact, that all mental elements of the so-called carnal man, which oppose God, must end in self-extinction. Whoever possesses the qualities of the carnal mind and is found among the tares, whether they be located in Europe or in America, cannot escape the bundling and burning.

The wheat will remain in America and will continue to defend their Declaration of Independence, their Constitution, their Monroe Doctrine, and their sacred rights. They will eventually put on the full armor of faith and understanding; they will fulfil the law of Love, and ultimately the relation of man to his Maker, his Father, God, and to his brother man, will be established.

America, thou gavest birth
To light that lighteth all the earth.
  God keep it pure!
We love that onward leading light;
We will defend it with our might;
  It shall endure!

America, on-pressing van
Of all the hopes of waking man,
  We love thy flag!—
Thy stately flag of steadfast stars,
And white, close held to heart-red bars,
  Which none shall drag!

America, faith-shadowed land,
Truth dwells in thee, and Truth shall stand
  To guard thy gate.
Thy planted seed of potent good
Shall grow to world-wide brotherhood,
  Man's true estate.

America, the God of Love,
Whose name is ev'ry name above,
  Is thy defense.
'Tis thou must lead the longing world
From phantom fears, to Love's unfurled
  Omnipotence.

Forty-fourth Paper—Shakespeare's "Richard III.," Springboard for English History.

Here pitch our tents, even here in Bosworth field.
(Act V., Sc. 3.) "RICHARD III."

THE first word of this huge melodrama of egoism is its keynote. That word is Now.

Now is the winter of our discontent
Made glorious summer by this sun of York;

Now are our brows bound with victorious wreaths

Grim-visag'd war hath smooth'd his wrinkled front;
And now, instead of mounting barbed steeds
To fright the souls of fearful adversaries,
He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber
To the lascivious pleasing of a lute.

That is Richard. He has taken stock of the time and the opportunity. He accounts the world ready for him to bustle in.

"For me to bustle in," he says toward the close of that impudent, crackling, briskly calculating, and wholly delightful Scene 1, and "Come, bustle, bustle; caparison my horse," are the words with which he launches himself into the battle that ends the play—and an era.

Clash and rattle of men at arms; bells pealing for victory; the ominous whisper of conspiracy along palace stairways and in prison corridors; defections, treasons, rebellion; crisp equivoke and venomous railing; detected men and guiltless men going equally with wide amazement to the block; abundance of mouth fillers like "to court an amorous looking-glass," and "this weak piping time of peace," and "a marvellous proper man," and "flaky darkness breaks within the east," and "God's gentle-sleeping peace," and "divine perfection of a woman" and "diffused infection of a man"; cozzening of weak woman by a mocking devil; youth overweening and pitiless, and o'er fluent in swift word-play and pert turns of speech; lots of snap, as the saying is.

Youth everywhere and above all. Richard is 19 when the play begins and only 33 when it ends; Shakespeare was 29 when he wrote it, and Kit Marlowe, who almost certainly helped in the writing, was the same age when he was killed in a love quarrel. Youth always takes to the play, and for youth Richard has an immense fascination. In one of his earlier stories—"The Black Arrow"—Robert Louis Stevenson surrendered to Crookback, sketching him lightly, deftly, and with manifest capitulation to his eerie spell—". . . girt by steel-clad knights, the bold, black hearted, and ambitious hunchback moved on towards his brief kingdom and his lasting infamy."

A lad who wishes to swing into the pageant-land of William Shakespeare's ten English chronicle plays can do no better than read "The Black Arrow" as a kind of curtain-raiser to the great entertainment that is going to give him the very essence and the glow, the splendor and the humors of a century and a half of English annals. "King John" shall take him out of the twelfth century and into the thirteenth; "Richard II." shall show him grandeur in old John of Gaunt and piteous weakness in Richard the faint-hearted; "Henry IV." (Parts I. and II.) shall make him close pals with a larking prince and bad, foolish, irresistible John Falstaff; with "Henry V." he shall go to the wars in France and win at Agincourt; in "Henry VI." (Parts I., II., and III.) he shall march and countermarch with Lancastrians and Yorkists in wars that disemboweled the old feudal order and worked out in blood one more stage of mankind's progress toward democracy; in "Richard III." he shall behold the last spasmodic struggles of that old feudal order, and he shall take his stand on Bosworth field to look out with Henry Tudor—

> . . . upon a new land. The Baron was there, the Churchman was there, but there, too, was a swarming multitude who uttered the voice of a third power, more potent to influence kings than priest or noble, the power of the Common People, tilling the soil as of old, but reading their books as not of old, their Bible chief of all, and learning the lessons of self-government, self-restraint, and self-respect.

That passage is from one of the most helpful and eloquent books that parent or teacher can put into the hands of the young reader who is going to march with that mighty pageant which begins with "King John." It is the late Prof. Beverley Warner's "English History in Shakespeare's Plays." He was one of the greatest educators this country ever produced.

And for the last stately picture of all in the grand gallery of monarchs and roysterers, of prelates and peasants, of kingmakers and camp followers, of chancellors and wailing women, our young reader shall have the courtly festivities, the mournful intrigues, the spectacle of greatness in abandonment that are the highlights of "Henry VIII."

Wonderful march down the ages! From Magna Charta to the dawn of the Reformation. From John, type of royal perfidy, and Falconbridge, type of English manhood, to Wolsey, type of misguided ambition, and Katherine, type of womanly dignity and sweetness in bitter sorrow.

Was there ever such a story from one hand! Homer is pale and cramped beside it. And ten little books that do not take the room of four current novels tell it all. Mind you what Carlyle said of its beginning—that year 1200:

> Behold, therefore, the England of the year 1200 was no chimerical vacuity or dreamland, peopled with vaporous Fantasms; but a green solid place that grew corn and several other things. The sun shone on it, the vicissitudes of seasons and human fortunes. Cloth was woven and worn, ditches were dug, furrow fields ploughed, and houses built. Day by day all men and cattle rose to labor, and night by night returned home to their several lairs. In wondrous Dualism, then as now, lived nations of breathing men, alternating in all ways between life and death, between joy and sorrow, between rest and toil, between hope, hope reaching high as heaven, and fear deep as very hell.

But why, our young reader justly asks, shall we begin with "Richard III." where the tale is closing? Because partly, as it seems to me, this Richard was so dazzling a figure, alike so gifted and so horrific, so witty and so wicked, so expert a masquerader and so helpless a victim of himself, that he compels our interest in all the close knit tale of his forebears that marched through the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries and in that puissant Henry VIII., son of Richard's conqueror at Bosworth, who came after; in short, because, worsted though he was, this Richard was the strongest man of his age. He was vivid, vital, vivacious, and the play about him is William Shakespeare's motion picture play—jerky, sensational, sometimes tasteless, but ever shadowing upon the historic screen a living, ramping, contriving man facing life and facing death with jubilant gusto. That is why I think of "Richard III." as the springboard for our beginnings in the reading of English history.

"Books," says Arnold Bennett in the excellent vade mecum "Literary Taste and How to Form It"—"books must be allowed to help one another; they must be skillfully called in to each other's aid." Your idea and mine of our young reader who shall plunge from our springboard play of "Richard III." to the three parts of "Henry VI.," where Richard is darkly foreshadowed, or who shall take "The Black Arrow" as a kind of curtain raiser to "Richard III.," or who shall make a side trip into Scott's "Quentin Durward" because the sinister Louis XI. of that tale was Richard's contemporary and, next to Richard, if not the strongest certainly the most astute man of the age—all that would fairly illustrate Arnold Bennett's dictum.

That dictum suggests a similar thought of wider application—the thought of the delightful interrelation our young reader may establish for himself and in his own way, and that is the fruitful way, between the arts that are so highly to refresh his soul and expand his culture; how he may call in the art and annals of the stage to help and illumine poetic drama; how he may allow the colorful and varied chronicle plays of Shakespeare to enliven for him the sciences of history and economics. Doing that he will discover that David Garrick, and Edmund Kean, and Edwin Forrest, and the two Booths, and Henry Irving, and Richard Mansfield, the players, were poets, too, and, to turn to another aspect of these stimulating interrelations, that Shakespeare's Jack Cade was not the first inept labor agitator whom gentle folk, including Shakespeare, tried to laugh out of a good cause.

Once faring northward from the town of Hinckley on the southwestern border of Leicestershire, I paused at a farmhouse door and asked the woman there, "Am I on the right road to Bosworth field, ma'am?"

"I doan know the spot. Like as not you'll be meaning Market Bosworth."

"No; Bosworth field, where the great battle was fought—where King Richard was killed!"

"O! 'tis King Dick's well you seek. Aye, you have the right road."

I did not feel sorry for the unschooled woman in the doorway. Her history was not out of books. It lived. Across four centuries it had come down to her—living lip by living lip, with the wonder and the pity in it of the countryside's tradition that Richard, about to die, had bent and drunk from the spring that still whispers of vanished kings in that sequestered place.

Evening was drawing on when I reached the plain. In 1485 it was a silent and lonely moor. Today its contours and aspect are little changed. In the sunset glow of the August day I took my stand upon the brow of that still eminence which overlooks the field where fell the last of the Plantagenets, that little stretch of moor and marsh from which Henry Tudor looked out upon the new land when the shock of battle had receded, and Richard lay dead by a pool, and the crown of the house of York, which they found beneath a hawthorn bush, had become the crown of the house of Tudor. Puissant figures of kings and nobles I saw in the gathering mist and heard amid the stillness the solemn drum beats of history, and now trumpets that cried to burdened men, "Onward! Onward, for the freedom of your children's children!" Other voices I heard. Other figures I saw. The voice of the supreme poet; the figures of his deathless dreams. Upon the dusky wings of evening the children of poetry trooped across the plain—those servitors at the festal altars of poetic interpretation whom we call actors. I saw the ashen countenance of Shakespeare's guilty-dreaming king and heard him cry from yonder thicket where hung the purple curtains of his tent:

Give me another horse! bind up my wounds!
Have mercy, Jesu! Soft! I did but dream.

I heard the beating of the armorers' hammers, the distant neighing of war horses, the drowsy sighs of men who were to die upon the morrow. From the opposite camp lights flash and sentinels call. Then silence and darkness. Listen sharply. I hear the voice of the Tudor prince in prayer—that majestic petition he utters as he kneels before his sword, struck upright into the ground—

O! thou, whose captain I account myself,
Look on my forces with a gracious eye:
Put in their hands thy bruising irons of wrath.

. . . .

To thee I do commend my watchful soul,
Ere I let fall the windows of mine eyes:
Sleeping and waking, O! defend me still.

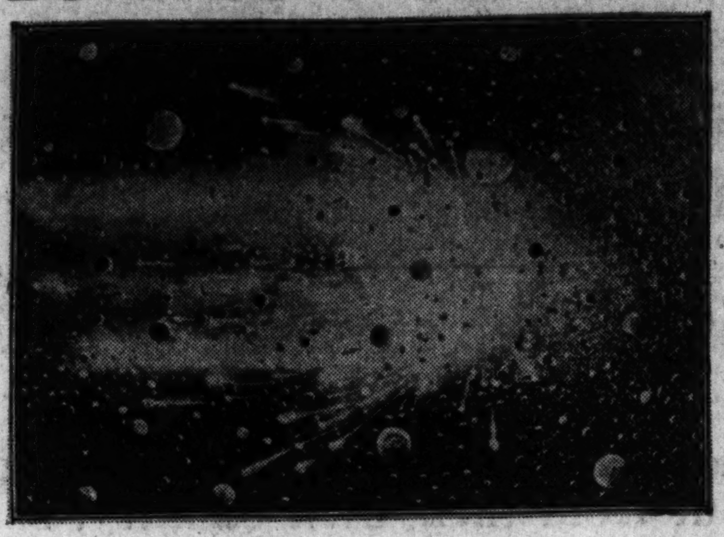
Close, close crowd the shadows of the players—only shadows, yet more vivid than the warriors who marched upon that field—the long, resplendent line of Richards, the men who have vitalized this rôle as only the touch of their high dowered genius could vitalize and who by their living touch made the pageantry of time long gone again to move, again to thrill.

This and such like heroic scenes from all the struggle and all the aspiration of a race the drama and the player's art make to live for us once more, and I knew in that crowded hour that it was so. That gracious knowledge had done for me high service. For me it had made the moorland and the August sunset a place and time of epic. It had enriched existence.

[Next Sunday—"The Spectator" of Addison and Steele.]

ASTRONOMY

HOW SOLAR SYSTEMS DIE.



A dark star in the destroying swarm.

THE astronomer sits at his telescope. Nights that seem only crisp and invigorating to most of us to him are icy cold. His limbs, cramped in one position for hours at a time, grow bloodless, so that even woolen boots will not suffice to keep them warm. He is photographing the stars. He seldom sees the field he sets on, but aims his glass by mathematics.

As he sits, holding the boiling guide star on the cross hairs of the eye piece, feeble rays of starlight are falling on the plate. After many hours they will record images of themselves. Then, about sunrise, but before he can call it a night and go to bed, he must develop his photographs.

Some astronomers merely drop them in the developer tank, then in due time take them out and fix them, serene in the knowledge that if they have discovered anything it will come out in due time. Others must know at once what the night has brought. He stands peering by the faint red beams down at the white plate in the developer.

Dots grow slowly, the darkest corresponding to the brighest stars. In almost every plate there are stars too faint for human eye ever to see. The astronomer scans them eagerly. He counts them over to see, perchance, if there is one too many. Many observers know the best part of the heavens by heart.

If you are not a scientist you can hardly realize the thrill that comes on first beholding a new star. The plate shows a strange dot where there was nothing to be seen before. Somewhere out in space a sun has gone to its doom. Flying through emptiness, it has crashed into a dark meteor swarm and is being ground to atoms.

With beating heart the observer swings the telescope to the spot next night. There, perhaps faint, as often as not brilliantly gleaming before him, is the nova. To the eye it looks much the same as any ordinary star. But in the spectroscope it becomes a living sun tortured by flame.

A nova is a star whose atmosphere is being churned by millions of celestial bullets. Its hydrogen grows crimson; its shattered molecules glow green.

Toward the end of its life every star courses on through space, moving with relentless march to its end. There are snares in space, vast clouds of black nebula, swarms of meteors, lying to destroy suns. The star enters the death trap without pausing.

The energy of concussion is great. Fierce flames leap out. The spectroscope shows the agony of the dying sun, its atmosphere meeting the blows of the meteors until the whole globe grows white hot, then the blazing flash as the rocks themselves crumple in fire, and afterwards the banks of green flame left tossing about the spot where the tragedy occurred.

New stars are not rare phenomena. Every few years one flashes out. Each one marks the end of some solar system and a rebirth into a new cycle of evolution. Do you wonder, then, that astronomers watch for them so eagerly?

BOOKS

> I would rather be the author of "The Elegy in a Country Churchyard" than to have the glory of beating the French tomorrow.—Gen. Wolfe before Quebec.

> Books are the true levelers. They give to all who faithfully use them the society, the spiritual presence of the best and greatest of our race.—Channing.

OUR NATIONAL JOSEPH.

By Fanny Butcher.

If we were up on the history of Joseph, the son of Jacob and Rachel who had a successful tilt with temptation and who was the owner of the dazzling raiment which has come down through literature—if we knew the facts about the gentleman instead of the mere tales which we learned at our mother's knee (behold the influence of "This Freedom")—we should never think of comparing with that Joseph one Hergesheimer, Joseph, author; b. Phila., Pa., Feb. 15, 1880.... author: The Lay Anthony, 1914; Mountain Blood, 1915; The Three Black Pennys, 1917; Gold and Iron, 1918; Java Head, 1919; The Happy End, 1919; Linda Condon, 1919; Steel, 1920; San Cristobal de la Habana, 1920; Cytherea, 1921.... Home, The Dower House, West Chester, Pa.

But, being delightfully ignorant of the elder Joseph's life and philosophical works, we can, with true American jauntiness, say that Hergesheimer, Joseph, reminds us of Joseph Jacobsen because he, too, had a coat of many colors; he was sold into slavery and temptation almost got him, but he eluded it.

There is no one writing in America today who has a more acute sense of texture and color and fragrance and melody than Joseph Hergesheimer. If ever a man had a style that was a literary coat of many colors that man is Joseph Hergesheimer. Every one of his five senses is acute when he is writing, and he vivifies every one of a reader's five senses. Most readers call it "atmosphere." It is more than atmosphere. It is a sensitized eternal life. When he describes physical things—like the texture of silk and the heavy scent of summer nights, and the delicate patterns of arabesques—he is almost a magician. Parts of "Java Head," the descriptions of the Chinese wife and her exquisite trappings, are magic. The senses of souls he doesn't know so well. If you'll think back over all of the things of his that have enthralled you, you will remember pictures, not people. You will remember the flame of the ovens with the silhouette of the Pennys across it; you will remember the uncanny lifelessness of Linda, a statue in a living world.

His other most precious literary possession is the use he has made and can make of what James Branch Cabell calls "domnei"—which, being badly translated, means the worship of woman, and in a larger sense the worship of an ideal. He has been able to vivify an ideal, to make it more real than a person. "Linda Condon" is the obvious example of that skill at its best.

To most of his readers "Cytherea" was the least important thing he has ever done. It was without that five sensed atmosphere of his, it lacked the celebration of an ideal. (You must understand that I use ideal not in the sense of a wishy-washy hope, but in the sense of a dominant passion for something wholly beautiful and wholly unobtainable.) To most of his readers he had been sold into the bondage of flapper fiction. To most of them the so-called modern sexy novel had tried its blandishments on him. He weakened in "Cytherea," but that he did not fall forever into its clutches is witnessed by his new story, "The Bright Shawl." (Ah, you say, so that's what it's all about. A new book, eh?)

In "The Bright Shawl" Mr. Hergesheimer has combined all of his most bewitching literary qualities; he has donned again his coat of many colors; he has gone back to his devotion to an "ideal." He has written what ought to be the most popular book of his career, although it does not have the power of "The Three Black Pennys" nor, even with all of its colors and warmth and fragance, the sheer moving quality of the senses that was in "Java Head." It is a more highly idealized passion than even that celebrated in "Linda Condon."

"The Bright Shawl" is the story of a boy who went to Cuba, fired with the ideal of helping to free her from the sickening torture of the Spanish rule, who found there an adventure so full of color and tenseness and passion that it was a burst of light, vivid and blinding enough to throw its gleam over fifty years. It is, in a sense, although Mr. Hergesheimer never hints at it, an exposition of Mr. Emerson's doctrine of compensation. Just so much flame there is in the fire of life.

In the life of Charles Abbott the flame leaps to the heavens. In a year it has died. In that time he has known the greatest adventure, he has dedicated himself to the freeing of a country, he has found a great friendship, he has discovered a love greater than the love of man for woman, even such a woman as la Clavel. He has worn about his heart, for a little while, the Bright Shawl of romance.

Technically, "The Bright Shawl" is interesting. It gives the effect of a short story; because it is a tale recollected, not acted. When Charles Abbott, wondering why his nephew, just returned from the great war, has no memory of adventure and romance, hears the notes of Liszt's Spanish Rhapsody, his own youth returns to him. That memory is the book.

The Saltusian Theory.

Thirty years or so ago Edgar Saltus was the person whose books were being booklegged. They were considered shocking in the extreme. They were hidden hurriedly under pillows and parked among the lavender buds of unused chests of drawers, or sneaked out of a pile of legal looking documents in a desk drawer. Our forefathers thought him a most immoral writer.

Nowadays, even such a pillar of American mid-Victorianism as a gentleman who runs a small town newspaper—without distinction—and wakes up to find himself the head of the greatest nation on earth, never gives a second thought to whether or not it is decorous for him to admit that Edgar Saltus' "Imperial Purple" is his favorite book. To such a respectableness—or such an obscurity—had the name of Edgar Saltus come. "The Imperial Orgy" came out a few years ago and made those who read it shiver a little with its sheer horror, but none raised his voice in protest against it. Ironic comment on our changing ideals.

All of which has little to do with "The Ghost Girl," a posthumous book by the gentleman who, thirty years ago, was never mentioned in drawing rooms. This is a mystery story done in Mr. Saltus' best mystery manner, a thriller, a creepy ghoulish tale which is something more than a mere yarn. Edgar Saltus believed it to be the best thing he had ever done. He said that if it didn't sell, "I'm through with writing." He was "through with writing" before he had a chance to know its fate.

What G. K. C. Saw in America.

While his audiences were still wondering whether they had been spoofed or had really listened to a great man Gilbert K. Chesterton was writing a series of articles on his impressions of them—his audiences—and their surroundings. Those articles appeared in the austere pages of this, the world's greatest newspaper. They were not remarkable articles. Some of them were dull, but they were signed with the name of the great paradoxist, and they were read.

If any one had asked me whether or not they were worth making into a book I should have said, without hesitation, "Certainly not." But nobody did. And here they are, "What I Saw in America," and I must confess that they're neither dull nor strained, though they aren't—either—jaunty like the "Heretics" and "Orthodoxy" volumes which won him his fame. I suppose that the Chestertonian style pays dearly for itself. The element of surprise is what made it so fascinating when it was new. That element is now gone. The reader is surprised only when he isn't surprised. Complicated, but true, in a sense. The real trouble is that Mr. Chesterton simply hasn't the sparkle of his youth. His paradoxes were defiant, heroic then. Now they are determined.

But about "What I Saw in America." It is not, in any sense, a description of the physical America which confronted him, except now and then when he says that, broadly speaking, there is only one hotel in America, a pattern which is repeated in every town in the—in that sense especially—United States. It concerns the inner America, the subtleties of the American temperament in contrast to the English temperament. That's what the book is in reality, a comparison of two races, a poking of good humored fun at us. He believes that only granting the foreignness—in the sense of being fascinating and alluring, the frontier of a fairyland—of other countries and other peoples will there be possible an international state of fellow feeling. We aren't alike—even those of us who have the same language and the same customs—and if we pretend we are we are more likely to quarrel than to live in peace and harmony.

"In international relationships there is far too little laughing and far too much sneering. I believe that there is a better way, which largely consists of laughter; the form of friendship between nations which is actually founded on differences. To hint at some such better way is the only excuse for this book."

Poetry Prizes.

The Chicago Woman's club is offering through its art and literature department prizes for the four best poems which shall be submitted in their competition which will end on Feb. 1, 1923. The first prize will be $50, the second $25, the third $15, and the fourth $10. No rules have been made regarding theme or treatment.

"The committee believes that beauty can best find its own way and scope of expression," the announcement reads. "Contestants are only asked to consider the high ideals, human and poetic, of the Chicago Woman's club."

The judges will be Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, Anne Higginson Spicer, and Julia Cooley Altrocchi, Chicago Woman's club members, and Horace Spencer Fiske and Keith Preston. Manuscripts should be addressed to Mrs. Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, chairman poetry contest, Chicago Woman's club, Fine Arts building, Chicago.

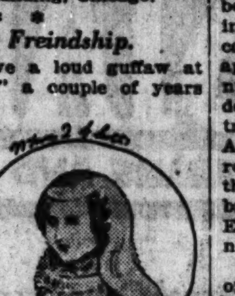
Deserves Our Freindship.

The world gave a loud guffaw at "Daisy Ashford" a couple of years ago. That it hasn't burst into another yelp over "Love and Freindship" is only the natural result of the fact that it doesn't know of its existence. "Love and Freindship" is as much funnier than "Daisy Ashford" as Daisy Ashford" was funnier than the novels you and I wrote ourselves in our burgeoning youth.

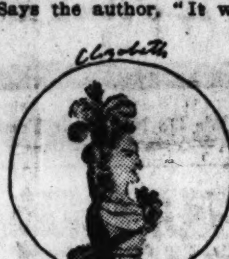


MARY Q. OF SCOTS—AFTER CASSANDRA AUSTEN.

"Love and Freindship" is the earliest extant work of Miss Jane Austen, a lady of sedate ways in her later works, but a creature who simply rollicked at the age of seventeen. It is, first of all, a caricature—of the most farcical and travestied kind—of the romantic novels of her day. It shows that Jane Austen, ostensibly a little brown wren in her father's rectory, had read enough of the popular fiction of her time and had a keen enough sense of the unfitness of things to see what tosh it all was. We never think of the gentle Jane as a broad humorist, and yet here in her first works, she has a swashbuckling humor. Most of us have probably forgotten "Pride and Prejudice," "Sense and Sensibility," and most certainly "Mansfield Park," "Northanger Abbey," "Emma," and "Persuasion." But if we do remember them we would look in vain for anything approaching the mood of "Love and Freindship."

Perhaps because it is so different it has lain for a couple of generations in a desk, scorned as unfitting to the fame of one of the first ladies of literary history. A relative found it and, with a preface by Gilbert K. Chesterton, it rocked England and has arrived to do its bit in the United States. Nothing short of quoting half the book would give its flavor. Here is a sentence or so:

"Beware of fainting fits," says the heroine as she is about to die. "Though at the time they may be refreshing and agreeable, yet, beleive me, they will in the end, if too often repeated and at improper seasons, prove destructive to your constitution. . . . A frenzy fit is not one-quarter so pernicious . . . it is exercise to the body if not too violent. Run mad as often as you choose; but do not faint." Says the author, "It was her dying advice to her afflicted Laura, who has ever most faithfully adhered to it." (She has trouble with her ei's and ie's. She never can spell freindship or beleive other than perversely.)



ELIZABETH—ALSO AFTER CASSANDRA.

Besides "Love and Friendship," there is a "Lesley Castle," "A Collection of Letters," "Scraps" and "The History of England," which was illustrated by her sister, Cassandra. The young Jane's passion for Mary, Queen of Scots, leads her to say, "I now most seriously do assure my Reader that she was entirely innocent: having never been guilty of anything more than Imprudencies into which she was betrayed by the openness of her Heart, her Youth, and her Education. Having, I trust, by this assurance entirely done away with every suspicion and every doubt. . . ."

But extracts can't tell you how amusing it is. You must read it yourself.

Tabloid News.

Burns Mantle's year book of the drama has just come, "The Best Plays of 1921-1922." According to him, the ten best were: "Anna Christie," by Eugene O'Neill (here now); "A Bill of Divorcement," by Clemence Dane (recently here and readable in book form); "Dulcy," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, who wrote "To the Ladies"; "He, the One Who Gets Slapped," by Leonid Andreyev (obtainable in book form and worth reading); "Six Cylinder Love," by William Anthony McGuire (here also); "The Hero," by Gilbert Emery; "The Dover Road," by A. A. Milne; "Ambush," by Arthur Richman; "The Circle," by W. Somerset Maugham (here, but saying farewell soon), and "The Nest," by Paul Geraldy. Of the ten, five have been here or are here in the flesh—as it were—and six in the spirit of literature.

And there's—for the amateur players—a new collection of one act plays, "A Treasury of Plays for Women," edited by Frank Shay, which is, indeed, a treasury, for any one who has tried to plan dramatic programs for women's clubs knows how difficult it is to find plays without male characters. There are eighteen plays here, including "The Stronger," by Strindberg; "Manikin and Minikin," by Alfred Kreymborg; "The Lamp and the Bell," by Edna St. Vincent Millay; "A Patroness," and "Ever Young," by our fellow citizeness (as they said in "Orphans of the Storm"), Alice Gerstenberg, and a play by Eugene O'Neill which almost no one ever heard of called "Before Breakfast."

CONFESSIONS

I was reading, again, "Al . . ."—but it doesn't matter. What matters is that suddenly it came over me that I'd like awfully to have written it, that maybe I'd rather have written it than any other book in the world, and that all those who wrote must have some book or books which filled them with envious respect—not favorite books, but books which they would honestly rather have written than any other book in the world, the way that old Gen. Wolfe felt about Grey's Elegy. "That," said I to myself, "would make good reading if you could get some of the lit'ry lights to tell you their secret longings." "Go to," said I to myself, "and try 'em." And so: This week James Branch Cabell, America's greatest stylist, confesses.

My Dear Miss Butcher:

Well, since you thus clap a pistol to my head, I answer without a moment's reflection, either Henry Esmond or the Vicomte de Bragelonne. I do not of course think of these as the finest and greatest books existent, but merely as, in your terms, the books I would rather have written than any others which occur to me just now. Please note, though, that I emphatically disclaim reflection—for the good reason that reflection would almost certainly suggest too many titles.

Yours faithfully,

James Branch Cabell

BOOK NEWS from LONDON

BY SIDNEY DARK,
[Joint Editor John o' London's Weekly.]

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—The name of the English authors who regularly receive considerable incomes from American publishers is legion, and it would be interesting to discover the approximate number of dollars contributed by American readers to the bank balances of English novelists.

E. V. LUCAS.

Nowadays, of course, A. S. M. Hutchinson heads the list, but at least a dozen other English writers earn considerably more in America than they do in their own country. On the other hand, it is curious that quite a number of our more distinguished writers have never attracted so considerable an American public as might be expected.

One of these writers is E. V. Lucas, the author of the best life of Charles Lamb ever written and whose essays have something of Lamb's quality. Lucas himself told me the other day that America doesn't read him—and this seems to me to be America's loss. Lucas is a combination of a man of letters and a man about town, a type common enough in France, but always rare in England. He is a man of prodigious industry. He is on the regular staff of Punch and is the literary adviser of Methuen's, the publishers. He has written essays, novels, and books of travel and he has just completed a play which is to be produced in London before Christmas. He is at present in Florence bringing his charming "A Wanderer in Florence" up to date.

A number of ingenious persons have tried to explain why America is eager to read English books while the English reader is coy, so far as American books are concerned. It is difficult to account for the comparative failure here of "Main Street," which was extremely well reviewed and was highly estimated by English critical opinion.

I believe that one reason why so few American novels sell well in England is because too many American novels are published here. There are dozens of American titles in the English publishers' autumn lists and many of them are novels of the smallest possible value, imported in sheets and only bound when they are ordered. They are naturally all lumped together in the minds of the booksellers, and the really distinguished book is not given a fair chance. There are, of course, many American successes in the English book market. John Russell's striking stories, "Where the Pavement Ends," sold so well that a cheap edition is to be issued.

Eugene O'Neill is another American writer who has impressed the minority with understanding and I anticipate that his plays will sooner or later be appreciated by the majority whose understanding everywhere is limited. H. L. Mencken's essays are selling here and Edith Wharton's new novel, "Glimpses of the Moon," is among the "best sellers."

Lewis Hind, a critic not without honor either in America or in his own country, has issued another series of literary studies which he calls "More Authors and I." I imagine this book will be published simultaneously in America. Incidentally, Hind says, "Sinclair Lewis is the American Locke." I know both writers and I can think of no two men more dissimilar in temperament and in achievement than the typically American author of "Main Street" and the middle aged, rather weary Englishman who has made his fortune out of saccharine fiction and who now lives in a villa on the shores of the Mediterranean.

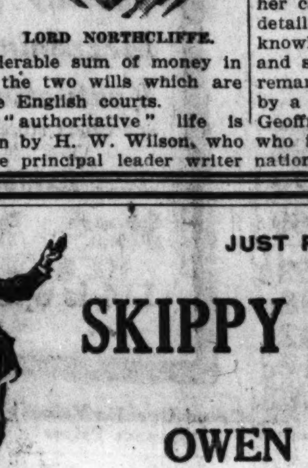
Max Pemberton, who was perhaps Lord Northcliffe's oldest friend, is rushing a short biographical study, which is to be published here by Hodder & Stoughton. Alfred Harmsworth, as of course he then was, lodged with Max Pemberton and his wife when he first started to earn a living in Fleet street, and Pemberton knows the struggles of the early years better than any other living man. It was the great sorrow of Lord Northcliffe's life that he had no children, and he always had a particular affection for Pemberton's sons and daughters. Pemberton, by the way, is one of the lucky people to whom Lord Northcliffe left a considerable sum of money in the first of the two wills which are agitating the English courts.



LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

A longer "authoritative" life is being written by H. W. Wilson, who has been the principal leader writer of the Daily Mail since its first number. This book will not be ready until next year.

I may perhaps mention that the biography of another newspaper man, the late Sir Arthur Pearson, whose name will always be connected with the care of the British soldiers blinded during the war, is to be published in a week or two by Hodder & Stoughton here and Doran in America.

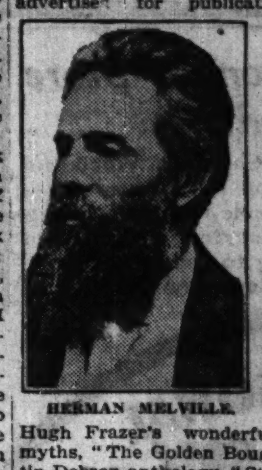
Among the more interesting books advertised for publication during the coming weeks are the first volumes of a standard edition of the prose works of Herman Melville, "A Short History of Mankind," by H. G. Wells, "The Irish Guards in the War," by Rudyard Kipling, an abridged edition of Sir Hugh Frazer's wonderful study of myths, "The Golden Bough"; on Austin Dobson anthology, "Study of Lloyd George," by E. T. Raymond, and a book called "The Childhood of Christ," by Emile Cammaerts, the Belgian poet.



HERMAN MELVILLE.

Lloyd George's war book will, of course, not be published this year, but we are to have a volume of essays by the lord chancellor and another installment of Mrs. Asquith's indiscretions, which are to be carried to 1916, when her husband was jockeyed out of his high office. It is said that in the later chapters Mrs. Asquith's habitual candor becomes even more than usually candid.

Joseph Conrad's new novel, "The Rover," will be published in the spring.

London has seen the publication this autumn of a remarkable first novel, "Mary Lee," an intimate and most subtle study of life in the middle of last century in an English provincial town among the members of that strangest of religious sects, the Plymouth Brethren. It may seem excessive praise, but "Mary Lee" reminded me over and over again of "Jane Eyre." It has something of Charlotte Brontë's restraint, something of her capacity for careful but essential detail, something of her supreme knowledge of a young woman's mind and soul. And this last is the more remarkable since the book is written by a young man. Its author is Capt. Geoffrey Dennis, who is not yet 30 and who is on the staff of the league of nations at Geneva.

SKIPPY BEDELLE

By

OWEN JOHNSON

Author of "The Varmint"

IN an over-serious age, a novel of pure humor is a genuine relaxation. If you enjoyed "Tom Sawyer," or "Seventeen," or "The Varmint," whether you're young or old, man or woman, you'll find Skippy and his friends of both sexes worth meeting.

¶ This is the joyous story of a sixteen-year-old schoolboy, and the female of the species; of the experiences that made him wise by disillusionment, so that he confided his sorrows to a diary which began: "What I don't know about women ain't worth knowing. Resolved: if any loving is going to be done, they can do the loving."

¶ George Ade says: "It is a real pleasure to meet Skippy and through him to renew acquaintance with several of the awesome characters of Lawrenceville, whom we may study at a distance but never understand, unless we can recall our own mental and emotional processes when we were in the 'teens."

BANKING FOR BOYS.

The ideal boy for bank work is bright and quick; he is clean in habits and clean in mind; he is, of course, honest; he should be at least a grammar school graduate, but ability to grasp ideas and principles is more important than formal education; he should be in the formative stage, say from 15 to 19 years of age, and should have the desire to improve and advance in his work.

If you feel that you have these attributes there is a large loop bank that has an opening for you. The work is interesting and will supplement your schooling with experience that is constantly increasing in value. Good salaries are paid at the start and advance in salary as well as promotion are recorded as merited.

One of these positions may be the stepping stone to your success, so make your application brief and concise, but complete enough to cover your age and qualifications.

THE BUILDING OF SUPERIOR DESIGN

EDGEWATER COURTS IS NOW READY.
5019-35 Winthrop-av. [Near Argyle.]
3 and 4 room apartments.
RENTS, $90 TO $125.

For a number of years, on account of the popularity of small units, the builders have turned their attention to two, three and four room apartments, with the result in many cases, on account of lack of experience in planning and lack of knowledge of the provisions essential to the comfortable occupation of apartments of this type, numbers of buildings have fallen short of public requirements.

The Edgewater Courts is the result of years of careful study and experience on the part of the builders, coupled with the services of one of the most able firm of architects in Chicago, who in planning and building, were given free rein to produce apartments that would satisfy the most exacting tenants.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

YOU CANNOT HIDE YOUR FAT

Overfatness is the one misfortune you cannot hide from yourself or from those around you. If too thin, your dressmaker or tailor can supply the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they cannot conceal.

We take you under our personal supervision—weigh you daily and measure you once a week—keeping an accurate check on your progress.

Any progress we know of strong enough to reduce flesh will puncture the heart. Try the safest method.

ANOTHER BIG SALE.

SUNDAY, OCT. 22.

RAIN OR SHINE.

ONLY 60 MORE

ROGERS PARK

RESTRICTED LOTS,
NEAR PROPOSED "L" EXTENSION, AS LOW AS

$745

PARTIAL IMPROVEMENTS PAID.
$200 CASH, BALANCE $10 A MONTH.

No more lots at this price after Sunday night. If any lots remain unsold after this sale prices will be increased.

The improvements which are now taking place and those under contemplation in this vicinity—WESTERN-AV. WIDENING, PROPOSED KIMBALL-AV. CONNECTION TO McCORMICK-BLVD. (see Tribune, Oct. 14) and the new proposed "L" extensions (see Tribune, Sept. 30)—should more than triple the value of this property in the next two to five years.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY is now offered you, which should be equally as good as the Wilson or Howard-av. districts. The new proposed "L" extensions will surely increase land values along these rights of way. MANY PEOPLE who followed our advice on Lawrence-av., Roosevelt-rd. and other districts are now independently wealthy.

COME OUT TODAY.

Take "L" to Morse-av. Station, Broadway-Clark or Clark-Howard car to Morse-av. Our representatives, wearing RED BADGES, will meet you and take you to property without obligation.

AUTO ROUTE: Sheridan-rd. to Lunt-av., west to Ridge-blvd., north to Kenilworth-av., and west to our office on property.

REMEMBER, we do not allow our representatives to use so-called strong-arm methods in urging you to buy.

NOTICE.

Last Sunday was the biggest day in all our business experience. Crowds were so large that we were unable to take care of them, but we will be fully prepared this Sunday.

OLIVER SALINGER & CO.,

It is only prudent to investigate at once if you propose to build a home some day in Kenilworth. One lot was listed with us Thursday at less than any other in its vicinity. You can save $1,500 by buying it. Every available site in the village is listed with us.

YOUR SALARY ISN'T BIG ENOUGH, YOUR WAGES ARE TOO SLIM

to stand the exorbitant costs of keeping up a home in the city. The crowding in of undesirable population, the dangers of city streets, the pitfalls and temptations for your children today make the city no proper place to have your family.

I can show you a hundred fold better place to live in the most charming part of the suburbs, only 38 to 42 minutes' ride from the loop, on one of the greatest railway systems entering the city. Fast trains every few minutes from early morning until late at night. Monthly fare very low.

My beautiful estate of 200 acres close to the center of the richest of Chicago's suburban towns, divided into great home tracts, 60x150 feet, 60x210 feet, and many much larger now ready for sale.

You can pick out the most beautiful spot for a home here you can find anywhere near Chicago; land gently rolling, high and dry; beautiful trees 40 to 50 years old on big portion of the property; no lots more than 3 to 4 blocks from depot.

Will sell these big home tracts at bargain prices, easy terms, and can show you the best and most economical plan for building.

A delightful neighborhood; no undesirable element of population can get in here and restrictions also cover cost of buildings, building line, etc. Streets are laid out, cement sidewalks in, water, gas and electricity. All these improvements included in price of lots, which are priced at a mere fracton at what property is selling in the large suburb adjoining it.

Pick out your homesite now. Let me show you my building plan; let me show you how you can live in this beautiful location, enjoy all the benefits of country life, and still be close to your business or employment in the city. Let me show you how by having your home here you can cut your living expenses four-fifths. I will mail you full particulars if you will send your full name and address. Address A Q 433, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Florida.

YOU CAN MAKE MONEY ON THESE FARMS.

We have divided our blueberry land into tracts of 10 acres each. When planted to blueberries each farm should easily make a family independent. Figure the profits for yourself—300 trees are planted to the acre. First commercial crop third year after planting, at which age the annual yield is 4 to 6 quarts per tree. From then on until ten years of age the yield increases at an average rate of 2 quarts per tree per year. One blueberry orchard owner in this district picked 50 MEASURED QUARTS from ONE TREE this last season. He has refused $1,000 AN ACRE for his orchard. He was swamped with orders this last season, selling his entire crop LOCALLY at an average price of 17 cents per quart. Cost of picking only 3½ cents per quart.

Ten acres will plant 3,000 trees. Figuring an average yield of only 10 quarts per tree and an average selling price of only 10 cents per quart, the ten acres would yield an income of $3,000 per year.

There never has been a blueberry crop failure in this district. No frosts to kill—no insect pests nor tree diseases to blight the fruit. No irrigation required—there is ample rainfall every year. For full information about blueberry farms and our free excursion to Florida call at Room 406, Tower Bldg., 6 N. Michigan-av.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

On account of settling an estate I offer 640 acres well improved in the rich black Prairie Belt of Mississippi near West Point, celebrated for its big crops of corn, cotton, alfalfa, and other grasses, also dairy and beef cattle and hogs.

The soil is most rich black loam, surface gently undulating. The climate is ideal, you work on the land 10 months in the year; rainfall about 50 in. A former DeKalb, Illinois, dairyman, now owns and operates 1,300 acres near by, on which he has 325 Jersey cattle and he finds ready sale at high prices for his milk and butter fat. A Wisconsin creamery expert owns and operates a creamery near this farm. The largest hog feeder in the U. S. A. from Iowa has a feeding establishment here.

The buildings are within 500 feet of a railroad station and consist of a serviceable frame house, 32x42 ft., a frame barn 68x84 ft., a concrete silo, two good wells [one in the milk house with a gas pump], tenant houses for laborers, well fenced and drained.

The crop this year consists of about 100 ac. corn, 100 ac. cotton [53 bales for $120 each], 150 ac. of alfalfa and other grasses, 90 ac. building lot and pasture. There is about 200 ac. of virgin hardwood timber. A good gravel road. Clear title. Price $75 an ac.; terms, 1-3 cash, bal. 10 years at 6%. Adjoining lands valued at $150 an ac. This offer is subject to previous sale, so act at once. No trades considered. Address B H 275, Tribune.

BUICK SEDAN, 1922, 5 PASS. Do not let the price we have put on this car influence your judgment. It has been privately owned and carefully used, and has not had a great deal of mileage. Customer is exchanging for a larger sedan. If you are looking for a Buick sedan that we believe to be in almost new car condition, with upholstery, tires, and mechanical condition good, you will not want to miss this opportunity. Dealers pay as much as we ask for this car. Price, $1,250.

BRISCOE TOURING, 1920. This light 5 passenger economical touring car has been owned and driven privately but a few miles. It is coming into our hands in exceptionally fine shape, both mechanically and paint. It is equipped with 5 wire wheels and much other extra equipment. Just a good looking, well kept little car that some lucky buyer will get at a price that is way below its market value. See it today. Price, $250.

CADILLAC 8 TYPE 59 TOURING CAR. Visualize if you can this beautiful 7 passenger touring car. It is refinished in a Dustproof Gray and is beautifully striped. The cord tires are practically new. Mechanically it is far above the average. It is equipped with a set of winter enclosures that to duplicate today would cost you about $300, and you can enjoy all the comforts of a Sedan as the glass sides of this type are very tight fitting. The upholstery is in such condition that it does not look as though it had ever been sat on. It has been privately owned and driven by a man who takes a great deal of personal pride in his motor cars. This car must be sacrificed and if you could see and ride in it we know that you would agree with us that at the price it is a bargain that you cannot afford to pass up. If you are contemplating the purchase of a high grade 7 passenger semi-enclosed car, we are offering this one as our second "Special" for today at the ridiculously low price of $1,750.

CASE SEDAN, 1921. This is a standard 5 or 7 passenger Case Sedan and it is coming into our stock in almost new car condition. The paint, which is a Dark Maroon, has not a mar or blemish on it. Mechanically it is exceptionally fine and it will bear a most rigid examination and demonstration. Closed cars of this type are much in demand, particularly at this season of the year when the enclosed automobile is such a comfort. This one we are offering at a ridiculously low price and we know that the first person who sees it will undoubtedly buy it. For that reason, would suggest your immediate action. As compared with the price of a new Case car today this one is truly a bargain at our much reduced price of $1,250.

PEERLESS SEDAN, 1920. For the man who has been waiting for that exceptional opportunity to buy a high grade 7 passenger enclosed car, this one will carry a strong appeal. It is an exceptional bargain in more ways than one. The condition is such that alongside of a new car it would be hard to tell them apart. It has just been refinished a Dark Blue and the tires are in very good condition. Mechanically it will carry the standard warranty of this company. During this week of the Enclosed Car Show we are offering all of our cars to the public at unheard of reductions as compared with the prices of new automobiles and of like make today. This is the only Sedan of this Series and Type that we have in our stock and you will have to act quickly if you would avail yourself of what we believe to be one of the best bargains in a Sedan that we have offered for some time. Special for this sale, $1,500.

PEERLESS TOURING, 1919. This is the first car of this type that we have had to offer for at least 2 months and we have had many, many calls for cars just like this. It is an exceptional automobile in view of the fact that it has been owned and driven by one man and the car shows that he has taken wonderful care of it. It is painted a Dark Blue and the cord tires are in very fine condition. Mechanically it is exceptionally fine. We are offering this car as a leader and will sacrifice it at a price that we do not believe you can duplicate. It is worth far more than we are asking and we do not believe that you could invest a like amount of money in any new car to give you the same good satisfaction and service. It is a very economical car and one that presents a very high class appearance. It is worthy of your immediate action if you are interested in the purchase of a high grade touring car at the price that is put on it as a special inducement for immediate sale. Act quickly. Price, $550.

Equipped with cord tires, 1 spare, bumper, and other extras. A high grade limousine of a series that is very seldom offered. It is very roomy and ideal for town or country use. This is a bargain and it is priced ridiculously low for quick disposal at $490.

A WANT ADVERTISER asked, when given three wishes by a good fairy, that his every Want Ad would be effective. So the good fairy willed that his wish be granted, but she left the actual accomplishing of the wish up to him. She offered to mail him, absolutely and unqualifiedly free, a copy of "Wording a Want Ad to Make It Pay." The Tribune is playing fairy godmother to its Want Advertisers. It has written a book, "Wording a Want Ad to Make It Pay," which is an open sesame of Want Ad information. All The Tribune asks you to do is to mail in the coupon, signifying that you desire a copy, and one will be mailed to you FREE.
